WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if here is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

Cabbage Fertilizers.

Professor C. C. Hulsart says in New York Farmer that in experiments at the New Jersey station nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia and dried blood were used alone in increasing amounts with cabbage. All three forms of nitrogen gave greatly increased yields over the control plant, but the dried blood, applied at the rate of 270 pounds per acre, was most effective.

Nitrate of soda, applied at the rate of 200 pounds per acre, stood a close second. The average increased value, due to the use of all the fertilizers, was over $50 per acre. All forms were about equally effective in hastening the earliness of the crop.

Hay Stock.

Haymaking is often delayed until the age and maturity of the grass make the hay woody and indigestible. All grasses having coarse stems should be cut early. Some grasses, if permitted to mature, make hay that is worthless. To make hay the grass should always be cut before the seeds mature and some before the seeds are formed. Alfalfa should be cut when the first blooms appear. With corn and the sorghums the case is different. These plants contain their maximum of nutriment when the seeds are full grown, but not matured.

Illinois' Big Orchard.

The most extensive orchard in central Illinois is at Lilly, about midway between Bloomington and Peoria. There are about 8,000 pear trees, 3,700 apple trees, 2,800 peach trees, 1,800 plum trees and 1,800 cherry trees on 240 acres of land. Although started seven years ago, all but 2,500 apple trees are in bearing. There are 100 acres more reserved for pasture, houses, woodland, etc. There are five houses for the workmen, large barns, blacksmith shop, icehouse, fruit sheds and other buildings on this land.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Six years ago Lewis Eagan, of Adrian, caught his foot in a sidewalk, injuring it so badly that it has since been growing worse and last Sunday the leg was amputated above the ankle.

An exchange says: A new game called Christianity is being played in certain parts of the city. The girls get on one side and are Christians. The boys get on the other side and are the heathens. Then the heathens embrace Christianity.

6,200 seal skins from Newfoundland have been received by the Hillsdale tanning factory, which will be made into garments. They are from hair and wool seal, and do not correspond with the Alaska seal, from which expensive garments are made.

A good story is told in New York of a young girl who was asked how she and her steady were getting along. She said: "Oh, he's all right, except that he is always talking shop when he comes to see me. He's a street car conductor, you know, and he keeps saying 'sit up closer, please!'"

In Coldwater a bundle of rags was left on the street, and after it had been undisturbed for four days, a gentleman looked it over and found it contained the body of an infant. He immediately went to find the coroner, and when he returned it was gone. The mystery has caused considerable excitement in the neighborhood.

One of the late plagues to the farmer is the sparrows in his wheat fields. Reports have come in showing where great flocks of them have gone into the waving grain and completely destroyed. They eat the kernel and whip and tangle the straw worse than a flock of sheep could do.—Saline Observer.

A Kansas widow lost a hog. We do not refer to the death of her husband. She lost a real hog and advertised for it. The editor says the hog must have read the paper, for he came hiking home on a dead run as soon as the paper left the postoffice. This is not the first instance where a hog has read a newspaper—and incidentally forgotten to pay for it.

Chauncey Hows, of Hillsdale, is a lively chap. Last Thursday a shot from a Roman candle set fire to his clothing and burned him badly; Friday he was operating a dynamite cane, when the six charges exploded at once, and the flying pieces cut him severely. Saturday he walked into an open trap door and was unconscious when picked up.—Ex.

The editor living in the small town always has the better of the editor in the metropolitan cities. If he is in trouble the whole community is ready to sympathise with him, and if he happens not to have any troubles they are just as ready to hunt some for him, and if, perchance, there are none to be found they do not hesitate to make him plenty.—Bradshaw Neb. Republican.

A sweet girl graduate from a Boston school thus describes the manner in which a goat butted a boy out of a front yard in the neighborhood: He hurled the previous end of his anatomy against the boy's afterwards with an eagerness and velocity which, backed by the goat's avoirdupois, imparted a momentum that was not relaxed until the instigation of the vehement exasperation was landed on terra firma, beyond the pale of the goat's jurisdiction."

Atchison, Kas. Globe—An Atchison young man saw a pretty girl at the corn carnival, and began talking to her. He bought her corn to throw, blowed himself for a cane for her, took her down to the restaurant, and spent the whole evening with her. The next day he saw her and she refused to speak. He followed her up and asked her what was the matter. She told him he must never speak to her again until he got an introduction. Anything goes at the carnival.

A dispatch from Brighton, Mich. says that Miss Annie Knowlton, daughter of Prof. J. C. Knowlton, dean of the university law faculty, was seriously injured Wednesday at Judge Grant's farm. While climbing a wind mill ladder the top round broke, throwing her to the ground, breaking both arms and the left hip. L. W. Smith, a university literary graduate of '03, saved her from fatal injuries by throwing himself on the ground and breaking her fall. Miss Knowlton is well known in this city, having visited at the home of Hon. V. H. Lane when he was a resident here.—Hudson Post.

Mrs. Jos. Yentter of Rome, was brought to the office of Dr. E. Morden Monday for treatment. During the afternoon her son, a young man, had a revolver in which all the blank cartridges had been exploded as he thought. He snapped it several times to be sure. Then he raised it and pointed toward her, and the unexpected happened. An unexploded cartridge became active and though Mrs. Yentter was some twelve or fifteen feet away, the powder struck her face. The young man was completely overcome with remorse, and could not conceal his anxiety and distress as he waited for the physician to attend the injury.—Adrian Press.

Armada, Mich., Graphic—It is said that all men are liars. The other morning we overheard a traveling man at the depot tell the following to a companion: "I once knew a nigger who was afflicted with stammering and being advised to take starch in order that he might be clearly understood, he took it in such large quantities that he became so stiff he could neither get his hands into his pockets nor walk around a corner, and was obliged to have his backbone taken out to enable him to get his boots off." ...... We noticed in looking over the 'want' columns of a Detroit paper the other day the following advertisement: "Two sisters want washing." We fear that millions of brothers are in the same predicament.

Failure to perform to-day's duties unfits one for the duty of to-morrow.

The poor want money, and the rich want to spend it, and that's what gives to the world progress.

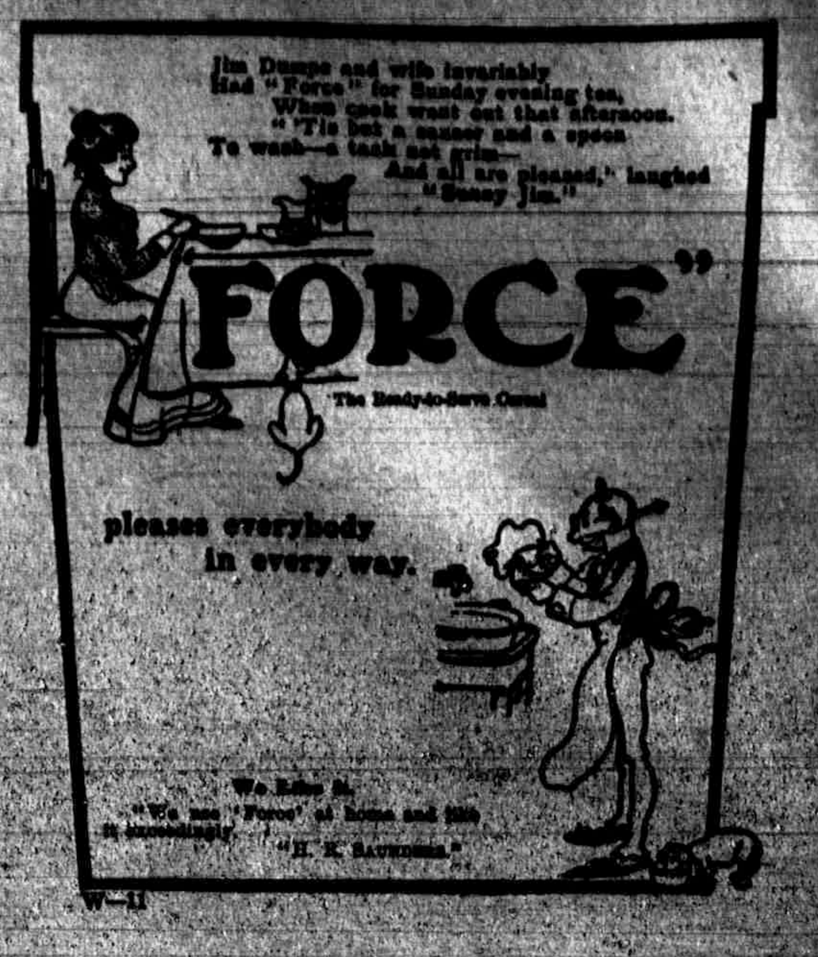
Locomotives spark nights; so men do.



Jim Dumps and wife invariably
Had "Force" for Sunday evening tea,

The Clinton band has reorganized and made Jas. Riley new manager. They have 12 instruments at present and expect to take in four new members in a short time. They made their first appearance last Saturday, playing several pieces on Chicago street, then marched to the ball ground and played before the game.

The school board went to Charlotte Friday to view the Charlotte Carnegie library building, which has just been completed and cost $20,000. The board were met by City President Shepard, Judge Maynard, Dr. Allen and Dr. Knight, a nephew of Dr. Geo. Howell, of this place, and were royally entertained by this gentleman. If they ever come to Tecumseh the best will only be good enough for them.

Sheriff Shepherd arrived home Saturday night from Omaha, where he went in search of Wm. E. Baldwin and Florence Spielman, who are supposed to have gone away together. The sheriff when he arrived home was somewhat put out at the publicity that has been given the case at this end. He will say nothing in regard to his trip except he has given up all hopes of ever finding Baldwin. We hear from outside sources that Baldwin had been in Omaha but two days before the sheriff got there and was met by Frank A. Lynam, or Lyman, the absconding member of the Lenawee Lumber company at Tecumseh, who was supposed to be in Canada. It is said Baldwin registered at the Elks rooms there under an assumed name and that the Tecumseh man used his own name. It is believed that Adrian parties are keeping Baldwin informed about events here and that nothing can be done now.—Adrian Telegram.

Night was her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. A. Wright's drug store.

To be good is noble; but to show others how to be good is nobler and no trouble.

LYSTER H. DEWEY

Writes an Interesting Letter to

MRS. ROBERT STRETCH

While on the train from New Orleans to Washington.

Sunday, June 7, 1903.

MY DEAR MRS. STRETCH:—I have just returned from a good breakfast in the dining car and am therefore feeling quite happy, furthermore, I am on my homeward journey and to me that is always the most pleasing part of the trip. Just now the train is passing through a rich farming region, where the young cotton is 3 to 4 inches high in the peculiar curved rows which are always marked out so as to be at right angles to the slope of the land.

It is a bright sunny Sunday morning. Nature had her face washed with a shower last night, the birds are singing in the trees, the people we see along the road have on their Sunday clothes and everything seems peaceful, quiet and happy. Quiet on a train at 40 miles an hour? Yes, the click-e-ti-click of the wheels over the rails will mark time to a church hymn if one only has the hymn in his mind.

I left Washington Tuesday evening, May 12, on the F. F. V. Limited over the Chesapeake & Ohio for Cincinnati and St. Louis. I have been over that road several times between Washington and Lexington, Ky., but each time I see new beauties in the marvelously grand and beautiful scenery over the mountains by Clifton Forge and White Sulphur and along the New and Kanahwa rivers in West Virginia.

At St. Louis I went to the Shaw Botanical Gardens in the forenoon to see some of the plants that I expected to find in Mexico, and in the afternoon went out to the World's Fair grounds to see the situation of a space that I must fill up with fiber producing plants. I then had a pleasant visit with Mr. and Mrs. Reton (Cousin Fannie, Uncle Simeon's daughter,) and at 8:30 in the evening boarded the Iron Mountain for Little Rock, San Antonio and Laredo.

I reached Laredo in the evening and as I wished to see the country south of the Rio Grande by daylight, I stayed over there until the following morning. Laredo is on the Texas side of the Rio Grande, but to a considerable extent it is a town of Mexican architecture, has its plaza with walks and agaves, yuccas and chian-berry trees, and the language that I heard was at least half in Mexican. The following morning I boarded the train on the Ferro Carril Nacional de Mexico, bound for Saltillo, an all day's ride and a warm dusty ride too.

At Nueva Laredo, just across the river on the Mexican side, the Mexican customs officers went through my trunks pretty thoroughly and pretty roughly. I had a lot of plant pressing paper in them and also 10 dozen 5x7 photographic plates, on which they charged a duty of $2.85 Mexican. I had some money changed at Nueva Laredo and for forty American dollars they gave me $94 Mexican, that is $2.35 for one. At the first station beyond Nueva Laredo where the train stopped there were several Mexicans indulging in the very highly moral (?) and intellectually elevating (?) game of cock-fighting.

From the Rio Grande to Lampazos, the dinner station, the trip was uninteresting. The land was a flat, dry plain, partly covered with Mesquite bushes and very much like the country covered in the ride of the previous day from San Antonio to Laredo. South of Lampazo the road goes up into the mountain valleys and I began to see agaves, yuccas, cactus plants, creosote bushes and other plants that were new to me. The fantastic shapes of the rough, rocky mountains, their outlines distinctly marked against the sky in the clear atmosphere, were an ever changing source of interest.

At Monterey, a city of 57,000 inhabitants, fourth in size in the Republic, there was a characteristic Mexican crowd at the railway station. Men with elegant tall hats, not our American stove-pipes, but cone-shaped affairs, 15 inches high, with beautifully embroidered rims extending out 6 to 8 inches, tight fitting trousers, short embroidered coats, and richly ornamented pistols and knives in their belts. The poorer classes do not carry pistols but usually have a knife large enough for carving purposes. The ladies, some of those of the upper classes very pretty with their flashing black eyes, black hair and regular, rather fine features, were all without hats. Mexican ladies do not wear hats. The men spend from 20 centavos to 20 dollars for their sombreos but the ladies go bareheaded except for their topalas. Mexican women of all classes wear a topala out-of-doors.

The topala is a kind of light shawl with fringed ends and is wrapped in a peculiar manner over the head and around the shoulders. In warm evenings, like that at Monterey, the pretty senoritas often let the topala fall off from their heads and hang loosely around their shoulders. The women and girls of the poorer classes nearly always keep the topala closely wrapped about them no matter what the temperature may be.

A crowd of excursionists, mostly of the poorer classes from a hacienda down the road, boarded the train at Monterey. One black haired, black eyed, girl of perhaps 14 years, with a round, brown face and a brilliant red dress shared my seat with me. Heretofore I had not attempted any Spanish. As we were passing a mountain I asked "Como se'llame esta montain?" Her countenance lighted up immediately and she answered "Estra montain se'llama Gaudelupe." Then she began talking in Spanish as unintelligible to me as Choctaw, until I had to tell her "Yo no comprende, Yo no dicne espanol."

I stayed at Saltillo from Sunday evening till Thursday morning and picked up my interpreter there as I had arranged before leaving Washington. One day we went out on the railroad over the Buena Vista battle ground in Angostura Pass to Carneros a high mountain pass about 20 miles south of Saltillo. There I found them collecting the Cogollos of palma samandoca, a kind of wild yucca, to be used for the production of a fiber known in our markets as palma istle.

From Saltillo we went by train to San Luis Potosi, 95 miles south of the Tropic of Cancer. San Luis is a city of 61,000 inhabitants, 6,150 feet above sea level, very high and very dry. Water is carried about the streets there in 5-gallon Standard oil tin cans swung on the ends of sticks across the shoulders of the peons and sold at the rate of 3 centavos per can. Three years ago, before the large reservoir was completed, the rate was 25 centavos per can. Dirt is cheaper and more abundant than water in San Luis Potosi.

From San Luis we went by train to Cerritos in the direction of Tampico, passing thousands of acres of nopales, a kind of prickly pear cactus bearing edible "tunas." Cerritos is the shipping point for large quantities of istle fiber, and some of the fiber is obtained in that immediate vicinity. Most of it, however, is brought in on burros or in large clumsy ox carts from surrounding haciendas and from Tula 79 miles away. We went by stage to Tula, one of the most uncomfortable rides that it has ever been my pleasure to enjoy. The weather was hot, the Mexican kilometers are long, the sand was deep, very dry and very dusty, and the diligencia (dec-le-hen-se-a) was a most abominably uncomfortable structure of Mexican architecture and Mexican ideas of comfort and beauty for the traveling public. The outfit was drawn by five mules driven by two jehus, who alternately whistled and chirped at the poor tired beasts and shouted "boula" and continually swung the long lashes of their wicked whips, cracking now in the ear of a wheel mule and now under the flank of a leader.

When I reached the hotel (?) at Tula I found the people laughing and a French-German-Mexican who spoke some English and who came over in the stage with us, told me that one of the boys had just came in and announced that the stage had brought "Dos Gringos y una Gringita," (two Englishmen and one little Englishman). My interpreter was a lad of only 14, half Mexican and with a rather scant knowledge of English. At Tula I visited a large rope factory where hundreds of tons of rope are made by hand from istle fiber and shipped to Germany. They told me I was the first Gringo in the place for two years. From there we went by "cocho special" (special coach)—the regular diligencia being full—on to Jaumave (pronounced How mah ve) a distance of 66 miles. The cocho special was even less comfortable than the regular diligencia, but the road was over the mountains with more interesting scenery.

At Jaumave we went to the elegant, commodious and superbly furnished Waldorf-Astoria, the only hotel of its class in the town. The hotel proper consisted of two rooms, one about 9x13 and the other about 18x18, no floor except the ground, no windows, adobe walls, thatched roof, furniture one cot, a home made chair and a box in one room, two cots, a rough table, three home made chairs, a tin wash basin and a 6x8 inch mirror in the dining room. The cooking was done in a kind of room with tent covering and brush walls in the back yard along with the chickens, pigs and burros.

Early in the morning we would hear the grating sound uz uz of the women grinding corn and a little later the spatting as they took the corn meal dough in their hands and spatted it into the form of tortillas (tor-tee-yas) about the shape of pancakes and tasting something like a heavy slightly underdone flap jack. The tortilla takes the place of bread in all Mexico away from the larger towns.

Butter is unknown, the tortilla is eaten with frijoles (fre-ho-les) boiled beans and the frijoles are better and superior in flavor to any beans I have found in the states. Sometimes meat and chilles, chille-cow-carne, are rolled up in tortillas making in-che-la-las. Fortunately eggs, nevas, were obtainable in most places and for a week my diet consisted of eggs fried, frijoles, tortillas and coffee. I regarded myself as very fortunate to get such a good bill of fare.

Men in the vicinity of Jaumave, owners of large haciendas (ranches) employing 500 to 1500 people and worth $50,000 to $300,000 live right along day after day all their lives on nearly such a diet, except that they have meat which I cut out as it was always cooked with onions and chilles, and they also have beer, wine or mescal, the last even more a curse in Mexico than whiskey is in the United States.

After a stay of nearly four days in this restful hotel at Jaumave we went by stage coach over the mountains to Victoria a distance of 66 miles. The scenery along this stage road as it winds upward, higher and higher, and still upward along the side of the mountain, then drops down, down by a series of zigzags into the valley of Victoria, exceeds in beauty, grandeur, anything that my eyes have ever before gazed on.

From the highest point of the road we could look away over the tops of whole ranges of mountains into the valleys 75 miles or more away. I walked most of the way up the hill, camera in hand and hope that the negatives may develope into good pictures, but to me the best picture will be that on my memory. Sixty-two thousand pounds istle fiber comes over this road from Jaumave to Victoria every week on the backs of the poor patient burros, each burro carrying 450 pounds, nearly his own weight.

From Victoria I came back by rail by way of Monterey, Eagle Pass, San Antonio, New Orleans and now we have passed Atlanta. I expect to reach home some time tomorrow four or five hours late as we have to go around by Augusta to escape the washout near Shartanburg. Yours sincerely,

LYSTER H. DEWEY.

NARROWLY ESCAPED

A Shut-out Saturday at the hands of the Locals.

The Adrian—Tecumseh game Saturday afternoon drew out a large crowd, who were treated to some good ball playing, although it was rather one-sided. The game was peculiar in this respect that all of Tecumseh's runs were made in the third inning, when three singles and a double, coupled with two costly errors, netted them six runs and cinched the game, while the visitors also made all of their runs (one) in a single inning.

Phillips, for Adrian, pitched a fine game, allowing but 8 hits, while Harris, for the home team, threw a shut-out game, Adrian's solitary score in the 4th being presented to them by two wild throws, the only errors made by Tecumseh in the game.

Great Praise.

The following letter from L. B. Miller & Son, New York, speaks in great praise of the work of the Macon creamery. In fact this creamery has had a good reputation for butter making for some time.

New York, June 29, 1903

Mr. Granville Mills, Mgr.,

DEAR SIR:—We have been thinking for quite a while that your butterman, Mr. Sears, we believe, deserves credit for the way he has turned your butter out. He is certainly as good a buttermaker as any that ship to us. This is saying considerable but he deserves it and therefore we have no hesitancy in saying that you have a good man with you. We have an invoice this morning for 30 tubs and we thank you for the same.

Yours truly,

L. B. MILLER & SON.

BEAUTY TRIUMPHS,

'Tis a Priceless Treasure.

It is woman's greatest charm. The world adores beautiful women. A pretty woman dreads maternity for fear of losing this power. What can be done to perpetuate the race and keep women beautiful? There is a balm used by cultured and uncultured women in the crisis. Husbands should investigate this remedy in order to reassure their wives as to the ease with which children can be born and beauty of form and figure retained.

Mother's Friend

is the name by which this preparation is known. It diminishes the pain allied to motherhood. Used throughout pregnancy it relieves morning sickness, cures sore breasts, makes elastic all tendons called upon to hold the expanding burden. Muscles soften and relax under its influence and the patient anticipates favorably the issue, in the comfort thus bestowed.

Mother's Friend is a liniment for external application. It is gently rubbed over the parts so severely taxed, and being absorbed lubricates all the muscles.

Druggists sell it for $1 per bottle. You may have our book "Motherhood" free.

A WAY OPEN.

Many a Tecumseh Reader knows it well.

There is a way open to convince the greatest skeptic. Scores of Tecumseh people have made it possible. The public statement of their experience is proof the like of which has never been produced before in Tecumseh. Read this case of it given by a citizen:

Vet. O. Austin, who lives with his son, in the northeast section of Tecumseh, says: "I am more than thankful that Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice for they did me a great deal of good, in fact they stopped a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for years, and also rendered the action of the kidney secretions normal which at times were too frequent and highly colored. I tried a number of so called kidney cures but I did not receive any benefit, before I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I knew people who had used them so I went to C. A. Wright's drug store and got them. To say I entertain a very favorable opinion of them as a kidney medicine is putting it in mild terms. They are all and more than they are represented to be."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANITY.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. J. F. Burtch of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was troubled with severe nervousness and nervous headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. Wright's drug store and after using two boxes I can say I am cured, my nerves are again strong and steady and the headaches all gone and I feel well in every way. As a nerve and general tonic I think the medicine unequaled." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. Terribly Burned.

Cheboygan, Mich., July 11.—Levi Amo was terribly burned in an explosion at the boiler works. He was painting the inside of a boiler with paint mixed with gasoline. A candle he was holding caused the explosion and he is now in a precarious condition. When rescued his hair and ears were almost burned off and the entire upper part of his body a mass of burns, the flesh dropping off in some places. Even if he recovers he will be crippled for life.

Mabel Mead Captured.

Saginaw, Mich., July 11.—Mabel Baldwin Mead and Ted Hall, alias George Hubbard, who escaped from the county jail at Kalamazoo July 1, were captured in this city. Hall made the fatal mistake of coming home to relatives, and officers were on the watch for him. Mabel Mead was found in a closet in the home of Hall's sister, where she had secreted herself. The horse and buggy which they had stolen in Kalamazoo were found in the barn.

Deadly Toy Pistol.

Flint, Mich., July 11.—Harry, the 12-year-old son of Horace Baker of 1127 Avenue A, shot himself in the first finger of his left hand with a blank cartridge while celebrating on the Fourth. Lockjaw set in and he died Friday afternoon.

DEADLY TOYS.

Three Detroit Lads Ill — Another Death in Kalamazoo.

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—Three lads are lying at the point of death in Detroit hospitals suffering from lockjaw. The disease has developed as the result of wounds received from blank cartridges while the boys were trying to make more glorious their Fourth of July. The most severe case is that of eight-year-old Barrett Snow. The lad is now confined at Harper hospital. Doctors declare he has thin chances of recovery.

At St. Mary's hospital lies Willie May, the 14-year-old son of Louis May of 774 Twenty-third street. The same cause and the same effect is apparent in his condition.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 13.—Clarence Hunt, a boy of 15 years, died Sunday afternoon of lockjaw. This is the second fatality here as a result of Fourth of July accidents.

A FATAL BET.

Grefor and Jake Faulkner had been drinking during the night and among matters discussed was swimming. As a result both men stripped back of Ed Stringer's saloon to see which could swim across Black river the quickest. Grefor was taken with a cramp and sank. No effort was made to lend assistance, and Faulkner swam to shore.

Grefor's body was recovered. He leaves a widow and three children.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoeo Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

Grief can take care of itself; but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.

For a lazy liver try Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets. They invigorate the liver, aid the digestion, regulate the bowels and prevent bilious attacks. For sale by all druggists.

The sunshine of love is to be found in our own natures.

Foley's Kidney Cure

Will cure diabetes.

Will cure stone in bladder.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

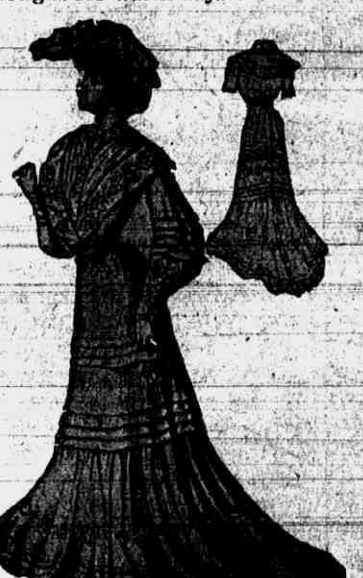
LATEST FASHION NOTES.

GOWN SHOWING INCRUSTATIONS OF VENISE.

In addition to the collars of Venise or Irish lace, the tendency is to appliques and incrustations. This latter form of trimming is introduced on a gown of hydrangea blue voile, displaying the popular mutton-leg sleeve. Incrustations of white Venise in floral pattern add richness and beauty to both skirt and bodice. The stitching at the head of the plaits which vary the sleeves and skirt, is done with Corticelli stitching silk. The rounding neck is a feature of late designs for warm days.



We shall not entirely depend on Irish lace for whole dresses this year. There is a coarse make of thick lace, between Cluny, Maltese and Yak, which is adapted to the same purpose. Chiffon is employed much for evening gowns, and one of its adapted uses is as a bridal veil, seen on the Continent, but not as yet here. It is a material that lends itself to soft bouillennes and infinitesimal tuckings. Tulle blends best with silver for evening wear, and tassels fall everywhere.

RECOGNIZE NEW KING.

President Angell Thinks Nations Will Accept Servia's Choice.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 11.—President Angell addressed a large audience of summer students and citizens last evening upon the last revolution in Servia. He briefly reviewed the history of that country.

President Angell intimated that there would be no lasting peace until the great powers could unite on what should be done with Turkey. Austria is in no better condition. It is only the great loyalty of all the various nationalities to the present emperor that kept peace, but upon his death, and he is 70 years of age, there will be something doing.

Dr. Angell thought, in view of the great intrigue between Russia, Turkey and Austria, the people were rather to be pitied. He thought there was no question that all the powers would recognize new king, as it was a rule of international law to recognize the sovereign called by the people to the throne. The recall of ministers only showed disapproval of assassination.

CLEANING UP IONIA.

Officers After Liquor Men and Slot Machines.

Ionia, Mich., July 11.—The work of cleaning up Ionia county, already well under way by order of Prosecuting Attorney W. K. Clute, advanced another notch Friday when Sheriff Fales was given seven warrants to serve on Portland liquor men charged with violating the law. They are Ed Worden, Ime Havens and John Fox; each is charged with having a minor in the saloon and selling liquors to minors, and Joseph Patterson, selling to a minor.

In all, there are now pending here twenty-six liquor violation cases and more to hear from.

The sheriff has ordered slot machines and similar gambling devices out and says the prosecutor's order in this matter also will be fully enforced throughout the country.

Payne to Take a Cruise.

Washington, July 11.—Postmaster General Payne has announced that he would leave here next Wednesday on a cruise along the coast of Boston. He said that he would take advantage of the regular cruise of the revenue cutter Onandaga to go on that vessel and would be away about ten days.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.

Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

NEVER CAN RALLY

Death Has Stamped Its Seal On Aged Pope's Features.

LIFE MUST SOON FLICKER OUT

Rome, July 16.—Dr. Mazzoni, in reply to the question "Can the pope recover?" gave the Associated Press correspondent last night the following signed statement:

Rome, via Condotti 9, July 15: At the present moment the disease of his holiness has lost its character of absolute gravity which it had at its acue period. It might be considered to have entered the period of a possible solution. This might occur in a man of strong fiber and young, but it is impossible to entertain such a hope in the case of a man in his ninety-fourth year. With his the physical energy absolutely indispensable for recovery is lacking. Pope Leo's organism is perfect, and as such maintains itself after ninety-three years of never interrupted work, but his motor force is no longer sufficient for the complex functions essential to life. In other words, the ninety-three years of Pope Leo XIII. bring him into that category of extraordinary longevity when life is designed to flicker out independent of the action of any pathological complication. The only service that science and affection can render is that of struggling to have this precious existence preserved to us as long as possible. (Signed)

"GATENO MAZZONI."

One of the doctors in attendance on the pontiff gave the Associated Press correspondent a graphic, but horrible, word picture of Pope Leo as he appears today. That smile which lighted the pontiff's face, even in extreme age, has disappeared, probably forever. The skin is drawn tightly over the bony framework of the face, leaving the once bright eyes staring dimly from the deeply-sunken sockets. A grayish pallor overspreads his countenance, but the most noticeable ravage wrough by his present disease is the dropping of the lower jaw, which made the pope's features take on the fixed rigidity of death.

Throughout yesterday the precincts of the Vatican were comparatively quiet. The pope was kept in seclusion, only one person beside the physicians in immediate attendance gaining admission. This one was Monsignor Pifferi, the pope's confessor. During the day the pope took a slight amount of nourishment.

The doctors are well night exhausted with their unceasing cares. Dr. Lapponi in particular spends his entire nights, as well as days, in the sick room. Just before midnight his wife, wishing to see him, went to the Vatican.

The total number of dispatches reached nearly 6,000, including some lengthy cables from half round the world. The total cost of these telegrams is estimated at $36,000. This enormous deluge taxes to the utmost the resources of the Vatican administration.

A Statue to Washington.

London, July 16.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Pilgrims' club last night a committee was appointed to give effect to the recent suggestion to erect a statue to George Washington in London. It was decided that subscriptions should be entirely confined to British subjects. Archdeacon Sinclair, in submitting the plan to the society, said: "Englishmen have at least fully recognized the great qualities of Washington. I feel assured that nothing will be more popular in this country than such a tribute to that great man of English birth, who has done so much for the world's history, not only for the young nation across the sea, but for Great Britain as well." Archdeacon Sinclair announced that he was authorised to offer a place for the statue in St. Paul's cathedral.

Opium Bills Tabled.

Manila, July 16.—The Philippine commission has tabled both the opium bills. The first bill provides for the creation of an opium monopoly in the archipelago and its sale to the highest bidder. The second is a substitute, introduced by commission, making the importation of opium unlawful except by pharmacists and permitting the disposal of the drug on a physician's certificate. A special commission was appointed to visit the oriental countries and investigate the regulations regarding the disposal of opium. Afterwards all the records will be sent to Washington.

A Father's Awful Crime.

Kalkaska, Mich., July 16.—Frank Herrington, a blacksmith living at South Boardman, is in jail here on a heinous charge involving his 10-year-old daughter. Herrington was brought here Tuesday night by Sheriff Creighton and placed in jail. The little girl is in a delicate condition. She tells a horrible story against her father. Herrington has an invalid wife and four children.

Officers Fear Burglars.

St. Joseph, Mich., July 16.—The officers of Berrien county have notified the business men of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor to be on their guard against burglars and violence, claiming that a gang of crooks of national notoriety have dropped into those cities within the past few days, and seemingly laid plans for raids at the big stores and offices.

RUSSIA EXULTANT

Over Her Increasing Power In Manchuria.

TAKE NO BACKWARD STEPS

Conference at Port Arthur Ends—Warlike Preparations Continue—Russia's Reasons For Not Opening Towns to Foreigners.

Port Arthur, Manchuria, July 16.—The conference of prominent Russian officials has ended and the last special train departed for Moscow Tuesday. Most of the visiting officials have gone.

Exultation over Russia's increasing power in Manchuria was the dominant note in the gathering. The possibility of taking any backward steps are scoffed at if mentioned by outsiders. It was admitted that the war possibility was discussed, but it was denied that that was the object of the conference.

The evidence of the increase of warlike preparations since the arrival of General Kuropatkin, the minister of war, and of the intention to bring more troops to Manchuria are abundant. Orders were given to Port Arthur contractors last week for an immediate supply of building materials for barracks, to accommodate 20,000 soldiers, to be shipped to Harbin.

The officials explained that Russia's opposition to opening Manchurian towns to foreigners was not based upon opposition to foreigners, whose trade is desired, and who would in due time be invited into the country. But Russia objected, it is explained, to having consuls accredited to the Chinese government in towns which are practically under Russian control, which would give the subjects of countries so represented the enjoyment of extra territorial rights. They asserted that such an arrangement would be certain to result in great friction, such as occurred in New Chwang.

A Peculiar Charge.

Petersburg, Ind., July 16.—Hovey H. Tislow, member of the school board, has been arrested, charged with complicity in a "fake" footrace at Colorado Springs, Col., last September, in which Frank C. Lory of this place lost $63,000.

Considering Pardons.

Niles, Mich., July 16.—The state advisory pardon board is here considering the following cases in which application for pardon has been made: Rodney B. Frisbie, under a thirty-year sentence in 1890 for criminal assault; Edwin R. Green, sentenced in 1892 for eighteen years for statutory assault; M. C. Huling, sentenced in 1895 to Jackson for ten years for a similar offense; Frank Ledger, sentenced to four and a half years at Jackson in 1900 for larceny; Ira Ashman, sentenced to ten years at Jackson for criminal assault; George B. Taylor, convicted in 1892 of murdering Mrs. Comley of Niles, serving a life sentence at Jackson. Taylor claims he is innocent.

Robbed While With His Girl.

Owosso, Mich., July 16.—Harry Wheeler was held up in the Grand Trunk yards during the night and robbed of $25 and a gold watch. Wheeler came to Owosso recently with an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" company, but secured a job here and remained. He was accompanying a young lady home about 10 o'clock when three men surrounded him in a dark place in the railway yards. Two pinioned his arms and the third went through his pockets. The girl, who ran screaming home, was not molested.

Shocking Tragedy.

Union, Mo., July 16.—Two persons are dead as a result of one of the most shocking crimes ever committed in this vicinity. Joseph Smith, 41 years old, is charged with killing his half-brother, John Rhodas, 26, with a shotgun, almost disemboweling him. Mrs. Eliza Rhodas, the 60-year-old mother of the men, lying in the next room, suffering from cancer, sat up at the sound of the shot following the quarrel and dropped back dead.

Merrill Park Not Available.

Saginaw, Mich., July 16.—It is likely a new site will have to be chosen for the blind institution, as under the terms of the grant of Merrill park to the city by the Saginaw Improvement company, it was expressly stated in the deed that in case of use of the property for other than park purposes it would revert to the original donors or their heirs.

Was Gen. Alger's Favorite.

Detroit, Mich., July 16.—Sybil Alger Gray, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Gray of 580 John R. street, died yesterday after a brief illness. Mrs. Gray is a niece of General R. A. Alger, and her child was a favorite with the general, who was at the bedside when the little girl died.

Life Sentence For Muste.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 16.—In the superior court Wednesday morning Adrian Muste, the saloonkeeper who was was convicted of killing Albert Schultz, was sentenced to Jackson prison for life.

Case Was Settled.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 16.—Ethel Mitchell, the colored girl who charged Richard K. Skinner with being the father of her four-weeks'-old babe, has accepted cash in settlement. No arrest was made, and Prosecuting Attorney Hooper refuses to state the amount paid.

Washtenaw's Crime Record.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 16.—The semi-annual report of Prosecuting Attorney Duffy shows that during the past six months there have been 550 criminal cases in Washtenaw, among which there were 405 plain drunks, 9 with frills, 31 vagrants and 24 for larceny under $25.

DETROIT EN FETE

Two Great Organizations In Convention.

TWENTY THOUSAND VISITORS

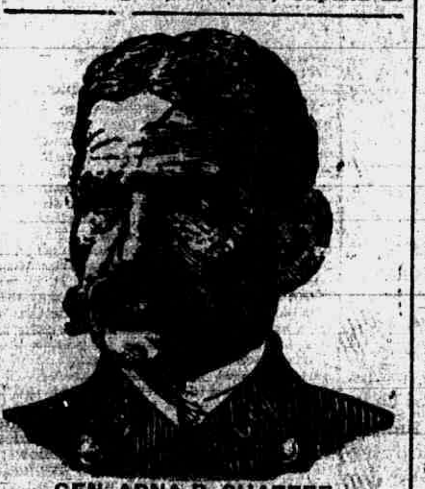
Detroit, Mich., July 16.—The annual reunion of the National Society of the Army of Santiago de Cuba is now in full swing, and within her borders Detroit is harboring a vast hoard of the men who fought so valiently during the recent war.

With this host of brave men have come those who led them in battle and as attendants at the reunion. Major-General William R. Shafter, president of the National Society of the Army of Santiago de Cuba and General Adna R. Chaffee, who recently achieved notoriety in the Philippines, are here.

Another notable, whose arrival created some interest, was Colonel Webb Hayes, the man who resembles President Roosevelt. He is a son of ex-President Hayes. Among others are Colonel Clark of the Second Missouri; Colonel C. V. Hard of the Eighth Ohio; Colonel C. G. Starr of the Twenty-fifth infantry, Fort Reno, O. T.; Colonel Arthur L. Wagner, U. S. A.; Captain E. V. Bookmiller, Ninth infantry, Madison barracks, Buffalo; Captain F. W. Ramsey of Governor's Island, N. Y.



GEN. ADNA R. CHAFFEE,
Fourth Vice-President of the National Society of the Army of Sanitago de Cuba.

Headquarters of the organization is at the corner of Woodward and Monterey avenues, where a small city of tents has reared itself.

Several exhibitions of crack horsemanship were given during the forenoon by Captain Bookmiller's composite troops, which include the best athletes from the various regiments of the country. This party numbers 134, inclusive of the eleven officers.

This afternoon an exhibition was held at the camp grounds, and tonight a similar one will take place, followed by a reception at the Wayne pavilion and a moonlight excursion on the steamer Columbia. Friday will be devoted to the convention, which opens at the Cadilla hotel at 10:30. In the evening a banquet will be given at the Masonic temple. A trolley and automobile ride and the military exhibition are scheduled for Saturday.

More than 20,000 people are expected to sleep under Detroit roofs tonight in addition to the regular population. Thousands of those who fought in the Cuban campaign will repose under the canvas roofs of the military camp at Woodward and Monterey avenues, and a large quota of electrical workers, who also convene here these days, will, somehow, find quarters.

Everywhere are the white caps of the reception committee's helpers, numbering nearly 1,000; everywhere are men and women, and not infrequently children, with valises, grips and rolls of paper savoring of sermons and addresses.

The prominent bishop is here to address the multitude on great and international subjects. The pastor of the humblest chapel in the darkest of America is here to let his light shine. And the missionary, who, for the sake of the evangelisation of the heathen domains, stayed for decades among the savages of the most remote parts of the earth, has also come to tell of the progress of the gospel in those parts which are unknown to many, obscure to most.

The largest delegation of leaguers to arrive so far is that from Illinois, numbering over 1,800.

One of the largest private receptions ever held in this city will be given Saturday afternoon at 4:30 by Mrs. George Robinson of 425 Cass avenue, for over 600 guests, comprising the members of the board of control of the league, and ten original organizers, speakers and their wives, bishops and church officers, all deaconesses, members of the Detroit preachers' meeting and members of the general convention committee.

Up to midnight 8,000 Epworth League delegates had arrived and registered at headquarters.

Will buy it Back.

You assume no risk when you buy Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and diarrhoea remedy. All druggists will refund your money if you are not satisfied after using it. It is everywhere admitted to be the most successful remedy in use for bowel complaints and only one that never fails. It is pleasant, safe and reliable.

Before an audience which completely filled the floor and gallery of the Central M. E. church, the Michigan contingent set the great Epworth wheel rolling last evening. Seven of the ten Michigan delegates who attended the famous Cleveland conference that formed the Epworth League were present.

The principal speech of the evening was delivered by Rev. C. B. Spencer, and during the course of it he paid his respects to those who are advocating the amalgamation of the Christian Endeavor, Baptist Young People's Union and the Epworth League, societies, to which union he is opposed, as is Dr. Berry, general secretary.

The meetings of the Epworth League began this afternoon at 2:30 with gatherings at three places of assembly—Tent Ontario, Detroit Opera House and the Central M. E. church. At the first-mentioned place Mayor Maybury delivered an address of welcome, at the second Governor Bliss performed that duty, while at the third Senator Alger made the welcoming speech.

Meetings will be held this evening at the same three places of assembly and also at the Fort Street Presbyterian church, at which notable leaders in the Epworth League will make speeches.

PITIFUL STORY.

Young Wife Died In Hospital After Being Deserted.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 16.—The remains of Mrs. Lottie Fitzpatrick were brought to this city from South Bend last night, her death being the sad end of a blighted romance of only two years ago.

In the summer of 1901, on an excursion to South Bend, pretty Lottie Ragotsky met Dennis Fitzpatrick, both being lifelong residents of this vicinity. Two months later they were married, but the husband's affections soon cooled, and since then he has deserted her repeatedly, afterwards returning repentant.

Eight weeks ago he left her and went to Elkhart, where he secured work in the car shops. She followed him, but had been there but a few days when he disappeared again. Without friends, fearing to tell her mother that she had once again been deceived, and with a little baby in her arms, she made her way to South Bend, where she was finally picked up on the streets and taken to a hospital. It developed that she was suffering from appendicitis and she was operated upon, dying Tuesday morning.

When the poor girl died she was but 20 years of age.

FIVE VIOLENT DEATHS.

Three Commit Suicide—Two Accidentally Killed.

Bad Axe, Mich., July 15.—Michael Vizneau of Port Austin, one of Huron county's oldest pioneers, was kicked in the head by a horse Tuesday and killed.

Calumet, Mich., July 15.—William Sheldon was killed by falling rock in the South Hecla branch of the Calumet & Hecla mine yesterday.

Marcellus, Mich., July 15.—William Wilson, a prosperous Porter farmer, who lived ten miles north of town, shot himself with a rifle. The bullet entered the left temple and lodged in the opposite side of the head, yet the man lived nearly six hours after the deed was done.

Coldwater, Mich., July 15.—William Lippert, a prominent Algansee farmer, shot himself in the forehead and heart and died two hours later. Domestic trouble was the cause.

Cheboygan, Mich., July 15.—Philip Tarjeft, a prominent young farmer of the county, while sick and despondent shot himself in the head and died instantly.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 15.—John Muste, the saloonkeeper, was found guilty of murder in the second degree by a jury in the superior court last night for the shooting and killing of Albert Schultz.

Muste was angered at Alderman C A. Hilton because he had been refused a saloon license, and after the council meeting the night of June 1 Muste followed the alderman, who was accompanied by Schultz. After a quarrel on the street Muste fired the shot, intended for the alderman, but the bullet killed Schultz.

ASKED EMPLOYE TO PAY.

Washington, July 15.—The postoffice inspectors are investigating charges made against John M. Masten, now assistant superintendent of the railway mail service and formerly chief clerk of the first assistant postmaster-general's office.

Aman named Terry, now in the government service, has made an affidavit before the inspectors alleging that Masten, while chief clerk to the first assistant, proposed that Terry pay him $50 down and $8 or $10 a month to secure reinstatement in a former position in Masten's bureau.

Terry charges that he was originally a $600 employe in the dead letter office, that he was removed under an order of Masten and put into the city postoffice; that he protested and finally that Masten suggested his getting an outside party, a friend of Masten and a former employe of the postal service, to help him. The affidavit alleges that Masten gave Terry assurance that if he paid the amount mentioned he could get back; that he went to Masten's house about the matter, but did not pay the money.

The federal grand jury in this city is considering several important postoffice cases which are expected to prove of widespread interest.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Brutally Torured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colussa, Calif., writes. "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." DRIVE OUT STEVEDORE.

Longshoremen Take Determined Stand on the Question.

Bay City, Mich., July 15.—The convention of the International Longshoremen, Marine and Transport Workers association Tuesday took another determined stand against the Stevedore question, seeking to eliminate the system entirely at the only place it now exists on the lakes—Chicago. A resolution was adopted directing that hereafter all local unions make contracts with the vessel interests directly. This, it is claimed, will do away with the stevedore and be a more satisfactory method of transacting business.

That a widespread demand exists on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts for organization was made manifest yesterday, when applications were received from points in Oregon, California and British Columbia that an organizer be sent through those sections to gather the marine workers into the main organization. A request came from New York for a salaried organizer to be permanently stationed there. The K. of L. of Boston sent an application for affiliation in the international body.

Delegate McKittick of Detroit asked that the convention take steps to include the marine engineers in the organization. The convention deferred action on the request.

Blaine's Widow Dead.

Augusta, Me., July 16.—Mrs. James G. Blaine died at the Blaine homestead here Wednesday, where she has been living in retirement since the death of her famous husband Jan. 29, 1893. Mrs. Blaine before her marriage was a Miss Stanwood of Maine, and formed the acquaintance of Mr. Blaine while connected with a young ladies' seminary at Millersburg, Ky., a neighboring town to Blue Lick Springs, where Mr. Blaine became a teacher in a military institute some time after his graduation. Mrs. Blaine was 76 years of age.

Into One Organization.

Denver, July 15.—Leaders of the reform party movement, the object of which is to combine the populists, bimetallists, modern socialists and others into a national organization, say there will be a large attendance of notables at the Denver conference to be held July 27. George Frederick Williams of Massachusetts has wired the local committee that he is in entire sympathy with the movement. Attorney C. S. Darrow of Chicago, the miners' representative before the Pennsylvania coal strike commission, promises to send a written address to be read at the convention.

London, July 15.—Samuel Herbert Dougal, perpetrator of the Boat House murder, who was convicted at the Chelmsford assizes June 23 of the killing of Miss Camille Cecile Holland at Saffron-Walden, Essex, and sentenced to death, was hanged at the Chelmsford jail Tuesday, after making full confession of his crime. The Moat House murder, as it was known, was committed over four years ago and hope of solving the mystery had almost been given up when the body of the victim, Miss Holland, was found last April buried in the Moat House grounds.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Present the entire council. Minutes of last meeting read and approved. The committee on fire and fire limits made the following report;

The committee on fire and fire limits, would recommend extending the water main on Union street as far as Evans creek, with a 2-inch pipe on the following conditions:

That the Cemetery Board pay for one-half of the pipe up to Evans creek, and that the Cemetery Board shall take it from the south side of Evans creek, in the cemetery at their own expense. They would also recommend placing a watering trough constructed of cement on the south side of bridge on Union street. C. H. Heck, C. A. Wright, Geo. U. Smith.

Resolved, that report of committee be accepted and adopted. Carried

The public grounds and buildings' committee, to whom was referred the matter of moving coal shed or leasing land where it now stands, reports that they recommend moving shed on land already leased as soon as coal is out of shed.

Resolved that the report be accepted and adopted. Carried.

The following bills were referred to finance committee: J. E. Crosby, for labor of firemen at Geo. Zimmerman's fire, Sept. 15, 1902, $2.00. J. E. Crosby, for labor of firemen at Smith estate's fire June 3, 1903, $3.40.

The bills were referred back by finance committee with their approval.

Resolved, that clerk be instructed to draw an order for $5.00 in favor of J. E. Crosby, for distribution among firemen. Carried.

Resolved, that the matter of neglect of duty of deputy marshal, be referred to the street committee. Carried.

The special sewer committee, to whom was referred the matter of constructing a sewer on Chicago street, appointed by president, July 6, 1903, made the following report:

To the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh: Sirs: Your special committee to whom was referred the petition for construction of a sanitary sewer on Chicago street, respectfully reports as follows:

We recommend that said petition be granted and that a sanitary sewer be constructed in this village along Chicago street, from Adrian street to the river Raisin,

That said sewer be, in its location, route, grade, depth and dimensions, as shown in the map herewith submitted, marked "A", and which is hereby made a part of this report;

That 1.15 mills of the cost of construction of said sewer be assessed by general tax upon all the taxable property in this village, for benefit to public health, construction at street intersections and in front of public grounds;

That the remainder of the cost of said sewer be defrayed by special assessment upon the lands and property benefitted by the drainage in proportion to the resulting benefits;

That such sewer district for such special assessment be the lands abutting on Chicago street and some on north and south Evans street, as shown upon said map "A" and set forth in the anexed schedule, marked "B" made a part hereof, showing front footage, and showing apportionment of benefits of said sewer by the valuations therein made;

We further report that the estimated cost of construction of said sewer will be about the sum of $6056.88. We also annex hereto marked "C," the report of Engineer H. E. Riggs, upon the subject of said sewer. All of which is respectfully submitted. C. A. Wright, Joseph Marsh, Henry Wagner, committee.

Resolved that the report be accepted, Aye—Heck, James, Marsh, Smith, Wagner and Wright.

Report of Engineer H. E. Riggs.

EXHIBIT "C"

TOLEDO, Ohio, October 6, 1902.

To the Honorable President and Council,
Tecumseh, Michigan.

Gentlemen—We submit herewith plans for Chicago street sewer, plans consisting of 1st, Sheet showing plat and profile with all data as to construction and full record of permanent survey benches. 2nd, Detail plans of manholes, flush tanks, pipe laying in bad ground and other details 3rd Schedule, instructions to contractors, bidding blank, specifications and contract.

Accompanying these, we respectfully submit the following report on your sewerage. We have taken levels at all street intersections on Logan, Shawnee and Bidwell streets, also examined the district south of Chicago street. Our conclusions are:

1ST—SYSTEM TO ADOPT.

Modern sewerage systems are practically all built on the "separate" or Waring system, which contemplates: The complete separation of sanitary or house sewerage from storm water. The use of small size vitrified pipe sewers laid deep for sanitary sewers. The use of very shallow short lines for storm water leading direct to the nearest open water way. The use of automatic flush tanks to keep sanitary sewers clean. The use of "Y" branches for making connections. The advantage of the Separate system over the old style combined system is twofold. It is much more clean and sanitary and in every way more easily flushed and maintained than the Combined system, and it is far cheaper in nine cases out of ten. An inspection of levels of your village shows: The surface drainage on Chicago street goes both east and west from Union street. The surface drainage of all territory north of Chicago street reaches Evans creek by short lines. To carry all storm water by the same route to the river as sanitary sewers, would increase our Chicago street street sewer approximately as follows: Instead of 15 inch pipe we would have five foot brick for for an outlet sewer and would use 12, 15, 18, 24 and 30 inch instead of 8, 10 and 12.

A rough approximate estimate indicates that you can put in the double system, both storm and sanitary for about $30,000.00 less than you can the combined system, figuring on sewering all that part of town south of Evans creek. All figures indicate clearly that you should not consider for a moment the combined system. We therefore have proceeded with plans based on the separate system.

2ND—FUTURE EXTENSIONS.

Chicago street is clearly the route for your main sewer. The sewers on Shawnee, Logan, Pottawatamie and Killbuck streets can all be carried east to Wyandotte street, thence to Chicago street without any heavy cut. All sewers needed to care for houses in north and south streets may be made of 6 inch pipe and short lines will suffice.

3RD—CAPACITY.

Grades shown give a minimum theoretical velocity of 150 feet per minute. Assuming a consumption of water of 100 gallons per capita per day, the 10 inch sewer on Chicago street will provide for a population of 3,385 persons on the street, sewer running half full. The outlet below Wyandotte street will discharge 188,000 gallons of sewerage per hour, or based on sewers running half full, will care for a population of 16,000. This is ample to cover any small seepage of ground water which may occur, and will give you an outlet sufficient for an extension of the system to any part of the corporation south of Evans creek.

The depth through the business section has been held from 8 to 10 ft. to care for any basement fixtures and to allow ample fall from building to sewer. We cannot avoid the deep cut between Maiden Lane and VanBuren street and give proper depth west of Democratic street. The use of manhole and flush tank is essential if you wish a good sewer. The manholes are of great value for inspection and cleaning, also for giving air for ventilation. The cost of the flush tank is small, and as it is perfectly automatic, and only requires 200 to 300 gallons of water per day to keep the sewer clean, you cannot afford to do without it. The syphons made by the Pacific Flush Tank Co. of Chicago, either the Miller, Rhodes Williams or Field Waring are good, as are the Dela Hunt syphons and Berry syphons. The cost of all is substantially the same, ranging from $18.00 to $35.00 for different sizes. We would call your particular attention to the desirability of having competent, experienced supervision. This sewer should be built in sixty to seventy working days. The cost of inspection is small, and the benefits very great. The average sewer contractor assumes that he is employed to bury pipe in the ground and pays no regard to line or grade. We have seen many "sewers" built through which you could not see 50 feet, we have seen stretches of 3000 to 4000 ft. of 8 inch sewer of such perfect line and grade that the entire stretch could be looked through. Such work can only be secured by careful, competent engineering supervision.

5TH—OUTLET.

After a survey of two routes we recommend the line in Chicago street outletting through the wing walls of the bridge abutment.

6TH—COST.

We estimate the cost as follows:

Sec. 1.	696 ft 15 in sewer at 50c	$348 00
	24 " 16" iron pipe at $3	72 00
	1 manhole at $25	25 00
	700 ft cut under 8 ft at 30c	210 00
	Total for 15 in sewer		$ 655 00
Sec. 2	1,060 ft 12 in sewer at 35c	$371 00
	2 manholes at $25	50 00
	790 ft cut under 8 ft at 30c	237 00
	200 " 8 to 10 ft at 50c	100 00
	40 " 10 to 12 ft at 60c	24 00
	Total for 12 in sewer		782 00
Sec. 3.	2,286 ft 10 in sewer at 30c	$685 80
	24 " 10" iron pipe at $1	24 00
	5 manholes at $33	165 00
	1,910 ft cut 8 to 10 ft at 50c	955 00
	400 " 10 to 12 ft at 60c	240 00
	Total for 10 in sewer		2,069 80
Sec. 4.	2,210 ft 8 in sewer at 23c	$508 30
	270 " cut under 8 ft at 30c	81 00
	680 " " 8 to 10 ft at 50c	340 00
	710 " " 10 to 12 ft at 60c	426 00
	550 " " 12 to 14 ft at 75c	412 50
	4 manholes at $40	160 00
	1 flush tank at $70	70 00
	Total for 8 in sewer		1,997 80
	Total for entire sewer		$5,504 60
	Add for printing, advertising, engineering and assessment		500 00
			$6,004 60

The foregoing figures are very conservative. Inasmuch as we are making this estimate in the face of a rising market, we have aimed to be well on the safe side. Based on the contract prices at Charlotte, which work is now being completed, the work could have been done for $1,000 less than now estimated. You are however safe in figuring that $6,000 will build this sewer.

7TH—ASSESSMENT.

In proportioning the cost of this work among those interested, it must be borne in mind that when you build sewers on Killbuck, Pottawatamie, Logan, Shawnee and Bidwell streets, and on all north and south streets, they will use the sewer north from Wyandotte street. All property south of Evans creek should share in this, which approximately will cost $1,050. The corporation at large should also pay for the street intersections, manholes and flush tanks, approximately $900 more, leaving division as follows:

Assessable on entire district, cost of outlet	$1,050 00
" " corporation at large	900 00
" " property on Chicago st if entire cost is put on street	4,054 60
Total	$6,004 60

Approximate property frontage 9,400 feet.
Approximate cost per foot frontage 43c.

We would say in this connection that other corporations in Michigan in which we have done work, have placed from 25 to 33 per cent plus intersections on the corporation at large.

In conclusion we would say that we will be very glad to answer any questions which may arise, and will hold ourselves ready to assist you in any way between now and time of opening bids. When you are ready to advertise we will send form of advertisement for such of the work as you desire to receive bids on and will have a representative present on the day of the letting, as per our agreement.

Very respectfully submitted,
RIGGS & SHERMAN,
By H. E. Riggs.

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

He knows that his sufferings are very much like the tortures of the rack.

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Resolved, that, upon considering the petition, heretofore presented, of a large number of taxpayers of this village, asking that a sanitary sewer be constructed in this village from Adrian street along Chicago street to the River Raisin, and upon consideration of the report of the committee to whom said petition was referred, it is the judgment and intention of this council that a sanitary sewer be constructed as asked for as above mentioned.

That the report of said committee giving estimate of the cost, description of lands which will be assessed for construction of said sewer, and the maps accompanying said report—being maps of the proposed sewer district, and showing those lands and premises which will be benefited by the drainage and which we intend to assess for the cost of said sewer, or for a part of such cost, and which maps also show the proposed route and location of said sewer and its grade, depth and dimensions—be deposited with the village clerk for inspection.

That this council do meet on the 3rd day of August A. D. 1903, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. at the council building in this village, to hear suggestions or objections upon the subject of said sewer, from persons interested in or liable to be assessed for said work. And that there be published once each week for the ensuing two weeks, in the Tecumseh Herald and the Tecumseh News, notice of such council meeting and the purpose thereof, and that said sewer and said sewer district, the estimate of the cost thereof, and said proposed assessment may be inspected in the meantime at the office of the village clerk.

Aye—Heck, James, Marsh, Smith, Wagner and Wright.

Resolved by Trustee Marsh that J. S. Wells be allowed the privilege of sprinkling one block farther east on Chicago street. Aye—Marsh. Nay—Heck, James, Smith, Wagner and Wright.

On motion the council adjourned.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

SWELL APPAREL FOR SUMMER TRAVEL.

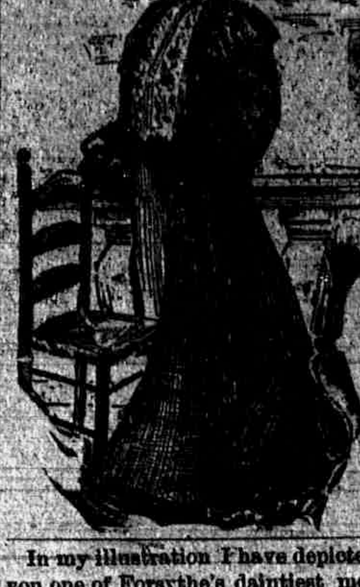
It is said that when a fashion becomes universally popular it is time for it to be changed, but the exception to the rule is exemplified in the shirt waist, which, from year to year, takes a stronger hold upon the woman who wishes to be always chic and natty. Perfect in cut and fit it must be, bearing in every line the sign mark of the best work and the cleverest artist.



In my illustration I have depicted for you one of Forsythe's daintiest models, which is worn with a beautifully cut long-coat costume. With such a costume milady is ready for all but the most formal occasions, which is an advantage to one who is to scurry over the face of Europe, where much luggage is a nuisance and when provision must be made for many emergencies with comparatively little.

To her, then, the shirt waist is even more of a boon than to her stay-at-home sister. But whether she stays in one place or travels, shirt waists in plenty must receive first consideration in selecting her summer outfit.

Another important item of dress that should receive consideration second only to the shirt waist, is the trotting frock. It should be severe and trig and of all things it should be made by one experienced in tailor-mades and fitted over a correct model of corset.

With a properly fitting corset the abdomen is kept down and the hips reduced in size, thus attaining the fashionable figure. Of the many corsets that aim at this important result the C—B a la Spirite certainly accomplishes it—and with entire comfort.

Now a word about white, of which so much is worn. The shade of white selected is very important.

Let the average woman beware of dead-white. Dead-white has a host of rivals in the various creams, ivory, etc. and every woman should realize there is a vast difference in the becoming quality of these tones and should know just which best suits her own coloring.

Louis Bagger & Co., patent attorneys, Washington, D. C., report that recently Mr. George S. Tiffany a resident of this place, obtained a valuable patent for improvements in machines for making concrete. A printed copy of this patent will be furnished free to any reader of this paper on application to the above-named attorneys. Mention this paper in writing.

Willard Stearns of Adrian, was over to Saturday's ball game. This is his first visit here since he came over with a party of secret society people and made a complete ass of himself on account of jealousy, because the boys persisted in dancing with his best girl, a lady young enough almost to be his grand-daughter.—Tecumseh News.

Notice to the Public.

Those who care to take advantage of the present low advertising rates for applying Hawthorn Roof Paint will have to do so now for I shall soon leave Tecumseh and prices will permanently advance one third thereafter.

WEST TOLEDO

Not in it with the Home Team

ONLY TWO HITS

And one run made by the visitors, who found Gilbert a Puzzle, they were unable to solve.

The West Toledo team were wholly at the mercy of Pitcher Gilbert in Wednesday's game, only finding him for two hits, and 15 men stood up and fanned the air. One lucky hit in the eighth a 3-bagger, brought in a man who was given first bag on being hit by a pitched ball. This saved the Toledoites from a shut-out. Gilbert's support was of the gilt-edged variety, only one error being made and that cost nothing.

Anthony Fence Co. Changes.

A number of minor changes have taken place in the Anthony Fence Co. in the past few weeks and construction work is being rushed in order that a battery of three machines ready for operation in time to secure the company's full share of autumn business. Mr. Deuel has resigned as superintendent of the machine shop and Mr. Alberts, a former superintendent, has taken that position. Mr. Fisk of Adrian, a skilled electrician and draughtsman, is employed in perfecting the electric welding device and in making draughts of the looms.

Mr. Anthony will devote himself to the sales department and will also act as consulting engineer for the company. The clerical department is under the supervision of Mr. Fitzsimmons. The third loom of the company is being assembled, and with this loom in operation an almost complete line of different heights and widths of fence will be ready for the market.

The machines are approaching perfection and the later machines will be made with parts as nearly interchangeable as is practical. The company has been somewhat delayed because of difficulty in securing prompt delivery of wire, but this will be obviated in the future and the industry will undoubtedly forge rapidly to the front.

Shrewd Investors.

A few of those who are taking advantage of present low rates on Hawthorn Roof Paint are, the Hayden Milling Co., H. W. Conklin, Seaton W. Anderson, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons, Mrs. Hendershot, Chas. Creiger, Arthur Harding and others. Why don't you?

Mr. Angell is a good photographer having done some fine work in Tecumseh as well as the best work in Saginaw, Detroit and other places and left Tecumseh simply to find a larger field. It is hoped he will succeed well there and certainly will if doing good work will help him

CUSTER'S FIRST BATTLE.

Yorktown and Williamsburg had added no lustre to its fame, but had developed excellent fighting qualities in its soldiers. Gen McClellan had gained confidence in their fighting qualities of the army opposing him; and although Williamsburg was fought out on the 5th day of May, his army did not reach the upper Chickahominy, near the New Bridge, until May 22, where he found the enemy ready to contest the passage of the river. The stream was only about 60 feet wide at this at this place but was lined on both sides by swamps and deep morasses, so that the approaches to the bridge, as well as the bridge, became some strategical importance.

Gen. A. Custer, just graduated from West Point, had joined the army at Yorktown as a Lieutenant in the 5th U. S. Cav. He was only 21 years of age, slender in build, with long, flaxen hair and careless in dress. With Lieut. Bowen of the Topographical Engineer Corps he made a reconnoissance of the river and found a fordable place about 300 yards above the bridge, which they reported to Geo. McClellan. He soon afterward sent for them and in the conversation Custer claimed that with a small force he could capture the bridge. At his suggestion he was allowed to select a regiment from his own State, and chose the 4th Mich., numbering about 500 men and commanded by Col. Woodbury.

The expedition was under the immediate command of Lieut. Bowen, but with him were several other officers; among whom was Capt. James W. Forsyth, 18th U. S. and at present Commander of the Department of California.

The 4th Mich. broke camp soon after midnight, but the night and morning were rainy and foggy, and it was after daybreak before they made their way through the intervening timber to the vicinity of the ford discovered the day before.

Here the same tactics were decided upon which were used many times later by Gen. Custer, and which at last resulted in the disaster of the "Little Big Horn."

Custer detached from the regiment and took command of Cos. A and B—about 75 men all told—Co. A being from his old home of Monroe, Mich.,—and with these forded the river, while the remainder of the command formed a line perpendicular to the river and moved down toward the bridge.

The approaches and bridge were defended by Manly's battery of artillery, stationed on the adjoining bluffs and Semme's Brigade of Infantry, composed of Louisiana and Georgia troops. The 5th La. and 10th Ga. were at the front along the line of the stream to contest its passage, and were the ones more immediately engaged.

Examine for a moment the daring nature of the enterprise now entered upon There was no artillery or reserve infantry to support the attack or to protect the force in case of defeat. The attacking force did not exceed one-fourth in number of the defenders, who had chosen a strong position for defense. The small force divided, with a river between, lined with swamps. Five hundred farmer boys, unused to war, and led by a youngster just from the Academy, were being dashed against this veteran brigade of valorous Southerners. But the boldness and decisive action of this born leader won a victory.

Custer pushed his men rapidly down the river and soon surprised and engaged the outposts of the enemy; but there was no halting or skirmishing; the Michigan men, with yells, charged the enemy, following their retreat to their very camp opposite the bridge.

Custer, snatching a large bowie knife from one of the prisoners, urged his horse across the stream to the front of the remainder of the regiment, and swinging the weapon above his head shouted, "The rebels say we can't stand cold steel. I captured this from one of them. Forward, and show them that the Michigan boys will give them all the cold steel they want."

The regiment fired a volley across the stream, and under a severe but wild one of the enemy dashed through the swamp and across the river, holding their bayoneted muskets above their heads until they reached the camp of the enemy, who, thus beset on flank and front and confused by the suddenness of the attack, fled, routed from the valley.

Our loss was only one killed and seven wounded. The Confederate loss, according to the official reports of two of the Colonels, was 27 killed and 26 wounded and 48 missing. The bridge and 35 prisoners were captured. Upon hearing of the result McClellan rode rapidly through the rain to the bridge and personally thanked the officers and men engaged for their victory and gallant conduct. He at once sent the following dispatch to the president:

"Saturday, May 24, 1862.

To Abraham Lincoln, President:

Fourth Michigan about finished the Louisiana Tigers: 50 prisoners, 50 killed Our loss, one killed and 10 wounded."

I can not close this sketch of the engagement, which opened to Lieut. Custer a career as brilliant as any in the civil war, better than in the words of Gen. McClellan in his "Own Story."

"Soon after reaching the Chickahominy I took as one of my aids, Lieut. G. A. Custer, as a reward for an act of daring gallantry. This was the beginning of the distinguished career of one of the most gallant soldiers of the army and an admirable cavalry leader."

When I was a "kid" in old Tecumseh.
Oh, many long years ago,
We'd bushels of fun in the Globe Mill pond,
With dozens of boys I know.
We'd bring up bottoms from the "middle hole;"
Swim across the pond and back,
We'd tie up the clothes of the other lads,
And then to the water "make track,"
We'd bask in the sun on the old East shore,
Wasn't many weeds there then.
We'd revel in sports till we'd had enough
Then the next day swim again.
We hadn't found out that we all did wrong
Exposing God's image so;
If we set the prurient minds aflame
'Twas a thing we did not know.
The kids cannot swim in the mill pond now.
Nor romp on the sandy beach,
What a horrible town this might become
Were the old time sports within reach.
My blushes come fast when I think how bad
This village was years ago
And 'twas all because we wicked kids swam,
In the Globe Mill Pond, you know.
Its different now, and Tecumseh's saved.
Her virtue is "out of sight,"
'Cause the marshal has done right.
Next he'll banish dogs, and the flies suppress,
And pigeons will have to go,
Then our wings will sprout, for the "kids" can't swim
In the mill pond just below.

A WORD TO FARM TOILERS.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

The Home Friend of the Farmer and His Family.

After the labors and toils of the summer time, and harvesting of crops in the early autumn, many of our farmers, their wives, daughters, and sons, find themselves in a condition of health demanding careful attention if suffering is to be avoided later on. Many experience kidney trouble in some form; with some the liver is torpid; there is biliousness, nausea, and vomiting, with loss of appetite and depression of spirits. Thousands who have been exposed to cold, damp winds and rains while toiling in the harvest fields, now feel the twinges of terrible rheumatism; others run down by worry, overwork, and irregular dieting, are tormented with the pangs of dyspepsia.

To the thousands of run down, sickly, and half dead men and women in farm homes we recommend with all honesty and confidence the worker's friend, Paine's Celery Compound, the only medicine that can quickly and fully restore strength to the weak body and vigor to the muscles. Paine's Celery Compound tones the stomach; it removes poisonous acids from the blood which cause rheumatism; it feeds the weak and diseased nerves and banishes neuralgic tortures; it purifies the blood and gives true vitality and life. The use of Paine's Celery Compound in autumn means the establishing of a perfect physical vigor to withstand the rigors of a severe winter.

A WAY OPEN.

Many a Tecumseh Reader knows it well.

There is a way open to convince the greatest skeptic. Scores of Tecumseh people have made it possible. The public statement of their experience is proof the like of which has never been produced before in Tecumseh. Read this case of it given by a citizen:

Vet. O. Austin, who lives with his son, in the northeast section of Tecumseh, says: "I am more than thankful that Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice for they did me a great deal of good, in fact they stopped a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for years, and also rendered the action of the kidney secretions normal which at times were too frequent and highly colored. I tried a number of so called kidney cures but I did not receive any benefit, before I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills and I knew people who had used them so I went to C. A. Wright's drug store and got them. To say I entertain a very favorable opinion of them as a kidney medicine is putting it in mild terms. They are all and more than they are represented to be."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANIY.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. J. F. Burtch of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was troubled with severe nervousness and nervous headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. Wright's drug store and after using two boxes I can say I am cured, my nerves are again strong and steady and the headaches all gone and I feel well in every way. As a nerve and general tonic I think the medicine unequaled." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoeo Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

Who is powerful? He who can control his passions Who is rich? He who is contented with what he has.

For a lazy liver try Chamberlain's stomach and liver tablets. They invigorate the liver, aid the digestion, regulate the bowels and prevent bilious attacks. For sale by all druggists.

By the death of Miss Kitty Clark of Ridgeway, many homes in our village have lost a ray of sunshine and a personal friend. She was known among us, not only as a musician of ability and a teacher, who was more than ordinarily successful, but as one of those rare personalities that at once attract those with whom it comes in contact. Her influence will long be felt in those families with whom she had been associated as a teacher. A few of us knew something of Kitty Clark's home life, and we wish more could have enjoyed the privilege. The kindness of her disposition and devotion to her parents was doubly intensified in her home and to those of her own family. Her long suffering and the trying experiences through which she passed did not for a single moment cause her to look on the dark side, only the hopeful and bright side did she see. Such qualities endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. Expressions of sorrow and sympathy for the mother and family are on every hand. We all loved Kitty.

The sunshine of love is to be found in our own natures.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss. Probate Court for said County.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on the 25th day of June in the year one thousand, nine hundred and three.

Present, Harry L. Larwill, Judge of Probate

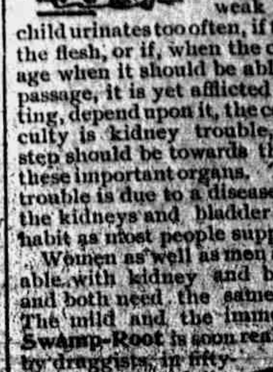
On reading and filing the petition, of James W. Wightman, administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased, and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and praying that his final administration account may be allowed and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 3d day of August next at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

HARRY L. LARWILL,
(A true copy.) Judge of Probate.
E. I. Larwill, Probate Register.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.



Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Home of Swamp-Root.

MACON.

Mrs. Edwin Howell, Mrs. Frank Day and Misses Cora Day and Carrie Camburn attended the E. L. convention in Detroit this week.

There will be no preaching services at the M. E. church next Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Colvin, expects to be in Detroit. Sunday School will convene at three o'clock.

Mrs. Will Biddle was quite badly hurt last week. While driving horse on a hay fork in some manner the load got caught and jerked the horse back and she was struck in the stomach with the whiffletree. Dr. Morden was called and made her as comfortable as possible and at the last report she was a little better.

Site Selected.

Saginaw, Mich., July 15.—J. H. Hamilton of Battle Creek, Vernor J. Wiley of Ann Arbor, formerly superintendent of the state school at Lansing; Joseph Hudson of Clare, W. G. Vanauken of this city and Governor Bliss Tuesday met at the governor's office and decided upon Merrill park as a site for the employment institution for the adult blind, providing the city will give a clear title, make sewerage and water connections and furnish water at cost. Vernor J. Wiley was appointed superintendent and will have full charge from now on. His salary the first year will be $1,800; thereafter it will be $1,500 and living apartments. Plans for the building will be submitted at the next meeting, to be held in this city Aug. 3.

One Regiment From Michigan.

Washington, July 15.—Complaints from Michigan to the war department concerning the delay in issuing regulations for the joint state military this summer have resulted in the announcement that plans for the maneuvers will probably be made public some time this week. Michigan will be permitted to send one organization regiment. It will meet in competition at the maneuvers organizations from Wisconsin, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana. The encampment will be under the command of a brigadier-general of the federal army and will be visited by the secretary or assistant secretary of war. The total cost will be about $1,000,000.

Leaguers Arriving.

Detroit, Mich., July 15.—Delegates for the national convention of the Epworth League, to be held here, have already began to arrive. The first large delegation arrived last night at 11:30 by the Michigan Central, and consisted of 400 pilgrims from Syracuse, N. Y., who will be succeeded today by another large crowd from Kansas, counting near the 500 mark.

Fell Forty Feet and Lives.

Corunna, Mich., July 15.—Although Peter Jandheur, 21 years of age, fell forty feet and alighted on his head and shoulders, he will recover. Jandheur was repairing a hayfork in the peak of his father's barn, north of town, when the pulley gave way and he was dropped to the barn floor. One leg was broken.

KILLED IN MID-AIR.

Lineman Electrocuted on Streets of Battle Creek.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 16.—Earl C. Hayward of Grand Rapids, Mich., was electrocuted Wednesday on East Main street in this city in full view of hundreds of excited, agonized and helpless spectators.

Hayward was a lineman for the Michigan Telephone company. While riding in a small sliding seat on a cable thirty feet from the ground he slipped, lost his balance and touched a live electric light wire. Instantly he was knocked senseless, falling across the cable, where he hung in midair, his limbs twitching in dying agonies until an aerial truck crew from the local fire department reached him and lowered his lifeless body to the street.

Three or four hundred people gathered on the scene, but in the absence of ladders no one could reach the man, and the watchers were compelled to look on helplessly while Hayward died. Several women in the crowd fainted from excitement and nervous tension.

Cruikshank's "Fagin."

There is an interesting story very little known of how Cruikshank conceived his picture of Fagin, the Jew. During the time he was illustrating "Oliver Twist" he spent days traversing the east end of London in search of a face that would correspond with his conception of the character. One day while standing before a mirror in his dining room "pulling faces at himself," so to speak, for the want of something better to do, he accidentally made the features for which he was looking. The picture therefore of Fagin is really that of Cruikshank himself.

Didn't Notice Improvement.

An eastern senator was riding to the capitol on an F street car when a very deaf lady, who sat next to him, asked some questions about Washington and then apologized for being deaf.

"Why don't you try electricity?" sympathetically suggested the senator.

"Well," said the lady, "I was struck by lightning last summer, but I don't see that it did me any good."—Washington Post.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCHELLE, GA., Jan. 30, 1902.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

DENVER NEXT YEAR

Epworth League Convention at Detroit Closes.

THIRTY THOUSAND THERE

Colored Leaguers Assembled—Noted Southern Preachers Express Their Views on Future of Negro and Question of Lynch Law.

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—The Epwosth League sixth international convention is over. Denver, Col., will be the scene of similar functions which during the last few days have been witnessed here, according to a decision reached yesterday by the executive committee. Up till late last night the delegations continued to arrive, the last large body being of colored pilgrims from Lafayette, Ind.

The thousands of leaguers are rapidly leaving for their respective homes, some of which are accessible by a suburban car, others requiring months of travel to reach. They came, they saw and they are winning. Nearly 30,000 Epworthians have been here.

Detroiters, who for months have laboerd to make the convention a success, have been thanked by the executives of the great organization.

It is doubtful whether the four walls of a Detroit church ever encompassed more sincere workers in the cause of their fellowmen than did Bethel M. E. church yesterday afternoon at the gathering of the colored Epworth Leaguers and their friends. Several speakers handled the troublous lynching question in a manner so mild and dispassionate it was refreshing to contemplate.

"In working for the cause of the colored man," said M. W. Dogan of Marshall, Tex., "we must first learn to abolish the sectional lines that have arisen among our people. While the north has problems peculiar to its own conditions, the south has troubles that will about strike a balance.

"We speak of lynching and invariably refer to it as a local question. It has got beyond that stage. It is no longer a local question. It has become a national problem, which we have all to confront. It is only recently that lynching 'bees' have been held in Delaware, Nebraska and many of the other northern states.

"What the colored people must do is to get rid of the lazy, bad negro—the fellow who lives by his wits. He is found in the north and in the south. Colored society should take charge of him and show him no quarter. If need be, the law should be used to take charge of him, an act that would work wonders for the general good of the race."

Dr. I. B. Scott of New Orleans, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate, referred to the patriotism of the colored people of the United States and ventured the statement that, man fo rman, opportunities considered, the colored people had given as much blood for their country as any other class of citizens.

"I differ somewhat with Dr. Dogan," said he. "The courts and the police officers do not reform; they remove. We want the bad, lazy negro lifted up. This bad negro of the south has come north and is doing us more harm here than he was while with us. Here up north he is making bad friends for us. We want to hold the friends we have in the north. Consequently, it is the duty of every colored man who has enlightenment to help his less fortunate fellowman.

"We do not drink at the white man's soda fountain in the south, but we are building our own soda fountains. What are you doing here?"

Use the Ballot.

"If you want to hold the north as the friend of the negro, that can be done only by having our citizens lead exemplary lives. This is particularly true with the elections. The colored man must learn to respect the ballot and the ballot box. See that every colored man votes and votes right. Organize Epworth League chapters if you need them."

A speech was delivered by Rev. Dr. Bowen of Atlanta, Ga., who shortly will be raised to the rank of bishop, an honor hitherto unknown to a colored member of the Methodist Episcopal church; Rev. N. D. Shamborguer, Lumberton, N. C.; Rev. M. M. Jones, Greensburg, N. C.; Prof. W. H. Hammond, J. Tyler Hill of Detroit and others. Milton Guy of Ann Arbor acted as chairman.

One of the real treats of the Epworth League convention in the manner of singing were the vocal numbers contributed by Miss E. A. Brazley of New Orleans, La., a soloist whose equal has seldom been seen on the local professional stage. Other vocal numbers were contributed by Miss E. MacIneurney, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. E. Egbert, J. T. Hill and Fred Thomas of this city. Miss Lucy G. Moulton acted as accompanist.

For Wrecking an Automobile.

St. Johns, Mich., July 20.—Because A. L. McClintock, a Greenbush farmer, threw a rail in front of an automobile, injuring the machine and jolting its occupants, a local justice taxed him $25 and costs.

Farmer Robbed of $400.

Stockbridge, Mich., July 20.—Jake Westfall, a wealthy farmer living about two miles east of this village, was relieved of $400 while he was in his room sleeping peacefully. Entrance to the house was made by removing the screen from the door.

BEAVERS WANTED

SEVERAL MATTERS PROBED

Washington, July 18.—The issuance of a bench warrant by the federal grand jury at Brooklyn Friday for the arrest of George W. Beavers, the former chief of the division of salaries and allowances of the postoffice department, is the culmination of an investigation that has been in progress at intervals since his sudden resignation from office last spring. A number of matters affecting his administration have been probed into, one of the first results of which was the cancellation of 3,046 promotions that had been passed on by him, to take effect at postoffices throughout the country during the present fiscal year.

Subsequently other matters were taken up by the investigating officials. The case on which the present action of the grand jury is based, it is said, is a more recent development.

August W. Machen, the former head of the free delivery service, has figured conspicuously in obtaining the evidence placed in possession of the district attorney at Brooklyn. The authorities are now searching for Mr. Beavers to place him under arrest. Hi spresent whereabouts are unknown. The postal officials were chagrined to learn of the publicity of the action of the grand jury in advance of the service of the warrants.

About Rural Routes.

The postoffice department has made public the following relative to rural routes:

"There seems to be a wide misunderstanding as to the present attitude of the department regarding rural free delivery. The statement has been published quite generally, particularly in the west, that rural routes that no not handle 3,000 pieces of mail per month and supply 100 families are to be discontinued. It is not the purpose of the department to disturb routes already established unless they are manifestly unnecessary. There are now on file in the department petitions for more routes that will supply over 100 families than can be established with the present appropriation. This being the case, the department does not feel it wise, equitable or just to establish a route supplying less than 100 families, to the exclusion of routes that will supply more than 100 families, the greatest good to the greatest number being the fundamental principle upon which rural free delivery is being established. As long as all of the routes that are asked for cannot be established, because of the lack of sufficient money, the routes that will supply the greater number of families should certainly have preference."

Woman Hung For Murder.

South McAlester, I. T., July 18.—Dora Wright was hanged here Friday for the murder of Annie Williams, a 7-year-old girl. She mounted the scaffold without a tremor. Charles Barrett was also hanged for the murder of John Hennesy, an aged man, whom he shot from ambush. Robbery was the motive. Dora Wright was the first woman ever hanged in this section, and was convicted of whipping the Williams girl until the latter died of her injuries.

State's Answer Ready.

Lansing, Mich., July 18.—The answer of Attorney-General Powers, in the case brought by the railroads to have the assessment of railroad properties declared invalid, has been prepared in the attorney-general's office here and will be filed in the United States court at Grand Rapids in a few days. A large number of copies of the answer are being made, so they may be served upon each of the twenty-nine companies joined in the suit.

Berries Spoiling.

St. Joseph, Mich., July 18.—The fruit harvest is at its highest, blackberries, raspberries, huckleberries and early peaches being shipped in large quantities. Commission men state that much fruit would be ruined unless help could be secured. Harvest hands are very scarce. Farmers have offered as high as $2.50 per day and cannot get help.

Washtenaw Times Sold.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 18.—The Washtenaw Daily Times has been sold by George F. Kinney, Detroit, to the Times Printing company, which took possession Friday. Robert L. Warren, formerly editor of the Charlotte Republican, will be general manager. He is a graduate of the Michigan university and formerly resided here.

Fatally Burned by Gasoline.

Parma, Mich., July 18.—Mrs. Cochran, living near Parma, was fatally burned by explosion of insect exterminator, which she was mixing.

Old Soldier Adjudged Insane.

Ionia, Mich., July 18.—Joseph Hillcot of Muir, an old soldier, has been adjudged insane in the probate court here and taken to Traverse City.

Student Took Carbolic Acid.

Ypsilanti, Mich., July 20.—Miss Antoinette Logan, aged about 21, committed suicide at her home in Manchester by taking carbolic acid. She had been working hard and seemed quite overcome by the heat of last week. It was noticed Tuesday that she was acting strangely and the doctor called advised that she go home, which she did Wednesday.

Unknown Man's Suicide.

Pigeon, Mich., July 18.—An unknown man arrived here Thursday, bought a revolver and in the evening shot himself on the street. Undertaker Schriber is holding the body.

MEMORIAL ADDRESSES.

One Session of Santiago Soldiers' Reunion Was Devoted.

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—Two exceedingly interesting sessions Friday in the Masonic temple comprised the work of the National Society of the Army of Santiago de Cuba, over both of which General Shafter presided.

On the platform besides General Shafter was an array of notable veterans and fighters of the nation's army seldom seen at one gathering. It included Gen. Joe Wheeler, Gen. John C. Bates, Gen. A. R. Chaffee, Gen. H. S. Hawkins, Lieut.-Col. Charles Dick, the soldier-politician of Ohio; Chaplain George Robinson, the senior chaplain, and Maj. A. C. Sharpe of the United States army.

Gen. William R. Shafter spoke deprecatingly of the Spanish army in Cuba in an impromptu address. He gave unstinted praise to the American soldiers and made the statement that during the whole Cuban campaign, from the time the troops left Tampa until they arrived in Montauk Point, not a single soldier was courtmartialed and not a single officer reprimanded.

At the morning session Gen. Wheeler took occasion to disagree with Gen. Shafter, who had spoken rather slightingly of the Spanish soldiers, paying instead a high tribute to their bravery and recalling the day when Gen. Toral surrendered.

The report of Secretary Sharpe showed that the society has a total membership of 1,793, a falling off due to deaths and delinquencies of 1,598 since the last meeting. Receipts of the society since its formation were $7,745 15 and the disbursements $7,042 44.

The afternoon session at the Masonic temple was devoted exclusively to memorial addresses. Gen. Shafter presided.

Col. A. L. Wagner, in a simple yet impressive speech, told of the life and death of Maj. John A. Logan.

Maj.-Gen. Chaffee, in the absence of Maj. G. Creighton Webb, read a memorial on Gen. Lawton, written by the major, who was the late general's chief of staff. It was a brilliant eulogy. Memorial to Gen. William Ludlow, Capt. Anton Springer, Lieut. Edward F. Koehler, Lieut. Maxwell Keyes and Lieut.-Col. John D. Miley were also read. The last mentioned was a member of the staff of Gen. Shafter during the Santiago campaign.

A banquet in Masonic temple last evening, over which Gen. Chaffee presided, completed the day.

FELL TO HER DEATH.

Young Woman in Saginaw Dropped Distance of Six Stories.

Saginaw, Mich., July 18.—Miss Letitia J. Fowler, sister-in-law of Hon. George Grant, met a terrible death Friday by falling or jumping from a window in the sixth story of the Eddy building, to the walk below.

Miss Fowler had called at the offices of Humphrey & Grant, and at the time was alone in the room, so the employes of the firm knew nothing of the tragedy until apprised by people who saw it from the street, and are unable to account for it. Whether it was an accident or suicide will probably never be known.

The young woman had been in ill-health for some time, but her friends are unaware of any morbid disposition on her part. When she went to the offices she passed to the room, the door of which she closed. Her hat an dalippers were found in the room from which she fell.

George Seigle Mentally Deranged.

Port Huron, Mich., July 18.—George J. Seigle, supreme record-keeper of the supreme tent, Maccabees of the World, is temporarily deranged and a deputy sheriff is with him at his home on Fort street, to prevent him from doing harm to himself and others. Nearly a year ago Mr. Seigle suffered a stroke of paralysis, and his condition gradually grew worse. He has labored under a number of hallucinations, one of them being that a prominent doctor of this city was slowly killing his wife. He has made threats against the life of the physician, but no one was alarmed until Thursday, when it was learned that he had armed himself with a revolver and started for Detroit to look up the physician, who was in that city on business.

A Truly Christian Work.

Detroit, Mich., July 18.—Through the benevolence of the Michigan Fresh Air Society of Detroit, a host of youngsters from the city are now enjoying sojourns into the country, thus affording them for a brief time at least a relief from the crowded and unhealthful surroundings of the city. The work of the society extends over a period of seven years, and through its kindness an average of 1,450 children have enjoyed a two weeks' vacation in the country. Through this means, too, many an unfortunate child has been able to find a happier home. Contributions to the good work are gratefully received and money, checks or offers to furnish vacation homes for children should be sent to the secretary of the society, Dr. James A. Post, 114 Bates street, Detroit.

Tom Cox Murdered.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 18.—Tom Cox, professional long distance walker and at one time an assistant athletic trainer at the university, has been murdered in St. Louis while resisting a highwayman.

Noted Financier Dead.

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 20.—Frederick N. Rowley, president of the First National bank of Kalamazoo and one of the best known and successful financiers and capitalists of the state, died at his residence Sunday afternoon after a short illness, caused by stroke of paralysis. Rowley was 40 years of age. He died president of the bank in which he began his career without a dollar about twenty years ago.

ISSUES PROCLAMATION.

Chicago Mayor Demands That Strikers Cease Making Trouble.

Chicago, July 18.—The riotous conduct of the strikers of the Kellogg Switchboard company and their sympathizers during the last foud days impelled Mayor Harrison to issue a proclamation last night, urging all people to remain away from the scene of the trouble and calling upon the rioters to cease from their work.

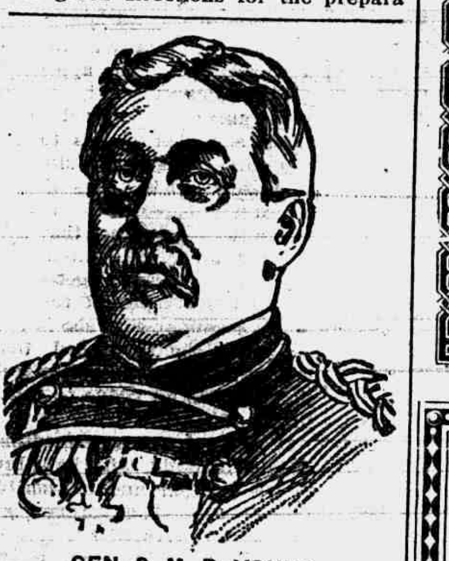
The proclamation insists that all people must keep off the streets near to, and refrain from gathering in crowds around the Kellogg plant, and declares that all persons who do this or in any other way interfere with the work of the police by the forming of blockades, will be promptly arrested and punished.

The only mixup of the afternoon occurred at the intersection of Taylor street and Hermitage avenue. A large crowd of men and boys, pursuing a wagon load of freight sent out by the Kellogg company, finding themselves being distanced by the speed of the wagon, boarded a Taylor street car and ordered the motorman to take them in pursuit of the wagon. None of them would pay fares, and the street car men refused to move the car until fares were paid. This angered the crowd and they bombarded the car with stones until there was not a pane of glass left in it. Policemen stopped the trouble.

YOUNG TO SUCCEED MILES.

Veteran Officer of the Army Retires on August 8.

Washington, July 18.—The president has given directions for the preparation of commissions for the following promotions in the army:



GEN. S. M. B. YOUNG.

Brig.-Gen. S. S. Sumner, to be major-general, vice Maj.-Gen. Davis, to be retired July 26.

Brig.-Gen. Leonard S. Wood, to be major-general, vice General Young, to be promoted.

Liquor Caused Murder.

Wellsboro, Pa., July 20.—John Watkins, a well-known young man of Morris Run, this county, was shot and killed almost instantly at that place after midnight Saturday by Mike Bumbrski, a young Pole. Bumbrski was brought to the county jail here Sunday afternoon. He says he was under the influence of liquor and did not know that he had committed the deed until told of it later. Watkins and Bumbrski had an altercation, when the latter went into his house, secured a shotgun and shot Watkins.

Negroes Attempt Lynching.

St. Louis, July 20.—The jail at Brooklyn, a suburb of East St. Louis, was broken open Sunday night by a mob of negroes, whose desire it was to lynch one of their own color for an attempted assault on a negro woman. William Carter, the negro prisoner, was hurried from the jail by Marshal Speed, who took him in a roundabout way to East St. Louis for safekeeping after the mob had broken open the doors with a railroad tie.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies D s is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrah, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THRIFTY FRENCH PEASANTS

Nearly 10,000,000 Live Upon Their Own Land.

The proportion in which the occupations of French society are divided between agriculture, industrialism, the professions and the arts is natural and right. Practically half her population is immediately dependent, as is a considerably higher percentage indirectly, upon the cultivation of the soil. Above all, nearly 10,000,000 members of families live upon their own land, and the employers are more numerous than the employed, a thing unique in the world, says the Nineteenth Century.

The salient fact in the social structure of France is that she numbers no less than 3,500,000 proprietors who are their own men, with the dignity of labor added for the most part to that of independence. They are the support of the state which loads them with taxes and is sustained by their indomitable economy. As a class, paradoxical as it may seem to make such a statement of the dominating element of the French people, they are more valuable and less voluble than any equally broad portion of society in any other country. The number of owners of land under the third republic increases automatically from year to year.

M. Hanotaux falls into the sober and convincing key by the very compulsion of his subject when he sums up his study of the village of Beaurieux: "To live among these people of the soil (Francaise de champs), whom it is hard to think of as peasants, is to be struck by their easy good manners, their pleasantness and courtesy, their common sense, their mutual helpfulness. To talk to them, to take part in their consultations, is to find oneself in unquestionably good society, where voice and tones are seldom raised, where the hereditary prudence of the peasant takes a shrewd measure of matters and lends each well weighed decision the stamp of gravity."

Ownership of Street Trees.

Should street trees be owned and controlled by the city or by the abutting property owners? The weight of opinion among those entitled to speak with some authority on the question is that municipal ownership of street trees is necessary for the best results and is besides the natural condition of things. Washington city is a familiar example of a systematic and successful development of street shade trees on all the thoroughfares where trees are desirable. Street trees through private ownership are necessarily a thing of shreds and patches and subject to the caprice of uninstructed owners and the barbarous butchery of tramp pruners. Nevertheless there are under private ownership some good results in wayside trees here and there, while public ownership is not always a success.

City ownership and control of trees is the best if that control is enlightened and sympathetic.—Philadelphia Press.

Great Herring Machine.

Very clever is a Swedish inventor named Ekenberg, who has constructed a machine which takes herrings as they come from the net, sorts them into the four sizes recognized by the trade, scrapes off their scales, cuts off their heads, splits, cleans and washes them inside and out.

The machine does all this automatically and turns out 20,000 herring per hour.

One of the big floating herring factories which go out from Goteborg to the herring banks is to be equipped with this astonishing apparatus, which ought to effect a revolution in the price of bloaters.

High Rents In Gotham.

The wonder is how can a man do business in Broadway and expect to make a profit considering the extraordinary rents that are exacted, says the New York Press. The profits in cigars must be stupendous, for tobacconists pay more rent than liquor dealers. A cigar company has leased a lot thirty-one feet front on Broadway for $40,000 a year for twenty-one years. Not a stone's throw from the city hall is a corner shop hardly big enough to take a long breath in for which the annual rental is $11,000. For the basement beneath it, used as a restaurant, $7,000 is paid.

Burying the Inn Sign.

Whenever an inn in the vicinity of the Naworth estate in England loses its license there is an interesting obsequy. The inn sign is solemnly removed and in the dead of night is committed to the grave in the presence of the old customers of the inn. As a rule, it is watered with tears in the shape of a bottle of whisky, accompanied by an appropriate burial service. The Moorcock inn, Lauercost, was the last to be mourned. The Brampton justices took away its license, and the decision was upheld by quarter sessions. The usual last rites were performed.

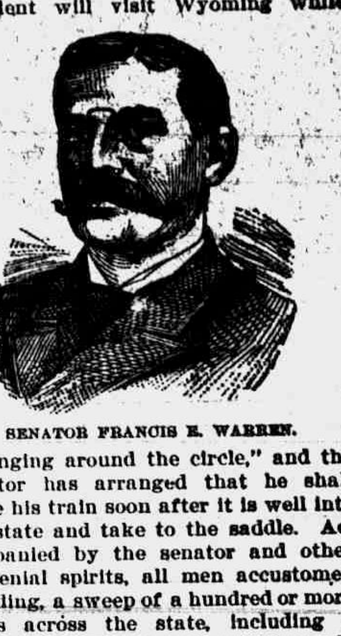
PEOPLE OF THE DAY

Will Ride With the President.

Senator Warren of Wyoming has planned to give President Roosevelt a jaunt in the saddle across the plains and mountains during his western trip this summer. It is expected that the president will visit Wyoming while



SENATOR FRANCIS E. WARREN.

"swinging around the circle," and the senator has arranged that he shall leave his train soon after it is well into the state and take to the saddle. Accompanied by the senator and other congenial spirits, all men accustomed to riding, a sweep of a hundred or more miles across the state, including a stretch of mountain road, will be made to connect with the presidential train at a point near the western boundary of the state.

Mary Elizabeth MacLane, the remarkable girl who has just come before the literary world in her book, "The Story of Mary MacLane," is as erratic as her story and as much of a puzzle to her family as to others, says an exchange. In appearance this young, inexperienced, suddenly famous authoress is good looking, and in spite of her claims to untidiness, like her claims to sinfulness, there is no evidence of it. Miss MacLane is of pleasant, unassuming manner, notwithstanding the fact that her conversation is filled with statements and assertions of the most egotistical nature, such as her repeated reminders that she is a genius, that she is excessively odd, that she is wicked, that she is lacking in principle and moral nature, that she has no virtue or that she is a thief and a liar.

Miss MacLane is of medium height, slender of build, with light brown hair and a peculiar and indescribibly cold grayish eye. Her manner is languid, and her conversation is not animated, in spite of the contrary impression it would give in print. She will say "I would like to steal your purse" or "I would kill that man if I had a gun" in the same commonplace tone that she would assume in observing that the sun was shining.

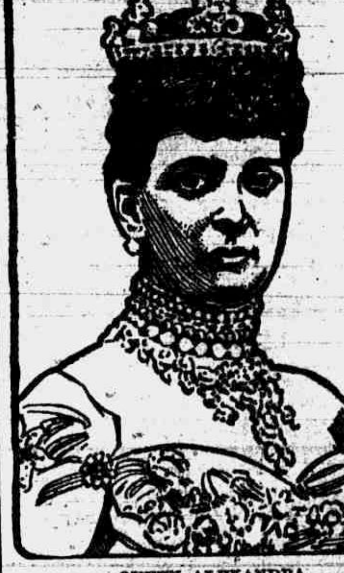
Chamberlain's System Explained.

Secretary Chamberlain's splendid memory for faces is frequently a subject of comment in the house of commons. Recently he was passing the lobby and heartily greeted a new member whom he had only met once before some years ago at a political meeting. The legislator, highly flattered, boasted of this distinction to a friend in the smoking room. "Wonderful memory Chamberlain has got," he murmured.

"Yes," remarked his friend dryly; "he asked me who you were yesterday."

The Queen Wife.

Next to the afflicted king himself the most interesting personality in the serious illness of Edward VII. and the events leading out of it has been his queen wife, Alexandra. No wife of high or low degree has ever shown more devotion toward an afflicted husband than has been shown by the queen of England to the king during the trying weeks of his serious illness. Alexandra has never cared much for the brilliant life of the court, but has striven to make the home life of her exalted husband peaceful and contented.



QUEEN ALEXANDRA.

Although she is now nearly sixty years of age, the queen has the graces of youth. Her complexion, her hair and her poise convey no idea that she is past middle life.

Once He Was Famous.

Everybody remembers that at the time the effort was made to impeach President Andrew Johnson the deciding vote against such action was cast by Senator Ross of Kansas. He was a famous man in his day.

"It was out in Albuquerque, N. M., not long ago," said Special Agent J. H. Spooner, a cousin of Senator Spooner, at the capitol recently, "and there I saw an old man in a printing office setting type. He was ex-Senator Ross of Kansas."

One Better.

Mike—It's mesilf that wishes every day was Saturday.

Pat—And for whoy, Mike?

"Shure, and shouldn't I just take me wages ivery day?"

"Begorra, I wish every day was Sunday!"

"Ye do? And for what raison?"

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Hints to Housekeepers.

Small screens for the side gas jet are in the form of a white silk butterfly, upon the wings appearing colored photographs of pretty Japanese maidens.

Among the most convenient things for traveling are the "carryalls" or "holdalls" made of heavy plaid blankets, with leather straps and handles, flaps on the inside and a big pocket, large enough for a magazine and a few other things, on the outside. These cost from $2 up to $15 and range in size from eighteen to forty inches. The average size and price in these is the twenty-six inch at $6.

At a recent luncheon the whole tomatoes served were peeled and cut in eighths nearly through, which made them look like red roses as they were brought in resting on lettuce hearts.

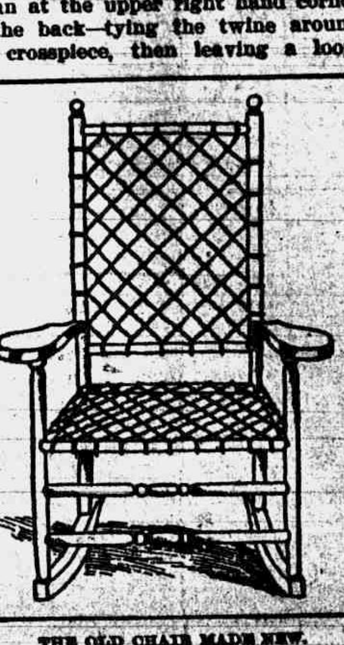
Rubbing the inside of the salad bowl or fork with a cut clove of garlic or onion will give all the flavor desirable where the least flavor possible is desired.

If you cannot allow soup stock time enough to cool and the fat to harden, remove fat with absorbent cotton. Roll it in a tiny pad, dip it deftly across the top of the soup, and the fat will be absorbed. If there is much fat, several bits of cotton may be necessary to clear it.

Renovating a Porch Chair.

As this is a task that sometimes has to be done in every household it is well to make a note of how to do it. In an exchange we find the following:

It was to the expert needle worker of the family that there fell the task of renovating an old porch chair which had outlived its usefulness. Its framework was shabby and discolored, the reed seat had given way, and the back was in much the same condition. The idea came to her that a hammocklike back and seat could be made in the same way she filled in spaces in her lacework, using heavy twine in place of the fine thread to which she had been accustomed. The chair, stripped of the woven reeds, was sandpapered and then given three coats of a preparation which left it a dull black, sufficiently artistic to encourage the worker. Then, with the ball of twine, she began at the upper right hand corner of the back—tying the twine around the crosspiece, then leaving a loop, passing the twine again around the top and fastening it with a buttonhole stitch, repeating the loops till the other side was reached. These who do lacework will see how easy (except for the awkward size of the ball) the task really was. To those who are not familiar with such work it may be described as a series of buttonhole stitches, with sufficient length of twine between each to form a long loop, alternately working back and forth, and at the end of each row—as indicated in the accompanying sketch—passing the twine around the upright of the back and making a buttonhole stitch until the bottom is reached, when the twine is passed around the lower crosspiece between each stitch. The seat was finished in the same way, except that more stitches were made, leaving smaller openings.



THE OLD CHAIR MADE NEW.

A Summer Drink.

Raspberry vinegar, also known as raspberry shrub, is a refreshing summer drink which can be made from a moderate home supply of fruit, since it calls for two successive pickings. Put three quarts of ripe raspberries in an earthen bowl, pour over them a quart of vinegar, and at the end of twenty-four hours press and strain out the vinegar and pour over another three quarts of fresh fruit. Let this stand twenty-four hours, again press and strain the fruit, add a pound of sugar to each pint and boil for twenty minutes. Turn into bottles, sealing up wehn cold. When used, the raspberry vinegar is diluted with about three times its bulk of water.

Pin Bolsters.

Men always want pins, though they seldom confess it. Beg, borrow or procure somehow about twelve inches of hat ribbon of the club color worn by the lucky young gentleman you wish to please; make a little fat bolster, tightly stuffed, of this ribbon, edged with a silk cord to harmonize, with a finishing "twiddle" at each corner and a good, sound, strong loop to hang it up by.

Stock it full of black and white pins as unobtrusively as possible, and it won't look like "feminine frippery" and will be appreciated.

Always a Mystery.

One half of the world can't for the life of it see how the other half manages to have such styles on its income. —Chicago Record-Herald.

Absentminded.

An Ellsworth (Me.) man recently went to an entertainment and forgot his wife. He walked up to the ticket taker at the door and presented two tickets. "Who's the second ticket for?" asked the ticket taker. "Why, that's for my wife here," replied the man, whose mind was on other things. As he turned to point out his wife he suddenly realized that he had left her at home waiting for him to come and escort her to the hall.

Easy Enough.

Mr. Harry de Windt in his book, "Finland as It Is," tells of a mot of Andree, the arctic explorer. Just before his last voyage he was driven to distraction at a dinner party by a talkative neighbor.

"But how will you know, professor, when you have really crossed the north pole?" was one of the many silly questions.

"Oh, that will be simple enough, madame," replied Andree with his well known dry humor. "A north wind will

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The Vicious Latin Quarter.

"After two years of life in the Quartier Latin," says Charles Theodore Murray, "where I got my studies of French character for 'Mlle. Fouchette,' I may freely say that it is the worst place in the world to send a young man or woman if you entertain any hope of meeting him or her in heaven.

"I have had much experience in the role of journalist and have investigated the slums of London and Liverpool, know the 'Tenderloin' of New York and the 'attractions' at Berlin and Vienna, but for downright Satanic ingenuity of viciousness and gilt edged debauchery you must go to the Quartier Latin, for it is here that immorality is accepted as a virtue, and real virtue has no line of demarcation to distinguish it from immorality.

"No young man or young woman can survive such environment untarnished, and many are ruined for life. That which, like London slums, is repulsive is not dangerous. It is attractive vice, sugar coated immorality, which is dangerous, and that is what young men and women find in the Quartier Latin."

How Coal Was First Named.

Curiously, the word coal was in use long before as well as long after the commencement of the coal trade, with a meaning quite different from that which it now has. The term originally belonged to wood fuel and was applied in particular to wood which had been charred, or what is now called charcoal.

When the trade in mineral coal began, this was usually distinguished by the singular name of sea coal. It would seem that from having been gathered in early times on the seashore, more especially of Northumberland, along with seaweed and other wreckage cast up by the waves, this peculiar substance was supposed to be of marine origin. From this circumstance and its resemblance to wood coal in color and burning properties it obtained the name of sea coal, by which it was so long and so widely known. Then in the course of time, as the new fuel gained upon and superseded the old, the simple name of coal became universally transferred to it.

Making It Plain.

A writer in the Lancet, says the Chicago Record-Herald, generously sets himself the task of giving out valuable information as to the amount of food one should eat. He proceeds to make the matter plain to the masses by saying:

"If you desire to know how much you ought to eat per diem, you must first determine whether you are temperamentally anabolic or katobolic. Then, taking into account your age, sex, size, the amount of exercise you get and the temperature of the atmosphere, you should calculate the amount of food necessary to maintain the minimum weight of the body consistent with the best health of which you are capable."

Hereafter there should be no excuse whatever for overeating or undereating.

The Discovery of Florida.

Juan Ponce de Leon, sailing from Porto Rico in search of new land, discovered Florida on March 27, 1512. He landed near St. Augustine, planted the cross and took possession in the name of the Spanish monarch. In 1763 a treaty ceding east and west Florida to Great Britain, in exchange for Havana and the western part of Cuba, was ratified. In 1781 part of Florida was receded to Spain, and in 1783 Great Britain ceded east and west Florida to Spain. On Feb. 22, 1819, east and west Florida were ceded to the United States by treaty and purchase, Spain receiving $5,000,000.

Died of Neglect.

Louis XVII., titular king of France, the unfortunate dauphin, died in the Temple of Paris of abuse and neglect. His body was identified and certified to by four members of the committee of public safety and by more than twenty officials of the temple. The remains were privately buried in the cemetery of St. Marguerite, and every trace of the grave was carefully oblit-

WASHINGTON LETTER

[Special Correspondence.]

The work of providing a home for the new War college, which is to be established at the Washington barracks, has begun and is under sufficient headway to indicate something of the result. A large force of workmen is engaged in constructing the sea wall, which has extended along only a part of the river front heretofore. Several hundred feet have been built from the southeast point of the grounds near the officers' quarters, and the whole wall will be in course of construction for several months. It is being built of rubble masonry on concrete foundation and will be a strong and artistic barrier when completed. This new wall will include seven acres not hitherto embraced in the grounds and will increase their area to seventy-six acres in all. Congress having provided the funds, the buildings required for the college will be planned and construction begun this summer and fall. The quarters now occupied by officers and men and a dozen or more large old buildings standing in the south end of the grounds will be torn down to give room for an extension of the parade ground. The new buildings will be on the higher ground, near the entrance. The site chosen requires the filling in of a large area on the eastern side of the grounds, which will take a year to complete. It is not expected that any of the proposed new buildings will be ready for occupancy under two years.

Color of Army Uniforms.

The uniform board of the army, which is conducting a series of experiments to determine the effectiveness of color in military service, has an interesting report in course of preparation. Its object is to secure the best color for service in the field. The fact that the British army has abandoned the buff of the familiar khaki and adopted a neutral gray of the same texture led the board to get cloth of the same description and put it to the test in a number of experiments. For several days eight enlisted men, in as many different shades of gray, have been marching back and forth at the foot of Seventeenth street, in the Mall, while the officers of the board studied them under different conditions of light and with the naked eye and under fieldglasses. At a measured distance of 1,100 yards the officers with their fieldglasses took a long series of observations. They find that the khaki in the various shades of buff and yellow is far less visible to men in the position of sharpshooters than the neutral gray of the British army. The neutral gray was adopted during the Boer war, and it is believed that there is something in the clear South African skies and light that justifies the conclusions of the British experts. On the greensward of the Mall the buff gives the better results.

Uncle Sam's Bouquets.

Regarding the resolution of inquiry introduced in the house by Representative Bell of Colorado relative to the distribution of surplus cut flowers among the families of the house and senate members, it is said by a number of those in a position to know that there has been no discontinuance of the custom whenever flowers are available. If Mr. Bell or any other member has not been remembered, they say it has been due to an oversight, as it is intended that all shall be treated alike in the distribution. The greenhouses from which the flowers in question come are maintained principally to supply the city parks with the plants, which make them such a feature of the city's beauty throughout the greater part of the year. In the cutting of the flowers in these greenhouses, much of which is done for the improvement of the plants, the White House supply of flowers is augmented. After the White House is supplied the hospitals and other public institutions receive flowers. Many other worthy causes also share in the distribution. Families of members of the cabinet, the supreme court and legislative members come next. This custom, which has prevailed for years, of distributing the cut flowers is still followed.

Want Russian Treaty Changed.

American Hebrews have not given up their hope that some day this country may induce Russia to change her treaty relations so as to admit American citizens of the Hebrew faith to that country without their passports having to be signed by the Russian embassador. This discrimination against the Hebrews is resented, and President Roosevelt had the matter brought to his attention just before leaving Washington for his summer vacation by a delegation of New York representatives, accompanied by Simon Wolf. The delegation consisted of Representatives Sulzer, Ryan, Goldfogle and Wilson, and they told the president that the Russian discrimination ought to be remedied by negotiations with Russia that would change existing treaty relations. The president said he would take the matter up with Secretary Hay.

Promotions For Clerks.

Secretary Cortelyou has announced the following appointments in the executive office to fill vacancies created under the legislative, executive and judicial bill, which went into effect July 1: H. O. Weaver, clerk, class 4, $1,800; J. L. McGrew, clerk, class 4, $1,800; E. C. Heasley, clerk, class 3, $1,600; Walter Dunn, messenger, $900. These appointments were made absolutely upon merit, and each of the four appointees has served for an extended period in the executive office on detail from the departments.

Morenci Observer: Charles D. Hurrey of Tecumseh, secretary of the state executive committee of the Young Men's Christian Association of Michigan, was in Morenci Monday in the interests of that work along the line of county organization. Under that plan he expects to see the late society here properly resurrected. Mr. Hurrey is evidently a Christian hustler—never too much in a hurry, but hurries enough to accomplish things.

Beers' Post and Auxiliary held its second meeting of the month at their hall last evening with a large attendance. After the business meeting closed Mrs. L. B. Thompson's committee gave a very entertaining literary program consisting of reading, recitations, reminiscences and music furnished by the Glee club for which the Post and Auxiliary extend a hearty vote of thanks, also to Mr. Hanford for recitations. Ice cream and cake was served and all enjoyed the occasion.

A SPLENDID GAME

SCORE OF 1 TO 0

In favor of the visitors.

The prettiest and fastest ball game played on the home grounds this season was that of Saturday, when Jackson came down and administered a shut-out to the home team. This was the result of a lucky mischance rather than of superior playing, as our boys made twice as many hits as did the visitors. A passed ball in the 2nd inning allowed a Jackson man to make their only score. After the 2nd inning not a Jackson man made a hit or reached first base.

Harris pitched the first 5 innings and then retired in favor of Gilbert, as the former had pitched a game Friday. Only two hits were made off him. Gilbert did not allow a hit to be made in the last 4 innings.

Mulholland pitched the most effective game of any visiting twirler here this season, only 4 hits being made off him. Although he struck out but 5 men, our boys were unable to make safe hits. His support was fine, only one error being made while three double plays were made by this team.

CHARLES CLOUGH,

At one time a Printer in the Herald Office,

MADE A BALLOON ASCENSION

At Morenci July 4th. The Monroe Democrat prints the following Article.

Charles Clough, at one time a printer in the Democrat office, but now with the Sylvania Sun, finding his rise in his profession not rapid enough, determined to use a balloon to accomplish his end. On the Fourth he accordingly undertook to give a balloon ascension at Morenci. However, between the heat of the fire and the rays of the sun, several of the attendants holding down the airship found the job too warm for holiday work and let go before it was sufficiently inflated and so the "balloon went up." Charlie made a dive for the trapeze bar and succeeded in clutching it beneath his arms and started heavenward, rather unprepared. When he was 350 or 400 feet above earthly cares, the hot air gave out and the "professor" and his hot air bag came down at a rapid rate, giving him no chance to use the parachute. He grounded without being badly "pied" and he is again at his trade of "manipulating the movables," though still a little "out of sorts" at his narrow escape from being consigned to the "hell box" and giving the "printer's devil" an opportunity to take his place at the Sun office. Charlie is now heard singing: "When we're up, we're up; when we're down, we're down; but when we're only halfway up, we're neither up nor down."

GEORGE C. STILLSON

Formerly a Resident of Tecumseh,

DIED JULY 10th

A sudden summons—probably as painless as it was unexpected—ended the life late yesterday afternoon, of George C. Stillson, as he sat in pleasant conversation with his wife and his business partner, on the piazza of his home in South Main street. For the thirty-odd years that Mr. Stillson had been identified with the business life of South Norwalk, his unique and ever-cheerful personality won him friends in every walk of life. He was a man of that genuine worth whose death is a calamity to any community.

Mr. Stillson was born in Woodbury, Conn., his parents being Josiah and Maria Stillson, both of Revolutionary stock. When seven years of age Mr. Stillson went with his parents to Michigan, where he received his education in Ann Arbor and Detroit. He returned to the east in 1865 and engaged in the drug business in Derby. Five years later he moved to South Norwalk.

When Mr. Stillson came to town he was a young man popular in manner and a fine dresser. He immediately became prominent figure in the place. He had many worthy qualities which contributed towards his success. He was possessed of a rare firmness of character, integrity of purpose, speech and manner. He was too independent and free of thought and aim to be inveigled into politics, although his party, the Democratic, often invoked his aid as a candidate.

Mr. Stillson had a wide circle of close acquaintances, and his drug store was for years the nightly meeting place of many of the most prominent men of the place. Here all the issues of city and county and many plans and measures were intelligently brought up and discussed.

The deceased left a widow, formerly Miss Josephine Landon of this place, who has been a lifelong and dear companion to the departed, also one brother, Benjamin Stillson, who resides in Canada, and one sister, Mrs. G. H. Peck, of Derby. There had been two children, a son, who died when young, and the late Mrs. Thompson, who died recently.

Mr. Stillson was a member of Trinity Episcopal church, where he had been a vestryman for many years, and for two years has been senior warden. He was also treasurer of the Norwalk Building, Loan and Investment association.—Norwalk Hour.

ROUND ABOUT US.

A man who has worked as a farm hand for ten years says that whenever he looks after his employer's interests as though they were his own he is invariably well treated. There is more in his statement than many hired men think.—Ex.

Benjamin Hawkins of Mason, was son struck July 7th. The boy weighed 14 pounds and the physician in attendance pronounced it the heaviest ever born in that city. Like the cost of their court house, it is about twice as large as was expected.—Adrian Press.

A Mendon man tried an experiment in the preservation of apples last fall by packing them in barrels alternating layers of dry sand, no apple being allowed to touch another. When the barrel was opened a few days ago every apple was found to be in perfect condition, and as hard and sound as the day when packed.—Onsted News.

Ten saloon keepers of the city of Ypsilanti settled Tuesday for keeping open the Fourth. The universal fine was $15 and the costs came to $3.95. Four years ago, when a similar thing occurred, the cases were taken to Judge Kline and the fines went into the county funds. They were taken under the city ordinance as a result the city is $150 to the good.—Chelsea Standard.

A queer trail was observed by Mrs. Sanders a few days ago, and upon starting out on the trail a number of little chickens and a hen were found with their heads off. Upon following the trail around the house and back of the stable an immense owl was found, with a new steel trap hanging to it. The owl showed fight and had to be shot before it could be removed from the trap. A number went out of curiosity to see it and claim it is the largest owl ever seen in this part of Michigan.—Allegan Press

The West Pulaski correspondent of a county weekly paper says "The farmers are complaining of cows drying up; even the hens are drying up and the reporter has also been dried up for the last two weeks." It might be of interest to said reporter to hear of the trouble the farmers are having in Ohio, where it is said the streams are all drying up and great cracks are forming in the earth, it is so dry. Why, they have to build fences on either side of the cracks to keep their stock from falling into the bowels of the earth. And then, too, out in Iowa it is so dry that they have to soak up their swine in such water as they can find to make them hold swill. Pulaski don't know what a dry time is.

Chief Bowen made a drive through the country a day or two since, and says he never saw so many women and girls at work in the fields. The farmer and his wife and daughters do not propose to allow the crops to spoil if the women must get out and help in the fields. Farm hands are scarce, but the American girl is able to make herself handy. She can ride a hay rake or play the piano, she can tame an unruly pony or hold hands with her best young man as gracefully as a city belle. It is a cold day indeed when the American girl can be outdone. And thousands of dollars worth of Lenawee county crops will be saved this year by hustling American girls, who know how to handle themselves in emergencies, and prove equal to the occasion, no matter what happens.—Adrian Telegram.

When the announcement of Pope Leo's death is flashed over the cable every Catholic church in America will be draped in purple and black. There will follow a period of mourning for nine days, during which one solemn requiem mass will be sung in every Catholic church. The pope will be buried on the ninth day after his death. The Sacred college, which selects his successor, cannot meet until after his burial, and in the interregnum the cardinals gathered in Rome and known as the Curia, or governing body, will rule the church. Whether there will be ordered and set apart any particular day for memorial services in the Catholic churches in all countries during the nine days rests with these princes of the church.—Ex.

Ann Arbor Times: A novel and unusual discovery has been made by Jonathan Stanger, tuner for the Ann Arbor Music Co., who is now able to explain the squeaking of pianos. While Mr. Stanger was tuning a piano for a customer at the store, he discovered the skeleton of a small mouse three feet below the lid. The fact that the skeleton was in such a good state of preservation was due undoubtedly to the dry atmosphere in which the animal had lain for so long a time. The skeleton is on exhibition in the show case at the music company's store. It is a fine piece of delicate mechanism.

An exchange says that many people have often inquired what significance was attached to the "B. C." office of the Lake Shore and few know what the letters stand for. The letters B. C. represent the telegraphic symbol for yardmaster's office and that is the call for that office from any point on the Lake Shore lines. The letters came to be the symbol of the Elkhart yardmaster's office through a derisive term applied to the office when the office was first opened, as it then occupied a box car that had been cast aside, and the abbreviation of box car has stuck forever since as the telegraphic symbol and title of the office.

F. P. Maginn, Jacob Bauer, E. Rapp and Clarence Ringling went to Jackson last Friday to try and capture the thieves who took the railroad speeding car from here the night before. They did not succeed in getting the men but were successful in getting the car, which they came back home with, arriving about one o'clock Saturday morning. When they passed through Norvell several shots were fired and some shouting done by the boys and it is said the natives of that quiet little town were scared nearly out of their wits. After the party had passed through they noticed a few lights in the houses but the occupants did not venture out. —Manchester correspondent to Clinton Local.

THE THIEF OF BEAUTY

Is Captured by Bradfield's Regulator.

Thousands of young women are awaking to the fact that inherited comliness has been stolen, and instead of glowing cheeks and bright eyes, the tell-tale wrinkles of pain have taken their place. These are the warning feelings! Weak and tired in the morning, no life to enter upon their former pleasures, irritable, cross, dull headaches, general dispirited feeling, sleepless nights, cold feet, "bearing down" pains. All these symptoms indicate deranged and weakened organs, and exhausted energies follow the weakened condition of the female organs as surely as night follows day. Save yourself from worse results by taking

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Tecumseh people endorse them.

Mr. Henry Keyser, retired farmer and capitalist, residence in the southwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am thoroughly convinced of the superior merits of this popular remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. They deserve naught save the highest praise. Before going to C. A. Wright's drug store for a box I had a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for some time and the secretions from the kidneys were unnatural and irregular. To say that I was surprised at the effect is putting it very mildly. In a very short time the trouble disappeared. I never knew a medicine that worked so quickly and satisfactorily."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Overwork any organ and it gives out—the stomach is no exception. Ask it to digest anything, everything, at any time in half the time required, and like an over driven horse, it balks. Nature intended the stomach should have regular hours. A time to work, a time to rest—and when you break up this habit, you upset the whole arrangement. The stomach nerves become exhausted, the glands refuse to act, the food does not digest—lies heavy, ferments and repeats. There is pain, gas forms, bloating occurs, the heart becomes irregular and a nervous, irritable feeling sets in. This is nervous dyspepsia and Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills its cure.

Mrs. R. VanDuzer of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My trouble was with my stomach, the food did not digest properly and as a result I suffered from severe headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Wright's drug store and as a result of their use my stomach is again strong, the digestion is perfect and my headaches cured. I think the medicine for nervous troubles cannot be approached." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. Half Mourning.

"That's Mrs. Giltedge-Bonds, the prominent society leader," said the man in the crowd who knew.

"What's she in half mourning for?" inquired several voices.

"Three of her six former husbands are dead," said the man, whereupon the crowd expressed great admiration for her delicacy of feeling.—Philadelphia Record.

Not Quite Sure Which.

"After all," he remarked, "it is youth alone that has real courage."

"I don't know," returned the elderly spinster, with acerbity, "whether it should be called courage or foolhardiness, but it is unquestionably true that the girls who marry at all usually marry quite young."—Chicago Post.

HINTS FOR FARMERS

Progress on the Farm.

There could be no better evidence of the prosperity of farmers in general at the present time than the persistence with which co-operation is making headway in many neighborhoods. A farmer interviewed at length a few days ago said: "My house is 'central' for no less than five different rural telephone lines. The farmers in five neighborhoods bought the poles, phones and wire, did all the necessary work, and now almost the entire county can talk from house to house. It makes a wonderful difference, and we also have connections with both the long distance lines in Iowa. We can keep well posted, and such things as fresh meats or the like we can get delivered now when so many of us have a way by which we can order them, the butchers sending wagons as often as required to bring us our supplies." So much for the telephone in rural districts. The delivery of mail in similar districts has been an inestimable boon to all concerned. Now comes a message from a district in South Dakota that fifty farmers have organized a co-operative fire department, each family purchasing apparatus of a stated make and agreeing to bring it to any spot in the neighborhood on notification over the telephone wire or otherwise. In closely settled localities this ought to be of great service, and doubtless with such an equipment on hand and properly cared for by each interested family insurance companies would consider a material reduction in rates no more than reasonable. Here is an example that is well worth following whenever distances are not too great to permit the timely arrival of the neighborhood fire extinguishing apparatus.—Breeder's Gazette.

Potatoes In Nevada.

In Hope Farm Notes you wonder how they can raise potatoes so cheaply in Belgium, says a Rural New Yorker correspondent. The climate has a great deal to do with it. Here in Vermont, in Mount Holly, the town west of us and near the summit of the Green mountains, potatoes are a fine crop, while it is too cold for corn. The township east of this raises much better crops of corn than potatoes, all owing to the elevation. Where I lived in Nevada they called a good crop 600 bushels. The elevation above sea level is about 4,500 feet. The soil is loose and friable, the crop is irrigated properly, manure is plentiful, the rancher hauling in a load of potatoes and a load of manure, costing nothing, back. The potatoes grow very large and are very mealy. The cook quarters many of them to get them cooked in any reasonable time, and a quarter of one is often enough for a meal. Many of the ranchers are Italians, and one year the proprietor of an Italian store offered a prize of $5 for the largest Irish potato brought in that season. The largest was a seven pound potato perfect in shape and quality.

Insects Affecting Grapes.

Grape men in the Chautauqua district are much worried over the work of the leaf hopper and grape root worm, both of which pests are unusually plentiful. Experts from the Cornell experiment station are on hand, and experiments are being made to determine the best methods of treatment. As the leaf hopper is a sucking insect, ordinary poison sprays do not prove effective. Large numbers of them may be caught by the use of shingles or palm leaf fans covered with coal tar or insect lime. On being scared from the vines many of the insects jump on the sticky fans. Larger frames covered with sticky substances have also been used successfully. A spray of 10 per cent kerosene emulsion is destructive to the beetles that are hit. Efforts are being made to handle the beetle which lays the eggs of the grape root worm with a spray of arsenate of lead.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 20.—Hendrick Ten Braak, aged 70 years, shot and fatally wounded his oldest son Albert, aged 19, and tried to kill his wife Saturday night. The boy is in St. Mary's hospital with two bullets in his body. Mrs. Ten Braak recently secured a divorce from her husband on account of his alleged intemperate habits and abusive conduct, and he claimed his wife and Albert swore falsely against him. He was jailed to await the result of his murderous attack. Albert says his father had threatened to kill him and his mother. He has a small chance of recovery, his stomach being penetrated.

Strong For Expansion.

Bay City, Mich., July 20.—The executive council of the I. L. M. & T. A. Sunday morning began its session and took up its work of further organization and expansion referred to it by the Longshoremen's convention. The new council is strongly for expansion and definite plans were made for beginning the work of thoroughly organizing the entire United States and Canadian seacoast lines.

Thousands of Sparrows Killed.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 20.—One of the most curious features of the recent storm was the fact that on the northeast quarter of the courthouse lawn there were strewn great quantities of sparrows, killed by the wind and rain. Janitor Davenport gathered up three bushels of dead birds and found that there were 500 to the bushel. This makes a total of 1,500 sparrows killed in this small space.

Keeping Up With Fate.

"You will be married within a year," continued the fortune teller. "Dear me!" exclaimed the lady, who was already married. "I shall have to begin divorce proceedings at once."—Boston Post.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

The sunshine of love is to be found in our own natures.

If you want to turn care out you must let prayer in.

To be good is noble, but to show others how to be good is nobler, and no trouble.

Night conceals a world, but reveals a universe.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

Home of Swamp-Root.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

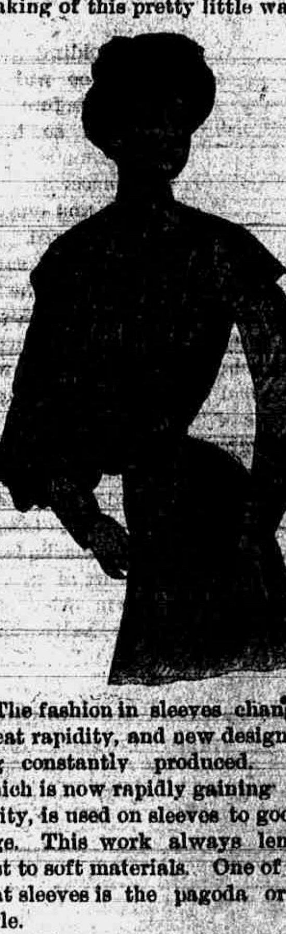
LATEST FASHION NOTES.

A CREPE DE CHINE BODICE.

Many waists in crepes de Chine, Louisine, and peau de soie are seen beautifully embroidered with Corticelli filo silk, which is always found the most suitable for this work. The model shown has the popular mutton-leg sleeves displaying novel pointed cuffs, and the sloping shoulder is admirably produced by a cape-like device extending well out over the shoulder. Embroidery plays a conspicuous part in the making of this pretty little waist.



The fashion in sleeves changes with great rapidity, and new designs are being constantly produced. Shirring which is now rapidly gaining in popularity, is used on sleeves to good advantage. This work always lends itself best to soft materials. One of the new coat sleeves is the pagoda or flowing style.

WAR MAY RESULT.

Believed Russia Would Fight Japan If Others Would Not Interfere.

Pekin, July 20.—According to diplomats here, the greatest factor in the eastern situation is the increasing danger of war between Russia and Japan. They believe it is becoming plain that Russia is willing to fight Japan if convinced that no other powers will assist her. The Russians are confident of their ability to easily defeat Japan and are said to be anxious to settle definitely her position in eastern politics and end her ambitions to oppose Russia's progress in Manchuria.

The belief is attributed to the Japanese that the Russian policy is to attempt to placate Great Britain and America and provoke Japan into beginning hostilities. They regard Russia's consent to opening ports in Manchuria, the czar's promised visit to England and the occupation of the Korean border as parts of that policy. Russia's activity on the Yulu river is more irritating to Japan than the retention of Manchuria, and all Japanese officials in China speak of war as a "probability."

Yokohama, July 20.—M. Pavloff, the Russian minister at Seoul, capital of Korea, has had an audience with the emperor of Korea, at which he opposed the opening of Wju, the port on the Yulu river, the opening of which was asked by Great Britain and Japan.

SLAUGHTER HIS FAMILY.

Intoxicated Farmer Attempted Horrible Crime.

Niles, Mich., July 20.—While intoxicated Saturday night, A. Kelsey, a farmer residing four miles north of Buchanan, armed himself with a carving knife and attempted to slaughter his wife and children, who evaded a horrible death only by beating a hasty retreat to the home of a neighbor.

The police were notified of the occurrence and the farmer was overpowered, placed in irons and finally landed in the Buchanan jail. Kelsey's son has entered complaint against his father, whom he will prosecute. The affair has created a feeling of great indignation in the vicinity of the Kelsey home.

Dragging Pains

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

WIERD PROCESSION

Followed the Remains of Pope Leo to St. Peters.

LIE IN STATE THREE DAYS

Dead Pontiff Clothed in All Pomp of His Holy Office—Remains Left in Great Church—Faithful Kiss His Feet.

Rome, July 23.—The body of Pope Leo XIII. now lies in state in the basilica of St. Peter's. Beginning today at sunrise the people of Rome and those of all nations now in the Eternal City were admitted to pay their last farewell. Opportunity for this solemn tribute will end Saturday.

The ceremonial last night when the body was conveyed from the throne room to St. Peter's was one of the most striking of all the obsequies.

At 8 o'clock all was in readiness to take the body to the basilica of St. Peter's. The mournful procession gathered around the bier, which was gently lifted by the Sediari, who in the lifetime of Leo XIII. had carried him in the Sedia Gestatoria. The dead pontiff was now clad in all the pomp of his holy office. The golden mitre, the gilded stole, the white cape, the red chasuble, the pontifical pallium and the papal tunic all were there. Nothing which was emblematic of the power wielded by the dead man for more than a quarter of a century and for centuries by his predecessors had been omitted.

Leading the procession as it passed out of the throne room came the grooms, carrying lighted torches. Behind them were the aged mace bearers and other domestics of the papal household. The picket of the Noble Guard and all the clergy of the Vatican followed. Immediately in front of the bier the pontifical silver cross was held aloft. Behind the bier came the three nephews of the late pope, Counts Ricardi and Camillo Pecci and Count Canarli.

The air was heavy with incense from the censors swinging constantly beside the body. The Franciscan penitentiaries still kept up the unceasing refrain of intercession.

At the hall of palafraniere the cortege came to a standstill. There the cardinals, who had been waiting in the hall of the consistory, took their places immediately behind the nephews. Their scarlet had been put aside for the violet robes, which are only worn when princes of the church are in mourning.

Once more the procession, with the bier now flanked by the Swiss Guards, moved on. After the cardinals came the whole diplomatic body accredited to the Vatican and the representatives of the Knights of Malta. The latter were followed by the marshal of the conclave, Prince Chigi, the master of the Holy Hospice, Prince Ruspoli, and the commander of the Noble Guards, Prince Rospigliosi, all in magnificent uniforms. Then came the prelates of the chamber and Knights of the Cape and Sword, in their mediaeval Spanish robes. The Noble and Swiss Palatine guards brought up the rear. No monarch was ever followed to the tomb by a more imposing array. The United States were represented in the procession by Monsignor Thomas Kennedy, rector of the American college.

From the sistine chapel the procession wound out around the loggia immortalized by Raphael, encircled the court of San Damaso and descended the private staircase, still chanting, into the basilica.

Entered St. Peter's.

The moment the flaring torches, which still led the cortege, entered St. Peter's the choir, which was waiting there, commenced to sing in sorrowful cadence "Libera me Domine." Monsignor Carcani, the canon of St. Peter's, solemnly sprinkled holy water over Leo's body and pronounced absolution. As it was borne across the threshold the cathedral choir, still singing, took the lead of the now lengthy procession. The intense silence which prevailed was broken only by the chanting which echoed and reechoed from the huge dome and deserted aisles of the chapels as the body was borne down the nave to the chapel of the sacrament. There candles burned brightly. In this Chapelle Ardente the body was reverently stretched behind the iron gates and two members of the Noble Guard took up positions on either side of the bier.

The procession then re-formed and returned to the Vatican, leaving the body of Leo XIII. in the greatest church in the world, alone except for the faithful guard and penitentiaries, whose prayers could be heard in the immediate vicinity of the chapel of the sacrament. Throughout the remainder of the vast basilica silence reigned.

The body of the dead pope lies on the high catafalque, with his slippered feet protruding through the gates to be kissed by the faithful as they are admitted to the chapel.

Two Desertions at Kiel.

Washington, July 23.—In a cablegram from Portsmouth, Rear Admiral Cotton says there were no deserters from the squadron during its visit there. There were only two desertions when the squadron visited Kiel.

Flint, Mich., July 22.—Halsey Lant, who entered the house of his employer in Mt. Morris and stole $11 20, was given five years at Ionia. The court told him he could give him ten years, and Lant said under the circumstances he did not think it too much.

The Governor Doesn't Believe the Affidavits Will Help the Railroads Any—Declares Interests of State Will Be Fully Protected.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—Governor Bliss has reached a final conclusion relative to the action of Tax Commissioners Sayre and Freeman in making affidavits for use in the railroad tax case. After giving the matter careful consideration, he says, and vainly waiting for the production of evidence tending to show that the commissioners had been guilty of anything more than a breach of propriety, the governor has concluded to let them off with a public reprimand. In discussing the matter he said:

"While I do not uphold their action in signing the affidavits at the instance of the railroad companies who are contesting taxes levied against their property under the ad valorem law, nothing has been made to appear that it constitutes legal cause for removal from office.

"In a hearing with these gentlemen I made it plain to them that they had offended against propriety, and if they had consulted me I do not think the commissioners would have signed any affidavits. I do not believe that the railroads will profit any by the fact that these affidavits have been obtained.

"Let me say right here that nothing will be left undone on the part of the state in the line of securing equal and exact justice in the railroad cases, and the interests of the state will be fully protected at every stage of the contest to determine what is right. It is for the courts to determine whether the state or the railroads have the correct position, and Attorney-General Blair will be given every possible assistance he may need. No application on his part has been denied, except the request for the removal of Commissioners Freeman and Sayre, and had it developed that there was anything approaching malfeasance, or malfeasance, their removal would have been speedily accomplished."

To Camp in Kentucky.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—The state military board has decided not to have a camp this year at Manistee, or anywhere else in Michigan, but to send the entire brigade to Kentucky in October, to participate in the regular army maneuvers at West Point, in that state. The government will transport the troops to and from their home stations, furnish rations and pay the privates at the rate of $13 per month. The state will pay the difference between this allowance and $1 25 per day. The board decided also to order khaki uniforms for the entire command and to permit the enlistment of recruits up to Aug. 22.

Outdoing Kalamazoo.

Muskegon, Mich., July 23.—Muskegon now claims to be a bigger celery producer than Kalamazoo. The celery beds hereabouts supply seven-eighths of the celery that goes to Chicago, so it is claimed, while other markets for it are found in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana and as far south as New Orleans. From an insignificant crop of a few years ago the business has grown until about $70,000 will be received at wholesale for this year's crop.

Lineman Electrocuted.

Muskegon, Mich., July 23.—The fatal mistake was made at the Muskegon Traction & Lighting Co. powerhouse of turning on the current for testing purposes while Lineman Fred Cavanaugh was adjusting a wire to a street lamp. Cavanaugh had no warning and was holding a wire in his hand when 4,000 volts were sent through it. He was dead an hour later.

Huge Cherry Crops.

Traverse City, Mich., July 23.—The cherries shipped from this city last week by freight brought the farmers $10,500. Besides this, several thousand crates were shipped by express and a local canning factory, employing 200 hands, has been busy day and night canning cherries bought of local farmers.

Chicago Grain Operator Drowned.

South Haven, Mich., July 23.—Roy English, a Chicago board of trade man, who has been spending the summer here with his wife, was drowned while bathing in Lake Michigan. He was out 300 feet and got a cramp. His wife saw him go down.

Still Another Toy Pistol Victim.

Bay City, Mich., July 23.—Homer Pierson, aged 15, died Wednesday of lockjaw. He shot himself in the hand with a blank cartridge several days ago, while cleaning his Fourth of July revolver.

Killed by Lightning.

Carleton, Mich., July 23.—Roy Post, son of a prominent farmer living a few miles west of here, was killed by lightning. His mother was rendered unconscious by the shock.

FOR PASSING OF LEO'S SOUL

Diplomats and Dignitaries Visit Dead Prelate's Bier—Interment to Be Made Saturday—Conclave Begins August 1.

Rome, July 22.—The body of Leo XIII. lies in the hall of the throne room, a few steps from the room in which his death took place. The same vestments, the Comauro hood, the rochet and the white gown, which were put on when he died, cover the form, which rests in semi-state surrounded by the lighted candles, the Noble Guard and Franciscan penitentiaries.

Today the diplomatic body, the high dignitaries and the Roman aristocracy are journeying to the hall to pay their tributes of respect to all that remains of the pope. This afternoon the body will be arrayed in all the glory of the pontifical robes, the mitre replacing the hood and at sunset it will be taken into the chapel of the sacrament of St. Peter's, where for three days, commencing Friday, the public will be given an opportunity of paying a last farewell. The interment will occur Saturday evening.

Tuesday was notable for the impressive ceremonial of the recognition of the death of the pope, which occurred in the morning in the chamber in which he died. Thereafter only those were admitted who were concerned in the embalming of the body, an operation which occupied six hours. Meantime the authorities of the Vatican proceeded with the preparations for the funeral and the conclave and the acknowledgment of the condolences which had been received.

Thousands Join in Prayer.

Throughout the day the Vatican was surrounded by crowds, which increased towards night. Several thousand entered St. Peter's at vespers and joined in prayers for the departed.

The quiet of the evening was broken by a chorus such as the world has seldom heard. On the stroke of 8 all of Rome's 400 churches commenced to toll bells for the passing of the soul of Leo XIII. From the Seven Hills and from every quarter of the city containing churches came the constant clang until all was one vast reverberation. The harsh jingle of the smaller chapel bells, striking quickly and more often, was not drowned by the solemn strokes that came in mourning measure from the great dome of St. Peter's. It was as if a great fire raged and every bell in Rome was vieing with every other in anxiety to warn the populace. Except in its common motive and common sorrow, it was an amazing discord, which continued an hour and which will recur nightly until the obsequies are over.

Tuesday morning began the first of those grandiose and unique ceremonies which follow the demise of a pope, and, although private, it was conducted with great pomp and was most impressive. All the cardinals present in Rome, numbering twenty-nine, assembled at the apostolic palace to view the remains of the late Leo XIII. and to officially pronounce him dead.

According to a statement coming from a high ecclesiastic, arrangements at the Vatican are being pressed forward which will enable the conclave of cardinals to begin sitting Aug. 1.

An ambassador accredited to the Vatican says the question of Pope Leo's successor is a peculiarly open one at the present moment. The personality of the candidates plays a much more important part than in any preceding conclave, since the conditions prevailing in the past are now entirely changed. Formerly the sacred college was divided into several distinct parties. There was, first, that composed of the cardinals who were members of the great Roman families, nearly every one of which was represented in the college. These always exerted powerful influence in the election of a pope. At the present time there is one only scion of a great Roman family among the cardinals, Cardinal Battista Casali del Drago, who from the standpoint of the election of a new pontiff is relatively unimportant. Then there were parties composed of cardinals appointed by the same pope, who usually ranged themselves into separate bodies.

Storm Did Much Damage.

Marshall, Mo., July 22.—A terrific wind and rainstorm visited this city Tuesday, resulting in much damage to property. The tent of Evangelist Munhall, who has been conducting a revival here, was blown down just after the congregation had been dismissed. Major Randolph, colored, was killed by a live wire. The opera house and many other buildings were badly damaged and much damage was done in the country.

Milling Hamlet Burned.

Vancouver, B. C., July 22.—Fire Tuesday wiped out the milling hamlet at Harrison River, B. C., destroying the mill of the Harrison River Timber & Trading Co., the residence of Mgr. Tretheley, six cars of lumber, the Northern Pacific railway station and much lumber. Loss, $100,000.

Miners in a Stabbing Affray.

Bessemer, Mich., July 22.—A fierce scrap occurred at the Tilden mine yesterday. Two Italians attacked a Finlander with knives and cut him badly. The Italians are now in jail.

TO THE FAITHFUL.

Bishop Foley Issues Instructions of Worship.

Detroit, Mich., July 22.—Bishop Foley has issued a letter to the priests and laity of his diocese, announcing the death of Pope Leo XIII. and giving instructions relative to worship, "in order to testify our deep affection for the departed pontiff." In brief, they are as follows:

Every day, for nine days, a requiem mass shall be celebrated in each church.

On the day of Pope Leo's funeral pontifical mass will be celebrated at the cathedral at 10:30 a. m. Solemn requiem mass will be offered in all the churches of the diocese at an hour to be selected by the pastor.

Every evening for nine days, inclusive, the church bells will be tolled for fifteen minutes, beginning at 8 p. m., when the faithful are invited to recite the Rosary and De Profundis for the deceased pontiff.

Catholics are asked to abstain from all worldly diversions and to visit the church and offer their communion for the repose of the soul of Pope Leo XIII.

TO SUCCEED WELLS.

Agricultural College, Mich., July 22.—The state board of agriculture, at its meeting here Tuesday afternoon elected Charles F. Moore of St. Clair a member of the board, to succeed the late Franklin S. Wells of Constantine. Mr. Moore's principal business interest is in the Diamond Crystal Salt company of St. Clair, of which he 's president.

All bids for conduits for the new lighting and heating system were rejected and Secretary Brown was authorized to readvertise for bids.

The following elections were made by the board: To be instructor in chemistry, Ray R. Tower of Belding, to be instructor in physics and electrical engineering, W. L. Curtis; to be stenographer to President Snyder, Miss Elida Yakeley; to be clerk to the president, Gerritt Masselink of Big Rapids, who will be editor-in-chief of the M. A. C. H. R. Dewey Hurt at Fire.

Grand Blanc, Mich., July 22.—The Grand Blanc hotel, which was built in 1822, burned Tuesday as the result of an explosion of a gasoline stove. The loss is about $2,500, partially covered by insurance. H. R. Dewey, former member of the state legislature and deputy railroad commissioner, was badly hurt by falling from a ladder while fighting the flames.

Royal Circle's Assembly.

Portland, Mich., July 22.—The fifth annual assembly of the Royal Circle will be held at this place on Aug. 28 and several hundred visitors are expected. There are fifty-six circles of the organization in the state, and in many instances the entire membership of these circles will attend.

Woman Took Poison.

Portland, Mich., July 22.—Mrs. D. T. Eddy, wife of a prominent merchant at Eagle, Mich., arose at 3 o'clock in the morning, and, returning to bed, told her husband that she had taken poison. She died before medical assistance could be secured. She had been despondent for a couple of weeks.

Handled a Live Wire.

Muskegon, Mich., July 22.—Fred Cavanaugh, aged 25, an employe of the Muskegon Traction & Lighting Co., was killed last evening by handling a live wire. He received about 4,000 volts.

Hailstorm at Quincy.

Quincy, Mich., July 22.—The worst hailstorm that has visited this section in years passed through Tuesday afternoon, leaving destruction in its path. Acres of corn are ruined, the large hail stripping every blade from the stalk.

Unknown Woman Killed.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—An unidentified woman, apparently about 80 years old, was struck by a Woodward avenue car near Edmund place and sustained injuries from which she died at Harper hospital.

Old Switchman Fatally Hurt.

Durand, Mich., July 23.—Dad Bennett, one of the oldest switchmen in the railroad yards, was knocked off the side of a car Wednesday and the physicians express doubt for his recovery.

Deafness cannot be cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. De [illegible] caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

The Story of the Ticket.

"Every ticket has its story," said a man acquainted with the pawnshops, and one of the sad little tales which told is repeated by the Philadelphia [illegible]graph. It was a bitter cold day. A mite of a boy, not over nine years old, had come in, wrapped in his overcoat. This he peeled off and deposited it upon the pawnbroker's counter.

"Give a dollar 'n' quarter?" he asked in pleading tones.

"Dollar," said the money lender.

"Oh, please give me a dollar 'n' a quarter!"

"Can't do it. Dollar."

The boy was almost crying, and he begged earnestly for the sum he ask

"I want to get my sister's coat out, he said as he laid down 8 cents as interest money. This proposition the pawnbroker accepted, and the boy went shivering into the cold with his sister's coat.

"Is your sister going to a dance tonight?" a bystander asked him.

"No, sir; mom's been sick, an' Maggie had to hock her coat for feed. She's got a job now, an' she's got to have a coat to go to work in. I don't mind the cold; I'm used to it."

The Scotch Halfpenny.

Englishmen are familiar with the name "bawbee," applied to the Scotch halfpenny, but to few does it bring the association of a baby queen and a loyal people. Those who meet with the word in their reading do not often stop to ask how it came to be applied. It appears that the first attempt at the portraiture of the unfortunate Mary, queen of Scots, was made in her infancy, and her small face was engraved upon the Scottish halfpennies at the time of her coronation in 1543, when she was but nine months old. A number of these small coins are still preserved, and it will be easily understood how the name "bawbee," or baby, came to be given to the coin bearing the effigy of the baby. The halfpenny of Scotland is still commonly called the bawbee, although the baby face no longer appears on it.—Pearson's.

Jekyll and Hyde Indians.

It is said that the Seri Indians are a tribe of Jekylls and Hydes. They spend a portion of the year in the neighborhood of the boundary line between northern and Lower California, when they dedicate themselves to peaceful pursuits and evidently adopt civilized customs, frequently working as farm hands on the haciendas. When the crops are in, however, they experience a remarkable change, like any of the lower animals with a change of season. It is then that they have a wild longing for a savage life and emigrate to Tiburon island, where they lead a barbarous existence, even indulging in cannibalism, it is averred.

The Man He Wanted.

Senator Clark of Montana had occasion once out in Helena to hire a carriage driver. The roads were mountainous, and a skillful man was needed. On the appointed day the candidates for the position appeared. "You know where the road runs along the mountain, with the hill on one side and a gorge on the other, five miles from here?" asked Senator Clark, and all the men nodded affirmatively. "How near can you go to the edge of the road," was asked, "without upsetting my carriage?"

The first man said, "Four feet;" the next man answered, "Two feet;" the third man said that he would drive close to the edge, and the fourth man allowed that if one wheel was over the brink he could still turn the horses in time to save the carriage.

At last Mr. Clark turned to a brawny Irishman. "What would you do?" he asked.

"Begorra, Mr. Clark," said the Irishman, "I would keep as close to the side of the hill as I could without pulling off a wheel."

"You are the man I want," replied Mr. Clark, and the Irishman got the job.

"Rule Britannia" Variations.

One of the English papers gives the answers of certain board school boys who were asked to write down the whole or part of the chorus of "Rule Britannia." One of them gave the first line as "Royl Brick Tanner, Brick Tanner rules the way," a second began it with "Rore Britanier," while a third attempted a whole verse. This was his version: "The nations not so blest has he but still in stern but still stern to God most all this was the Chelter the Chelter of the stall and God in Angles sang the Strang Bulbiatanya biatanya woves the waves for Britains never wil be slain."

THE DEATH PHANTOM

Toward the close of the autumn of 1858 I visited one of my friends, subprefect of a little city in the center of France. Albert was an old companion of my youth, and I had been present at his wedding. His charming wife was full of goodness and grace. My friend wished to show me his happy home and, moreover, to introduce me to his two pretty little daughters. One evening he said to me:

"Tomorrow we will go to the Black rocks. They are curious old Druidical stones on a wild and desolate plain. They will interest you. My wife has not seen them yet. So we will take her."

The following day we drove out at the usual hour. Albert's wife sat by his side. I occupied the back seat alone. When we arrived at the Black rocks, the sun was setting. We got out of the phaeton, and Albert took care of the horses.

We walked some little distance through the fields before reaching the giant remains of the old Druid religion. Albert's wife wished to climb to the summit of the altar, and I assisted her.

"How beautiful it is! But does it not make you feel a little melancholy?" said she, extending her hand toward the dark horizon, which was lighted a little by the last rays of the sun.

The afternoon wind blew violently and sighed through the stunted trees that grew around the stone cromlechs. Not a dwelling or a human being was in sight. We hastened to get down and silently retraced our steps to the carriage.

"We must hurry," said Albert. "The sky is threatening, and we shall have scarcely time to reach home before night."

We carefully wrapped the robes around his wife. She tied the veil around her face, and the horses started into a rapid trot. It was growing dark; the scenery around us was bare and desolate; clumps of fir trees here and there and furze bushes formed the only vegetation. We began to feel the cold, for the wind blew with fury. The only sound we heard was the steady trot of the horses and the sharp, clear tinkle of their bells.

Suddenly I felt the heavy grasp of a hand upon my shoulder. I turned my head quickly. A horrible apparition presented itself before my eyes. In the empty place at my side sat a hideous woman. I tried to cry out. The phantom placed her fingers upon her lips to impose silence upon me. I could not utter a sound. The woman was clothed in white linen. Her head was cowled. Her face was overspread with a corpselike pallor, and in place of eyes were ghastly black cavities.

I sat motionless, overcome by terror. The ghost suddenly stood up and leaned over the young wife. She encircled her with her arms and lowered her hideous head as if to kiss her forehead.

As she turned I felt the same infernal pressure on my shoulder, and the place occupied by the phantom was empty. I looked out to the right and left. The road was deserted—not an object in sight.

"What a dreadful gale!" said Mme. Albert. "Did you feel it? I cannot explain the terror that seized me. My veil was torn by the wind as if by an invisible hand. I am trembling still."

"Never mind," said Albert, smiling. "Wrap yourself up, my dear. We will soon be warming ourselves by a good fire at home. I am starving."

A cold perspiration covered my forehead, a shiver ran through me, my tongue clove to the roof of my mouth, and I could not articulate a sound. A sharp pain in my shoulder was the only sensible evidence that I was not the victim of a hallucination. Putting my hand upon my aching shoulder, I felt a rent in the cloak that was wrapped around me. I looked at it. Five perfectly distinct holes, visible traces of the grip of the horrible phantom! I thought for a moment that I should die or that my reason should leave me. It was, I think, the most dreadful moment of my life.

Finally I became more calm. This nameless agony had lasted for some minutes, and I do not think it is possible for a human being to suffer more than I did during that time. As soon as I had recovered my senses I thought at first I would tell my friends all that had passed, but hesitated and finally did not, fearing that my story would frighten Mme. Albert and feeling sure my friend would not believe me. The lights of the little city revived me, and gradually the oppression of terror that overwhelmed me became lighter.

So soon as we reached home Mme. Albert untied her veil. It was literally in shreds. I hoped to find my clothes whole and prove to myself that it was all imagination. But no, the cloth was torn in five places, just where the fingers had seized my shoulder. There was no mark, however, upon my flesh, only a dull pain.

I returned to Paris the next day, where I endeavored to forget the strange adventure, or at least when I thought of it I would force myself to think it a hallucination.

The day after my return I received a letter from my friend Albert. It was edged with black. I opened it with a vague fear.

His wife had died the day of my return.

The Box Tortoise.

Though the tortoise is slow of foot, it is quick to make the best of all its available modes of defense. The box tortoise possesses a singular defensive apparatus. The plastron or shell covering the under part of the body is so formed that its front segment can be drawn upward to protect the animal's head, the head meanwhile being drawn back under the carapace or shell on the back of the tortoise.

The upper and under shells then meet in front, forming a kind of box in which the creature is unassailable. When the danger is passed, the reptile relaxes a muscle, and the raised part of the plastron falls, allowing the head and fore feet to come forth. This movable plate is fastened to the plastron by a strong hinge of elastic ligament.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Fooling the People at Home.

A young lady recently misled a family in a most heartless way. She remarked, "I had a letter today, and how do you imagine the little preposition 'to' was spelled?"

"Too," suggested mamma.

"Two," suggested papa.

"Tew," "teu," "tu," ventured various voices.

Lily, who was much engaged with her French lessons just then, suggested "tout," and Tom, in derision, improved upon that with "tueue," declaring that must be right in order to rhyme with "queue."

"All wrong!" exclaimed the young lady when the alphabet and their ingenuity were well exhausted.

Just then Teddy, who had been soberly absorbed in his bread and honey and who was in his first term at school and wrestling with the problem of words in two letters, raised his head and with an air of decision and importance gravely spelled, "T-o, to."

"Why," exclaimed the others in dismayed chorus, "that is the right way to spell it!"

"Exactly," she replied, "and that is the way my correspondent spelled it. You do not suppose I correspond with persons who cannot even spell 'to' correctly, do you?"—Harper's Young People.

The Education of the Parrot.

To teach a parrot to talk it is never necessary to place the poor bird in a darkened room or to starve him. Common sense would suggest that he should be made as happy as possible in his surroundings. Give him good food—hemp, maize, oats, biscuit. As a slice of fruit is always beneficial, a bit of apple, of pear, of banana or of carrot will do very well. Also see that your pet has pure drinking water, a large cage, some soft wood to gnaw, with plenty of coarse grit on the floor of the cage, for he needs small stones to aid his digestion. A parrot in these comfortable circumstances may then be left alone in a room while his teacher conceals himself in another. The teacher should be heard, but not seen, should repeat with infinite patience over and over again the word or words he wishes his pet to learn. The female parrots do not talk—the female of the song birds, it should be remembered, is not a singer—so that efforts of education in that line are quite thrown away.—Our Animal Friends.

Spoke Louder Than Words.

Alice, who was five years old, was often asked to run errands for her mother. She went very willingly if she could pronounce the name of the article wanted, but she dreaded the laughter which greeted her attempts to pronounce certain words. "Vinegar" was one of the hardest for her. She never would go for it if she could help it, but one morning her mother found it absolutely necessary to send her.

On entering the store she handed the jug to the clerk and said:

A Boy Who Followed a Suggestion.

A physician once twitted a youngster at the time of the arrival of a new member of the family by saying, "I suppose your nose is out of joint, Johnny, and you will put your little brother in the ash barrel." Next morning the parents of the young hopeful heard him puffing and struggling on the stairs, and on looking out they saw him trying to carry the baby toward the yard. "Here, you little scamp!" called the father. "What are you up to?" "Doin' to put 'ittle busser in ash barrel," was the reply.

Wakeful Ruth.

Little Ruth was spending her first night away from home. She was a bit restless, and in the morning she was asked how she had slept. "Pretty well, thank you. But I don't think I slept very much." "Then you couldn't have had any bad dreams surely," said mamma. "No, mamma, I didn't, but I had two terrible thinks."—Youth's Companion.

An Iceland Baby's Lamb.

In Iceland, that country of gentle and old fashioned customs, it has always been the fashion to present to the baby when its first tooth appeared a lamb, to be its very own, cared for and tended as no other pet could be and never to be parted with.—London Tit-Bits.

The Chase.

'Tis ten o' the clock—perhaps something after—
But music still murmurs above the night gale,
As young, merry voices, o'erbubbling with laughter,

Now, round like a chip in an eddying current
Or tempest tossed ship—lost, rudder and sail!—
A fluffy white ball, this kitty knight errant
Goes bounding and pounding to catch his own tail!

Ah, there, he 'most had it! But ever before
He catches the pennant—you knew he would fail—
He tumbles and bumps his pink nose on the floor,
For kitty is tied to the end o' his tail!

He seems to be dazed with a catlike surprise
Ah, green is the glint o' his very green eyes
As now he lies waiting to catch his own tail!

But useless the vigil; the task is all vain,
As vain as the search for the wonderful Grail;
Though pussy may strive with speed, might and main,

—Thomas Emmet Moore.

A Churchman's Wit.

Wayne MacVeagh, Archbishop Ryan and George B. Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, were fellow guests at a banquet given in the Union league several years before the death of Mr. Roberts. Mr. MacVeagh at the time was the legal adviser of the "Pennsy." Some chaff in the vernacular of railroading marked a passage in the conversation of the evening, and the lawyer, following up a compliment paid the prelate by the president, said:

"Your grace, in return you might give the worthy Mr. Roberts a free pass to heaven."

"I should willingly do so," responded his grace, "but for one reason—I should not care to be the means of separating him from his counsel in the world beyond."—Philadelphia Times.

A Motive Analyzed.

"That author keeps his identity closely concealed."

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Until I read his books I thought it was due to modesty."

"Isn't it?"

"No; discretion."—Washington Star.

Tit For Tat.

In the peace congress at The Hague Lord Pauncefote attracted the attention of the delegates by taking notes with a fountain pen the handle of which was formed by the shell of a dumdum bullet. One day the representative of a foreign power, excited by the heat of the discussion in the interests of eternal peace, said to him sharply:

"My lord, it isn't right for you to use that murderous shell in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost emblematic. They can become a part of themselves, an expression of their ideas and of their personality."

Lord Pauncefote smiled, but said nothing.

The following day his critic, wanting to write something, turned to the English diplomat to borrow a pen. The embassador pulled out of his pocket an old fashioned pen made of gray goose quill, and after the borrower had finished said:

"Monsieur, it isn't right for you to use such an instrument in this congress. The instruments used by persons are almost emblematic. They can become a part of themselves, an expression of their ideas, of their personality."

Not Quite Complimentary.

A very ordinary looking nurse was exhibiting the new born sister to six-year-old Bertie.

"Look at the sweet little baby, my dear! Is she not pretty?"

But Bertie, who has been made painfully aware from the servants of the household that the new arrival will usurp his past privileges as an only child, exclaimed with secret exultation:

But the smile was lost upon Bertie. He stood for a moment in meditative mood, and then, glancing up from his contemplation of baby's features to those of the nurse, he said with childish confidence:

"Nurse, you must have been a very pretty baby!"

A Browning Anecdote.

In the Cornhill Magazine, in an interesting paper entitled "On a Few Conversationalists," the writer tells an amusing story of Browning and how he received certain flowers from a lady, who, on being pressed to give their English names, shyly confessed they were called "bloody noses." I happened many years ago to be staying in a country house when Browning told this story in his inimitable way, and he ended with the following lines, which I then and there committed to memory, and which will, I think, interest your readers:

I'll deck my love with posies,
I'll cover her with roses;
Should she protest
I'll do my best
To give her bloody noses.

—London Spectator.

His "Hinner End."

An English clergyman and a lowland Scotsman entered one of the best schools in Aberdeen. The master received them kindly and inquired:

"Would you prefer that I should speer (question) these boys or that you should speer them?"

The English clergyman desired the master to proceed. He did so with great success, and the boys answered satisfactorily numerous interrogations as to the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt. The clergyman then said he would be glad to "speer the boys" and at once began:

"How did Pharaoh die?"

There was a dead silence.

In his dilemma the lowland gentleman interposed:

"I think, sir, the boys are not accustomed to your English accent. Let me try what I can make of them." And he inquired in broad Scottish:

"Hoo did Phawrach dee?"

Again there was a dead silence, upon which the master said:

"Noo, boys, fat cam' to Phawrach at his hinner end?"

The boys with one voice answered:

"He was drooned."

And a smart little fellow added:

"Ony lassie could hae tell't ye that."—London Tit-Bits.

Crowned Himself.

That was a curious sort of impromptu coronation in which his majesty King William IV. figured. Things did not go very well with Earl Grey's government after the second reading of the first reform bill had been carried by a majority of one in 1831, and one Friday in April they suddenly got the king to go down and prorogue parliament in person. Somebody went off to the Tower to fetch the crown, and with a scratch body of attendants his majesty drove down to the house of lords. What happened there is described in Greville's "Memoirs."

The king ought not properly to have worn the crown, never having been crowned; but when he was in the robing room he said to Lord Hastings, "Lord Hastings, I wear the crown; where is it?" It was brought to him, and when Lord Hastings was going to put it on his head, he said, "Nobody shall put the crown on my head but myself." He put it on and then turned to Lord Grey and said, "Now, my lord, the coronation is over!"

The crown did not fit very well, we are told, but the prorogation was successfully effected.—London Chronicle.

Lincoln's Hay Crop.

A story of Abraham Lincoln would have to be older than the one below to lose its characteristic savor.

In the summer of 1857 Mr. Lincoln was sitting in his office when he was visited by one of his neighbors, an excellent farmer, but one inclined to increase the size of his crops even after harvesting. He had given on this particular morning a skillfully padded account of the hay he had put in.

"I've been cutting hay, too," remarked Mr. Lincoln.

"Why, Abe, are you farming?"

"Yes."

"What you raise?"

"Just hay."

"Good crop this year?"

"Excellent."

"How many tons?"

"Well, I don't know just how many tons, Simpson, but my men stacked all they could outdoors and then stored the rest in the barn."—Youth's Companion.

Remember the Baker.

At the court of assizes in Venice, when sentence of death is about to be passed, a man clothed in a long black robe enters the court, and advancing to the bench bows profoundly to the judges, saying, "Remember the baker!" Then he bows again and retires. Here is the explanation of the custom: Three centuries ago a baker was executed at Venice for a crime of which he was not guilty. When his innocence was fully proved, the judges who condemned him invested a sum of money, the interest on which serves to keep a lamp perpetually lighted in the palace of the doges, this being called the "lamp of expiation." In addition, their fatal mistake has for 300 years been held up as a warning to their successors on the bench when they are about to inflict the extreme penalty of the law.

An English King's Death.

William Rufus was killed by an arrow, either accidental or with murderous intent. He died in the New forest; his body was stripped by tramps and the next day was found by a charcoal burner, who placed the naked corpse on his cart, hoping to receive a reward. On the way to Winchester the cart was upset, and the king's body fell in the mire. Covered with filth and black with charcoal, it arrived in Winchester, where it was buried in the cathedral. A few years later the tower fell and crushed the tomb, and 600 years after the Puritans rifled the grave and played football with the king's skull.

The Women of Carthage.

There is a grand old story told about the supreme devotion displayed by the women of Carthage. When their city was besieged by the Romans, ropes were needed; but, as there was no flax to make them in the city, the women headed by their heroic queen, came to the rescue. They one and all cut off their glorious tresses and made ropes out of their hair.

THE FAMOUS OPTICIAN of Detroit,

The eye, when properly cared for affords the keenest delight because of the pleasures we are able to enjoy through its medium. When not cared for and its warnings are unheeded, it becomes an instrument of torture. Headaches, eye pains, burning, itching sensation, strained vision, nervous troubles and many bodily ills are the results accruing from over worked eyes, eyes that need help. My examination reveals all hidden troubles, and it is my province to fit the right glasses to any and all defects of vision. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED BY

To settle who is boss we play the Tecumseh team Wednesday at Butler, Ind.; at Montpelier, Thursday, and two games in Mich. next week. Then toss up for the fifth game if necessary.

Night was her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. A. Wright's drug store.

Old Resident Dead.

Word was received yesterday of the death of Dr. H. Peters at Cleveland, Ohio.

Dr. Peters was for a number of years a respected resident of Tecumseh. He lived in the house on corner of Pottawatamie and Union streets now owned by Frank Clarkson. Years ago he lived in Palmyra and as business did not suit him there he took his house down and moved it to Tecumseh which in part is the same residence now occupied by Clarkson.

Many of the older residents of Tecumseh will remember the Doctor and mourn his death.

Tommy—"Look out for that cow!" Willie (from the city)—"Why? Is she going to blow her horn?"

TWO GAMES

The Tecumseh Team wins at Butler, Ind. with score 15 to 4 and loses at Montpelier with a score of 5 and 1.

BOTH GOOD BALL GAMES.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The rain last Tuesday was a great dissapointment to many people who had decided to attend the Monroe—Tecumseh ball game. It is said that the teams will meet in the near future.

The Wheelman of Detroit will play in Tecumseh tomorrow. The Montpelier, Ohio club Tuesday and the Ionia team Thursday and Friday. Certainly next week will be the great base ball week for Tecumseh for these are among the best teams in the state and we can bet on good games.

Poem.

The following poem on the death of Pope Leo, taken from the Telegram of July 22nd, was written by Ben Cocker now at Flint. It will be read with pleasure by our readers, many of whom know Ben well. It is gratifying to them that his condition has so far improved to make such an article from his pen, possible.

Leo, thy sun is set
And we, thy children, desolate,
With bleeding heart and tear stained eyes,
Turn lovingly to where now lies
Thy bier—Its majesty transcends
All earthly thrones. Before it bends
Proud Austria's king and Spain's best pride,
His weeping mother by his side,
While nations protestant stand by
And silent offer sympathy.
Thy sun is set. We grope for light;
For, in the darkness of our night,
We miss thy tender voice—thy hand
So strong, to guide us to that land,
Where now among God's saints you stand.
A noble life; a noble end;
Great Priest, great Shepherd, greater Friend
You, who have passed beyond the gate
Oh! pray for us who watch and wait
And thy far reaching aid extend.
Thy sun is set. Tomorrow's morn
Will find thee radiant, us forlorn,
While angels, bending from the skies,
Pour forth their choicest melodies
To bear your spirit to its rest,
And, bowed in grief—our guilt confessed,
We beg thy intercession yet
With him, who in His boundless grace
Has found you by His side a place,
Thou, vicar of His chosen race.
No man who knew thee can forget
The mighty lessons thou hast taught
Of perfect charity unsought.
God grant us grace like you to run
The race toward the setting sun,
Till in the splendor of the west
We rest at last on Mary's breast.
And, as we reach the other shore

Notice.

Notice is hereby given, That the Common Council of the village of Tecumseh intend to construct a sanitary sewer in said village along Chicago street from Adrian street to the river Raisin; that maps of said sewer showing its location, depth, grade and dimensions, and of the special assessment district to be taxed for the construction thereof, and estimates of the cost of such construction can be found and inspected at the office of the Clerk of this Village from now till the evening of the 3rd day of August A. D., 1903; and that the Common Council of this village will meet at the Council building in this village at 7:30 o'clock P. M. on the 3rd day of August A. D., 1903 to hear suggestions or objections upon the subject of said sewer from persons interested or liable to be assessed for the work.

By order of the Common Council.
HARRY C. MOORE,
Village Clerk.

TWO COTTAGES

Rented for treating patients of PROF. WALLACE

Prof. Wallace has rented two cottages at Manitou Beach, Devil's lake, and will move his sanitarium there for a period of four weeks. One cottage will be occupied by Prof. Wallace, his wife and the nurse, and his office will also be located in this building. The other one will be for his lady patients only. Accommodations for the gentlemen patients will be arranged for at the hotel or boarding houses.

There are seventeen people who have registered for the four weeks' outing at the lake. Two are from Catawba, O., three from Zionsville, Ind., one from Morenci, Mich., two from Denson, O., one from Medina, Mich., one from Hudson, Mich., one from Fayette, O., two from Clinton, Mich., one from Tecumseh, Mich., one from Vicksburg, Mich., and two from Adrian, Mich. Prof. Wallace does not believe in publishing the names of his patients or the ailments for which they are being treated any more, as he says it is one of the features of the quack practice.

Prof. Wallace is not a doctor, nor does he claim to be a doctor, but his method of treatment, myo-pathy, is recommended by the following physicians: Dr. A. M. Stephenson, Dr. Leroy Treat, Dr. Geo. B. M. Seager, Dr. H. D. Hull, Dr. M. R. Morden of Adrian; Dr. Frost of Tecumseh; Dr. Blair and Dr. Butler of Morenci, Mich., Dr. Tracey of Manchester, Mich., Dr. Lehman of Palmyra, Mich., and a number of other prominent doctors. Prof. Wallace is also recommended by the Adrian Daily Times, the Adrian Daily Telegram and the Adrian Weekly Press.

Anyone suffering from chronic troubles can write for the name of some one of the patients Prof. Wallace has cured of a similar difficulty. He will gladly furnish references.

Persons desiring treatment at Devil's lake can write to Prof. Wallace at Manitou Beach, Devils lake, any time after Wednesday, July 22, or at Adrian before that time. The prices for treatment at the lake will be just the same as at the sanitarium in Adrian. No extra charges.—Adrian Telegram.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

A Woman's Wealth.

Paine's Celery Compound

GIVES VIGOR AND STRENGTH TO DEBILITATED AND RUN DOWN WOMEN.

It is maintained by many distinguished writers that the greatness of a nation depends much upon the physical condition of its women. The general conditions which contribute to health and long life, are those which do not imply a rapid and unequal exhaustion of those powers by which life is maintained. While we assert that the women of our land stand peerless for beauty and the virtues that make them lovable, we cannot hide the fact that there are thousands in our midst who, owing to overwork, worry, household cares, and an unequal exhaustion of life power, have become weak, nervous, sleepless, and debilitated.

We bring to the attention of all weary, despondent, hopeless, and sickly women earth's great rescuer and health builder, Paine's Celery Compound. Thousands of healthy women around us owe their present vigor, activity, and robustness to Paine's Celery Compound. Mrs. Stephen Smith, St. Paul, Minn., tells how she was snatched from the grave; she says:—

"I had a bad attack of la grippe this spring and was at death's door, and no one ever expected me to recover. I was so weak that as soon as they brought me out of one faint I was in another. I could not take any nourishment, and doctors' medicines did me no good. A friend advised my husband to get me a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, which he did, but had no faith in it. The second day after taking the Compound, I began to get real hungry and took an interest in things. I had everything that money and loving care could supply, and with that and Paine's Celery Compound, I am now doing my own work, while three months ago I was almost in the grave. I know that I owe my health and strength to Paine's Celery Compound, and shall always recommend it."

IT WILL COME BACK.

Some Tecumseh Residents have learned how to keep it away.

Your back may not ache very long,
But the ache will return shortly,
Comes oftener—stays longer,
Unless the kidneys are relieved.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure all kidney ills.

Tecumseh people endorse them.

Mr. Henry Keyser, retired farmer and capitalist, residence in the southwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I am thoroughly convinced of the superior merits of this popular remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. They deserve naught save the highest praise. Before going to C. A. Wright's drug store for a box I had a dull aching pain in my back which had annoyed me for some time and the secretions from the kidneys were unnatural and irregular. To say that I was surprised at the effect is putting it very mildly. In a very short time the trouble disappeared. I never knew a medicine that worked so quickly and satisfactorily."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Overwork any organ and it gives out—the stomach is no exception. Ask it to digest anything, everything, at any time in half the time required, and like an over driven horse, it balks. Nature intended the stomach should have regular hours. A time to work, a time to rest—and when you break up this habit, you upset the whole arrangement. The stomach nerves become exhausted, the glands refuse to act, the food does not digest—lies heavy, ferments and repeats. There is pain, gas forms, bloating occurs, the heart becomes irregular and a nervous, irritable feeling sets in. This is nervous dyspepsia and Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills its cure.

Mrs. R. VanDuzer of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My trouble was with my stomach, the food did not digest properly and as a result I suffered from severe headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Wright's drug store and as a result of their use my stomach is again strong, the digestion is perfect and my headaches cured. I think the medicine for nervous troubles cannot be approached." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every package.

To be good is noble; but to show others how to be good is nobler, and no trouble.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoeo Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

Commissioners' Notice.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, county Lenawee. ss.

The undersigned having been appointed by the probate court of said county, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Alfred James the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 3rd day of August, 1903, and on the 1st day of January, 1904 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

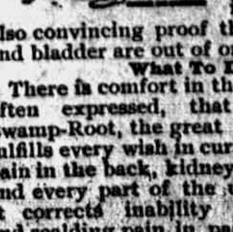
And that six months from the 1st day of July, 1903, are allowed by said probate court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated July 1st, 1903.

ALFRED JAMES,
SYLVESTER F. HOSMER,
Commissioners.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.



Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

BLISS IS GENEROUS.

Commutes Sentences of Murderers to 25 Years—Paroles Granted.

Lansing, Mich., July 23.—Governor Bliss has commuted to imprisonment for twenty-five years the sentences of William Reynolds and Jacob Katterman, who were sent to Jackson prison for life for murder from Iosco county in 1884. Waite, who was the leader of the trio and who received a like sentence, was pardoned by Governor Pingree.

The facts in the case are that the three were going home drunk late one night and conceived the idea of making trouble for a German family whose house they were passing. They broke into the house and when the family showed fight one of the three shot the head of the family dead. It is expected that paroles will be granted the two convicts in a short time.

Paroles were granted Wednesday to Edward Collette, sent from Dickinson county Jan. 6, 1902, to Marquette prison for three years for burglary; Antoine Garavaglia, sent from Marquette April 9, 1901, to Marquette prison for four years for manslaughter, and Jesse Fetters, sent from Gratiot county March 27, 1900, to Ionia prison for five years for criminal assault.

Dragging Pains

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Maude Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

TELLS TRAGIC SECRET.

Woman Confessed to Grand Rapids Police Killing a Man.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 27.—"I want to give myself up. I shot and killed a man near Salt Lake City July 11, and I know I will never rest easy until I have been punished." Such was the startling statement made to Superintendent of Police Carr Sunday afternoon by a young woman who gave her name as Mrs. Aurora Hodge and her home as Denison, Ia.

Mrs. Hodge appeared perfectly sane, although she is exceedingly nervous, but her story was told with a straightforwardness that indicated that she was telling the truth. One of the peculiar features of the story was that she steadfastly refused to give the name of the man she claimed to have murdered.

The woman stated the man was a fakir, with whom she traveled as a bookkeeper. On the night mentioned he attacked her. She shot him dead, took his money and fled. The police are investigating.

A telegram late last night from Acting Chief of Police Burbridge of Salt Lake City to Chief Carr confirms Mrs. Hodge's story, stating there is a warrant for her arrest for murder and to hold her.

Preacher Stirred Them Up.

Quincy, Mich., July 27.—Sunday was the closing day of the Algansee camp meeting, which has been in session ten days. At 2 p. m. Evangelist Morehouse preached one of the most pointed sermon sever heard here, from the subject, "The new commandment in contradistinction to the old," which almost drove his congregation into a panic. Among other things he said: "You old croakers who sing 'Where He Leads I'll Follow,' and follow your old clap pipes all day, have no religion, and you women who laugh and let your tongues wag all day against your neighbors are no better than the men."

Mother and Child Burned.

Detroit, Mich., July 27.—While Mrs. Charles F. Grimer was preparing lunch over a gasoline stove at her home on Sixteenth street Sunday, the stove suddenly exploded, her clothing caught fire and, grabbing her infant babe, she hurried from the house. Both were fatally burned. In hastening to the fire two firemen, Orange Witmire and Edward Stevens, were seriously hurt by the falling of a ladder from the cart.

For Parole of Andrews.

Lansing, Mich., July 25.—Rumors of an attempt to secure a parole for Frank C. Andrews have been revived by the appearance here of Senator Michael H. Moriarty on a mysterious mission. Moriarty has now returned home, but it is understood he took with him a flat refusal from Governor Bliss to parole Andrews without the unanimous recommendation of the board of pardons, which cannot be obtained at present.

Will Make a Long Trip.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., July 27.—Harry and Will Westendorf have left this city for an extended trip, which will include a visit to California. They have purchased the large sailboat Northwest, which won many races at Lakeside, have put an engine in her and will make the voyage in that craft. They will go around the lakes, down the Mississippi to the gulf and on around to the coast.

Louise's Brother Weds Actress.

Geneva, July 27.—Archduke Leopold, brother of Crown Princess Louise, whose elopement with Professor Giron created an international scandal last fall, has married Mademoiselle Adamovics, the Bavarian actress, who was his companion in the flight from the royal palace the night that Princess Louise and Giron made their escape.

Disastrous Fire in Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., July 27.—A disastrous fire visited the East Quay street district Saturday evening, almost completely destroying the Jenks, Taylor, Howard & Co. lumber plant and planing mill and Dunford's upper drydock, as well as the tug Sigginson, entailing a loss close to $75,000.

Shiawassee's Oldest Banker.

Owosso, Mich., July 27.—Matthias Stewart, the oldest banker in Shiawassee county, is dead, aged 71 years. He had been in business continuously in Owosso for forty-seven years and was well-known throughout the county. He leaves a widow and two children.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Three Drowned.—Mrs. C. T. Thorpe, Miss Annabel Rogers and Samuel Gobel of New London, Conn., were in the Thames river, north of that city, by the capsizing of a pleasure boat.

Singer Shot Himself.—A special from Dawson City says: Arthur G. Wright, aged 27, of Cleveland, O., shot himself dead in the the Dominion saloon. He was a professional singer and was in trouble over a love affection with a theatrical woman.

Imprisoned Youths Escaped.—More than a score of youths of the house of refuge on Randall's Island, near New York, tunneled under and through the thirty-five-feet high and two feet thick wall surrounding the building, and five succeeded in escaping. The other were captured.

Found Body in a Sewer.—With a shoe lace tied tightly around the neck, the body of a woman was found in a sewer in Mount Vernon, N. Y. The body was too large to have been forced through the break in the sewed and must have been dropped into a manhole, 300 feet away.

A Henious Crime.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Daily Mail sends a report to the effect that near the village of Schalajifka, in the district of the Don, thirty-three female field laborers were burned to death in a barn where they had locked themselves to escape molestation by male laborers, who, in revenge, fired the barn and watched the burning without heeding the shrieks of the victims.

Responsibilities.

"Remember," said the serious citizen, "that wealth has its responsibilities."

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "So long as you are humble and obscure you can say 'I seen it' and 'I done it' and eat with your knife all you want to."—Washington Star.

Dead Pope Divides $120,000 In Will Among Relatives.

CARDINALS ARE CRITICISED

Colleagues Take Exceptions to Actions of Their Brothers at Burial of Leo—Gibbons Reaches Rome—Bookmakers Want a Betting Ring.

Rome, July 27.—At the sixth meeting of the congregation of cardinals, held Sunday, forty-five cardinals were present. Cardinal Della Volpe, voicing also the opinions of some of his colleagues, criticised the ceremonies in connection with the interment of Leo XIII. Saturday night because the cardinals did not participate in the entire procession and complained generally of the lack of order. Cardinal Oreglia replied that he had already noticed this and that he would punish those who were responsible.

The will of the late pope was read Sunday after the meeting of the congregation of cardinals. Only that portion which deals with the material matter of the personal papal estate was made public. The religious testament was not disclosed. While nominally leaving the estate of Carpineto to his nephew, Ludavico Pecci, it really makes no change, as the whole family property, amounting approximately to $120,000, had already been divided among the three nephews, Count Camillo having already sold his share.

Portion Made Public.

That portion made public is at follows:

"In the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, as the end of our mortal career is approaching, we put in this photograph will our last desires.

"Now, coming to dispose of the family patrimony, which is our according to the deed of division drawn up by the notary, Curzio Franchi, Dec. 17, 1882, we appoint as heir of this patrimony our nephew, Count Ludavico Pecci, son of Giovanni Battista, our deceased brother. From this property must be deducted that already donated to Count Richardo, another nephew, on the occasion of his marriage, according to a deed of Feb. 13, 1886, by Notary Franchi. Equally from this property must be deducted all the estate in the Carpineto Romano belonging to the holy see, according to the declaration in our chirograph of Feb. 6, 1900. In this, our testamentary disposition, we have not thought of our other nephew, Camillo, and our nieces, Anna and Maria, son and daughters of our brother, Giovanni Battista. For them we have in life property provided the decorous maintenance on the occasion of their marriages. We declare that no one of our family can claim any right in anything not contemplated in the present document because all the other belongings, of whatever nature, which have come to us as pontiff consequently are, and in any case we wish to be, the property of the holy see. We confide the exact execution of this, our disposition, to Cardinals Mariano Rampolla, our secretary of state, Serafino Cretoni and Mario Mocenni. This declaration is to be our last will.

"The Vatican, Rome, this 8th day of July, 1900.

"GIOACCHINE PECCI,
"LEO XIII."

A wall is being built around the apartments where the conclave will be held. It is already ten feet high.

Some of the Italian bookmakers here proposed to conduct public betting on the chances of the papal candidates, and in order to obtain permission to do so offered to donate their gains to charitable institutions. The government, however, promptly refused the request.

The body of Pope Leo was interred in St. Peter's Saturday night. At sundown the most important and most solemn of all the obsequies took place. The front doors of the basilica were closed, and the vast church, except for a row of lights at the shrine of St. Peter, the candles about the bier and those persons who had quietly and with the utmost reverence gathered there, appeared deserted.

About 1,000 persons had received invitations to attend the ceremonies.

Cardinal Gibbons reached Rome Sunday.

"Just to Frighten Her."

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 25.—Barnett S. Croul, a young man who moves in good society here, was sentenced to sixty days in jail by Judge Haggerty for carrying concealed weapons. It was charged that he called on a young lady on Jefferson avenue, and in the course of a quarrel drew a revolver. He says he did it "just to frighten her."

Wheat Crop Is a Good One.

Quincy, Mich., July 25.—Although the weather has been somewhat unfavorable this week for threshing, hundreds of bushels of new wheat have been offered for sale, the price paid being 74 and 75 cents. The crop is the best in years. Some fields have averaged 30 to 35 bushels to the acre, and the general average is 20 bushels.

Prof. Ellis to Leave Olivet.

Olivet, Mich., July 25.—Professor G. N. Ellis of Olivet college, after looking over the field thoroughly, has accepted the presidency of Tabor college, Iowa, and will soon move there with his family. Professor Ellis has been a member of Olivet's faculty for twenty years.

CONCLAVE MAY BEGIN AUG. 1

Cardinal Oreglia Comments on Neglect of Vatican Gardens—Cardinal Gibbons Reaches Rome Soon—Leo's Remains Lie in State Another Day.

Rome, July 25.—Again Friday the body of Leo XIII. lay in state in the basilica of St. Peter's and about 30,000 people passed before the catafalque during the day. The body will continue in the chapel of the sacrament at least during the greater part of today. The fears expressed by the Vatican authorities concerning decomposition appear to have been exaggerated. With impressive ceremonies the body will be interred this evening in a sarcophagus at St. Peter's, where it will remain until taken to its final resting place in the church of St. John Lateran. Italian soldiers again preserved order inside St. Peter's.

Interest is now largely engrossed with the coming conclave and its business. The gossip of the day may be summed up by saying that Cardinal Gotti's chances of election seem to have improved in comparison with those of other cardinals who have been mentioned as likely to succeed the dead pontiff, although there still exists a strong feeling that someone hitherto scarcely talked of may wear the tiara. Much comment was excited at the Vatican by a drive which Cardinal Oreglia took through the Vatican gardens Friday morning. The camerlengo did not appear to be satisfied with what he saw. He shook his head, exclaiming dismally:

"What decay; what neglect. I could not remain shut up in this melancholy place. I should die within a year.

What Did He Mean?

The gossips of the Vatican now wish to know if this means that the cardinal would not accept the papacy, which seems practically impossible, or, accepting, would refuse to be the voluntary, traditional Vatican prisoner. It seems that the more probable interpretation of this remark would be that, if made pope, he would institute great changes in the gardens.

The congregation of cardinals has not decided whether the note which the sacred college intends to address to the powers concerning the situation of the papacy at Rome shall be presented today, when the reception of the diplomatic body occurs.

At the meeting of the congregation Cardinal Satolli asked when the conclave would be opened. Cardinal Oreglia replied that he thought that on the evening of Tuesday, the 31st, all the cardinals might enter their cells and be ready for the first meeting of the conclave Aug. 1. Monsignor Farabulini, the famous Latinist, has been selected to write the oratio brevis, the Latin eulogy upon the late pontiff, which will be buried with him.

The Italia sees alleged confirmation of the story that Cardinal Gibbons had succeeded in transforming Cardinal Richard, the archbishop of Paris, into an opponent of Cardinal Rampolla. Cardinal Gibbons is expected here Sunday evening or Monday morning.

Inside the Vatican the work of arranging the apartments for the conclave has been begun. The Palatine guards and gendarmes will be transferred elsewhere, as their barracks are needed by the conclave.

Playhouses For Jackies.

Washington, July 25.—With a view to making the naval service as attractive as possible to enlisted men and lessening visits to dives and desertions, the navigation bureau is now working on a scheme for the establishment of recreation halls and grounds in navy yards and stations. One of the most complete projects so far unfolded within reasonable price came from the Norfolk navy yard. This plan makes provision for a football grounds, baseball diamond, grandstand, cinder track, swimming pool, a recreation hall costing $35,000, with gymnasium and library, dance hall and smoking room. An appropriation for the purpose will be requested at the next session of congress.

Two Boys Were Drowned.

Romeo, Mich., July 27.—Samuel Brown and Ford Benjamin, aged about 13 years, were drowned at Cusic lake, two miles west of here. The boys were in a duck boat about thirty feet from shore, when the boat capsized. Harry White and Clare Manhard were also in the boat, and all four were thrown into the water. White and Manhard, who are good swimmers, attempted to rescue Brown and Benjamin, but they sank to the bottom.

Farmer's Serious Accident.

Lapeer, Mich., July 27.—Marvin Bolton, a prominent farmer, while operating a binder, stepped off the machine to make some necessary repairs. The horses became frightened and ran away, dragging him for a distance of forty rods. An iron on the end of the swath board penetrated his breast just above the heart. His condition is serious.

Menominee After It.

Menominee, Mich., July 27.—Quartermaster-General Steven Avery of the Michigan state militia arrived in the city for the purpose of establishing a militia company here. He has just arrived from Iron Mountain, where he mustered out Company E of that city.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness. and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrah, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Brutally Tortured.

A case came to light that for persistent and unmerciful torture has perhaps never been equaled. Joe Golobick of Colussa, Calif., writes. "For 15 years I endured insufferable pain from Rheumatism and nothing relieved me though I tried everything known. I came across Electric Bitters and it's the greatest medicine on earth for that trouble. A few bottles of it completely relieved and cured me." Just as good for Liver and Kidney troubles and general debility. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by C. A. Wright, Druggist.

How Scissors Are Made.

Though no complexities are involved in the making of scissors or much skill required, yet the process of manufacture is very interesting. They are forged from good bar steel heated to redness, each blade being cut off with sufficient metal to form the shank, or that destined to become the cutting part, and bow, or that which later on is fashioned into the holding portion. For the bow a small hole is punched, and this is afterward expanded to the required size by hammering it on a conical anvil, after which both shank and bow are filed into a more perfect shape and the hole bored in the middle for the rivet. The blades are next ground and the handles filed smooth and burnished with oil and emery, after which the pairs are fitted together and tested as to their easy working.

They are not yet finished, however; they have to undergo hardening and tempering and be again adjusted, after which they are finally put together again and polished for the third time. In comparing the edges of knives and scissors it will be noticed, of course, that the latter are not in any way so sharply ground as the former, and that in cutting scissors crush and bruise more than knives.

Eating Nightingales.

As exemplifying the pitch to which Roman epicureanism was carried, and indicative of a truly barbaric nature, a dish consisting of the tongues alone of some thousands of the favorite songsters of the air was requisitioned at immense cost to satisfy the inordinate cravings of one of the emperors. One can hardly avoid the reflection that such a being must have been extremely untuneful. The liver of a capon steeped in milk was thought a great delicacy, and of solid meat pork appears to have been most relished.

The stanch Roman who did not take his pleasure homeopathically reclined during dinner on a luxurious couch, his head resting on his left elbow, supported by cushions. Suetonius draws attention to a superb apartment erected by the extravagant Nero, in which his meals were partaken, constructed like a theater, with shifting scenes changing with every course.

The Lightninglike Loon.

The loon is the quickest living creature. A loon that has had experience can dodge the flash of a gun. You see a loon on a lake, but long before you see him he sees you and has taken a mental inventory of you and your belongings. If you have no gun, you may perhaps approach within 100 yards before he laughs at you with that horrid shriek which gives him his name and disappears under the water, but show a gun and he does not stop to laugh—he goes instanter. When in a sportive mood, he sometimes waits until he sees you about ready to fire, when, at the flash, he dives, and you see the shot spatter the water where he has just gone down.

Diamond Fields of India.

Diamond fields in India were known from the very earliest times. In the sacred books of India eight localities are mentioned as yielding diamonds, and of these three have been identified at the present day—Matanga (Kistna and Godavery), Paunda (Chota Nagpur) and Vena Gunga (Wairaghar). The diamondiferous area of India, so far as is known, is perhaps more extensive than that of the rest of the world, and nine-tenths of the famous jewels are Indian stones.

Cooking Ham.

Ham is frequently too salt to fry without previous preparation. Put the slices in tepid water and let them stand on the back of the range to soak out the salt, not to boil, for about half an hour. Drain dry between towels, then fry in a hot spider.

When a whole ham is to be baked or boiled, let it stand overnight covered with cold water.

The Cheerful Face.

Next to the sunlight of heaven is the cheerful face. Who has not felt its electrifying influence? One glance at this face lifts us out of the mists and shadows into the beautiful, bright and warm within. A host of evil passions may lurk around the door, but they never enter and abide there. The cheerful face will put them to shame and flight.

Elastic Stockings.

Dirt is always unhealthy, so it should not be tolerated even in an elastic stocking, though that is not an article that can be sent to the wash. Clean it by rubbing it with a piece of flannel dipped in flour, heated as much as possible in the oven without browning it. Shake out the flour and repeat the process if necessary.

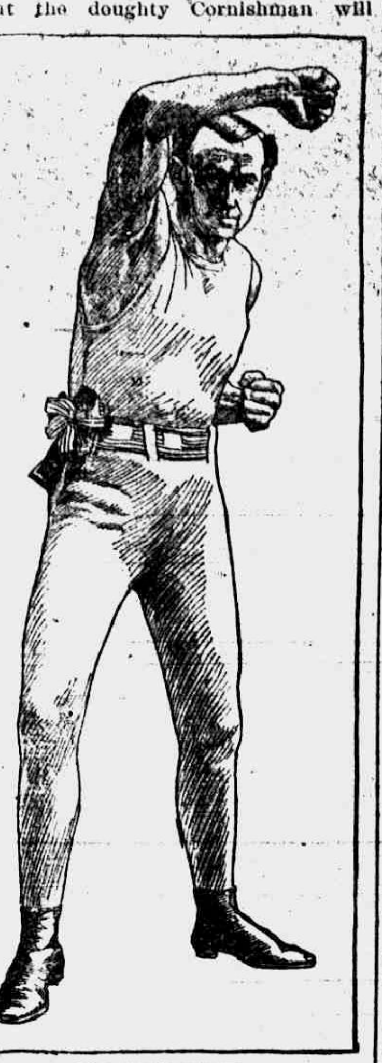
The SPORTING WORLD

Fitzsimmons and Jeffries.

All eyes in the sporting world are turned toward the Pacific slope, where Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Jeffries are punching big holes in the atmosphere in preparation for their coming bout.

"Can Fitz deliver the goods?"

That is the question heard on all sides, and the consensus of opinion is that the doughty Cornishman will again find Jeff a stronger fighter. After an impartial comparison of the two famous exponents of the fistic art there seems to be but one reasonable conclusion, and that is, "Go way back, Fitz, and sit down." Jeffries has everything in his favor—the confidence of a former victory, strength, youth, weight and endurance. True, Bob can give Jim all kinds of points on boxing, but by playing a defensive game Jeff will probably be able to avoid serious consequences. He has a store of physical resources that Fitz will be unable to overcome.



BOB FITZSIMMONS.

From a sentimental viewpoint, Fitz is pre-eminently the favorite, but when it comes down to a cold blooded betting proposition the odds swing the other way. Jeff should win out inside of fifteen rounds, and if he does not do so the more honor will be due the stout hearted ex-blacksmith.

The Swimming Championships.

The championship committee of the Amateur Athletic union, upon request of Captain C. H. Sherrill of the New York Athletic club, has given to that club the privilege of holding the Amateur Athletic union national swimming championships at Travers island, New York, the events to be 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, half mile and one mile. The championships this year will be divided into three sets and will be held July 12, Aug. 23 and Oct. 4. Besides the championship events a full programme of handicap events will be given each day, as follows:

July 12 at 3 p. m. (high water at 4:10 p. m.), 220 yards championship, 100 yards handicap, open, and 100 yards novice, open.

Aug. 23 at 2 p. m. (high water at 2:25 p. m.), 440 yards championship, one mile championship, 220 yards handicap, open, and 110 yards novice, open.

Oct. 4 at 12 m. (high water at 1:06 p. m.), 100 yards championship, one-half mile handicap, open; 100 yards handicap, open, and 220 and 100 yards novice, open.

Ball Games Are Too Long.

Rules and umpires having failed to expedite American league games, President Johnson has written the various team captains urging them to prod the players into quicker action. President Young should follow suit, as even the much lauded foul strike rule fails to achieve its only purpose—namely, to make games shorter and faster. It seems impossible to prevent loafing by the players, who cannot or will not see that the game was made for the patrons and not for the players.

Hanlon's Superbas.

Brooklyn is playing the points of the game, which shows the drilling of Manager Hanlon. He has whipped into form a team which looked only fair at the beginning of the season. Hanlon declares that his new second base man, Tim Flood, covers much more ground than Tom Daly ever did. In a short time he expects to have him hitting better than Daly.

The Lipton Cup.

The Sir Thomas Lipton cup has arrived in Chicago and been turned over by the custom house authorities to the officers of the Columbia Yacht club. The trophy, which is to remain in the possession of the club for contests, is a beautiful specimen of work and is valued at $1,500.

Buchannan's Spurt.

Willie Buchanan, who was released by W. K. Vanderbilt "without comment," recently rode Sigmund A. to victory at Chicago for Barney Schreiber. The colt was backed from 25 to 1 down to 15 to 1.

The Frosted Hand.

"Yes, and after she refused me she waved her hand in farewell."

"Sort of cold wave, wasn't it?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

VENERABLE GOSNOLD.

The Smallest Town In the State of Massachusetts.

Gosnold, the smallest town in Massachusetts, comprises those little specks of land which, beginning at Wood's Holl, at the "shoulder" of old Cape Cod's right arm, extend seaward till they terminate in that fatal reef of the Sow and Pigs. Geographlands and their euphonius names are found in that old nursery jingle:

Great Naushon and Nonamessett
Uncatena and Weepeckets,
Nashawena, Pasquenese,
Cuttyhunk and Penikese.

It is a remarkable fact that the smallest of Massachusetts town meetings should be on the identical spot where almost to a day 300 years ago Bartholomew Gosnold planted the first European settlement in America. When Gosnold spent the winter on Cuttyhunk, his company numbered thirty-two souls. The voters of Gosnold number just thirty-two today, says the Boston Transcript.

Cuttyhunk is the outermost of the group and is the seat of government. At the last election of town officers eight of the nineteen offices were filled by Veeders and four by Tiltons. But Lon Veeder was a sort of Pooh Bah, being at once selectman, treasurer, collector, assessor, overseer of the poor, board of health and sealer of weights and measures.

They have to have a board of health and a sealer of weights and measures because the law says so, but the board never has anything to do, and all the sealer, etc., has to do with the set of standard instruments in his charge is to "dust 'em off" occasionally. There is also a tree warden, although the only trees on the islands are three stunted silver poplars on Cuttyhunk.

Wooden Food.

Wood is to be the newest food, says Heinrich Reh, a professor of chemistry in Berlin. He has secured a patent upon a form of animal fodder which has sawdust as its chief ingredient.

He argues that animals have a decided liking for young shoots, roots of shrubs, tree bark and other heavy food of the same nature, and, since experiments have proved that the nutriment contained in such growth remains in it even after it has become wood, he observes that with a little salt and water added to it the sawdust will prove to be a highly nourishing diet.

He has statistics to prove it. Pine, birch, poplar, alder, acacia, beech and walnut woods and straws have been analyzed chemically by him, and he finds that the wood has vastly more albumen, nitrogen and fatty substance than the straw.

The inventor claims that "a very cheap cattle food can be prepared in this manner, to which may be added potato peelings, cornhusks and shells of grain and the residue from the sugar beet after the sugar has been extracted."

Examination by Torture.

Johann Baptist Matzenauer was the last man in Switzerland who had to undergo the horrible process of an examination by torture. In the early forties of the last century he was accused of a murder by his neighbor, Anna Koch. The circumstantial evidence against him seemed to be complete, but as he refused to confess he was subjected to the brutal neck screw, which was at that time still used in the criminal procedure of Appenzell-Inner-Rhoden, though it had been abolished in the Ausser-Rhoden. Under all his agony, however, Matzenauer persisted in the assertion of his innocence. A few years later Anna Koch confessed herself to be guilty of the murder, and she was executed in 1849. The unjust sufferings of Matzenauer brought about the disestablishment of the mediæval engine of torture.—Westminster Gazette.

Origin of the Feather Boa.

It has long been a popular impression that the feather boa originated in Paris, the birthplace of so many fascinating creations for enhancing woman's beauty.

The cradle of the feather boa, however, was a feather factory in Third street, in New York city, and it first saw light in 1887, when a girl employed there in sorting over a lot of plumes that had been sent back damaged strung them together for her own amusement.

A member of the firm chanced to see the result, pronounced it good, and the feather boa was born.

The first boa sold was bought by Lillian Russell. It was pink, formed of sixty plumes and was worn by her on the stage in that year.—New York Times.

Shot From Ambush.

Lake City, Col., July 25.—Mrs. Anna Bailey and Mrs. Mary Woods were shot from ambush Thursday night, about a mile from town, when returning from Lake Shore. Mrs. Bailey is mortally wounded and Mrs. Woods is in a serious condition. The assassin, who was concealed among rocks on the mountain side, fired a charge of buckshot at the women as they drove past. The shooting caused the horse to run away, and both women were thrown out of the buggy, receiving further injuries. Mrs. Woods' husband, who had a quarrel with her, has been arrested.

Defined.

She—Dear, you have crushed and almost suffocated me. What kind of a hug do you call that?

He—That's a Metropolitan street railway hug.—New York Life.

TRIP TO JAPAN.

A very interesting story

WRITTEN BY PERRY SATTERTHWAITE.

It will be read with much interest as the child is well known here.

We will take the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern and go to Chicago, there is a beautiful depot there. We will go through a gate where a man stands who has a very loud voice and calls out when the trains go and come. Then we will go in the waiting-room and the baggage man will get our trunks. Then we will get in the hack and go to the hotel. The drayman will take our trunks for us. It will be late at night when we get into Chicago if we go on the 3:03 from Tecumseh.

The next day after our arrival we will go to the stock yards. We will take the street car and when we get there we will see many cows and pigs, we will see different yards of them. They have fences to keep them in until they want them. When they want them they drive them onto a moving floor, a man stands by the floor and when the stock go by he cuts their throats or hits them with an axe. Another man puts them through a tank of hot water, another man takes the skin off. Every man has his place and work to do, they can skin and cut them up very quickly. Machinery makes the floor move and it is said that about twenty minutes after the animal is killed he is ready to be used.

Next we will go to Lincoln park, we will see all kinds of animals. We will also go down by the beach, we will watch the poor children in bathing.

There is a day hospital there also for the sick babies. In the city the houses are crowded and small and it is very smoky and the air is not good. The children get sick during the summer so the women bring their babies to certain corners where a large covered wagon waits and the man takes the babies to a hospital. The hospital is large and faces the lake and the nice breeze comes in from the lake and makes it very pleasant and cool for them. They have nurses at this hospital who tend to the babies, also a doctor. The "Daily News" of Chicago furnishes all of this and mothers do not have to pay a thing. They give the babies milk and medicine.

In the afternoon the poor children from all over the city go bathing near the hospital. The shore is lined for half a mile with boys and girls, the boys are in one place, the girls in another but not far away. The children spend their afternoons here. After they have been in the water awhile they go in the sand, which is very warm with the sun shining on it, and cover themselves up in the sand and play. When they get dry they go in and bathe again. They seem to find a great deal of fun.

The next morning we will take the Union Pacific railroad and go to Omaha and stay a day. We have just crossed the Mississippi river, it is the longest river in the world. We will stop at Rock Island City and at this island, which is just about half way across the river, we will see a fort where the soldiers stay, it is where they keep some of their guns, powder, cannons and balls. The fort, soldiers and supplies belong to the United States. Rock Island is the city on one side of the river and Davenport on the other side. They are connected by a bridge.

We will go right on through Iowa to Nebraska, we will not stop at Nebraska for it is very dry, hot and the water is not good, it is limy. We will not see much grass, Nebraska is not thickly settled. Once we would have seen buffaloes from the windows of the train. There used to be great herds of them but the men have shot most of them. They would cross the track and block the trains. The government will not let the men shoot them now for they are so scarce. We will go on to Wyoming and pretty soon we will be at the mountains. We will stop on the east side of them. When we go up the mountain we come to snow sheds. We will go on to Salt Lake City; the reason they call it Salt Lake City is because it is near Great Salt lake.

A long time ago there was a man here whose name was Brigham Young. He had a house right near Salt lake and he told the people they should have more than one wife because the bible says so. At first there were only a few people and they kept coming until there was a big city of them. They called themselves Mormons and built a big tabernacle and had all their beautiful things in it. Brigham Young was the head-boss. He had twenty wives and every wife had a part of the house separate from the other parts. After he died the Mormans had another man which they called Elder.

The Mormons wanted Utah to become a state and the government said it could, if they would give up having more than one wife. It is a state now. Great Salt lake is about 100 miles long and about 30 miles wide and it is the largest salt lake in the world. It takes many hours longer to cook potatoes and beans there than it does in Michigan. They are a good many feet higher than we are and the higher up we go the thinner the air becomes and the water boils at a lower temperature up there than it does here. The reason the lake is so salty is because there are a lot of inlets but no outlets, there is salt in all the water and all the salt that has been coming in with the creeks and rivers stays in the lake. The water evaporates in the air but the salt does not and it keeps collecting until the water becomes very salty. The lake is some smaller now than it used to be. The shore now is a part of what used to be the bottom of the lake.

From Salt Lake City we take the train for Ogden, the train is the Union Pacific. At Ogden we change to the Southern Pacific. When we get into California we go over high mountains and then through a valley, then over other mountains and into the city of San Francisco. There are rivers, creeks and lakes in the valley and much beautiful scenery. When we get to San Francisco we find that it is quite a large city.

We will go down to the dock where we find big iron gates with men standing beside them. If we want to go through them we have to show him our ticket. We see a man who is calling out when and how long before the boat starts. We get on just one half hour before the boat starts for Japan. When the half hour is up a man rings a bell, the captain calls "Untie the ropes," then he calls "Haul in." There is a little tug boat which hitches on to us. It will take us out of San Francisco harbor, through the Golden Gate and one hour's journey out into the ocean. Then the sailors untie the rope and the tug go back again.

Tugs have to come out to meet the boats coming in too. The tug guides the steamers so they will not get on the rocks. These tugs have to meet the steamers and pilot them no matter whether the weather is stormy or fair. If any thing should happen the men who run the tugs would be responsible for it. They are paid well for their work.

It takes us twenty days to go to Japan, it is about two thousand miles to Japan. We arrived at Yeddo Bay and enter the harbor of Yokohoma. The boat does not go ashore. When we anchor we will see a perfect swarm of flat bottomed sail boats, they will surround the steamer. Before any one goes off the boat physicians come on board and look us all over carefully to see that we have no disease. If any one has a contagious disease they will not let any body off or on. If no one has a disease all the keepers of the Japanese boats come on board and yell in our ears to go ashore in their boat. If we tell one we will he grabs our baggage and puts it in his boat, then takes us. When we get ashore he hangs on to us for fear some one else will get us. He only charges ten cents for the ride. Some of these men who meet us in their boats are men who work for the hotel owners.

Japan is called "The Land of the Setting Sun," "Chrysanthemum Empire" and the "Land of Flowers." We can see from the ship that all the rich and foreign people of Yokoma live on the left side and the business part is on the right. Years ago we knew very little about Japan.

There were once whales in the ocean near Japan and the United States sailors went over there to kill the whales for they were valuable then for their oil. The men had to fight for them and sometimes got ship wrecked and the Japanese would pick up the ship wrecked men that were not killed and put them in prison and would be very cruel to them. The United States did not like this so they sent a man over to see if a treaty could not be made.

They got a man whose name was Commodore Perry, he sailed over there with three ships to take the written request to Japan. When he entered the bay there arose a big commotion on shore, the people began to get their arms to fight. But Commodore Perry was wise, he sent the paper up to the chief and said he would be back in a few weeks. He went on to China then so they could think it over. It was in 1848 when he went over.

The people thought and thought about it and at last agreed to the treaty. When Perry came back for it they gave their written agreement to him, he brought it to the United States. They made this treaty so the sailors could go over to Japan without being harmed and so they could have a coal station there also. Since that time Japan has been friendly and has become more civilized.

In Japan the air is a great deal clearer than it is here. Yokoma is the largest city in Japan. The Japanese named an island in Yeddo Bay after Commodore Perry and another after Daniel Webster. This shows how much Japan thought of America. Yokohoma was nothing but a small fishing village when Perry went there, but in these few years now since the treaty was made which opened up Japan to foreigners, it has grown very large.

Jim Dumps exulted, "We do not,
On Summer days so close and hot,
Build up a fire and stew and steam!
A dish of 'Force,' a bowl of cream,
Is just the food to fit our whim,
And keeps us cool," laughed "Sunny Jim."

Ideal Summer Food.
"'Force' is an ideal summer food because it contains elements for nourishing every organ of the body, is easily digested, creates what we know is vigor, and at the same time does not make a river of fire out of the blood. PERCY G. STANTON."

WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if here is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

Miss Eva Nobles went to Adrian yesterday to attend the teachers' institute, which is being held at that place.

Mr. Will H. Bredon, who has been visiting Abner Wilson and family, left yesterday for the Flats to visit his grandparents before returning South.

Dan Birdsell of Edgerton, O., and Fay Stanley of Addison, who have been guests of Harold Birdsell for the past few days, returned to their homes yesterday.

Miss Helen James of Detroit, came yesterday for a few days' visit with her grandmother, Mrs. Cordelia DeWolfe. Her mother, Mrs. A. W. James, and "little sister" will come Saturday for a month's stay at the old home.

Mrs. Alenzo Mills, Mrs. Floyd Williams, Mrs. Irving Hause, and Miss Anna Riley of Clinton, paid a fraternal visit to the L. O. T. M. last evening. Mrs. Rude Mead and Miss Margaret Scott were initiated. After the work was finished refreshments were served.

An Angel tried, for some time, to live in Tecumseh, as a photographer; but the stiff-necked generation over there, turned their faces from him and he has flown to Ohio. Just to show the difference, we will remark that Blissfield has a family of Angells and they feel at home here.—Blissfield Advance.

Prof. W. H. Mason, of Los Angeles, California, after an absence of forty-five years, has returned to Michigan to hunt up and visit old friends and relatives. He arrived in Tecumseh Monday morning and surprised his sister, Mrs. H. C. Daniels, who was not expecting him, and failed to recognize her own brother. Mr. Mason passed himself off as an insurance agent and had quite a little sport before she discovered who he was. Mr. Mason also played the same "racket" on B. F. Reynolds, who was an old schoolmate.

Night was her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." It's absolutely guaranteed to cure Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Bronchitis and all Throat and Lung Troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at C. A. Wright's drug store.

WHEELMEN DEFEATED

The most Exciting and Hardest Fought Game of the Season

Played here Saturday

TEN INNINGS

Were played before the result could be determined.

The second game with the Detroit Wheelman was played on the Tecumseh diamond Saturday afternoon and was full of fine ball playing and exciting situations, the game being several times won and lost by the final victors.

Tecumseh "found" McClure in the first inning for two singles and a double in succession, which netted two runs. This promising young pitcher had heretofore proven an enigma to the local sluggers. The visiting management wisely took him out of the box at the close of the first inning and replaced him with Newchaffer who proved a puzzle until the 7th inning, not a hit having been made off him. But in the "fatal 7th" our boys pounded out 5 hits, resulting in 4 additional scores, giving them a lead of 3. This lead was lost in the 8th, the visitors making 4 hits and 3 runs, tieing the score.

In the half of the 9th and 10th the Detroiters could not get in another man. Tecumseh failed to score in the 9th, but in the 10th, with one man "gone", Striker made a nice hit followed by a fine steal to 2nd, reached 3rd on a passed ball and scored on a safe hit by Beasley, which ended the struggle.

About 500 spectators witnessed this great game and not a few of them yelled themselves hoarse in their efforts to cheer their boys to victory. The teams were very evenly matched, each making 11 hits. But one error was made by Detroit and two by the home team, while each side made double plays.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Last Saturday's ball game between the Detroit Wheelman and the home team brought plainly to mind the first game this season between the same teams with a score of six to one in favor of the Wheelman, June 27.

At that time, June 27, our boys played slow ball. They could not field with the Wheelman and made some errors. Saturday they played fast ball on both sides. McClure pitched one inning for the Detroit boys instead of nine innings as at the first game and they then saw our boys were "on to him" and put in another man. This same pitcher beat the home team one day last week when he pitched for Montpelier with a score of four to one, but every day the home team is getting stronger and now as the days go by play the swiftest ball of any team in the state.

Three good pitchers are with the team, Harris, Gilbert and Johnson, and if the opposing team "gets on" to one of them another should be put in, yes two more if necessary, anything to win. It seems now that every man is willing and glad to work and play ball all the time for the good of the whole club and in this way before the season is over Tecumseh will win everything.

WILL F. BAKER

Died in Detroit

SATURDAY

And His Remains were Buried in Tecumseh Yesterday.

Last Saturday morning W. F. Baker remarked to his wife on getting up in the morning, "Did you sleep well?" I some way had a very bad headache and slept badly." She said, "You better return to bed and remain till time to go to work." A little later the headache increased and a doctor was summoned. He was immediately taken to a hospital and in two hours was dead. A post mortem was held and the discovery was made that a piece of bone the size of a pea had grown at the base of the brain, stopping the circulation to that portion of the brain and causing his sudden death. The remains were brought to Tecumseh Monday morning and buried in the old Baker lot in the afternoon.

Such was the sudden taking away of Will F. Baker, born and raised in Tecumseh, who was well known and married here.

He was 37 years old at the time of his death. Commenced work in a wholesale drug house in Detroit at the age of 17 years. Worked for a number of years here for his father, afterward in Adrian and other places and at the time of his death was working for Park, Davis & Co. in Detroit. He married in Tecumseh Miss Milla Pennock, who survives him. They have no children and with the death of Will Baker the last of the Baker family is gone.

His death in so sudden a manner is a terrible shock to the sorrowing wife and she has the deeply felt sympathy of all.

Will Baker was a quiet, good hearted man. Kind to his aged father, lived only for his wife and family and his death to her is an irreparible loss.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Geo. Hunter, an Adrian lad of twelve years, has designed a trade mark for the gas company of that city which was given the prize of a gas range. The lad is an ingenious fellow and bids fair to make his mark in that department.

The success of the effort to graft the tomato on the potato vine, so that the two grow together suggests some toothsome possibilities. If the pepper plant and some others can be induced to join the combination we may expect a vine that will produce vegetable soup.—Ex.

Monday Rev. Nickerson of Adrian, tied the knot [illegible] hold together Jesse Turner and Lizzie Daley. Their courtship was a romatic and very brief one, as Jesse had that morning secured the young lady's services as clerk in his West side grocery; but when two hearts are properly attuned, it don't take Dan Cupid long to arrange preliminaries and matters were soon adjusted.—Ex.

Some one telephoned over from Jackson this week that Wm. Powell and his fast horse "Billy Powell" have run away together. The elopement is worrying a number of Jackson horsemen who are said to have the horse under contract to race this season. It is alleged that the latter did not do as their contract stipulated. Powell after consulting a lawyer, got his horse between two days and neither have since been seen.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Frank Divens, who lived here some time ago, was married in Adrian, Friday to Miss Bertha Cherry aged sixteen. At the time he lived here he had a large family in destitute circumstances. Frank is 47 years old and has four children, the eldest being 19. His first wife left him it is alleged because he failed to furnish her with the necessities of life. Had the officials known his record it does not seem as though they would have allowed the marriage.—Clinton Local.

The lat[illegible]sement in Kansas is the progressive peanut party which sounds harmless. Only women play the game, for it is too great a nervous strain for a man. A dishful of peanuts is placed on a table, and four women, armed with hatpins, take seats around it and at a signal begin to jab into the peanuts with the hatpins. It is a foul to touch a peanut with the hands, and the two sticking the most peanuts on the hatpin win, and progress to the next table.

Hudson Gazette.—During a recent electrical storm a horse belonging to Frank Keder, of Fitchburg, met with a peculiar accident. The horse was standing, harnessed, beside a barbed wire fence, when there was a flash of lightning. The bolt struck the wire and jumped to the steel bit in the horse's mouth, and a piece of the animal's tongue an inch and a-half long was burned completely off. The horse was not otherwise injured, and the other horse of the team was not affected in the least.

A young man named Ryckman from Canada, aged 19, came on the Wabash Wednesday to meet his mother, Mrs. Fanny Wright, wife of Ora Wright. She had not seen him since he was two years old, having left home with her parents as she fled from a drunken husband. She wrote him to wear a blue ribbon, and she would do the same. He saw nothing of her when he arrived and could get no information. He was given a bed at the stag, and yesterday morning the mother espied him as he was walking up the street. The meeting was one of great joy to both.—Adrian Press.

Whither are we drifting, asks an exchange. Some time ago a wise fellow discovered that it was unhealthy for two people to occupy the same bed. Later another fellow found out that it was unsafe to ride on a car with other people, or attend church when other people attended; lately an association of physicians decided that to kiss was to tempt death in all manner of hideous diseases. The very latest discovery of a French scientist is that the practice of handshaking is a prolific source of disease. If things keep up it will soon be unhealthy to be buried in the same graveyard with other people.

The following article was clipped clipped from the paper published at the Jackson prison. All articles are contributed by the prisoners and are signed by number only. No. 7239 writes the following:

"Where was he? Why were the windows barred? O, yes; he remembered now. It was the prison hospital. How cruel it seemed to awake from the delirium of fever and find himself still behind the bars. What beautiful dreams he had enjoyed—back again in the old home with mother, the little sister, and she who had once come and gone in his life, leaving him a reckless, headstrong boy. Some instinct seemed to whisper that this was his last awakening before the long last sleep. With a groan he turned and stared at the white wall.

"Whose voice was that in the ward? Surely he knew the sweet, gentle modulated tones. Why yes! How did she know he was here? He thought he had saved her the shame and disgrace!

"Oh, God! Mother?

"Oh, for some supernatural power to raise his weary arms and beat out the bars of the window and escape before she caught sight of him.

And then the tender arms were about him. Again in his boyhood days, did his throbbing head rest against the breast of mother. Still did he try to escape her, to tell her to leave, that this was no place for her; but the feverish lips refused to utter the command. Try as he would there came only the pleading name—'Mother'!

"Ah, those beautiful hands of mother! How the wonderful touch cooled his heated brow. How the soft words, 'My own dear boy' whispered in his ear soothed and comforted him. A smile of innocent childhood mantled his brow and with the kiss of mother upon his lips, the convict passed from the jurisdiction of the law."

Every man has his turn if he lives long enough to get gray.

It's when school is out that the scholars think they are "in it."

STORK TIME

to most women is a term of anxiety, serious thought and sweet anticipation. With the cessation of pain necessary to childbirth, there comes calm nerves, sleep and recuperation.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

does diminish the pain accompanying maternity. With its aid mothers can and do bring healthy, sweet dispositioned and ideal babies into the world.

Morning sickness, sore breasts and excruciating pains caused by the gradually expanding organs, are relieved by this penetrating and relaxing liniment.

Among the manifold aids to childbirth Mother's Friend has grown in popularity and gained a prestige among rich women as well as poor; it is found and welcomed in the mansion as well as in the cabin.

By lessening the mother's agony of mind and diminishing pain a beautiful influence is wrought upon the child, and instead of peevish, ill-tempered and sickly forms you have healthy, laughing humanity, remaining a blessing ever to you and its country.

HARKEN YE

To the Voice of Tecumseh People.

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills, can be relieved and cured. Read what one Tecumseh citizen says:

Mr. George Merritt, the well known proprietor of the cigar manufactory, says: "I can testify to the honesty and worth of Doan's Kidney Pills. There is no humbug about them. I was annoyed for some time with a dull aching pain in my back at times quite severe. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and after taking them a short time I found they were helping me. Finally the pain in my back disappeared entirely. Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for all kidney ailments."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Grief can take care of itself; but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.

A boon to travelers. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Cures dysentery, diarrhœa, seasickness, nausea. Pleasant to take. Perfectly harmless.

As a rule, the woman who would not make a good wife for a poor man would make a poor wife for a good man.

JUST ABOUT HALF SICK.

How many times you hear people say: 'I don't know what ails me—I am tired all the time—don't feel like moving—don't care to go anywhere—don't want anyone to bother me—nothing interests me—I feel half dead." It's not a pleasant tale. It shows a system at a low ebb—a system ready and fertile soil for any low type of fever or disease. It shows the need of a strong, all round tonic—a tonic that will reach every part, every organ—Brain, Nerves, Stomach and Muscles. A medicine that will give a new feeling of life, a new energy and spring to the played out system. A time-tried, time-tested medicine—Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Edgar Packard of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills sold at C. A. Wright's drug store I suffered a great deal from nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches and indigestion and at times was just about sick. Since using the pills my nervous system is in the best of condition, I sleep well, the headaches are all gone and my digestion perfect. A positive result of this kind is particularly gratifying and I feel I can't recommend the medicine too highly." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. No Fear of War.

London, July 27.—No importance is attached in influential quarters to the alarmist telegrams from the orient. Russia and Japan may not be accumulating armaments at Port Arthur or elsewhere, but if so it does not mean war, but dicker. Japan will not fight to turn Russia out of Manchuria. Neither will Russia fight to close Korea to Japanese ambitions. The alarm as to the breach of the peace is confined to newspapers. It is not shared by the ambassadors.

Terrible Row In Negro Church.

Atlanta, Ga., July 27.—A Constitution special from Camaka, Ga., says: Two killed and six wounded, four of them, it is believed fatally, is the result of a row at a negro church here last night, in which pistols and razors played a deadly part. The entire negro population of the town is terrorized as a result of the affray, and it is impossible to learn the real cause of the trouble.

Hold-Up at Adrian.

Adrian, Mich., July 27.—Henry Howe was held up at night by a man who shoved a revolver under his nose and demanded his money. He parted with $7.50. The robbery took place in the center of the best residence section and is the fourth case of the kind in a week.

AFTER A WEDDING

Drunken Companions Engage In a Fatal Brawl.

TWO MEN ARE ARRESTED

Happened at the Soo—Bloody Battle Fought In Saloon at Iron Mountain—That City Still Anxious to have Military Company.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., July 27.—Mat Macki, about 2 o'clock Sunday morning, shot and almost instantly killed Sam Hill after a quarrel originating at a Finnish wedding on the Seymour road.

Three men, Sam Hill, Victor Luomo and Mat Macki went to the wedding, and while there quarreled. Hill was thrown out of the house and was later seen in the company with Luomo and Macki walking down Ashmun street, still haggling.

A little later Officer Launderville heard two shots fired on Water street, and running in that direction saw Hill lying on the sidewalk nearly dead, with two bullet holes through his side, one of which had penetrated his heart. Luomo was standing near the prostrate man and was arrested, while Hill was started for the hospital, but died before going a block.

Launderville then went to the house of Macki and found him in bed, with a revolver underneath him, two of its chambers emptied. Upon being arrested he stated that he had fired the shot in self-defense, as Hill had tried to stab him. As no knife was found on Hill or near him, Macki's story is discredited.

Iron Mountain, Mich., July 27.—A dispute over a game of dice instigated a row between Peter Stoveken, a saloonkeeper, of Niagara, and Grant Leighman shortly after midnight, and the latter pulled a knife on Mr. Stoveken, cutting him from ear to ear, from which injuries he may die.

Leighman was captured after a hot chase, while sleeping in the woods near a camp several miles from Niagara, and lodged in jail.

Stoveken did not want Leighman in his saloon and demanded that he leave. Leighman interposed objections to such a demand, whereupon Stoveken struck him with his fist. The blow was followed with a shower of others, and Leighman pulled a jackknife from his pocket and slashed his adversary from ear to ear.

Leighman leaped onto his horse before any one had a chance to capture him and rode north through the woods at break-neck speed.

Company L, Third regiment, of this city, has been mustered out of service and Stephen H. Avery, assistant quartermaster-general, is in the city and has taken charge of the state's property.

While the mustering out of Company L has been expected by many, a majority of the people were not aware that such a thing was even contemplated. Great surprise was experienced in all quarters of the city and regrets on all sides were heard.

Although the company is mustered out, Iron Mountain may still retain a military company. A petition was immediately wired to the governor, asking that a company of militia be retained here.

There has been a $10,000 armory guaranteed if a company is retained here, and the money coming from the state to such company will be used towards maintaining the armory.

If this city is selected again, an entire new company will be organized.

REPLIES TO SMITH.

Chairman Proctor of Civil Service Commission Retaliates.

Washington, July 27.—Chairman Proctor of the civil service commission has made reply to the recent letter of former Postmaster-General Smith concerning the latter's attack on his report on the investigation of the Washington postoffice and also to an editorial article in the Philadelphia Press. The reply to Mr. Smith's formal letter contained the following:

"Mr. Smith resents the statement that the rural free delivery service was packed with employes in the interests of the individuals, just before classification, as indicated by the fact that 56 were appointed in the 26 days just preceding classification on Nov. 27, 1901, while only 17 were appointed between that date and May, 1903. He attributes the large number of appointments just before classification to the great increase of work, as indicated by the fact that the appropriation for the rural free delivery service for the year ended June 30, 1902, was double the amount for the preceding year.

"He does not explain why, although the appropriation was again more than doubled for the year ended June 30, 1903, it was necessary to appoint but seven persons in Washington from Nov. 27, 1901, to May, 1903. It seems a fair inference that the appointments prior to classification so far exceeded the needs of the service that few appointments were necessary even when the appropriation was more than doubled for the year ended June 30, 1903."

Fitz Gets Marriage License.

San Francisco, July 25.—Robert Fitzsimmons, actor and pugilist, was granted a license Friday to marry Julia May Gifford, the actress. The ceremony will take place today at Miss Gifford's hotel. Fitzsimmons gave his age as 41 and that of the prospective bride as 23.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoeo Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

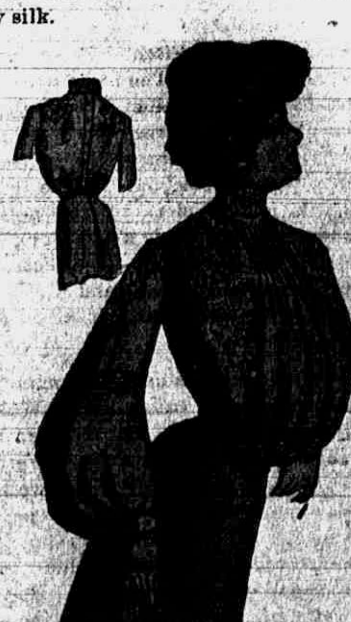
PRETTY EMBROIDERED WAIST.

The prophecy that separate waists would be relegated to the past has not as yet been fulfilled, for they still continue to play an important part in a woman's wardrobe. This waist is embroidered with a simple yet dainty little design. The prevalent idea on waist embroidery seems to be for using pure white Corticelli mountmellick embroidery silk.



Shirt waists are still as popular as ever, especially embroidered white ones. Grapes, in a conventionalized form, are much used with very good effect on mercerized cheviots, madras, and linens. An embroidered effect is a safe investment whether it be of silk, cotton or woolen.

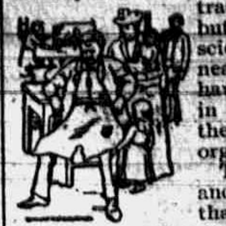
Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.



It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Creditors Petition That He Be Declared a Bankrupt.

SHRINKAGE IN ASSETS

Confidence Is Waning—Certificates of Deposits In Caro Exchange Bank Are Offered at 20 Cents on the Dollar.

Caro, Mich., July 25.—The filing of the schedule of assets and liabilities of Charles Montague by the Union Trust, as assignee, with the county clerk here at noon Friday has created widespread interest among the local creditors. The preponderance of opinion seems to be that the assets will be subject to a shrinkage of fully 50 per cent. Offers to sell certificates of deposits in the bank have been made at 10 to 20 cents on the dollar, showing that confidence in realizing the full amount of the claims is rapidly waning. The liabilities are fully $150,000 more than it was expected they would be.

The bill filed in Detroit yesterday asking that the affairs of the assigned banker be placed under the jurisdiction of the United States court was petitioned for by the county treasurer of Tuscola county and several local depositors, and alleges that owing to the preference shown to George Peck and also to Alex. McPherson of the Detroit National, they feel that they are being discriminated against and want all to share alike. It is also alleged that the Union Trust desired this done after finding the Detroit liabilities aggregated so large a sum. It is understood that the law firm of Quinn & Wixson will represent the interests of local creditors.

At the office of the referee in bankruptcy for the lower district of Michigan, in the federal building here, it was positively stated no petition was filed yesterday.

A voluminous document in the form of an inventory of the assets and liabilities of Charles Montague was filed yesterday at Caro by Hobart B. Hoyt of the Union Trust company, to whom the Caro "Napoleon of finance" made a common law assignment of his property. Mr. Montague, who personally set the valuation on his property, estimates his real and personal estate at $680,647 03. An official appraisal will be conducted by the Union Trust company.

Montague's Liabilities.

The direct liabilities amount to $253,709 54 and include the following items: Caro Exchange bank, commercial deposits, $26,534.42; holders of certificate of deposit, $54,923 87; Charles Montague & Co., general store at Caro, accounts payable, $6,269 13; bills payable, $7,033 21; Montague Hardware Co., accounts payable, $4,516 78; general creditors, $266,383 12. The contingent liabilities to general creditors, on indorsements on notes at Detroit banks amounts to $68,091 39, and swells the total liabilities up to $423,800 03.

Just $16 71 was found in cash in the Exchange bank and overdrafts amounting to $13,757 48. Among Mr. Montague's various holdings are $40,000 worth of stock in the Henry R. Newland Co., $43,070 in the Peninsular Sugar Refining Co., $19,300 in the Sanilac Sugar Refining Co., and considerable stock in manufacturing and mining companies.

If Montague's own figures on values of his properties were correct, or nearly so, he would be able to pay 100 cents on the dollar.

Huns Are Emigrating.

Trieste, Austria, July 27.—The Austrian government officials are beginning to consider more seriously than ever an increase in the limitations set about those who desire to quit the old world for the new. For years there have been many more Hungarians departing for the United States than there have been births on the native soil. Moreover, the tide of emigration is nowhere near its ebb. In truth, it is at its flood. Estimated from the figures at hand, it is conservative to say that 70,000 Huns will have quit their native land for America before the year is over.

To Attend Celebration of Birth of the Republican Party.

Jackson, Mich., July 29.—The proposition of celebrating the fiftieth birthday anniversary of the Republican party under the oaks of Jackson, whence it came into existence, is assuming serious proportions.

At a meeting of the common council and Lincoln club committees here last night regarding the "Under Oaks" celebration, it was decided to call a meeting at the Hotel Cadillac in Detroit for Aug. 6 of a general committee of the state, at which meeting it is desired that all men in the state interested shall be present to assist in the election of officers for the state organization and assist committees so that the wheels can be put in motion for promoting the celebration here in July, 1904.

Without a doubt, President Roosevelt will be asked to attend.

Sues For $18,000.

Marquette, Mich., July 29.—Joseph E. Reinger of Escanaba filed suit for $18,000 in the United States circuit court Tuesday against the Hadden-Rodee Commission company of Milwaukee. The case is a result of the recent disappearance of George Dillon of the company's Escanaba branch, and promises to be sensational. It is alleged by Reinger that he holds a receipt from Dillon showing that he deposited $15,000 with the firm as margins. This amount he now seeks to recover, together with $3,000 profits he claims he would have made had the company followed his instructions and not closed him out after Dillon had disappeared. The alleged deposit of $15,000 is, however, disputed by the company.

No Suppression of Divorce Suits.

Port Huron, Mich., July 29.—Judge Law has decided that no more divorce suits will be suppressed in the circuit court. Scores of divorces have been started lately and attorneys have requested to have them kept quiet. The court believes that no discrimination should be shown, and rich and poor will be treated alike. One of the suits which was suppressed is that of Helen Naumann, a prominent school teacher, who is connected with one of the first families of the city, against her husband, H. T. G. Naumann, editor of the German Herald, whom she married in Germany.

Confesses Her Misdeeds.

Bay City, Mich., July 29.—A sensation has been caused here by a report that Mrs. Martha Tafsiemski, aged 22 years, formerly Martha Cwiklinski, has made a written confession exonerating Rev. Fr. Matkowski, late pastor of St. Stanislaus church, of the charges she made against him in the police court seven years ago, when she caused his arrest. The girl claimed to have been working for the priest and made some very damaging allegations, but the case never got any further than the police court.

DRAWN UNDER DAM

Sad Accident In Which Four Young Persons Perish.

TWO OTHERS WERE RESCUED

Suction From "Bear Trap," Following Formal Opening of Pittsburg Dam, Drew Boat Containing Six Young People Under the Water.

Pittsburg, July 29.—A sad accident followed shortly after the formal opening of dam No. 1 in the Allegheny at Herrs Island last evening, in which four young people were drowned.

Their names are: Joseph Brown, aged 19; Henry Brown, 14, brother of Joseph; Frederick Bulger, Jr., Edna Shipley, 13.

After the ceremonies incident to the opening of the dam, which is the first to be built in the proposed Allegheny river slack water system, the three boys were riding around below the dam in a skiff, and seeing three girl friends on the bank invited them to join in the ride. When all had been seated the skiff was headed for the dam, and when within a short distance from the structure the suction from the "bear trap" drew the boat, in spite of the boys' frantic effort, under the water flowing over the dam. The accident was witnessed by hundreds of people and rescuers were quickly at work, but before the party could be reached four of the number were drowned. Lena Dedig and Annie McIntyre were rescued in an unconscious condition, but soon recovered. All of the bodies of the victims except Edna Shipley have been recovered.

INDEPENDENCE.

Attendants at Hawaiian Home Rule Convention May Petition For It.

Honolulu, July 29.—At Tuesday's session of the home rule convention Delegate Wilcox urged that congress be memorialized to grant Hawaiian independence. He also strongly favored the establishment of a government for the islands similar to that of Cuba. His remarks were received with much applause. It is probable that a petition embodying the views expressed by Wilcox will be prepared for presentation to congress by Delegate Kalanianole. Such an appeal would doubtless receive the signature of many natives.

Fewer Passports Into Russia.

Washington, July 29.—Mr. Hansen, Russian charge here, gave notice to Acting Secretary Loomis Tuesday that the Russian government would hereafter vise passports for Russia only at the imperial embassy here and at the Russian consulate offices at New York, Chicago and San Francisco. This is a two-thirds reduction in the number of offices where such passports could heretofore be vised. No explanation is offered for the reduction, but it is believed the purpose is to secure a more rigid scrutiny of the character of would-be travelers in Russia.

RELIC OF BULL RUN

Given to First Michigan Volunteers' Association.

BY GENERAL WILCOX

A Log From Tree Which Marked Most Advanced Union Line In That Battle—Sheltered General Willcox When Wounded.

Washington, D. C., July 30.—An interesting relic from the battlefield of first Bull Run has been shipped from Washington to Lansing to commemorate the forty-second anniversary of that celebrated fight.

The relic is a black log, properly prepared for preservation, which is taken from a tree on the line of the extreme Union advance at Bull Run. Attached to the log is a handsomely engraved bronze plate reading: "Presented to Major-General Orlando B. Willcox by Charles F. Joy, M. C., of St. Louis, Mo., and by General Willcox to the First Michigan Volunteers' association."

Accompanying the log is a printed placard for framing, which reads: "This log is from the tree near the most advanced line of the Union army at Bull Run, Va., July 21, 1861, to which General Orlando B. Willcox of Detroit, commanding the First Michigan volunteers, was brought severely wounded. Near this tree Michigan dead were found in the extreme federal advance. It was secured on the battlefield in the presence of General Willcox and General Ira C. Abbott by Charles F. Joy, M. C., of St. Louis, Mo., a nephew of James F. Joy, who, with General Lewis Cass and others, equipped the regiment."

The party sought and easily found the particular part of the field where General Willcox was wounded and captured, and they identified the tree to which he was brought. Mr. Joy was much interested in the two veteran generals and their find, and promptly secured the log for preservation and presented it to General Willcox.

Willcox In Command.

At the time of the battle General Willcox was colonel of the First Michigan volunteers, but in this battle he commanded a brigade composed of the First Michigan, the Fire Zouaves, Thirty-eighth New York and Arnold's battery of the Second artillery. This brigade was brought into action on the extreme right of the Union army, and in direct opposition to the confederates commanded by the redoubtable Thomas J. Jackson, who there earned the celebrated name of "Stonewall."

It was in skirmish line, exchanging a hot fire with the troops of Jackson, when General Willcox received a bullet wound in the right arm, cutting an artery below the elbow.

At almost the same time Colonel Preston of General Joe Johnston's command charged in on the exposed Union right and rear, and General Willcox and a few officers and men were captured. After surrendering the general was taken to this tree, very weak from loss of blood.

Here his wound was dressed by a confederate surgeon. He was confined in confederate prisons for thirteen months.

The Michigan regiment was repulsed, but the colors were saved, and a large part of the regiment was brought off the field in good order by the coolness and skill of General Abbott, then a captain in Willcox's regiment.

Got Interchangeable Mileage.

Mackinaw Island, Mich., July 30.—The fourth annual convention of the International Federation of Commercial Travelers' organizations closed Wednesday at the Astor house. One of the most important features was the report of the railroad committee. Through the efforts of this committee the Western Passenger association has adopted an interchangeable mileage book, good on trains in their territory. This is regarded as a great victory for the traveling men.

Rather Die Than Spend Money.

Quincy, Mich., July 30.—Because he would rather die than spend his savings Crocker Bushley, 64 years old, is in a critical condition here suffering from a complication of dieases. Although well-to-do, the old man refuses the services of a physician, saying that he has saved up his money for his children and that no one else is going to get it.

Stabbed In Nine Places.

Traverse City, Mich., July 30.—News has just reached the mainland of a stabbing affray on South Manitou island, in which Archie Miller of Glen Haven was wounded in nine places by Dan Ford. Although several of the wounds are serious, he will probably recover. The fight is said to have started over a girl.

Teachers' Institute.

Menominee, Mich., July 30.—The state institute for the Menominee county teachers began Wednesday and will continue for thirteen days. There are ninety-two teachers at present and more are arriving every day. This is the largest convention that has ever been held in this county.

A WAVE OF DEATH

Powerful Explosion In Lowell, Mass., Cost Many Lives.

MORE THAN A SCORE KILLED

Nearly Fifty Others Hurt—Gunpowder Magazines Blew Up—Fifty Houses Collapsed—Men were Removing the Powder.

Lowell, Mass., July 30.—Two small gunpowder magazines, situated in the very midst of the humble residences of 50 mill operatives, exploded Wednesday with a frightful concussion and the resultant wave of death cut off the lives of more than a score of human beings and injured nearly fifty others. Half a dozen men who were loading kegs of powder from one of the magazines were blown to pieces; four boys two hundred yards away were killed by the force of the explosion, and 14 frame houses within a radius of 400 yards went down as if they had been built of cards. Seven of the houses immediately caught fire, probably from the kitchen stoves, and were completely consumed. At least three persons were caught in the ruins and burned to death, while seven or eight others, who were rescued, died subsequently of their injuries.

It is estimated that seventy separate pieces of property, including those already mentioned, were destroyed while the force of the explosion wrecked windows for five or six miles around, and its thunder could be heard distinctly more than fifty miles away.

Those Who Perished.

The following is the list of those known to have been killed in the explosion: George Finn, John McMasters, Louis Richards, James L. Grady, all employed by the United States Cartridge Co.

Gilbert McDermott, 10 years; Michael McDermott, 12 years; Thos. Houligan, 11 years; Joseph Houligan, 10 years; Wm. Galloway, Robt. Galloway, Robt. Galloway, son of above, Alfred Lebrun, Mrs. Catherine Riggs, Eddie Rogers, George A. McDermott, 4 years old, Josephine Perusse, 11 years old, Mrs. Victoria Perusse, Zephrain Perusse. The nine last named were killed by the fall of their houses or burned to death. Unknown man. Four persons are missing, two carpenters, names unknown, John Riggs and Patrick Spencer.

[illegible] of the United States Cartridge Co. of this city, but fortunately were situated more than a mile away from the factory itself.

One of the magazines was just within the roadside fence, while the other was about a hundred feet behind it, near the banks of the river. Both magazines ordinarily contained two or three tons of gunpowder in tin kegs, each keg being about 18 inches high and a foot in diameter. The company has for some time been desirous of strengthening the floor of the magazine nearest the street and Wednesday morning eight men, three of them employes of the company, three expressmen and two carpenters were sent there with three large express teams to take out the powder and mend the floor. Two of the teams had been loaded and the other was almost full when at six minutes past nine o'clock the explosion occured.

It was a long time before the actual cause of the explosion could be ascertained. It was thought at first that everyone within a radius of fifty feet of the magazine had been killed, but later it was found that Clarence Goodwin, the foreman of the men who were loading the powder on the teams, had survived, together with one of his assistants.

How It Happened.

He said that the men went down to the magazine nearest the street to fix the floor, and after the teams had been loaded with the powder which was in the magazine, it was discovered that a can of nitro glycerine, which was stored in the magazine, was leaking. Mr. Goodwin picked up what he thought was a jug of water and began pouring it onto the nitro glycerine with the idea of diluting it and washing it up. As soon as the fluid from the jug struck the floor he found that it was nitric acid. The floor at once began to smoke and when the men saw it they rushed from the building but had not gone ten feet when the explosion occured.

This magazine was therefore the first to go up, followed immediately by the gunpowder in the three teams, and several seconds later by the second magazine.

To those who heard the crash it seemed as if there were two distinct explosions, with a continuous roar between them. There are, however, five holes in the ground, which seems to clearly indicate five explosions.

The entire catastrophe, however, occupied the space of scarcely five seconds, but in that time the surrounding property was swept as if a small volcano had broken forth in its midst.

Deafness cannot be cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When the tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

FOR STATE MILITIA.

New Guns and Uniforms Soon to Be Sent by Government.

Ionia, Mich., July 30.—Quartermaster-General J. H. Kidd arrived home last night from a flying trip to Washington, D. C., where he has been for several days on business connected with state military board affairs, and the coming participation of the Michigan National Guard in maneuvers with the regular army at West Point, Ky.

While there General Kidd received assurances from the ordnance and quartermaster's departments that the Krag-Jorgensen rifles and khaki uniforms for the entire Michigan command will be shipped at once. General Kidd says that by Aug. 15 the troops will be fully equipped.

The officers of the war department at Washington, he says, manifest great interest and are much pleased tha the Michigan brigade will go to Kentucky in October.

YOUNG COUPLE KILLED.

Man and Wife Near Harrisburg Victims of Lightning.

Harrisville, Mich., July 30.—Mr. and Mrs. James De Forrest, a young couple living near this village, were killed by lightning during Tuesday night's storm. The milkman could find no one about and broke into the house. He found the wife where she had fallen from her chair, while the body of her husband lay on a couch nearby. The couple have been married but a few months.

Superstitions About Bread.

In Brittany when a housewife begins to knead dough she makes a cross with her right hand, the left being placed in the trough. If a cat enters the room, it is believed the bread will not rise. It is supposed that certain women can cause the dough to multiply itself. On the coast of the channel the dough is adjured to imitate the leaven, the miller and the baker and to rise.

The oven is a sacred object and connected with crowds of superstitions. The oven is dedicated, with ceremonies. In certain places in Brittany the wood is watered with blessed water. Bread must not be cooked on certain days, as on Holy Friday or during the night of All Saints, when the ghosts would eat it.

The Introduction of Forks.

Forks are articles of such common household necessity to us that we hardly realize that there was a time, and not so long ago either, when forks were entirely unknown. A knife was used at the table to cut up food, but the food so cut was afterward conveyed by the fingers to the mouth. Rich and poor alike were accustomed to this method and so thought it perfectly correct.

It was about the year 1600 and in the reign of James I. when forks were first introduced into England. This "piece of refinement," we are told, was derived from the Italians.

Serpent Worship In India.

Serpent worship, once very widely diffused, survives in India. Sometimes when Hindoos find a cobra in some crevice in the wall of their house it will often be reverenced, fed and propitiated, and if fear or the death of some one bitten by it induces them to remove it they will handle it tenderly and let it loose in some field. When Hindoos are bitten, they have far more confidence in their magic spell or "muntra" than in any medicine, even if they do not scruple to make use of medical aid.

Fill the Place Well.

Where one man is called to be a hero on some great scale 10,000 men are called to be courteous, gentle, patient. There are conspicuous virtues which make reputation, and there are quiet virtues, the virtues of private life, which make character. It is not every man's duty to fill a large place, but it is every man's duty to fill his own place well.—Christian Evangelist.

A Narrow Margin.

John Stuart Mill was once dining with two brilliant French talkers who were given to monologue. One had possession of the field, and the other was watching him so intently to strike in that Mill exclaimed aloud, "If he stops to breathe, he's gone."

Czar on a Pilgrimage.

St. Petersburg, July 30.—The czar, czarina and their suites left here Tuesday evening to join the great Orthodox pilgrimage to Saroff, province of Tamboff, where the Orthodox church is to celebrate the caronization of the hermit, Prokhor Noshnin, under the name of Saint Seraphim. Some six thousand bishops and clergy of European Russia will participate in the ceremonies, which will last four days.

To Recover $200,000.

Washington, July 30.—The government will institute proceedings against Wm. M. Weighel, a postal contractor, and the Fidelity Trust & Deposit Co., of Baltimore, for approximately $200,000, which the postoffice department has been compelled to expend above the amount of a contract for carrying the mails in wagons in New York city.

Bogus Lord Jailed.

Toronto, Ont., July 30.—A bogus lord, who registered at the King Edward hotel in this city as Hon. Ellis M. Charteris, and who tried to work the governor-general for a loan, on the strength of his aristocratic name and alleged high connections, has been sentenced to four months in the central prison for vagrancy.

Slept on Bare Ground.

Oyster Bay, L. I., July 30.—Lying on the bare ground wrapped in blankets, President Roosevelt and his sons and nephews passed Tuesday night on the shores of Huntington bay. After breakfast the party returned to Sagamore Hill, where the president received a call from former Senator W. D. Washburn, of Minnesota.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Jealous of Neighbor Girl.—Mrs. William Davis, living near Warfield, Ky., enraged over the thought that her husband loved Sadie Evans, a neighbor girl, shot the Evans girl to death with a Winchester rifle. Mrs. Davis is yet at large.

Car Shot From Track.—A wreck on the Union Traction company, in the suburbs of Anderson, Ind., caused the death of Walter McGowan of Alexandria, and injuries more or less serious to seventeen passengers. A car going at full speed shot from the track and turned over.

Carried Heavy Insurance.—It develops that Paul Caine, a young man who was found drowned last week at Louisville, Ky., had $35,000 in accident insurance, in addition to the life policies he carried. The case is being investigated and the body may be exhumed.

That Fatal Mistake.—Beatrice Tate of Chicago and Marion Clawson of Williamsport, Pa., were killed at a picnic at Sylvan Dell, Pa. They were walking on the tracks, and in order to avoid a westbound train stepped on the eastbound track and were run down by a freight train. The girls were about 14 years old.

Five Carpenters' Bad Tumble.

Battle Creek, Mich., July 30.—Five carpenters were hurt Wednesday at Nichols & Shepard's works by falling from a scaffold 20 feet high. George Yates is most seriously hurt, as he struck on his head and shoulders. Edward Nelson had an ankle sprained and breast torn. Charles Youngs, Edward Jones and Earl Matthews were wrenched and bruised.

How Air Acts on Mercury.

When the air around us becomes condensed—shrinks into a smaller volume—it becomes heavier, puts greater pressure on the surface of the mercury and makes it ascend in the tube; then the mercury is said to rise. When the air expands—swells into a larger volume—it becomes lighter, the pressure on the mercury is less, the mercury sinks in the tube and the barometer is said to fall. Therefore every change of height of the quicksilver which we observe is a sign and measure of a change in the volume of air around us.

Should Earth Become Flat.

A scientist says that "if the earth was flattened the sea would be two miles deep all over the world." And an Oklahoma editor gives out the following: "If any man is caught flattening out the earth, shoot him on the spot, and don't be too blamed particular what spot. There's a whole blamed lot of us in Oklahoma that can't swim."—Kansas City Journal.

Clever Scheme.

Customer—But that umbrella looks so very cheap and common that the price you ask is ridiculous.

Dealer—That's the beauty of that umbrella. It's made of the very best material, but made to look as if it wasn't worth stealing.—Philadelphia Press.

Beecher and Spurgeon.

Beecher had said that Spurgeon owed his popularity no more to his Calvinism than a camel owed its excellence to its hump. "I replied," said Spurgeon, "that the hump was a store of fat on which the camel lived on a long journey and that its value depended on its hump."

Witty Advice.

A witty Dublin barrister was consulted by a physician as to calling out a man who had insulted him. "Take my advice," said the lawyer, "and instead of calling him out get him to call you in, and get your revenge that way. It will be more secure and certain."

No Cause For Alarm.

Insurance Agent—Now that you have a wife, don't you think you ought to take out a life policy?

Newed—Oh, I guess not. I don't think she is going to prove dangerous.—Chicago News.

Doesn't Want It Back.

He—Humph! I should think they were glad enough to get rid of it.

An Irish Verdict.

"My lord," said the foreman of an Irish jury when giving in his verdict, "we find the man who stole the mare not guilty."

Shaky Rope Bridges.

In the wilds of South America many rope bridges exist, and in writing of them a traveler, who published through Messrs. Longmans "The Great Mountains and Forests of South America," says: "There being no trees here, such bridges as were necessary were usually constructed of a couple of ropes stretched across a chasm, upon which was spread a rough kind of matting made of pliant brushwood or a sort of rush. Such bridges swung about fearfully and cracked under the foot as if about to give way. Often I held my breath while passing such a bridge, momentarily expecting the rotten contrivance to part in the middle. There was plenty of evidence in the skeletons of horses and mules on the rocks below that [illegible] curred, but I was assured that not many men were lost, which, of course, was an exceedingly comforting assurance, especially as I noticed that the guides were careful to see that either I or George was the first to cross these confounded structures. At one of these places we saw on the rocks 300 feet below the skull and bones of two men who had been lost about eight years before."

Snakes Waste Little Time Eating.

A serpent will go for weeks, sometimes even for months, without feeding. Then it may take three rabbits or ducks, one after the other, at a single meal and afterward become torpid while digestion proceeds. When, after a sufficient period of fasting, it gets disposed to eat and a rabbit happens to be introduced into its cage, it may plainly be seen that the rabbit's presence is quickly noticed by it. The snake will begin to move slowly about till it has brought its snout opposite the rabbit's muzzle. Then, in an instant, it will seize the rabbit's head in its mouth, simultaneously coiling its powerful body around it and crushing it to death at once.

The action is so instantaneous that it is impossible for the rabbit to suffer. Certainly it can suffer no more than when killed by a poulterer. The snake does not immediately uncoil its folds, but continues for a time to hold its victim tightly embraced, sometimes rocking itself gently to and fro. Then it slowly unwinds its huge body and once more takes the rabbit's head in its mouth and swallows it.

Then She Kissed Him.

"You have not kissed me," she pouted, "for fifteen minutes."

"I know it," he said. "I have a very sensitive tooth, which is liable to ache if I do."

"What do you mean, sir?"

"Why, you are so sweet, you know!"

Where It Belongs.

"Why do they put the nation's flag on top of the schoolhouse?" asked the teacher who wanted to instill a patriotic lesson.

"Please, ma'am," answered the head boy, "it's because the pole is there."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

How Men Fall When Shot.

Nearly every one is familiar with the traditional stage fall, where the victim of a supposed death shot strikes an attitude, clasps his hand to his heart, stiffens every joint and muscle, breathes hysterically and goes down like a log toppled over from the end. Another popular yet erroneous notion is that men shot through the vitals leap into the air and go down in a dramatic attitude. Sometimes men are found on the field in striking positions, but often an examination shows that the position was taken after the fall.

As a rule a man who is hit above the hips sinks down. The slighter the wound the more commotion, for the body instinctively resists, just as it does when one slips or is pushed or collides with some object. But a wound in a vital spot weakens the resistance and men sink at once or reel and tumble with very little self control.

Crossing the Bar.

Tennyson's famous poem, "Crossing the Bar," was written, says the present Lord Tennyson, in the poet's eighty-first year, "on a day in October when we came from Aldworth to Farringford. Before reaching Farringford he had had the 'moaning of the bar' in his mind, and after dinner he showed me the poem written out." "That is the crown of your life's work," said his son, who was the first man after the poet to read "Crossing the Bar," and who passed the first criticism upon it in such fitting and generous language. "It came in a moment," said the poet, and he explained the pilot as the Divine and Unseen who is always guiding us. A day or two before he died the poet, calling his son to his bedside, said, "Mind you put 'Crossing the Bar' at the end of all editions of my poems."

The Trouble With Poultry.

An old woman who went into the poultry business under the expectation that she could make a fortune by selling eggs has quit it in disgust because, as she says, "the hens never 'll lay when eggs are dear, but always begin as soon as they are cheap."

A Quick Answer.

Johnny's Elder Brother (who wants Johnny to go on an errand)—Didn't you know I was looking for you everywhere?

Johnny—No, I didn't. If I had, you wouldn't have found me.—Chums.

B. A. GARLINGHOUSE

New Manager of the GLOBE FENCE CO. BUSINESS

At Jackson, Mich. and practically commences work at once.

B. A. Garlinghouse, general agent for the Deering division of the International Harvester company, has resigned that position, to accept the managership of the Globe Fence company. Mr. Garlinghouse will assume the duties of his new position as soon as his successor in the Deering office is appointed.

The directors of the Globe company held a meeting at the City club Monday, when the managership of the company was tendered Mr. Garlinghouse. Tuesday he went to Chicago and tendered his resignation to the Deering people. It was accepted with reluctance, as the company regretted the loss of so excellent a manager. Mr. Garlinghouse wished to assume charge of the fence business August 1, but this could not be arranged. His successor has not yet been named.

Mr. Garlinghouse came to Jackson in the fall of 1897, first acting as assistant to Manager L. J. Byers. Upon Mr. Byers' retirement he traveled for the company for a year, and on September 1, 1900, he was promoted to the general agency. He has been very successful in the machine business, and has gained therein an experience which will be of decided value in building up the business of the Globe Fence company.—Jackson Patriot.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

A party of young people made a picnic party to the DeWolf cottage at Sand Lake Wednesday in entertainment of Miss Julia Snell and her niece, Miss Florence Murray, of Washington, D. C.

Ruth Florence, the three weeks' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Comfort Chase, passed away this morning at 8:30. Mr. and Mrs. Chase have the heartfelt sym-pathy of their many friends.

Mrs. L. I. Bidwell entertained at cards last evening to a number of lady friends in honor of Miss Julia Snell and Florence Murray of Washington, D. C. Among the guests present from out of Tecumseh were Mrs. John McKinney of Detroit, Mrs Ed Newburn of Pittsburg, and Miss Mary Hosmer of Toledo.

Mrs. L. M. Bunnell left Wednesday for Rochester, N. Y. After a visit with her parents at that place she will go to Saratoga, where her friend, Mrs. Joseph Ledew, will join her. They will take a trip up the Hudson river in a private yacht and will visit at Long Island, Newport, Martha's Vineyard and Orchard Beach.

Richard Holdway, one of Tecumseh's oldest and most highly respected citizens passed away at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at his home on Logan street, after many months' illness, age 81. He came to Tecumseh from Amherstburg, Canada in 1865 and has since been a resident of this place. He is survived by a wife, two daughters and two sons, Mrs. J. M. Bents of Goshen, Ind., Mrs. Charles Stevenson, Thos. and Edward Holdway of this place, who will mourn the loss of a kind husband and father. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2:30 at his late home, Rev. C. C. Kemp officiated. Interment in Brookside cemetery.

A SHUT-OUT

Administered to the So-called Champions of Northern Ohio by

TECUMSEH'S FAST TEAM

Making two Games Won out of three with the Montpelier Club.

The game with Montpelier Tuesday afternoon was an interesting one, though the home team had the best of it from start to finish. Gilbert was in the box for the locals and his work was gilt edged, but two hits being made off him, one in the first and one in the 5th. Not one of the Buckeyes succeeded in reaching 3rd base.

A Detroit battery, McClure and McDonald, strengthened the visiting team but our boys have ceased to find McClure the puzzle he proved to be in former games when he was in the box, making 7 hits off him, Hosmer and Gilbert making doubles, and all but two of the home team finding him for safe hits.

Striker's running catch of McClure's long foul fly in the 5th was one of the features of the game.

BASE BALL NOTES.

The Montpelier game was in all very good, some errors were made on both sides, but very few ball games are played without errors. Gilbert pitches a good game, swift ball and plenty of puzzling curves, but does not keep as good track of the base runners as either of the other men, but this part will come to him in time.

Knickerbocker is hitting the ball better every game. He is a model second baseman and if he pushes up his batting average a little, will become one of the best men in the team.

It is evident there is some feeling between Johnson and Umpire Pocklington for if Johnson would be on first half an hour before the baseman had the bal he would still be "out" when the decision was reached. Johnson is a good ball player, works hard all the time and it is the umpire's place to decide "right" for all the men, yet Johnson should be on best terms with the umpire all the time if he is working for his own best interest.

Pleasant Musical.

Mrs. John Hicks delightfully entertained about thirty guests at a musical at her home Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Anna Osborn and friend, Miss Pitkin, of Chicago. Those present from out of Tecumseh were Miss. Anna Osborn, Miss Pitkin of Chicago, Mrs. Harriet Perkins of Hudson, Misses Julia Snell and Florence Murray of Washington, D. C., Miss Hosmer of Toledo, Mrs. McConnell of Pratt, Kansas, and Mrs. Gamble of Coldwater.

GENUINE EXCURSIONS.

Metropolitan Pleasures for Every-Body.

Nearly every one living in this community will doubtless want to visit Adrian Friday, August 14, when the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' Great Consolidated Shows, comprising double circus, double menageries, double museums, double hippodromes, will appear here. The menageries contain the greatest number of rare wild beasts ever seen in one collection. In the circus there are 300 star performers, and in addition to all the standard circus acts there are a score or more of sensational features. There is not space to enumerate them here, but prominent among them may be mentioned the world-famous Diavolo, who performs the exceptionally wonderful feat of looping the loop on a bicycle, an act which has astonished the world; then there is Minting, the unicycle marvel; the famous Aurora Zouaves, wonderfully drilled soldiers; La Belle Leona, the renowned equestrienne; twenty-three champion bareback riders; Starr, the shooting star, and the seven Ryan-Zorrellas world's greatest aerialists, and numerous other great features. All of travel will offer especially low rates of fare and provide all the necessary accommodations for the throngs who wish to go to see them. The agent of these lines of travel will furnish all necessary information, as to time of trains and rates of fare. There is one thing certain, and that is that these excursion arrangements will enable people who live here to see identically the same show as seen by those who live in the metropolitan cities.

Night was her Terror.

"I would cough nearly all night long," writes Mrs. Chas. Applegate, of Alexandria, Ind., "and could hardly get any sleep. I had consumption so bad that if I walked a block I would cough frightfully and spit blood, but, when all other medicines failed, three $1.00 bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery wholly cured me and I gained 58 pounds." LOST FIRST ONE

NINE HITS

Were made by Tecumseh off Thomas, whom the Detroit Tigers talk of securing.

One of the fastest ball teams that has ever played on the Tecumseh grounds is the Ionia team. They have played thus far this season 59 games, winning a majority of them and naturally their team work is fine, and constant practice has put them in number one condition. Thomas, their crack left hand twirler, was in the box. His work has been so effective that the Detroit Tigers talk of placing him on their pitching staff.

Our boys put up a fine game, making one less error and within two of as many hits as the visitors, and had not Harris weakened in the fourth, when 5 hits were made off him (2 of them 3-baggers) and four runs, our boys would have stood a good chance of winning. Harris steadied down, however, after the 4th inning and pitched excellent ball, striking out 7 men and allowing but 4 more scattered hits.

Two-baggers by Striker, Chaffee and Johnson set the crowd wild, and a one-hand catch of a fly ball by Gilbert and a running catch of a difficult foul fly by Striker "brought down the house."

Umpire Phillips of Jackson, gave universal satisfaction. He is a splendid umpire.

Today's game will be one of great interest and will draw out a large crowd. Gilbert will do the twirling.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Tecumseh girls holler like thunder.

Philips, the umpire of yesterday's game, is a Jackson man and he is a "dandy," best umpire on the field this season.

Harris pitched much better ball the last innings than in the first of the game and Thomas, the Ionia pitcher, weakened in the last three innings but then it is noticed that it takes about three innings for Harris to get waked up then he can "pitch ball."

Thomas is said to be Ionia's best pitcher and if this is true our boys stand a chance of getting the game today and it will be well for those persons who desire seats on the grand stand to go early as if the day is fine there will be a great crowd.

At The

ADRI'N SANITARIUM

Are the Following People

FROM TECUMSEH

At the Present Time.

LaVern Smith, Fred Hubbard, Mrs. Wm. Ghott, Mrs. M. E. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Lamont Bidwell, Mr. H. H. Keyser, Mrs. Coryell, Mr. and Mrs. Wells and daughter, Mrs. Henry Abbott are at the Adrian sanitarium.

When a reporter from Tecumseh passed the large veranda of the Adrian sanitarium and noticed all these people sitting there he rubbed his eyes twice to see if he was in Adrian or Tecumseh.

But when people who have been near death's door as Mr. Keyser. Mrs. Ghott, Fred Hubbard, Vern Smith and others and all with one accord join in saying they have been benefitted after all else has failed, It is no wonder they are delighted beyond all measure and that people flock to this place for relief.

The reports from the sanitarium by our citizens of the wonderful amount of work that is being done there for suffering humanity is truly wonderful. Some people have suggested that the doctor did not know his business, telling them to go elsewhere and to different doctors but Dr. Jones is wonderfully successful.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

THE CEMETERY

A Suggestion to Pay the

SEXTON

A Salary and Serve all Lot Owners Alike.

EDITOR HERALD: Permit me through your valuable columns to call the attention of the Tecumseh Cemetery Association to the present impracticable method adopted by the association, in relation to the caring of the lots.

Under the present system, each owner of a lot must pay the sexton a dollar a year to keep the lot in order, or else pay $50 to the association and thereby insure the care of the family lot so long as the association exists, which practically means for time indefinite.

The dollar a year system would be well enough in its way, if families never died off, or became scattered to the four points of the compass, leaving no one in the village, or its vicinity, to provide the dollar and see that it was paid. However, it is a most unjust and unwise method, amounting in sum total to the "fee system" which enable only those who "fee" to receive service.

There should be no reason why the township of Tecumseh should not vote a tax to pay the sexton a salary and then see that every lot in the cemetery was properly cared for. Such a tax added to a village tax imposed by the Common Council, would provide liberally for the sexton's salary and would be nominal to the property owners of the township and village. A few cents a year would cover such a tax and no one would feel the expense, while every one who owns a lot, would be relieved of all responsibility in relation to it.

As regards the fifty dollars, I have ye to find the heirs of an estate who are willing to allow such a sum to be set aside, pro rata, from their respective legacies, for the purpose of having the family lot cared for throughout all the coming years. Inquiry proves, also, that only a few persons approve of this method, while those who have paid it, have done so during their life time, instead of having made the provision by will. But if the present system is to remain in force, it certainly becomes every man who owns an estate to make due provision for their $50, and thereby see that if his grave is not "kept green" it will, at least, be kept mowed.

The Tecumseh cemetery is one of the most beautiful cemeteries in the state, is the pride of the village and an honor to the association. But those who have paid for lots and left their friends buried there, should have the assurance that time or distance would not enervate the hand of care.

I trust these suggestions will be accepted in the kindness of spirit in which they are tendered and that all citizens interested in the matter, will take up the subject, both from an economical and personal standpoint, and develop a system, whereby the sexton can be paid a regular salary with the defined duties that each individual lot is to have the best of attention. HARKEN YE

If you will but listen to your friends and neighbors, they will tell you how the pains and aches of a bad back, the annoyance of urinary troubles, the nervousness, the restlessness that come from kidney ills, can be relieved and cured. Read what one Tecumseh citizen says:

Mr. George Merritt, the well known proprietor of the cigar manufactory, says: "I can testify to the honesty and worth of Doan's Kidney Pills. There is no humbug about them. I was annoyed for some time with a dull aching pain in my back at times quite severe. I heard so much about Doan's Kidney Pills that I procured a box at C. A. Wright's drug store and after taking them a short time I found they were helping me. Finally the pain in my back disappeared entirely. Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy for all kidney ailments."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name, Doan's and take no substitute.

Grief can take care of itself; but to get the full value of a joy you must have somebody to divide it with.

As a rule, the woman who would not make a good wife for a poor man would make a poor wife for a good man.

JUST ABOUT HALF SICK.

How many times you hear people say: "I don't know what ails me—I am tired all the time—don't feel like moving—don't care to go anywhere—don't want anyone to bother me—nothing interests me—I feel half dead." It's not a pleasant tale. It shows a system at a low ebb—a system ready and fertile soil for any low type of fever or disease. It shows the need of a strong, all round tonic—a tonic that will reach every part, every organ—Brain, Nerves, Stomach and Muscles. A medicine that will give a new feeling of life, a new energy and spring to the played out system. A time-tried, time-tested medicine—Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Edgar Packard of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills sold at C. A. Wright's drug store I suffered a great deal from nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches and indigestion and at times was just about sick. Since using the pills my nervous system is in the best of condition, I sleep well, the headaches are all gone and my digestion perfect. A positive result of this kind is particularly gratifying and I feel I can't recommend the medicine too highly." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Policeman Shot by Soldier.

New York, July 29.—In full view of hundreds of persons Policeman Cornelius Mulvey was shot and probably fatally injured on the corner of Avenue B and Seventieth street Monday, while trying to prevent a soldier from shooting his sweetheart. Adolph Schloss, 22 years old, of the Eleventh battery field artillery stationed at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, after shooting the policeman, turned the revolver on himself, but without serious damage. Mulvey was shot in the center of his forehead, the bullet passing entirely through his skull and out at the back of his head. Schloss was arrested immediately.

Very Remarkable Cure of Diarrhoea

"About six years ago for the first time in my life I had a sudden and severe attack of diarrhoea," says Mrs. Alice Miller of Morgan, Texas. "I got temporary relief, but it came back again and, for six long years I have suffered more misery and agony than I can tell. It was worse than death. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for physicians' prescriptions and treatment without avail. Finally we moved to Bosque county, our present home, and one day I happened to see an advertisement of Chamberlin's Colic and Diarrhoeo Remedy with a testimonial of a man who had been cured by it. The case was so similar to my own that I concluded to try the remedy. The result was wonderful. I could hardly realize that I was well again or believe it could be so after having suffered so long, but that one bottle of medicine, costing but a few cents, cured me." For sale by all druggists.

Three automobiles were here Monday with several gentlemen looking after the interests of the Toledo Traction Co. and we may have in the near future an electric street car line coming from Toledo and going to Ann Arbor.

We never heard a finer speech, being short but full of meaning, than we heard at the council meeting. The speech being made by a gentleman who was looking after the interests of the electric railway now in contemplation.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

RAMPOLLA DREW NO. 58.

Superstitious People Say This Indicates He Will Be Elected.

Rome, July 30.—During Wednesday's meeting of the congregation the forms to be used in voting at the conclave were distributed among the cardinals in order that each might be able to learn how to employ his ballot. After the meeting Cardinal Oreglia requested the cardinals to visit their cells and be prepared at the next meeting to present any complaint which they may have.

Superstitious people here find an omen in the fact that Cardinal Rampolla drew No. 58, which in the book of the lottery stands for pope, and consequently they come to the conclusion that fate has marked him to be the next pope. Over the door of each of the cells has been placed the coat of arms of the cardinal who is to occupy it. Should all the sixty-two cardinals now in Rome enter the conclave it will be the most numerously attended in history. The conclave which elected Leo was attended by sixty-one cardinals. In the past popes have been elected by as low as nine.

The ecclesiastics who are to watch the sliding doors have been requested to be present at the Vatican at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon to assume their duties. The sliding doors will only be opened between 9 and half-past 11 o'clock in the morning and 5 and 7 in the evening. At all other times they will be locked.

TO POOR OF IRELAND.

Queen of England Gives $2,500 For Distribution.

Dublin, July 30.—The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra aboard, which left Bunorana, on the north coast, arrived at Killarney bay, on the west coast, Wednesday. Their majesties were accompanied by the Earl of Dudley, lord lieutenant of Ireland.

Despite the inclement weather they landed on the Mayo side of the bay and afterwards they proceeded in a motor car through the picturesque scenery of that portion of Ireland, inspecting many of the laborers' cottages on the way. Last night the warships in the bay were illuminated and bonfires were burning on the surrounding hills. Today their majesties will travel by motor car through the Connemara country.

Queen Alexandra has given the Earl of Dudley $2,500 for distribution among the poorest people of Dublin and other parts of Ireland.

Canning Factory Collapsed.

Cheboygan, Mich., July 29.—The warehouse at the pea-canning factory fell in Tuesday. The lower floor of the building was filled with cans, and two car loads of boxes were stored in an upper floor. Both floors gave way in the center, bulging out the foundation and wrecking the building to considerable extent.

Rescued Child from a Bear.

Standish, Mich., July 29.—A large bear attempted to carry off a little child belonging to Mrs. Frank Gray, living near Prescott, but was prevented by Mrs. Gray, who secured a rifle and shot the animal dead.

Former Corunna Man Killed.

Corunna, Mich., July 29.—Harry Harrington, formerly city engineer and at one time proprietor of a flour mill here, was killed at Missoula, Mont. He was freight conductor on the Northern Pacific and fell beneath his train.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, county Lenawee ss.

The undersigned having been appointed by the probate court of said county, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against the estate of said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the residence of John Wiggins, in the village of Britton, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 1st day of August, 1903, and on the 26th of December, 1903 at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.

And that six months from the 26th day of June, 1903, are allowed by said probate court for the creditors of said estate to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated June 26th, 1903.

THOMAS WILSON,
LEWIS SWICK,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss. Probate Court for said County.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on the 25th day of June in the year one thousand, nine hundred and three.

Present, Harry L. Larwill, Judge of Probate.

On reading and filing the petition, of James W. Wightman, administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, upon the estate of said deceased, alleging that the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased, and the expenses of administration thus far incurred, have been fully paid, and praying that his final administration account may be allowed and for such other order and decree as to this court shall seem proper.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 3d day of August next at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

HARRY L. LARWILL,
(A true copy.) Judge of Probate.

TWO ARRESTS MADE.

In Connection With Murderous Assault at Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 1.—Henry Kapanke and James Law, two young men residing on Seventh street, were arrested last night by Detective Collins on a charge of making the murderous assault on Charles Newton Thursday night and robbing him of $32. After knocking Newton senseless, his assailants placed his body on the street car tracks so that it would be run over, but the unconscious man was discovered in time. It is said the young men have practically admitted the crime.

Grants a Sweeping Divorce.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 1.—Judge Donovan made quick work of the divorce case of Emma S. Heames vs. Elgin A. Heames yesterday. The testimony occupied not over twenty-five minutes, at the conclusion of which his honor granted one of the most sweeping decrees on record in the Wayne circuit court. Under it Mrs. Heames not only obtains an absolute divorce and permission to resume her maiden name, Emma S. Edwards, but the name of the couple's only son, George Edwards Heames, the custody of whom goes to the mother, is changed to George Whitfield Edwards, 2d, after his maternal grandfather. Thus the separation from Heames is complete. The testimony was confined largely to the ground of non-support.

Can't Find Boy Lost In Woods.

Cheboygan, Mich., Aug. 1.—The searching party has not yet found the 7-year-old son of Gottlieb Mieir, who was lost in the woods Wednesday evening. Large parties are out and searching in the neighborhood where he was last seen, but most of them have lost hope of success, thinking that if the lad is found at all it will be after he has succumbed to hunger, exposure and fright. Everything possible is being done to aid in the search.

Son's Death Made Him Insane.

Baldwin, Mich., Aug. 1.—Joseph Cummings, father of Percy Cummings, whose death two years ago while riding home from town with his brother James caused a great sensation, is in the county jail and will be examined as to his sanity. It is said he has never been himself since the trial of James on a charge of murder in connection with the matter.

Great Gathering of Finns.

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 1.—Twenty carloads of Finns arrived here last night from the Minnesota iron ranges to attend the picnic to be held today as the windup of the annual meeting of the Finnish National society. After the arrival of the copper country specials there will not be less than 4,000 visiting Finns here. At the final session of the convention Friday afternoon Soudan, Minn., was chosen as the next place of meeting.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

He Was Jealous.—Jealousy over Miss Sadie Guilbert caused W. G. Wray, a traveling salesman of Pittsburg, to fatally shoot William Farris in Cochran's saloon at McConnelsville, Pa. Wray was arrested.

Man, Wife and Child Killed.—Albert W. Skibbe, his wife and child were instantly killed in Chicago at a railroad crossing. The family was in a buggy driving and failed to notice the oncoming train until it was too late.

Brakeman Killed.—John H. Sullivan, a brakeman, was killed and fourteen others were injured in the wreck of a work train at Brazil, Ind.,cmfwy papa work train on the the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad at Brazil, Ind.

Stole $5,000 Worth of Diamonds.—While the jewelry store of Louis Weber, in Chicago, was full of customers robbers entered the basement of the place and cutting holes through the floor and the raised platform between the outer and inner windows, stole two trays of diamonds, valued at $5,000.

Say She Forged the Will.—Mrs. Gertrude Briggs of Los Angeles, who sought to gain the fortune left by Salem Charles of Massachusetts, or Charles Hill, as he is known in Los Angeles, by introducing a document alleged to be Hill's will in favor of her daughter Grace, has been bound over to answer to a charge of forgery.

Eloping Girl Repents.

Adrian, Mich., Aug. 1.—Florence Spielman, 16 years old, who eloped recently with William E. Baldwin, a cigar manufacturer, has returned home repentant, and the Chicago police, at the request of the local authorities, have arrested Baldwin, who will be brought here to face a criminal charge. Florence got tired of the romance, particularly after Baldwin proposed that they go to Alaska.

A Banner Wheat Crop.

Quincy, Mich., Aug. 1.—George N. Jones, who resides on his farm one mile south of Kinderhook, reports the banner wheat crop. From twenty acres he threshed 775 bushels, an average of 38 3-5 bushels per acre. He says it's a variety he calls "republican" and tests 62 pounds to the bushel.

Big Shipments of Fruit.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 1.—According to the managers of the boat lines from this port, the fruit shipments for the season so far exceed those of a year ago by 25 per cent, and they say they expect there will be all the fruit the market will take.

Perished in the Mountains.

Albuquerque, N. M., Aug. 3.—It is feared that C. Cotton, manager of the Nancot copper mines in Nabo Pass canyon, has perished in the mountains. He left the mines for Albuquerque July 18 and has not been heard of since. It is believed that he lost his way and was either killed by accident or died of starvation. Searching parties have been sent out.

Statue to Ericson.

New York, Aug. 3.—A statue of John Ericson was unveiled Saturday afternoon at Battery park. Just as the cloth was twitched from it the United States steamship Dolphin, which was stationed off the Battery, fired a salute and midst the cheering of the crowd the statue of the man who revolutionized modern steamships faced the sun.

INTO THEIR CELLS

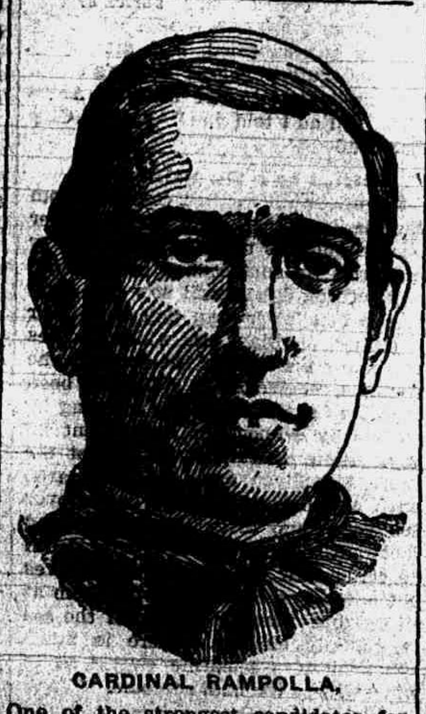
Sixty-Two Cardinals in Conclave at the Vatican.

TO ELECT LEO'S SUCCESSOR

Rampolla, Vannutelli, Di Pietro, Gotti and Oreglia the Likeliest Candidates —Italians the Strongest Numerically, but Discord Exists.

Rome, Aug. 1.—The largest conclave in the history of the Catholic church has now assembled in the Sistine chapel for the purpose of electing a successor to Leo XIII. Sixty-two cardinals with over two hundred clerical and lay attendants, are to all intents and purposes prisoners within the vatican. One of them, Cardinal Herraro y Ispinosa, archbishop of Valencia, was prostrated immediately after entering the conclave, and lies ill in his cell. Today the cardinals enter upon the solemn duty of choosing the new pope by ballot.

The general impression exists that within two or three days, possibly, though not probably, a new pope will have been chosen. But no matter how long a time may be required the absolute seclusion of the princes of the church and the outer world must according to the church law continue until a choice is made.



CARDINAL RAMPOLLA.

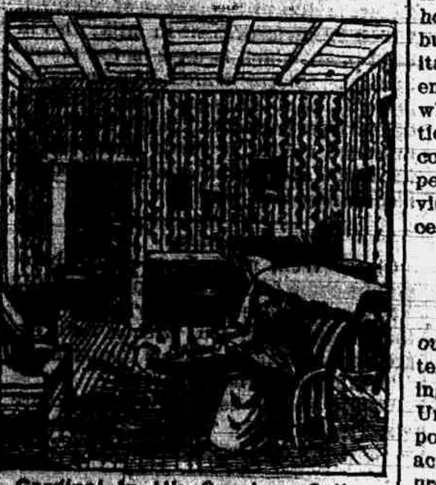
Prognostications as to who will wear the tiara as Leo's successor have little value, as even the cardinals, who last evening entered their cells, seemed to be without definite ideas as to the issue. Cardinals Rampolla, Serafina, Vannutelli, Di Pietro, Gotti and Oreglia continue to be most frequently mentioned as the likeliest candidates, but the moment the name of one of them is mentioned a hundred reasons are supplied to show that he could not possibly be elected.

With their commercial strength the Italians could, if united, practically insure the election of a pontiff of their own choosing, but the disunion and rivaly among the Italian cardinals leaves the question of Leo's successor open as to make one guess almost as good as another. It is assumed as a foregin conclusion, however, that the next occupant of the holy see will be an Italian. The foreign cardinals have shown no indication of opposition to this assumption.



Cardinal in His Conclave Cell.

More interesting, perhaps, in a certain way is the impression which prevails in certain sections that no matter what the verdict of the conclave may be great changes are impending in the policy of the vatican and that within a year or two the new pope will no longer consider himself a prisoner in the vatican, but will, unlike Leo, leave its precincts whenever necessary.

Just before going into his cell Friday afternoon a prominent cardinal threw an interesting sidelight upon the chances of Rampolla. Leo's secretary of state has been persistently abused recently by the government papers for his temporal power policy.

"I am pretty certain," he said, "that the Italian government would not be at all sorry to see Cardinal Rampolla wear tiara, as, at heart, I do not believe the government has any serious disposition to alter the existing relations between the vatican and the quirinal."

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright's Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

TRIPLE DROWNING

Sad Accident Occurs at Crystal Lake Summer Home.

EX-JACKSON MAN KILLED

Serious Mishap on Michigan Central Railroad Engine—Man Killed in Mill at Alpena—Several Other Serious Mishaps Reported.

Ithaca, Mich., Aug. 1.—Word has been received from Crystal Lake that Laura Pike, the 9-year-old daughter of School Commissioner C. F. Pike of Gratiot county, was drowned there at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon. Two others, friends visiting at Mr. Pike's cottage at the lake, were also drowned, but their names cannot be ascertained as yet. It is believed they are from outside the state. None of the particulars as to how the drowning occurred are known here.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 1.—William Miller, a young man formerly traveling passenger agent for the Cincinnati Northern, with headquarters in this city, and recently made traveling passenger agent of the Big Four, with headquarters at Cairo, Ill., met with a fatal accident at Harrisburg, Ill., Friday morning. While attempting to board a moving train he fell under it Both legs and an arm were severed and he died an hour later.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 1.—The flue of a Michigan Central railroad freight engine split between here and Augusta Friday and the engine was at once enveloped with scalding steam. Fireman Charles Butterfield of Jackson jumped and was badly injured. His face is terribly scalded. Engineer J. L. Kroll of Jackson crawled through the window and held on to the outside of the engine until he could stop it. The train was going twenty-five miles an hour when the accident happened. Kroll is unhurt.

Alpena, Mich., Aug. 1.—Four logs rolled from the top of a load at the Gilchrist mill yesterday, and Marmas Racette, a mill hand, aged 43, was instantly killed.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 1.—Herman Gutekunst of this city had his left foot cut off at the ankle by a mowing machine, five miles yest of this city, near Honey Creek. He found it necessary to move some ties of the Boland electric road, which had been washed into the field, the machine being behind him, and he stepped back so that the machine caught him.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 1.—William Lusk, a laborer employed on street paving in this city, was probably fatally burned by tar yesterday afternoon. He was carrying a ladle filled with boiling tar and by accident fell, the hot fluid pouring over his face and shoulders. He suffered untold agony for several hours.

Metamora, Mich., Aug. 1.—Charles Van Kirk, a painter and paperhanger, while decorating the Farmers' Creek church, fell from a high scaffold. He was seriously injured.

Board May Become Extinct.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 1.—It looks as if the state board of examiners of horseshoers will have to go out of business for lack of means to keep up its expense. The only sources of revenue are fees paid by apprentices when they take their first examinations and those of horseshoers who come from other states. It was expected that the legislature would provide that horseshoers renew their licenses annually, but this was not done.

To Investigate Use of Opium.

Manila, Aug. 1—11 a. m.—As an outcome of the late outcry and attempted legislation against the growing use of opium by Filipinos, the United States commission today appointed the following commission to act as the federal members in the approaching investigation: Major-Surgeon E. E. Carter, commissioner of the public health for the Philippines; Episcopal Bishop Brent and Dr. Albert. The commission is directed to study opium conditions in Japan, China, Burmah and Singapore and will be required to make a report within four months.

Mob Held Up a Train.

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 1.—The Chesapeake & Ohio express train No. 1 was held up by a mob of 200 men near Clifton Forge late Thursday night and a desperate effort was made to take two negro prisoners from the train. Over a hundred shots were fired by the mob, and when the train reached here twenty bullets were buried in the woodwork of the smoking car, and all of the window glass had been shot out. At Clifton Forge the two negro prisoners were taken on board to be brought to Covington, Va., for safe keeping.

Three Tramps Killed.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—Westbound Santa Fe limited No. 3, due here at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, and eastbound No. 4, which left here at 8 o'clock, collided head-on at Mellon, a station on the Colorado river near Needless, Cal., Friday. Three tramps were killed and several of the trainmen injured.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry)" says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. "I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

Was Wasting Away.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." J. J. Orr.

Not over-wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. Sold by all druggists.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Too Much Pingpong.

"Hello, Jinks! Why, I haven't seen you for several weeks. How's your health?"

"Poorly. Every little thing thong seems to affect me lately. Well, at any rate, you are looking like a king kong."

"Feeling that way except for a slight touch of spring fever."

"Yes, spring sprong always affects me, too, makes my head ring rong."

"What in thunder is the matter with you, old man—the way you've got to talking?"

"Nothing thong," said Jinks, making a swinging movement of his arm through empty air as his friend backed away in amazement and alarm.

"I hear that you have become a great devotee to the fashionable fad of table tennis."

"Yes," he said wildly; "I like to have my fling flong and enjoy the banjo sling song of the game of pingpong at every racket's swing swong while the celluloid sphere is on the wing wong. I know that game's the thing thong"—

Gently the keeper from the asylum led him away to his padded cell, the first victim of the omnipresent game of pingpong.—Kansas City Independent.

Easy Enough, But—

'Tis easy enough to sit at your desk and to write
A poem of power and passion,
A paragraph polished and witty and bright
Or a jingle of folly and fashion.

'Tis easy enough with a plot in your mind
To work up a story and tell it.
Oh, writing is easy enough, but you'll find
That it isn't so easy to sell it!

Dressing by Act of Parliament.

The old sumptuary laws were those regulations by which the dress and food of the king's subjects were nicely controlled. It was a sort of official Mrs. Grundy. Fashion regulations for men in particular were laid down on very precise lines, and the changes in their attire occurred much more frequently than in women's. Very different is the case now. In those days, too, men's dress was bright and even gaudy.

Prior to 1104 long hair was the regulation. In that year, however, Henry I., of blessed memory to barbers, had all his subjects' locks ruthlessly shorn.

The next important edict of this kind was under Edward III., who insisted that no one should have more than two courses for dinner, except on the eighteen holidays in the year, when the king's lieges might eat and drink at will.

Of interest to ladies will be the hard fate that befell the big sleeves worn by men under Richard II. We are told that some hung down to the knees. When pottage is brought to the table "the sleeves go into them and get the first taste." In short, the nuisance was so intolerable that a statute was passed prohibiting any man below a banneret from wearing them.

The Carbuncle.

One of the rarest and most precious stones is the carbuncle, which is sometimes confounded with the ruby, from which it differs by the intensity of its fires, produced by an internal luster of gold, while under the purple of the ruby there only appear dottings of azure or lacquer. Ethiopia produced the most precious ancient carbuncles. The Chaldeans regarded this stone as a powerful talisman. Legend makes the eyes of dragons out of carbuncles. Garcias ab Horto, physician of one of the viceroys of India, speaks of carbuncles which he saw in the palace of that prince which were so extraordinary in their brilliancy that they seemed "like redhot coals in the midst of darkness." Louis Vertoman reports that the king of Pegu wore an enormous one, which at night appeared to be lighted up with sunbeams. The virtues of the carbuncle are resistance to fire, preservation of the eyes, promotion of pleasant dreams, creation of happy illusions and an antidote against impure air.

A Willful Misunderstanding.

Pitt was induced by Sir John Sinclair to constitute a board of agriculture toward the end of the eighteenth century and make him the president. Having enjoyed his office for a few years, Sinclair began to desire promotion in the social scale. "Dear Mr. Pitt," he wrote to the prime minister, "don't you think the president of the board of agriculture should be a peer?"

"Dear Sir John Sinclair," replied Pitt, "I entirely agree with you. I have therefore appointed Lord Somerville to succeed you as president of the board of agriculture."

Sir John Sinclair went about wringing his hands and exclaiming: "Dear me, dear me! It was such a willful misunderstanding!"—Fortnightly Review.

Lucidly Explained.

The colonel stopped his team before the cabin of an Arkansas squatter to say to the man sitting on a log at the door:

"When I was along here a month ago and asked you how far it was to Colfax, you said it was twelve miles. It's only nine. Why didn't you say nine?"

"It was the old woman's fault," replied the squatter. "I wasn't suah whether it was nine or twelve, and so I went in and axed her. She reckoned it was twelve, and I had to reckon the same or have a row. When I reckoned as she reckoned, she reckoned that you'd reckon it was twelve miles nigh enough, and I reckon you reckoned that way."

The Beautiful Turquoise.

The turquoise is considered as a talisman in Persia, its native soil. It preserves its possessor from accidents and insures constancy in affections. The value of the turquoise depends on its shade and its size, especially its thickness. Those classed as belonging to the old rock are valued very highly. Emblem of youth, of sentiment and tender recollections, the turquoise may be called the forget-me-not of stones.

Contagious Only.

"This fishin' fever seems to be contagious," said the stranger, noting the long row of anglers perched upon the creek bank.

"Yes, it's contagious, all right," said the man who had been fishing four hours without a nibble, "but not ketchin'."—Baltimore American.

Learned to Cipher.

Aunty—So this was your first term at school? What did you learn?

Little Girl—I learned how to cipher.

Aunty—You learned arithmetic?

Little Girl—No'm. I learned how to write cipher notes to little boys wot nobody else could read. A little girl taught me.

He Got It.

Whales in the Thames.

In former times the appearance of a whale in the river Thames was considered ominous. One was caught off Greenwich three months prior to the death of Oliver Cromwell, and the common opinion was expressed by Heath in his "Flagellum." "It pleased God," he remarks, "to usher in his end with a great whale three months before, June 2, that came up as far as Greenwich and there was killed." Evelyn, in his "Diary," under the date of June 3, 1658, mentions that a whale was killed off Greenwich and that it drew an "infinite concourse to see it by water, horse, coach and on foot from London and all parts." According to Robert Hubert, in his "Catalogue of Natural Rarities," the tongue of this whale was exhibited daily for some time at the "Miter, near the west end of St. Paul's church."

In February, 1857, another whale was caught in the Thames, and in the Times of that month appeared an advertisement for a piece of ground, some 40 feet by 60 feet, "on which to exhibit a whale." The piece of ground advertised for was found in the Mile End road, and the whale was exhibited until March 14. In the same month—namely, on March 21—expired the house of commons, which had been elected in 1852.

Having Fun With a Tragedian.

On one of the times when Barry Sullivan, the great Irish tragedian, was playing Hamlet a certain clever low comedian named Hoskins was the gravedigger. After answering Sullivan's question, "How long will a man lie in the earth ere he rot?" Hoskins proceeded with the business of illustrating his reply.

Taking up Yorick's skull he spoke the words of the text: "Now, here's a skull that hath lain in the earth three and twenty years. Whose do you think it was?"

"Nay, I know not," replied Sullivan as Hamlet.

"This skull, sir," said Hoskins, "was Diavolo Antonio's, whom Booth fought in this city!"

The house roared with laughter, while Sullivan stamped and fumed, exclaiming: "Yorick's, sir! Yorick's!"

"No," said Hoskins coolly, when the tumult had subsided, and taking up another skull. "This is Yorick's skull, the king's jester; but t'other's Antonio's, just as I told you."—Kansas City Independent.

Bottom of a Sea Falling Out.

Scientists tell us that, counting from the sea level, the lowest body of water on the globe is the Caspian sea. For centuries its surface has been gradually settling down until now it is eighty-five feet lower than that of its near neighbor, the Black sea, which also lies far below the level of the oceans. The common conclusion all along has been that the Caspian was simply losing its waters by evaporation, but recent investigation shows that this is not the case. Soundings made and compared with records of soundings made over 100 years ago reveal the astounding fact that there is even a greater depth of water now than then. This leaves but one hypothesis that would seem at all tenable—that the bottom of the sea is actually sinking. There is much speculation in scientific circles as to what will be the final outcome.

Rice Paper Not Made From Rice.

Rice paper is not made from rice nor from rice stalks, nor has it any connection whatever with rice. It is of Chinese manufacture and is made from the pith of a certain tree resembling the elder. The pith is extracted from the tree in large cylindrical masses, and with sharp knives the Chinese pare off the cylinder till instead of a cylindrical form they have a large flat sheet. This is pressed and other sheets added until the required thickness is secured. The paper is then rudely sized and is ready to use. It was called rice paper under the supposition that when it was first introduced into Europe it was made from rice stalks, and the name has never been changed.

Cheese.

Cheeses come under three general heads, whole milk, skim or sour milk and whole milk and cream. The ripening of cheese, upon which depends its flavor, is due to the action of bacteria, which are ever present in milk; also in the rennet which is used in the manufacture. Cheese which has been improperly handled is apt to accumulate deleterious bacteria. Cheese has great nutritive value. It yields nearly three times the amount of caloric yielded by moderately lean beef.

Indignant.

Clara—Well, aunt, have your photographs come from Mr. Snappeschotte's?

Miss Maydeval (angrily)—Yes, and they went back, too, with a note expressing my opinion of his impudence.

"Gracious! What was it?"

"Why, on the back of every picture were these words, 'The original of this is carefully preserved.'"

Steadfast.

Tupman—My watch is one of the cheapest makes, but it hasn't varied a second in the last three months.

Snodgrass—It seems almost incredible, doesn't it?

Tupman—Oh, I don't know about that. It stopped the first day I bought it and hasn't gone since.

Evidences of Affluence.

"Why do you think he is a millionaire?"

"Because he spends so little money and his son spends so much."—Chicago Post.

Early Norman Dinner.

The Saxon dinner arrangements were orderly compared with those of the early Normans, when the halls and passages were frequently the scene of a free fight between the servants bringing in the food and the crowds of hangers on endeavoring to snatch it from them. This nuisance became at length so intolerable that ushers of the hall and kitchen were established by King William Rufus to protect not only the cooks bringing in the dinner, but the guests arriving to partake of it. Upon the occasion of his great feast at Westminster 300 of these officers were on duty, some to guard the visitors as they ascended the steps and others to defend the threatened dishes.

Such was the uncivilized state of society at this period, but when later on the marauders disappeared from the great houses it became customary to carry in the dishes in procession, sometimes preceded by music and headed by the steward with his wand of office. It was the duty of an "asseeur" or placer to arrange them upon the table; the ewers and napkins with which to perform their ablutions were presented to the guests by the esquires and pages, while it fell to the lot of the almoner to say grace.

A Great Feast.

There has never been prepared at any feast a bigger bowl of punch than that which was brewed by the Right Hon. Edward Russell when he was captain general and commander in chief of the forces in the Mediterranean seas. It was made in a fountain in a garden in the middle of four walks, all covered overhead with lemon and orange trees. In every walk there was a table the whole length of it, and on every table was a cold collation. In the huge fountains were the following ingredients: Four hogsheads of brandy, eight hogsheads of water, 25,000 lemons, twenty gallons of lime juice, 1,300 pounds of fine Lisbon sugar, five pounds of grated nutmegs, 300 toasted biscuits and a pipe of dry mountain Malaga.

Over the fountain was placed a great canopy, while in the midst of this lake of liquor there sailed a little sailor boy who filled the cups and replenished the glasses of all those who had a desire to drink. More than 6,000 men put in an appearance at this feast.—London Tit-Bits.

Corded Trunks.

Trunks corded instead of strapped are thought by some theatrical managers to be fatal to the interests of their companies. "I can't have any hangman's ropes among my people," exclaimed one well known farce comedy manager on noticing cords upon one of the trunks belonging to a lady he had just brought at large expense from east to west. And such a horror had he of the "hoodoo" effect upon his company, were a woman addicted to such methods to remain a member of it, that he quietly paid the astonished newcomer two weeks' salary, adding her fare back to New York by way of compensation for discharging her.

WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if here is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach, or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Recently a certain married man of this place took an afternoon nap. He lay down with a clean white face, but he arose with one of ebony, for his wife, a practical joker, had freely used burnt cork on him while he slept and, as he imagined, "fought flies".—Trenton Times.

It needs only a glance around our milk factories any morning to note that this is as strongly a dairying community as that of the Western Reserve of Ohio. Still, we amount to something on "side lines." For instance: Will Bishop shipped from here, last Saturday, a load of cattle, and a mixed load of cattle and hogs Wednesday; Worden & Metcalf a load of hogs and a load of cattle Saturday, and two double loads of hogs Monday; also a lot of cattle Tuesday, and a double load of hogs and sheep on Thursday. These loads represented over $9,000 in one short week, and only one side line. Fortunate is the man who owns a farm near Morenci.—Morenci Observer.

A Monroe man on the car from Toledo whiled away the time munching peanuts. He saw the conductor approaching, got out his ticket, and kept on "shucking" peanuts and eating. He gazed out of the window, as he ate and handed the conductor his ticket as he threw the shucks out of the window, not even looking at the ticket taker, until that official tapped him on the shoulder. He turned and found he was tendering the conductor a peanut shell and then discovered he had thrown the ticket out of the window. The car was stopped, and the absent minded peanut muncher alighted, retraced his course on the track, found his ticket, and boarded the next car for Monroe.—Adrian Press.

Rheumatism

What is the use of telling the rheumatic that he feels as if his joints were being dislocated?

That, according to thousands of grateful testimonials, is

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It promptly neutralizes the acid in the blood on which the disease depends, completely eliminates it, and strengthens the system against its return. Try Hood's.

While Chas. Kerr was moving a small building on a stone boat Saturday, Merril Onsted thought he would avail himself of a ride. The boat in passing over some small stones caused the building to bound up from the boat and when it came down caught his foot, causing a very serious bruise. We hope nothing serious will result.—Onsted News.

Here is a problem for you—A farmer in Pittsfield died leaving a farm of 80 acres and the widow was to have the life use of it. The widow is now dead and the farm is to be sold for $80 per acre. There are 26 heirs reported and each heir has such a portion according to his or her relationship to the farmer. How much will each receive after four attorneys' fees are paid?—Ex.

Last Saturday afternoon the southbound freight train on the Cincinnati Northern railroad was wrecked at Rollin, a broken wheel causing several cars to pile up and obstruct the track so completely that trains could not pass during the day. In the afternoon the wrecker reached the scene, and shortly after 10 p. m. the track was cleared and the afternoon southbound train, after a delay of four or five hours, proceeded on its way. The caboose was stood nearly on end, but the only person hurt was Geo. Daniels of this city, who was pitched into the air and had his knees and arm bruised and skinned. Dr. Nelson was sent for, and brought the injured man home.—Hudson Post.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Teachout, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Harris, E. C. Brown, L. L. Bates, J. D. Blocher, Allen Sheldon, Marcus Chaffee, Rufus Gilbert, Wilson Hosmer, Chas. Beasley, Hubert Hadley and Frank Sanger attended the ball game in Clinton Saturday between Clinton and Page Fence team.

Saturday afternoon Prof. Chas. R. Clough made his balloon ascension. It was about 6:30 when the balloon left mother earth. It went up, experts say, about 3,000 feet and the parachute landed in Harroun's corn field southeast of town, while the balloon came down on the island in the creek near the Harroun bridge. The professor landed safely and is now open for the next call. People were generally satisfied and pronounced it a "good ascension," in fact the best ever seen in this neighborhood. —Sylvania Sun.

KALAMAZOO

Many Tecumseh People Witnessed the affair.

Jackson Citizen Wednesday: In probate court today the case of Jane Elizabeth Taylor, an alleged insane person, was heard.

Since yesterpay it has developed that the woman was in Milwaukee last May, and was employed as a domestic; she left there July 22 for Adrian, saying she was going to visit an uncle, John Stone. She went and John Stone and her aunt, Mrs. Stone, came to Jackson and give their testimony in the hearing of the court. This was to the effect that she is a native of Canada and that she has been married but the whereabouts of her husband is not known. She has shown signs of mental weakness for some time, but nothing of a dangerous or suicidal character.

Lieut. Crowcombe gave testimony relative to his talks with the woman and the doctors, Chittock and Brady, also testified to their examination and finally an order to convey her to Kalamazoo was issued.

The matter of expense will come up later. This afternoon Lieut. J. Crowcombe and Mrs. Stone of Adrian, went to Kalamazoo with the woman.

Beautiful Funeral Car.

B. A. Rauch received last week a new $700.00 funeral car. It is of the latest style make and a beauty in every particular, fitted with hammer cloth and trimmed with silk draperies. His undertaking establishment is now complete with funeral car and white hearse. G. H. Tansley has charge of this department and all orders receive best attention.

Farmers Attention.

We will be in the market for oats this season. See Brown before selling.

L. FRENSDORF.

Wm. Baldwin Captured.

Wm. E. Baldwin, the cigar manufacturer who induced Florence Spielman, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Spielman, to run away with him the last of June, was caught in Chicago last Thursday and was brought back to Adrian Friday evening.

Florence came home Wednesday evening and told her father and Turnkey Bettis the story, giving them the address where Baldwin had rented rooms in Chicago. He was found there Thursday afternoon asleep. Sheriff Sheperd went to Chicago Friday and found Baldwin indignant and ready to fight the charge against him, statutory rape. He will remain in the Adrian jail for the present and will probably be taken before Justice Chas. Humphrey tomorrow.

Mrs. W. E. Baldwin, who is at present making her home in Toledo, has filed a bill for divorce and asks for separate maintenance.

IONIA SHUT-OUT

By Tecumseh last Friday in one of the Finest Ball Games ever seen in Tecumseh.

PITCHER GILBERT

Was their Stumbling Block, allowing but 5 hits and fanning 9.

Friday's game with Ionia's strong team, who have not lost a dozen games out of 60, and who had not as yet received a shut-out, was witnessed by the largest and most excited crowd of people assembled this year at Athletic Park.

While there were some who thought the home team would beat this well-trained and strong aggregation, and it is more than probable that a great majority thought the Ionia boys would come off victors, and we venture to say there was no one who thought for a minute that our team would shut them out with only 9 goose eggs to their credit.

Gilbert was in the box for the locals and J. Thomas for the visitors, both left-hand twirlers. While the work of both men was fine, Gilbert certainly pitched the better game, allowing but 5 scattered hits and fanning 9 men, against 7 hits and 5 strike-outs by Thomas, while "Gil" had a hard bunch of hitters to stand up before. Both pitchers received almost perfect support, but one error being scored on each side.

Knickerbocker led with the stick, making 3 safe hits in 3 times at bat, while Striker, Hosmer, Chaffee and Gilbert each pounded out singles. Harris and Striker in right and left field, each took care of 3 sky-scrapers, while Hadley, Knickerbocker and Beasley were fast actors in a quiet double play.

From one to two hundred dollars changed hands over the result of the game and the excitement in the outcome did not abate until two men were out and Striker could be seen standing in for left field close to the fence, just where a fly ball was bound to descend.

Umpire Phillips of Jackson, officiated and everyone unites in declaring him a No. 1 umpire. It was a great game and a glorious victory.

ANOTHER SHUT-OUT

Springfield Reds Unable to Score in Yesterday's Game

TECUMSEH SCORED

The Winning Run on an Error in left field.

The opening game with the Springfield Reds yesterday afternoon though close, failed to arouse much interest, the players on both sides putting up a listless game and not putting the requisite amount of "ginger" into it to make it exciting. Our boys seemed to be unable to hit Heffner, the visiting pitcher, only making four safe hits off him. The Springfield left fielder dropped two easy flies, one of which cost them a run and lost them the game.

Gilbert was again in the box, and although he did not "let himself out" much, the visitors could not hit him safely making but six runs. It is expected Sanger will pitch today's game.

BASE BALL NOTES.

A very interesting game of ball was played here Saturday afternoon between the Tipton Sluggers and Tecumseh second nine, resulting in a victory for the home team with score 28 to 26. Batteries Lowry and Drake for Tecumseh, Clapp and Hooten for Tipton.

The Dundee—Tecumseh game booked for Tecumseh, Thursday Aug. 6, will probably eclipse, in size of attendance, the famous Blissfield—Tecumseh game of 1902. The turtle catchers shipped 1,400 pounds of snappers from here this week. They shipped them in sacks and one sack had a hole in it and as one of the railroad hands went to put it into a car one of the tortois thrust its head out of the sack and looking at his bleeding finger exclaimed: Go to h—l with your d—d turtles and load them yourself.—Manchester Enterprise.

While driving a horse on a hayfork Thursday evening, Kenneth Barrett, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Loren I. Barrett, was painfully injured by the whiffletree breaking and striking him in the right eye. The boy's eyelid was badly lacerated by the mishap, and it required half a dozen stitches to close up the wound. Dr. Nelson was called and performed the necessary surgical service to prevent Kenneth being disfigured by the accident. The little fellow stood the pain caused by the deep gashes like a major, and while he had a narrow escape from losing his eye, he will get out of the difficulty with nothing worse than a few scars.—Hudson Gazette.

Mrs. Jennie VanCuren got up the other night and let the cat out of the house through the window. A little later the most penetrating quality of cat music wafted out upon the stillness of the night and into the homes of the slumbering neighborhood. Slumbering ceased and vexed faces might have been seen at numerous windows. Mrs. VanCuren arose and called out D. J. Treat and the two started to find the disturber of the peace, with the firm intention of dropping it into the nearest cistern. They soon found the object of their search, but the cistern did not claim the victim. She had shut the window down a little too soon and her poor kitten was hanging by its tail.—Ex.

The latest fish story told the Enterprise comes from the section hands on the Ypsilanti branch, who say that in crossing the outlet at Columbia lake, a few days ago they saw a large bass in the water with a good sized snake in its mouth. It had caught the snake in the middle and the reptile was wiggling fiercely to get away but the fish succeeded in swallowing it. Do you like bass? A company of young people were visiting Sand lake a few years ago and were out in a boat when they saw a large bass come up near them. One of the girls caught it in her hands and lifted it into the boat, when they were horrified to see a large snake dangling from its mouth. They gave the fish to Mr. Putman, the hotel man who said that he had never seen such a sight before.—Manchester Enterprise.

One Lansing woman has hit upon a clever way of getting rid of peddlers. Like many of her neighbors she is called to the door many times daily by itinerant venders offering all sorts of wares for sale. She tired completely of listening to their glib tales, rattled off so that as she expressed it, she was unable to get a word in edgeways. Finally she evolved a plan of action, and tried it upon the next peddler who came along. When the fellow started in his blatant recital of the merits of his goods, she listened a minute or two, then pointed to her lips and ears and shook her head, conveying plainly the impression that she was deaf and dumb. The peddler stared in amazement, then he cut loose a string of profanity and hustled on his way. Since then, the woman says, peddlers give her home a wide berth.—Lansing Republican.

Beautiful Thoughts

The sweet, pure breath of the babe is suggestive of innocence and health.

A mother's yearning for children is inseparable from a love of the beautiful, and it behooves every woman to bring the sweetest and best influence to bear on the subject of her maternity.

To relieve pain and make easy that period when life is born again, is popularly used. It is a liniment easily administered and for external use only.

Mother's Friend

Pregnant women should try this remedy, it being undeniably a friend to her during nature's term of suspense and anticipation.

Mother's Friend, if used throughout gestation, will soften the breasts, thereby preventing cracked and sore nipples. All muscles straining with the burden will relax, become supple and elastic from its continued application.

All fibres in the abdominal region will respond readily to the expanding cover containing the embryo if Mother's Friend is applied externally during pregnancy. Of all reliable druggists $1.00 per bottle. Write for free book on "Motherhood."

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR.

Hundreds of Tecumseh Citizens can tell you all about it.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Tecumseh people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Tecumseh reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mr. S. Erskine, proprietor of the well-known barber shop, says: "For ten years off and on I had a dull pain in my back, imperfect action of the kidneys, and often I could hardly stoop or get up again. I think it was caused by standing so much at my work. Be that as it may I was in bad shape. I used a great many medicines, but without receiving much benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. I must confess that I was agreeably surprised, for after using one box I was much relieved. After the use of two boxes my back is stronger and better than it has been for a long time. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever used and I have such faith in them. I believe I will be conferring a kindness on those suffering from kidney trouble in making known their merits."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

When the nerves are shattered one cannot think, work, eat, sleep or accomplish anything.

It's a case of force all the time—a continued effort to keep going—no life—no energy—no ambition—upset at anything—nervous headaches—crying spells—fits of depression and utter despondency. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills cure this condition to stay cured by rebuilding the shattered nervous system—nourishing the nerve centers and resupplying what is lacking—the active principal of life—Nerve Force.

Mrs. B. E. Gray of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Last summer I had an attack of fever which left me weak, dizzy and my nerves shattered. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and found them splendid, the medicine put me on my feet again rapidly and easily, nerves firm and steady, general health and strength splendid and not a vestige of dizziness. I think the medicine unequaled in such troubles and strongly recommend it." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. STATE LAND OFFICE.

Report For the Year Shows Large Amount of Business Done.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 3.—Hon. E. A. Wildey commissioner of the state land office has sent to the state printer his report for the year ending June 30, 1903.

This report shows the whole number of acres held by the state at the beginning of the year was 353,498.01; part paid land forfeited to the state during the year, 1,237.03; swamp homestead lands forfeited, 1,544.90; tax homestead land deeded to the state by the auditor general, 452,-938.67; tax homestead land reverted to the state for non-compliance with the statute, 23,026.91; swamp land patented to the state by the general government, 287.86; total, 832,533.38.

The total number of acres sold during the year was 125,492.66; total number of acres held by the state for sale and for homestead entry at the close of the fiscal year, 643,360.779.

Receipts on account of land sold during the year and for principal, interest and penalty on sales made in former years, and from other sources total $222,383.15. This total is the largest in fourteen years with the single exception of 1899, when the agricultural college lands were restored to market, and then they were exceeded by only $4,100.

Schooner Wrecked; Mate Drowned.

Milwaukee, Aug. 3.—After battling in vain for twelve hours with storm and wind and waves on Lake Michigan Saturday night, Charles Morbach, mate of the little schooner Tennie Laura, was drowned when his rescue seemed accomplished, and only heroic work by the captain and crew of the steamer Mark B. Covell saved the captain of the schooner, John Sather, from a similar fate. The wrecked schooner, which was built twenty-seven years ago, has probably been dashed to pieces by the waves before now. Morbach was married and lived with his wife and five small children at North Muskegon, Mich.

State to Pay Militia.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—According to Colonel C. W. Harrah, the decision of the secretary of war to allow officers and privates in state militia the same pay as that received by officers and men of the regular army does not mean a redution in the pay of the privates as might be supposed. Colonel Harrah says the men will be paid at the rate of $13 per month by the government, and the difference between that and what the state has been in a habit of paying will be made up by the latter. The state pay is $2 per day.

To Build $148,000 Bridge.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 3.—At an important meeting of the council committee, held Sunday afternoon, it was decided by a vote of 6 to 2 to indorse the resolution of the board of public works to close a contract with the American Bridge company for the new Genesee avenue bridge at a cost of $148,000.

Alleged Horsethief Arrested.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 3.—Sheriff Gauntlett has received word that Roy Hall, charged with stealing a horse from W. R. Martin, liveryman of Manchester, July 23, has been arrested at Fostoria, O., and has gone after him. Hall's business was getting orders for enlarging pictures.

Victims of Friday's Drowning

Ithaca, Mich., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Mabel De Bolt, of Breckenridge; Myrtle De Bolt, aged 15, of Paine's Junction, and Laura Pike, aged 7, of Ithaca, were the three persons drowned at Crystal lake Friday afternoon. They were out in a small boat, which sprung a leak and went down.

CORN AND COTTON.

Copious Rains Remove Uneasiness Regarding the Crops.

New York, Aug. 1.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says:

Weather, crop and trade conditions are seasonably favorable, though irregularity weakness in some staple prices reflect readjustments of consumption to enlarged production. Copious rains in the corn belt and in the western portion of the cotton region have removed some of the uneasiness existing as to the outturn of these two great crops, and despite this backwardness the outlook for general trade has been generally helped.

A favorable feature this week is the reported improvement in foreign demand for our breadstuffs, considerable quantities of new wheat and old corn being reported taken. Accompanying this has been an improvement in the outside interest in the cereal markets. World's stocks show little or no change for the week.

Wheat, including flour, exports, for the week aggregate 3,191,442 bu, against 2,781,888 last week, 4,388,534 bu this week last year. For four weeks of the cereal year they aggregate 12,006,624 bu, against 16,548,840 in 1902.

Corn exports for the week aggregate 928,839 bu against 1,501,338 bu last week, 25,405 bu a year ago. For four weeks of the present cereal year they aggregate 5,357,665 bu, against 423,826 bu in 1902.

Railway earnings indicate an aggregate for the third week nearly 14 per cent larger than the same week a year ago.

Business failures for the United States this week number 190, against 183 last week and 168 in the like week of 1902. For Canada, they numebr 17, as aginst 20 last week and 16 a year ago.

VELEZ RESIGNED.

Colombian Official Wouldn't Let Troops Suffer.

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 1.—As a result of differences with the authorities at Bogota, General Luis Velez, governor of the department of Bolivar, has resigned.

It appears that last May Dr. Amado, comptroller of customs at Barranquilla, positively refused to advance a large sum of money to pay government troops stationed at Cartagena and Barranquilla on the ground that his instructions from Bogota did not warrant advances for such purposes. He took this position, notwithstanding the fact that Governor Velaz urged that the troops were tortured with hunger and on the point of disbanding. When Dr. Amado announced his decision Velez appointed another comptroller, who advanced the required money. For his action in this matter Velez received much commendation.

Information now at hand from Bogota is to the effect that the government supported Amado's position and instructed Velez to reinstate him and pay his salary during the interim. This decision Velez declined to obey and tendered his resignation as governor. He insists that Amado shall not be reinstated until a new governor arrives. Velez has gone to Barranquilla to carry out his threat.

SCOW OVERTURNED.

Three Men Drowned In Accident at Hagerstown, Md.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 1.—Three men were drowned Friday while at work on the Hagerstown reservoir at Edgemont, near here. A scow loaded with clay, which was being propelled from one side to the other of the receptacle, was overturned. Four of those aboard swam ashore, but the others were lost.

The bodies were recovered.

Public Expense Statement.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The monthly comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of July, 1903, the total receipts from all sources was $48,611,575, and the disbursements $56,388,188, showing a deficit of $7,876,613.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Street Car Left Track.—A street car left the track while making a curve in Texarkana, Ark., and a score of people were more or less injured. A. M. Harrison, a traveling man, sustained a bad fracture of the skull and died.

Stabbed to Death.—Hiram H. Poole a baker and one of the best known citizens of Canton, Mass., was stabbed to death on the street by a party of three Italians. His assailants fled after the murder and have not yet been arrested.

Noted Preacher Dead.—The Rev. George Mairs Vanderlip, D. D., through whose instrumentality the Young Men's Christian association was established in America, is dead at his home in Brooklyn. His death was due to heart disease. Dr. Vanderlip was born in Argyle, N. Y., in 1832.

Cloudburst in Kansas.—A cloudburst which occurred Sunday flooded the lowlands and valleys in the vicinity of Salina, Kan., doing much damage. The valley northwest from Lindsborg is all under water. In [illegible] the streets were flooded and the water reached the platform of the Union Pacific depot.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A Miraculous Vault.

The most interesting place of pilgrimage in Dublin is St. Michan's church, where the organ is still to be seen upon which Handel is said to have composed his "Messiah." In the graveyard is the last resting place of Robert Emmet, and the vault at St. Michan's provides a more grewsome thrill than the morgue. The sexton lifts an iron door and descends a few rude steps, carrying a light, without which the place would be pitch dark. You follow and find yourself in a narrow passage, from which cell-like recesses belonging to different families branch off. Whether it is owing to the extreme dryness of the surroundings or to some mysterious property of the place the process of decay has been arrested, and the features of persons dead for two centuries may be recognized from authentic portraits. Here lie the brothers Sheares, who were executed for their share in the united Irish conspiracy, side by side almost with the Earl of Leitrim, who was murdered about thirty years ago. The earl's ancestors for hundreds of years back rest in the same vault. Perhaps the strangest thing about the vault is the fact that, apart from the weird sensation, there is nothing offensive in the surroundings.—London Tatler.

Boiled Oysters.

In "Social Life In the Reign of Queen Anne" Swift writes to Stella, "Lord Masham made me go home with him to eat boiled oysters," and then he obligingly adds the recipe: "Take oysters, wash them clean; that is, wash their shells clean; then put your oysters in an earthen pot, with their hollow side down; then put this pot, covered, into a great kettle of water and let it boil. Your oysters are then boiled in their own liquor and do not mix with water."

Raphael's "Paul."

While Raphael was engaged in painting his celebrated frescoes he was visited by two churchmen, who began to criticise his work without understanding it. "The Apostle Paul has too red a face," said one. "He blushes even in heaven to see what hands the church has fallen into," replied the indignant painter.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

CANVAS CLOTH GOWN.

Mushroom colored canvas cloth is the material of which this charming costume is constructed. An original device for self-colored taffeta strappings is here shown, which are employed on both skirt and bodice to good advantage. The skirt is further adorned by an "unce" flounce, which is an advance style, and the tucks are headed by simple hand embroidered designs, worked with Corticelli E E embroidery silk. This embroidery also appears on the bodice.

The bertha is just now one of the most popular and dainty of decorations for a bodice. This is sometimes made pointed or in a rounded effect, and may be made either very simple or very elaborate. Good effects may be obtained when they are made either of the same material or of a different material.

FOOLED THE MOB.

Smooth North Carolina Sheriff Prevented a Lynching.

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 3.—Wilford Roseboro, the negro who is charged with having assaulted Mrs. D. Beavers in Iredell county, then murdering her and throwing her body in a well, is in Charlotte jail. He was brought here last night by Sheriff Summers of Iredell county for safekeeping.

Roseboro was captured in Polk county Saturday and taken to Asheville jail. Sunday when it became known in Statesville that the sheriff was coming there with his prisoner a mob began to form for the purpose of lynching Roseboro. This was just before the arrival of the train. Sheriff Summers eluded the gathering mob, however, and took his prisoner to Mooresville by private conveyance and there caught a train for Charlotte.

When captured Roseboro had two pistols and a razor on his person. One revolver was identified as the one taken from the Beaver home. The prisoner is perfectly safe from mob violence in the Charlotte jail. There is much indignation here, but any attempt to mob the prisoner is improbable.

Mrs. Long of Rocky Mount, who was assaulted Saturday by a negro, on regaining consciousness said her assailant was named Till Black. He is known and his capture is considered certain, though up to last night he had eluded his pursuers.

ROYAL VISITS.

Strong Talk of King Edward and King Leopold Making Them.

London, Aug. 3.—The immense success of the king's tour in Ireland gives a new fillip to the talk of a royal visit to the United States. Everybody agrees the king would dearly love to revisit the republic. There is much discussion of how the difficulties of etiquette could be overcome. It is now admitted there is no constitutional obstacles in the way of the president paying a return visit, but the practical difficulties, it is declared, are absolutely insurmountable. The president's work is so continuous it could not be transacted by cable. This being the case it has been suggested if the king go to Canada next autumn the president might see him at Montreal, and the king, after visiting St. Louis, might pay a return visit to Washington.

Paris, Aug. 3.—King Leopold, of the Belgians, spent a day and a night recently in Paris. He went about incognito, but was recognized all the same on the boulevards. Happening to meet some Americans he declared he would like very much to see the St. Louis exposition next year.

Since his return to Belgium he has taken serious steps to prepare for the voyage, and it is said that he will cross the Atlantic in his private yacht, one of the finest in the world.

My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered.—F. L. Wilkins, Shell Lake, Wis. FEMALE WEAKNESS

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Is the Policy of United States In the Future.

NOT WANTED IN THE NAVY

Alleged White Sailors Are Prejudiced to Him as Companion on Shipboard—Five Hundred Blacks Now in the Service.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The negro as a part of the enlisted force of the United States navy is to be eliminated. Hereafter it is to be the policy of the recruiting agencies of the navy to discourage the enlistment of black men for service on American war vessels. A system of elimination is to be inaugurated, and while it is to be put into operation graudally, it will eventually weed out every negro serving before the mast and the enlisted force of the navy will be composed exclusively of white men.

Officers of the navy are not willing now to discuss the subject, for fear of raising protests and criticism, but it is believed the idea of a white navy will be realized, notwithstanding any criticism that may be made.

Will Disappear in Time.

At present there are about 29,000 enlisted men in the navy. It is estimated that about 500 of these men are black. It is probable that only a few enlistments of the negroes will be made during the next three or four years, and as soon as the terms of those now serving expire they will be allowed to go. Thus the number leaving the service will be greater than those entering, and in time all the negroes will disappear.

It is alleged that the white men in the navy are dissatisfied over the present practice of enlisting negroes freely, and are constantly in a state of discontent, by reason of unavoidable close association with the blacks on shipboard. A striking illustration of the feeling of the white sailors against the black was furnished a few days ago, when at a northern port the white men of an American naval vessel committed a series of assaults on negroes serving on the same craft. Both parties were on shore leave, and the whites, coming in contact with the blacks, beat and hammered them until the negroes were obliged to seek refuge on board the ship, where they were under the protection of the commissioned officers.

The man who teaches women to smoke always marries one who won't let him do it himself.—New York Times.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

The postoffice department established during the month of July 2,455 rural free delivery routes. The total number of routes established for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, was 5,664. It is announced at the department that there is remaining unallotted of the appropriation for the present fiscal year a sufficient sum to establish about 4,000 additional routes.

VICTIMS OF LIGHTNING.

Boy Killed Near Hillsdale and Woman Struck Down Near Battle Creek.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 6.—Herbert Cox, aged 11 years, was killed by lightning while standing in the door of a large barn owned by John Brown, five miles northwest of this city, Wednesday morning. Mr. Brown was struck and seriously injured but will recover. The barn was totally destroyed.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mrs. John Morey, residing three miles east, was struck by lightning Wednesday morning and instantly killed. Herself and husband went out to the barn at 8:30 o'clock to hitch up, preparatory to coming to this city. A heavy storm came up and a bolt of lightning struck the barn, the ball coming down into the stall where Mr. and Mrs. Morey were standing. Both were thrown to the floor, as was the horse.

When Mr. Morey recovered from the shock he found his wife dead, with her clothing burned off.

Dangerous Play for Small Boys.

Alpena, Mich., Aug. 6.—Henry, the 7-year-old son of Casper Abplanalp, was drowned in Thunder Bay river Wednesday while playing in the logs back of the tannery. This is the second drowning here this summer in just the same manner.

Dice Game Too Strong For Mahlon.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mahlon Mishler, night clerk of the Lakeview hotel, got into a dice game during the night, and at $10 a throw lost over $100. In the morning the hotel cash box was shy $100 and Mishler is missing. The police are on his track.

AMERICA HONORED

Pope Pius X Receives Band of Pilgrims.

THE FIRST AMONG NATIONS

To Do Homage to Him—Cardinal Gibbons Arranged It—Presented Him Gifts—Many Moved to Tears as He Blessed Them.

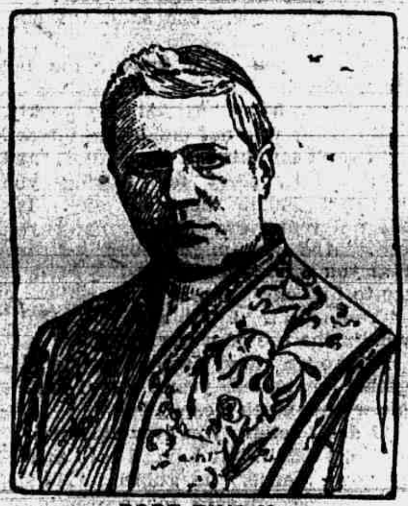
Rome, Aug. 6.—The spirit of "The king is dead, long live the king," which has been repeated through all the long ages upon a change of sovereigns, was the dominent note Wednesday at the Vatican among those gathered there not to acknowledge an earthy sovereign, but to accept without reserve Pope Pius X as their spiritual king.

Not only had America enjoyed the honor of first announcing, through the Associated Press, the accession of the present pontiff to the chair of St. Peter, but Americans enjoyed the far greater privilege and honor of being the first of those among many other countries were to follow to convey to his holiness the homage of the nations. The American pilgrimage conducted by John J. McGrane of New York and Father Lynch of Niagara university, of Buffalo, N. Y., which left the United States for its pious journey to Rome to receive the blessing of Leo XIII., arrived while the conclave was sitting. Its members lingered until the never forgotten moment Tuesday, when the election of the new pope was announced, and then decided reluctantly to leave Wednesday. But with tears of disappointment at not having been able to see the holy father the pilgrims strapped their luggage and sent it to the station. While the desolate band were eating a hurried luncheon preparatory to leaving, Mr. McGrane, with radiant face, burst in waving a paper and almost dancing in his excitement.

"You shall see him, you shall see him," he cried. "Our cardinal has arranged it."

Secured Pope's Consent.

Cardinal Gibbons had been asked to try to arrange for the reception of the Americans. He used his influence with the happiest result, securing the consent of the pope to receive his fellow countrymen.



POPE PIUS X.,
Who, on the first day after his election to the head of the Roman Catholic Church, grants audience to a band of American pilgrims.

Their luggage was hastily brought back from the station in order that they might appear in proper apparel and at 5:45 in the afternoon all were at the bronze doors of the Vatican. They were met by Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college. They trooped up the high stairway and on through the corridors to the unique hall of inscription, where a halt was called. Before the pilgrims could quite realize it the pope stood among them.

Pius X is a little taller than Cardinal Gibbons, giving, however, the impression of being a much larger man as he is inclined to stoutness. He has abundant gray hair, with no sign of baldness, dark clear eyes, handsome features, and a magnificent voice, low in tone, to which is added a peculiar grace due to his musical Venetian accent. His whole person emanated great benignity and cordiality.

Kissed His Hand.

He walked slowly but with the firmness of quite a young man down the long kneeling line, accompanied by Cardinal Gibbons and Mgr. Kennedy, and gave to each of the pilgrims as he passed his hand to be kissed. He spoke a few words to almost everyone. Pius X was arrayed completely in white.

The pope appeared to be very much interested when Father Lynch presented to him a box containing a white zucchetto, saying that "we will be extremely gratified if your holiness would accept this gift in exchange for the one you wear."

"I will cheerfully do so," the pope replied.

Thereupon Mgr. Bisleti lifted the zuccheto which the pope wore from his head and replaced it with the one which had been presented by Father Lynch. Mr. McGrane handed Pius the offerings which the pilgrims had hastily put together after lunch. When Pius reached the persons who waved two American flags the day before at St. Peter's, who were carrying them, he exclaimed:

"Cara, cara, America, dear America—forty-four stars, eh."

When he reached the last person in the line he turned and, while all the pilgrims knelt, he gave the apostolic blessing, ending with hte words: "I recommend myself to your pious prayers."

It was a moment of most intent emotion and scarcely an eye was dry.

Cardinal Gibbons, upon leaving the Vatican, said that he had been delighted to present the American pilgrimage to the new pope under such happy circumstances.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

TWO MORE TO THE WALL.

Failures on Stock Exchange Number Six in Eleven Days.

New York, Aug. 6.—Two more stock exchange failures, making a total of six in the last eleven business days, were recorded Wednesday when Sharp and Bryan and Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. announced their inability to meet their obligations. Neither failue occasioned the slightest surprise, in fact both had been discounted for a week or more. The failure of Sharp and Bryan came during the morning session shortly after the market had recovered from its demoralized opening. That of Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. was announced in the afternoon, just as prices throughout the list were tumbling lower than at any time before. The day's business can best be summarized by the statement that almost four score of stocks, fully two-thirds of the active list, touched the lowest record reached during the present movement, which had its inception last September.

At the close of the day some of the solid interests—and it is significant that these interests have been "out of the market" for weeks past save here and there, when support was most necessary—spoke reassuringly. They declared that the financial atmosphere was being clarified, but for all that Wall street as a whole could see no silver lining in the clouds, much less a golden one. Other failures were confidently predicted and the names of several important firms were mentioned as among those in financial straits.

JUMPED THD TRACK.

Engineer's Effort to Save Man's Life Caused Serious Wreck.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 6.—The limited Panhandle passenger train from the west, moving towards Pittsburg at the rate of sixty miles an hour, was derailed at Lumley's Crossing, between Jewett and Scio, O., last night. One man was killed and one fatally injured. The dead man is Fireman John W. Smith of Dennison, O., 35 years old, scalded to death under the engine. Engineer John B. Hoffman of Allegheny was badly scalded beneath the engine and may not recover.

There is a sharp curve in the road near the scene of the accident. The engineer saw a man walking on the track ahead of him in the direction in which the train was moving and immediately applied the air brakes. The effect was to make the engine leave the rails on the eastbound track, leap across the westbound track and continue over a high embankment, where it was partially turned on its side.

"MOTNER" JONES'S REBUKE.

Strike Leader Makes Public President Roosevelt's Letter.

New York, Aug. 6.—"Mother" Jones, who recently marched to this city from Philadelphia with a small number of striking textile workers, and visited Oyster Bay with the object of seeing President Roosevelt, has given out the following letter received in that connection from Secretary Barnes:

"I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ult. and state that it has been brought to the president's attention.

"The president, as was shown by his action while governor of New York, has the heartiest sympathy with every effort to prevent child labor in factories and on this matter no argument need be addressed him, as his position has been announced again and again. Under the constitution it is not at present seen how congress has power to act in such a matter. It would seem that the states alone at present have the power to deal with the subject."

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Young Physicians Drowned.—Dr. Adolph Cudell and Dr. Ernest H. Luete, two prominent young Cleveland physicians, were drowned in Lake Erie, at Cleveland, Wednesday night while swimming.

Shot Prison Keeper.—Prison Keeper James H. Gunderman of the New York State reformatory, was shot by a convict named Moore, whom he had threatened to report for violation of the rules.

Bryan a Farmer Delegate.—Governor Mickey of Nebraska has appointed W. J. Bryan one of sixty-two delegates from Nebraska to the National Farmers' congress at Niagara Falls September 22.

Must Speak English.—Judge Clifford D. Gregory, in rejecting sixty applications for naturalization papers, established a precedent by making the following declaration: "I will not naturalize any person who comes before me and is unable to speak the English language sufficiently to make himself understood."

Reproaches the King. — Michael Davitt, in a long letter published in the London Daily News, reproaches King Edward for his failure, during his visit to Ireland, to exercise royal clemency and liberate Colonel Lynch, the only remaining Irish political prisoner. He declares that no other monarch in Europe would have neglected such clemency in similar circumstances.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

Beautiful Thoughts

The sweet, pure breath of the babe is suggestive of innocence and health.

A mother's yearning for children is inseparable from a love of the beautiful, and it behooves every woman to bring the sweetest and best influence to bear on the subject of her maternity.

To relieve pain and make easy that period when life is born again, is popularly used. It is a liniment easily administered and for external use only. Pregnant women should try this remedy, it being undeniably a friend to her during nature's term of suspense and anticipation. Mother's Friend, if used throughout gestation, will soften the breasts, thereby preventing cracked and sore nipples. All muscles straining with the burden will relax, become supple and elastic from its continued application.

Mother's Friend

All fibres in the abdominal region will respond readily to the expanding cover containing the embryo if Mother's Friend is applied externally during pregnancy. Of all reliable druggists $1.00 per bottle. Write for free book on "Motherhood."

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR.

Hundreds of Tecumseh Citizens can tell you all about it.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Tecumseh people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Tecumseh reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mr. S. Erskine, proprietor of the well-known barber shop, says: "For ten years off and on I had a dull pain in my back, imperfect action of the kidneys, and often I could hardly stoop or get up again. I think it was caused by standing so much at my work. Be that as it may I was in bad shape. I used a great many medicines, but without receiving much benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. I must confess that I was agreeably surprised, for after using one box I was much relieved. After the use of two boxes my back is stronger and better than it has been for a long time. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever used and I have such faith in them. I believe I will be conferring a kindness on those suffering from kidney trouble in making known their merits."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

WHEN THE NERVES ARE SHATTERED.

When the nerves are shattered one cannot think, work, eat, sleep or accomplish anything.

It's a case of force all the time—a continued effort to keep going—no life—no energy—no ambition—upset at anything — nervous headaches — crying spells—fits of depression and utter despondency. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills cure this condition to stay cured by rebuilding the shattered nervous system—nourishing the nerve centers and resupplying what is lacking—the active principal of life—Nerve Force.

Mrs. B. E. Gray of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Last summer I had an attack of fever which left me weak, dizzy and my nerves shattered. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and found them splendid, the medicine put me on my feet again rapidly and easily, nerves firm and steady, general health and strength splendid and not a vestige of dizziness. I think the medicine unequaled in such troubles and strongly recommend it." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. STATE LAND OFFICE.

Report For the Year Shows Large Amount of Business Done.

Lansing, Mich., Aug 3.—Hon. E. A. Wildey commissioner of the state land office has sent to the state printer his report for the year ending June 30, 1903.

This report shows the whole number of acres held by the state at the beginning of the year was 353,498.01; part paid land forfeited to the state during the year, 1,237.03; swamp homestead lands forfeited, 1,544.90; tax homestead land deeded to the state by the auditor general, 452,938.67; tax homestead land reverted to the state for non-compliance with the statute, 23,026.91; swamp land patented to the state by the general government, 287.86; total, 832,533.38.

The total number of acres sold during the year was 125,492.66; total number of acres held by the state for sale and for homestead entry at the close of the fiscal year, 643,360,779.

Receipts on account of land sold during the year and for principal, interest and penalty on sales made in former years, and from other sources total $222,383.15. This total is the largest in fourteen years with the single exception of 1899, when the agricultural college lands were restored to market, and then they were exceeded by only $4,100.

STILL THEY COME.

Schooner Wrecked; Mate Drowned.

Milwaukee, Aug. 3.—After battling in vain for twelve hours with storm and wind and waves on Lake Michigan Saturday night, Charles Morbach, mate of the little schooner Tennie Laura, was drowned when his rescue seemed accomplished, and only heroic work by the captain and crew of the steamer Mark B. Covell saved the captain of the schooner, John Sather, from a similar fate. The wrecked schooner, which was built twenty-seven years ago, has probably been dashed to pieces by the waves before now. Morbach was married and lived with his wife and five small children at North Muskegon, Mich.

State to Pay Militia.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 3.—According to Colonel C. W. Harrah, the decision of the secretary of war to allow officers and privates in state militia the same pay as that received by officers and men of the regular army does not mean a redution in the pay of the privates as might be supposed. Colonel Harrah says the men will be paid at the rate of $13 per month by the government, and the difference between that and what the state has been in a habit of paying will be made up by the latter. The state pay is $2 per day.

Woodmen and Neighbors to Picnic.

CORN AND COTTON.

Copious Rains Remove Uneasiness Regarding the Crops.

New York, Aug. 1.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says:

Weather, crop and trade conditions are seasonably favorable, though irregularity weakness in some staple prices reflect readjustments of consumption to enlarged production. Copious rains in the corn belt and in the western portion of the cotton region have removed some of the uneasiness existing as to the outturn of these two great crops, and despite this backwardness the outlook for general trade has been generally helped.

A favorable feature this week is the reported improvement in foreign demand for our breadstuffs, considerable quantities of new wheat and old corn being reported taken. Accompanying this has been an improvement in the outside interest in the cereal markets. World's stocks show little or no change for the week.

Wheat, including flour, exports, for the week aggregate 3,191,442 bu, against 2,781,888 last week, 4,388,534 bu this week last year. For four weeks of the cereal year they aggregate 12,006,624 bu, against 16,548,840 in 1902.

Corn exports for the week aggregate 928,839 bu against 1,501,338 bu last week, 25,405 bu a year ago. For four weeks of the present cereal year they aggregate 5,357,665 bu, against 423,826 bu in 1902.

Railway earnings indicate an aggregate for the third week nearly 14 per cent larger than the same week a year ago.

Business failures for the United States this week number 190, against 183 last week and 168 in the like week of 1902. For Canada, they numebr 17, as aginst 20 last week and 16 a year ago.

VELEZ RESIGNED.

Colombian Official Wouldn't Let Troops Suffer.

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 1.—As a result of differences with the authorities at Bogota, General Luis Velez, governor of the department of Bolivar, has resigned.

It appears that last May Dr. Amado, comptroller of customs at Barranquilla, positively refused to advance a large sum of money to pay government troops stationed at Cartagena and Barranquilla on the ground that his instructions from Bogota did not warrant advances for such purposes. He took this position, notwithstanding the fact that Governor Velaz urged that the troops were tortured with hunger and on the point of disbanding. When Dr. Amado announced his decision Velez appointed another comptroller, who advanced the required money. For his action in this matter Velez received much commendation.

Information now at hand from Bogota is to the effect that the government supported Amado's position and instructed Velez to reinstate him and pay his salary during the interim. This decision Velez declined to obey and tendered his resignation as governor. He insists that Amado shall not be reinstated until a new governor arrives. Velez has gone to Barranquilla to carry out his threat.

SCOW OVERTURNED.

Three Men Drowned In Accident at Hagerstown, Md.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 1.—Three men were drowned Friday while at work on the Hagerstown reservoir at Edgemont, near here. A scow loaded with clay, which was being propelled from one side to the other of the receptacle, was overturned. Four of those aboard swam ashore, but the others were lost.

The bodies were recovered.

Public Expense Statement.

Washington, Aug. 3.—The monthly comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of July, 1903, the total receipts from all sources was $48,611,575, and the disbursements $56,388,188, showing a deficit of $7,876,613.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Street Car Left Track.—A street car left the track while making a curve in Texarkana, Ark., and a score of people were more or less injured. A. M. Harrison, a traveling man, sustained a bad fracture of the skull and died.

Stabbed to Death.—Hiram H. Poole, a baker and one of the best known citizens of Canton, Mass., was stabbed to death on the street by a party of three Italians. His assailants fled after the murder and have not yet been arrested.

Noted Preacher Dead.—The Rev. George Mairs Vanderlip, D. D., through whose instrumentality the Young Men's Christian association was established in America, is dead at his home in Brooklyn. His death was due to heart disease. Dr. Vanderlip was born in Argyle, N. Y., in 1832.

Cloudburst in Kansas.—A cloudburst which occurred Sunday flooded the lowlands and valleys in the vicinity of Salina, Kan., doing much damage. The valley northwest from Lindsborg is [illegible] the streets were flooded and the water reached the platform of the Union [illegible] side depot.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

A Miraculous Vault.

The most interesting place of pilgrimage in Dublin is St. Michan's church, where the organ is still to be seen upon which Handel is said to have composed his "Messiah." In the graveyard is the last resting place of Robert Emmet, and the vault at St. Michan's provides a more grewsome thrill than the morgue. The sexton lifts an iron door, and descends a few rude steps, carrying a light, without which the place would be pitch dark. You follow and find yourself in a narrow passage, from which cell-like recesses belonging to different families branch off. Whether it is owing to the extreme dryness of the surroundings or to some mysterious property of the place the process of decay has been arrested, and the features of persons dead for two centuries may be recognized from authentic portraits. Here lie the brothers Sheares, who were executed for their share in the united Irish conspiracy, side by side almost with the Earl of Leitrim, who was murdered about thirty years ago. The earl's ancestors for hundreds of years back rest in the same vault. Perhaps the strangest thing about the vault is the fact that, apart from the weird sensation, there is nothing offensive in the surroundings.—London Tatler.

Boiled Oysters.

In "Social Life In the Reign of Queen Anne" Swift writes to Stella, "Lord Masham made me go home with him to eat boiled oysters," and then he obligingly adds the recipe: "Take oysters, wash them clean; that is, wash their shells clean; then put your oysters in an earthen pot, with their hollow side down; then put this pot, covered, into a great kettle of water and let it boil. Your oysters are then boiled in their own liquor and do not mix with water."

Raphael's "Paul."

While Raphael was engaged in painting his celebrated frescoes he was visited by two churchmen, who began to criticise his work without understanding it. "The Apostle Paul has too red a face," said one. "He blushes even in heaven to see what hands the church has fallen into," replied the indignant painter.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

CANVAS CLOTH GOWN.

Mushroom colored canvas cloth is the material of which this charming costume is constructed. An original device for self-colored taffeta strappings is here shown, which are employed on both skirt and bodice to good advantage. The skirt is further adorned by an "unce" flounce, which is an advance style, and the tucks are headed by simple hand embroidered designs, worked with Corticelli E E embroidery silk. This embroidery also appears on the bodice.

The bertha is just now one of the most popular and dainty of decorations for a bodice. This is sometimes made pointed or in a rounded effect, and may be made either very simple or very elaborate. Good effects may be obtained when they are made either of the same material as of a different material.

FOOLED THE MOB.

Smooth North Carolina Sheriff Prevented a Lynching.

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 3.—Wilford Roseboro, the negro who is charged with having assaulted Mrs. D. Beavers in Iredell county, then murdering her and throwing her body in a well, is in Charlotte jail. He was brought here last night by Sheriff Summers of Iredell county for safekeeping.

Roseboro was captured in Polk county Saturday and taken to Asheville jail. Sunday when it became known in Statesville that the sheriff was coming there with his prisoner a mob began to form for the purpose of lynching Roseboro. This was just before the arrival of the train. Sheriff Summers eluded the gathering mob, however, and took his prisoner to Mooresville by private conveyance and there caught a train for Charlotte.

When captured Roseboro had two pistols and a razor on his person. One revolver was identified as the one taken from the Beaver home. The prisoner is perfectly safe from mob violence in the Charlotte jail. There is much indignation here, but any attempt to mob the prisoner is improbable.

Mrs. Long of Rocky Mount, who was assaulted Saturday by a negro, on regaining consciousness said her assailant was named Till Black. He is known and his capture is considered certain, though up to last night he had eluded his pursuers.

ROYAL VISITS.

Strong Talk of King Edward and King Leopold Making Them.

London, Aug. 3.—The immense success of the king's tour in Ireland gives a new fillip to the talk of a royal visit to the United States. Everybody agrees the king would dearly love to revisit the republic. There is much discussion of how the difficulties of etiquette could be overcome. It is now admitted there is no constitutional obstacles in the way of the president paying a return visit, but the practical difficulties, it is declared, are absolutely insurmountable. The president's work is so continuous it could not be transacted by cable. This being the case it has been suggested if the king go to Canada next autumn the president might see him at Montreal, and the king, after visiting St. Louis, might pay a return visit to Washington.

Paris, Aug. 3.—King Leopold, of the Belgians, spent a day and a night recently in Paris. He went about incognito, but was recognized all the same on the boulevards. Happening to meet some Americans he declared he would like very much to see the St. Louis exposition next year.

Since his return to Belgium he has taken serious steps to prepare for the voyage, and it is said that he will cross the Atlantic in his private yacht, one of the finest in the world.

An Old Piano For U. of M.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 1.—J. E. Ecker of Toledo has presented the university with a German grand piano, which he says was made in 1817 in upper Austria. It is considered a most intresting acquisition to the Stearns collection of musical instruments.

Boy cured of colic after physicians treatment had failed.

My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered.—F. L. Wilkins, Shell Lake, Wis. FEMALE WEAKNESS

5431-2 Congress St.,
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina [illegible]
Treasurer, Portland Economic League.

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Is the Policy of United States In the Future.

NOT WANTED IN THE NAVY

Alleged White Sailors Are Prejudiced to Him as Companion on Shipboard —Five Hundred Blacks Now in the Service.

Washington, Aug. 6.—The negro as a part of the enlisted force of the United States navy is to be eliminated. Hereafter it is to be the policy of the recruiting agencies of the navy to discourage the enlistment of black men for service on American war vessels. A system of elimination is to be inaugurated, and while it is to be put into operation gradually, it will eventually weed out every negro serving before the mast and the enlisted force of the navy will be composed exclusively of white men.

Officers of the navy are not willing now to discuss the subject, for fear of raising protests and criticism, but it is believed the idea of a white navy will be realized, notwithstanding any criticism that may be made.

Will Disappear in Time.

At present there are about 29,000 enlisted men in the navy. It is estimated that about 500 of these men are black. It is probable that only a few enlistments of the negroes will be made during the next three or four years, and as soon as the terms of those now serving expire they will be allowed to go. Thus the number leaving the service will be greater than those entering, and in time all the negroes will disappear.

It is alleged that the white men in the navy are dissatisfied over the present practice of enlisting negroes freely, and are constantly in a state of discontent by reason of unavoidable close association with the blacks on shipboard. A striking illustration of the feeling of the white sailors against the black was furnished a few days ago, when at a northern port the white men of an American naval vessel committed a series of assaults on negroes serving on the same craft. Both parties were on shore leave, and the whites, coming in contact with the blacks, beat and hammered them until the negroes were obliged to seek refuge on board the ship, where they were under the protection of the commissioned officers.

The man who teaches women to smoke always marries one who won't let him do it himself.—New York Times.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

NEW RURAL ROUTES.

Big Batch of Them Ordered Established in Michigan.

Washington, Aug. 6.—Rural free delivery has been established in Michigan as follows: Clarkston, Oakland county (additional service, routes 3 and 4), length of routes 45 miles, population served 184; Grand Junction, Van Buren county (routes 1 and 2), length of routes 45 miles, population served 965; Harrison, Clare county (route 1), length of route 20 miles, population served 454; Leonard, Oakland county (route 1), length of route 24 miles, population served 457; Martin, Allegan county (route 1), length of route 24 miles, population served 540; Millington (additional service (routes 3 and 4), length of routes 49 miles, population served 1,159; Traverse City, Grand Traverse county (additional service, routes 2, 3, 4 and 5), length of routes 89 miles, population served 2,001; Vassar, Tuscola county (additional service, routes 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8), length of routes 119 miles, population served 2,971; Wayland, Allegan county (routes 1 and 2), length of routes 47 miles, population served 957.

Carriers have been appointed to fill vacancies as follows: Gagetown, Fred A. Reid, Ira K. Reed (substitute); Oxford, Harry A. Cutler, Ed Stiles (substitute); St. Louis, G. D. Perrine, D. Curtis (substitute).

The postoffice department established during the month of July 2,455 rural free delivery routes. The total number of routes established for the entire fiscal year ended June 30, 1903, was 5,664. It is announced at the department that there is remaining unallotted of the appropriation for the present fiscal year a sufficient sum to establish about 4,000 additional routes.

VICTIMS OF LIGHTNING.

Boy Killed Near Hillsdale and Woman Struck Down Near Battle Creek.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 6.—Herbert Cox, aged 11 years, was killed by lightning while standing in the door of a large barn owned by John Brown, five miles northwest of this city, Wednesday morning. Mr. Brown was struck and seriously injured but will recover. The barn was totally destroyed.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mrs. John Morey, residing three miles east, was struck by lightning Wednesday morning and instantly killed. Herself and husband went out to the barn at 8:30 o'clock to hitch up, preparatory to coming to this city. A heavy storm came up and a bolt of lightning struck the barn, the ball coming down into the stall where Mr. and Mrs. Morey were standing. Both were thrown to the floor, as was the horse.

When Mr. Morey recovered from the shock he found his wife dead, with her clothing burned off.

Dangerous Play for Small Boys.

Alpena, Mich., Aug. 6.—Henry, the 7-year-old son of Casper Abplanalp, was drowned in Thunder Bay river Wednesday while playing in the logs back of the tannery. This is the second drowning here this summer in just the same manner.

Dice Game Too Strong For Mahlon.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mahlon Mishler, night clerk of the Lakeview hotel, got into a dice game during the night, and at $10 a throw lost over $100. In the morning the hotel cash box was shy $100 and Mishler is missing. The police are on his track.

THE FIRST AMONG NATIONS

To Do Homage to Him—Cardinal Gibbons Arranged It—Presented Him Gifts—Many Moved to Tears as He Blessed Them.

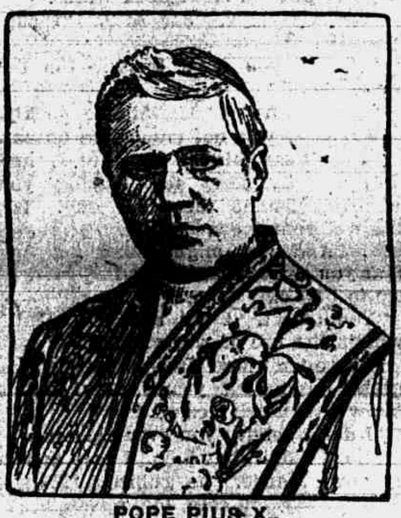
Rome, Aug. 6.—The spirit of "The king is dead, long live the king," which has been repeated through all the long ages upon a change of sovereigns, was the dominent note Wednesday at the Vatican among those gathered there not to acknowledge an earthy sovereign, but to accept without reserve Pope Pius X as their spiritual king.

Not only had America enjoyed the honor of first announcing, through the Associated Press, the accession of the present pontiff to the chair of St. Peter, but Americans enjoyed the far greater privilege and honor of being the first of those among many other countries were to follow to convey to his holiness the homage of the nations. The American pilgrimage conducted by John J. McGrane of New York and Father Lynch of Niagara university, of Buffalo, N. Y., which left the United States for its pious journey to Rome to receive the blessing of Leo XIII., arrived while the conclave was sitting. Its members lingered until the never forgotten moment Tuesday, when the election of the new pope was announced, and then decided reluctantly to leave Wednesday. But with tears of disappointment at not having been able to see the holy father the pilgrims strapped their luggage and sent it to the station. While the desolate band were eating a hurried luncheon preparatory to leaving, Mr. McGrane, with radiant face, burst in waving a paper and almost dancing in his excitement.

"You shall see him, you shall see him," he cried. "Our cardinal has arranged it."

Secured Pope's Consent.

Cardinal Gibbons had been asked to try to arrange for the reception of the Americans. He used his influence with the happiest result, securing the consent of the pope to receive his fellow countrymen.



POPE PIUS X., Who, on the first day after his election to the head of the Roman Catholic Church, grants audience to a band of American pilgrims.

Their luggage was hastily brought back from the station in order that they might appear in proper apparel and at 5:45 in the afternoon all were at the bronze doors of the Vatican. They were met by Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American college. They trooped up the high stairway and on through the corridors to the unique hall of inscription, where a halt was called. Before the pilgrims could quite realize it the pope stood among them.

Pius X is a little taller than Cardinal Gibbons, giving, however, the impression of being a much larger man as he is inclined to stoutness. He has abundant gray hair, with no sign of baldness, dark clear eyes, handsome features, and a magnificent voice, low in tone, to which is added a peculiar grace due to his musical Venetian accent. His whole person emanated great benignity and cordiality.

Kissed His Hand.

He walked slowly but with the firmness of quite a young man down the long kneeling line, accompanied by Cardinal Gibbons and Mgr. Kennedy, and gave to each of the pilgrims as he passed his hand to be kissed. He spoke a few words to almost everyone. Pius X was arrayed completely in white.

The pope appeared to be very much interested when Father Lynch presented to him a box containing a white zucchetto, saying that "we will be extremely gratified if your holiness would accept this gift in exchange for the one you wear."

"I will cheerfully do so," the pope replied.

Thereupon Mgr. Bisleti lifted the zuccheto which the pope wore from his head and replaced it with the one which had been presented by Father Lynch. Mr. McGrane handed Pius the offerings which the pilgrims had hastily put together after lunch. When Pius reached the persons who waved two American flags the day before at St. Peter's, who were carrying them, he exclaimed:

"Cara, cara, America, dear America—forty-four stars, eh."

When he reached the last person in the line he turned and, while all the pilgrims knelt, he gave the apostolic blessing, ending with hte words: "I recommend myself to your pious prayers."

It was a moment of most intent emotion and scarcely an eye was dry.

Cardinal Gibbons, upon leaving the Vatican, said that he had been delighted to present the American pilgrimage to the new pope under such happy circumstances.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

TWO MORE TO THE WALL.

Failures on Stock Exchange Number Six In Eleven Days.

New York, Aug. 6.—Two more stock exchange failures, making a total of six in the last eleven business days, were recorded Wednesday when Sharp and Bryan and Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. announced their inability to meet their obligations. Neither failue occasioned the slightest surprise, in fact both had been discounted for a week or more. The failure of Sharp and Bryan came during the morning session shortly after the market had recovered from its demoralized opening. That of Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. was announced in the afternoon, just as prices throughout the list were tumbling lower than at any time before. The day's business can best be summarized by the statement that almost four score of stocks, fully two-thirds of the active list, touched the lowest record reached during the present movement, which had its inception last September.

At the close of the day some of the solid interests—and it is significant that these interests have been "out of the market" for weeks past save here and there, when support was most necessary—spoke reassuringly. They declared that the financial atmosphere was being clarified, but for all that Wall street as a whole could see no silver lining in the clouds, much less a golden one. Other failures were confidently predicted and the names of several important firms were mentioned as among those in financial straits.

JUMPED THD TRACK.

Engineer's Effort to Save Man's Life Caused Serious Wreck.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 6.—The limited Panhandle passenger train from the west, moving towards Pittsburg at the rate of sixty miles an hour, was derailed at Lumley's Crossing, between Jewett and Scio, O., last night. One man was killed and one fatally injured. The dead man is Fireman John W. Smith of Dennison, O., 35 years old, scalded to death under the engine. Engineer John B. Hoffman of Allegheny was badly scalded beneath the engine and may not recover.

There is a sharp curve in the road near the scene of the accident. The engineer saw a man walking on the track ahead of him in the direction in which the train was moving and immediately applied the air brakes. The effect was to make the engine leave the rails on the eastbound track, leap across the westbound track and continue over a high embankment, where it was partially turned on its side.

"MOTNER" JONES'S REBUKE.

Strike Leader Makes Public President Roosevelt's Letter.

New York, Aug. 6.—"Mother" Jones, who recently marched to this city from Philadelphia with a small number of striking textile workers, and visited Oyster Bay with the object of seeing President Roosevelt, has given out the following letter received in that connection from Secretary Barnes:

"I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 30th ult. and state that it has been brought to the president's attention.

"The president, as was shown by his action while governor of New York, has the heartiest sympathy with every effort to prevent child labor in factories and on this matter no argument need be addressed him, as his position has been announced again and again. Under the constitution it is not at present seen how congress has power to act in such a matter. It would seem that the states alone at present have the power to deal with the subject."

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Young Physicians Drowned.—Dr. Adolph Cudell and Dr. Ernest H. Luete, two prominent young Cleveland physicians, were drowned in Lake Erie, at Cleveland, Wednesday night while swimming.

Shot Prison Keeper.—Prison Keeper James H. Gunderman of the New York State reformatory, was shot by a convict named Moore, whom he had threatened to report for violation of the rules.

Bryan a Farmer Delegate.—Governor Mickey of Nebraska has appointed W. J. Bryan one of sixty-two delegates from Nebraska to the National Farmers' congress at Niagara Falls September 22.

Must Speak English.—Judge Clifford D. Gregory, in rejecting sixty applications for naturalization papers, established a precedent by making the following declaration: "I will not naturalize any person who comes before me and is unable to speak the English language sufficiently to make himself understood."

Reproaches the King. — Michael Davitt, in a long letter published in the London Daily News, reproaches King Edward for his failure, during his visit to Ireland, to exercise royal clemency and liberate Colonel Lynch, the only remaining Irish political prisoner. He declares that no other monarch in Europe would have neglected such clemency in similar circumstances.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic. cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

CHAPTER I.

So we settled it all when the storm was done
As comf'y as comf'y could be,
And I was to wait in the barn, my dears,
Because I was only three.
And Teddy would run to the rainbow's foot
Because he was five and a man,
And that's how it all began, my dears,
And that's how it all began.
—Big Barn Stories.

"WHAT do you think she'd do if she caught us? We oughtn't to have it, you know," said Maisie.

"Beat me and lock you up in your bedroom," Dick answered without hesitation. "Have you got the cartridges?"

"Yes. They're in my pocket, but they are joggling horribly. Do pin fire cartridges go off of their own accord?"

"Don't know. Take the revolver if you are afraid and let me carry them."

"I'm not afraid." Maisie strode forward swiftly, a hand in her pocket and her chin in the air. Dick followed with a small pin fire revolver.

The children had discovered that their lives would be unendurable without pistol practice. After much forethought and self denial Dick had saved 7s. 6d., the price of a badly constructed Belgian revolver. Maisie could only contribute half a crown to the syndicate for the purchase of a hundred cartridges. "You can save better than I can, Dick," she explained. "I like nice things to eat, and it doesn't matter to you. Besides, boys ought to do these things."

Dick grumbled a little at the arrangement, but went out and made the purchases, which the children were then on their way to test. Revolvers did not lie in the scheme of their daily life as decreed for them by the guardian who was incorrectly supposed to stand in the place of a mother to these two orphans.

Dick had been under her care for six years, during which time she had made her profit of the allowances supposed to be expended on his clothes, and, partly through thoughtlessness, partly through a natural desire to pain—she was a widow of some years, anxious to marry again—had made his days burdensome on his young shoulders. Where he had looked for love she gave him first aversion and then hate. Where he, growing older, had sought a little sympathy, she gave him ridicule. The many hours that she could spare from the ordering of her small house she devoted to what she called the home training of Dick Heldar. Her religion, manufactured in the main by her own intelligence and an ardent study of the Scriptures, was an aid to her in this matter.

At such times as she herself was not personally displeased with Dick she left him to understand that he had a heavy account to settle with his Creator. Wherefore Dick learned to loathe his God as intensely as he loathed Mrs. Jennett, and this is not a wholesome frame of mind for the young. Since she chose to regard him as a hopeless liar, when dread of pain drove him to his first untruth he naturally developed into a liar, but an economical and self contained one, never throwing away the least unnecessary fib and never hesitating at the blackest, if it were only plausible, that might make his life a little easier.

The treatment taught him at least the power of living alone—a power that was of service to him when he went to a public school and the boys laughed at his clothes, which were poor in quality and much mended. In the holidays he returned to the teaching of Mrs. Jennett, and, that the chain of discipline might not be weakened by association with the world, was generally beaten on one count or another before he had been twelve hours under her roof.

The autumn of one year brought him a companion in bondage, a long haired, gray eyed little atom, as self contained as himself, who moved about the house silently, and for the first few weeks spoke only to the goat that was her chiefest friend on earth and lived in the back garden.

Mrs. Jennett objected to the goat on the grounds that he was un-Christian, which he certainly was. "Then," said the atom, choosing her words very deliberately, "I shall write to my lawyer peoples and tell them that you are a very bad woman. Amomma is mine, mine, mine!"

Mrs. Jennett made a movement to the hall, where certain umbrellas and canes stood in a rack. The atom understood as clearly as Dick what this meant. "I have been beaten before," she said still in the same passionate voice. "I have been beaten worse than you can ever beat me. If you beat me, I shall write to my lawyer peoples and tell them that you do not give me enough to eat. I am not afraid of you." Mrs. Jennett did not go into the hall, and the atom, after a pause to assure herself that all danger of war was past, went out to weep bitterly on Amomma's neck.

Dick learned to know her as Maisie, and at first mistrusted her profoundly, for he feared that she might interfere with the small liberty of action left to him. She did not, however, and she volunteered no friendliness until Dick had taken the first steps. Long before the holidays were over the stress of punishment shared in common drove the children together, if it were only to play into each other's hands as they prepared lies for Mrs. Jennett's use.

When Dick returned to school, Maisie whispered: "Now I shall be all alone to take care of myself, but"—and she nodded her head bravely—"I can do it. You promised to send Amomma a brass collar. Send it soon." A week later she asked for that collar by return of post and was not pleased when she learned that it took time to make it. When at last Dick forwarded the gift, she forgot to thank him for it.

Many holidays had come and gone since that day, and Dick had grown into a lanky hobbledehoy, more than ever conscious of his bad clothes. Not for a moment had Mrs. Jennett relaxed her tender care of him, but the average canings of a public school—Dick fell under punishment about three times a month—filled him with contempt for her powers.

"She doesn't hurt," he explained to Maisie, who urged him to rebellion, "and she is kinder to you after she has whacked me." Dick shambled through the days unkempt in body and savage in soul, as the smaller boys of the school learned to know, for when the spirit moved him he would hit them, cunningly and with science.

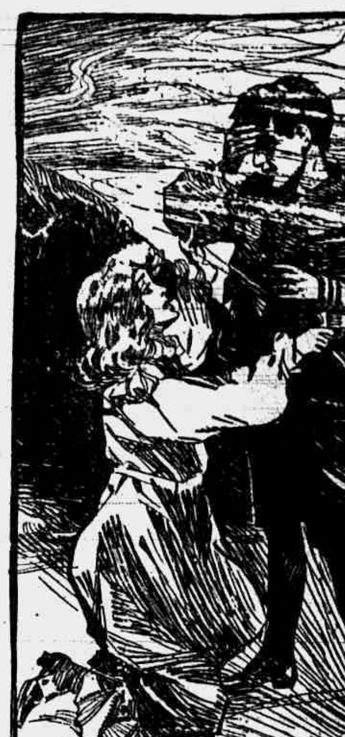
The same spirit made him more than once try to tease Maisie, but the girl refused to be made unhappy. "We are both miserable as it is," said she. "What is the use of trying to make things worse? Let's find things to do, and forget things."

The pistol was the outcome of that search. It could only be used on the muddiest foreshore of the beach, far away from bathing machines and pier heads, below the grassy slopes of Fort Keeling. The tide ran out nearly two miles on that coast, and the many colored mud banks, touched by the sun, sent up a lamentable smell of dead weed. It was late in the afternoon when Dick and Maisie arrived on their ground, Amomma trotting patiently behind.

"Mf!" said Maisie, sniffing the air. "I wonder what makes the sea so smelly. I don't like it."

"You never like anything that isn't made just for you," said Dick bluntly. "Give me the cartridges, and I'll try first shot. How far does one of these little revolvers carry?"

"Oh, half a mile," said Maisie promptly. "At least it makes an awful noise. Be careful with the cartridges. I don't like those jagged stick up things on the rim. Dick, do be careful."



"Dick, you aren't hurt, are you?"

"All right. I know how to load. I'll fire at the breakwater out here."

He fired, and Amomma ran away, bleating. The bullet threw up a spurt of mud to the right of the weed wreathed piles.

"Throws high and to the right. You try, Maisie. Mind, it's loaded all round."

Maisie took the pistol and stepped delicately to the verge of the mud, her hand firmly closed on the butt, her left eye and mouth screwed up. Dick sat down on a tuft of bank and laughed. Amomma returned very cautiously. He was accustomed to strange experiences in his afternoon walks, and, finding the cartridge box unguarded, made investigations with his nose. Maisie fired, but could not see where the bullet went.

"I think it hit the post," she said, shading her eyes and looking out across the sailless sea.

"I know it has gone out to the Marizion bell buoy," said Dick, with a chuckle. "Fire low and to the left. Then perhaps you'll get it. Oh, look at Amomma! He's eating the cartridges!"

Maisie turned the revolver in her hand just in time to see Amomma scampering away from the pebbles Dick threw after him. Nothing is sacred to the billygoat. Being well fed and the adored of his mistress, Amomma had naturally swallowed two loaded pin fire cartridges. Maisie hurried up to assure herself that Dick had not miscounted the tale.

"Yes; he's eaten two!"

"Horrid little beast! Then they'll joggle about inside him and blow up, and serve him right. Oh, Dick, have I killed you?"

Revolvers are tricky things for young hands to deal with. Maisie could not explain how it had happened, but a veil of reeking smoke separated her from Dick, and she was quite certain that the pistol had gone off in his face. Then she heard him sputter, and dropped on her knees beside him, crying: "Dick, you aren't hurt, are you? I didn't mean it."

"Of course you didn't," said Dick, emerging from the smoke and wiping his cheek. "But you nearly blinded me. That powder stuff stings awfully." A neat little splash of gray lead on a stone showed where the bullet had gone. Maisie began to whimper.

"Don't," said Dick, jumping to his feet and shaking himself. "I'm not a bit hurt."

"No, but I might have killed you," protested Maisie, the corners of her mouth drooping. "What should I have done then?"

"Gone home and told Mrs. Jennett." Dick grinned at the thought; then, softening: "Please don't worry about it. Besides, we are wasting time. We've got to get back to tea. I'll take the revolver a bit."

Maisie would have wept on the least encouragement, but Dick's indifference, albeit his hand was shaking as he picked up the pistol, restrained her. She lay panting on the beach while Dick methodically bombarded the breakwater. "Got it at last!" he exclaimed as a lock of weed flew from the wood.

"Let me try," said Maisie imperiously. "I'm all right now." They fired in turns till the rickety little revolver nearly shook itself to pieces, and Amomma the outcast—because he might blow up at any moment—browsed in the background and wondered why stones were thrown at him. Then they found a balk of timber floating in a pool which was commanded by the seaward slope of Fort Keeling, and they sat down together before this new target.

"Next holidays," said Dick as the now thoroughly fouled revolver kicked wildly in his hand, "we'll get another pistol, central fire, that will carry farther."

"There won't be any next holidays for me," said Maisie. "I'm going away."

"Where to?"

"I don't know. My lawyers have written to Mrs. Jennett, and I've got to be educated somewhere—in France, perhaps—I don't know where, but I shall be glad to go away."

"I shan't like it a bit. I suppose I shall be left. Look here, Maisie, is it really true you're going? Then these holidays will be the last I shall see anything of you; and I go back to school next week. I wish"—

The young blood turned his cheeks scarlet. Maisie was picking grass tufts and throwing them down the slope at a yellow sea poppy nodding all by itself to the illimitable levels of the mud flats and the milk white sea beyond.

"I wish," she said after a pause, "that I could see you again some time. You wish that too?"

"Yes, but it would have been better if—if—you had—shot straight over there—down by the breakwater."

Maisie looked with large eyes for a moment. And this was the boy who only ten days before had decorated Amomma's horns with cut paper ham frills and turned him out a bearded derision among the public ways! Then she dropped her eyes. This was not the boy.

"Don't be stupid," she said reprovingly, and with swift instinct attacked the side issue. "How selfish you are! Just think what I should have felt if that horrid thing had killed you! I'm quite miserable enough already."

"Why? Because you're going away from Mrs. Jennett?"

"No."

"From me then?"

No answer for a long time. Dick dared not look at her. He felt, though he did not know, all that the past four years had been to him, and this the more acutely since he had no knowledge to put his feelings in words.

"I don't know," she said. "I suppose it is."

"Maisie, you must know. I'm not supposing."

"Let's go home," said Maisie weakly.

But Dick was not minded to retreat.

"I can't say things," he pleaded, "and I'm awfully sorry for teasing you about Amomma the other day. It's all different now, Maisie, can't you see? And you might have told me that you were going instead of leaving me to find out."

"You didn't. I did tell. Oh, Dick, what's the use of worrying?"

"There isn't any. But we've been together years and years, and I didn't know how much I cared."

"I don't believe you ever did care."

"No, I didn't, but I do. I care awfully now, Maisie," he gulped. "Maisie, darling, say you care, too, please."

"I do. Indeed I do, but it won't be any use."

"Why?"

"Because I am going away."

"Yes, but if you promise before you go. Only say—will you?" A second "darling" came to his lips more easily than the first. There were few endearments in Dick's home or school life. He had to find them by instinct. Dick took the little hand, blackened with the escaped gas of the revolver.

"I promise," she said solemnly, "but if I care there is no need for promising."

"And do you care?" For the first time in the past few minutes their eyes met and spoke for them who had no skill in speech.

"Oh, Dick, don't—please don't! It was all right when we said good morning, but now it's all different." Amomma looked on from afar. He had seen his property quarrel frequently, but he had never seen kisses exchanged before. The yellow sea poppy was wiser and nodded its head approvingly. Considered as a kiss, that was a failure; but since it was the first, other than those demanded by duty, in all the world that either had ever given or taken, it opened to them new worlds, and every one of them glorious, so that they were lifted above the consideration of any worlds at all, especially those in which tea is a necessity, and sat still, holding each other's hands and saying not a word.

"You can't forget now," said Dick at last. There was that on his cheek that stung more than gunpowder.

"I shouldn't have forgotten, anyhow," said Maisie, and they looked at each other and saw that each was changed from the companion of an hour ago to a wonder and a mystery they could not understand. The sun began to set, and a night wind thrashed along the bents of the foreshore.

"We shall be awfully late for tea," said Maisie. "Let's go home."

"Let's use the rest of the cartridges first," said Dick, and he helped Maisie down the slope of the fort to the sea, a descent she was quite capable of accomplishing at full speed. Equally gravely Maisie took the grimy hand. Dick bent forward clumsily. Maisie drew her hand away, and Dick blushed.

Many Sheep Burned Up.

Louisville, Aug. 6.—Fire, caused by lightning, last evening destroyed the Bourbon stock yards and two buildings adjoining. Four hundred and fifty head of sheep were burned. The loss is about $250,000, with insurance one-half. Captain Eberhart Dillman and Pipeman Richard Moore were injured by falling timbers.

Chileans Knock St. Louis Fair.

Santiago de Chile, Aug. 6.—A strong movement against the participation of Chile in the St. Louis exposition has been initiated. The principal papers oppose any official representation at the fair and the commission of deputies considering the matter is also unfavorable to it.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

Council chamber, village of Tecumseh. Regular meeting held Aug. 3, 1903.

Present the entire council. Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The street commissioner's report submitted showing work done in village for month of July:

Fire team labor 25 days 6 hours
Hand labor, 48 days 2 hours	$72.80
Gravel and dirt sold	20.50

Also report of work done from July 20 to Aug. 8:

Fire team labor, 11 days 6 hours
Jno Mull, 11 days 6 hours	$17.40
Chas Saxton, labor, 11 days 6 hours	17.40

Accompanying report was treasurer's receipt for $20.20.

Resolved, That report be accepted and clerk instructed to draw orders for the labor account. Carried.

The following bills were referred to finance committee:

Tecumseh Electric Co.	$204.40
Chilson & Moore, sundries	10.20
Ed Gilles, papering and painting	4.70
Sam Mobbs, street crossings	34.10
Abbie Fisher, ¼ cement walk	24.20
L M Waldron	8.89
John J Orr, sundries	1.60
Geo S Field, printing	4.50
Geo. N Stacy	18.35

The bills were referred back to the council with recommendation that they be allowed.

Resolved, That the clerk be instructed to draw orders for the several amounts and place bills on file. Carried.

Resolved, That Mrs. Morrison be allowed the privilege of paying one-fourth of sidewalk assessment with interest at 5 per cent. to the village treasurer, instead of the whole, and the rest to be spread on the roll of next year's assessment. Carried.

Resolved, That Mrs. C. M. Burlingame be refunded one-fourth of cement walk, as there was an error of this amount in spreading the special tax roll Carried.

Resolved, That the clerk cause another notice to be served on Mrs. A. W. Slayton to build walk on west side of Pearl street, and east side of her lot. Carried.

Resolved, That the protest against building a sewer on Chicago street, as presented, be received and placed on file

Resolved, That the council adjourn. Aye—Heck, Smith and Wagner; nay James, Wright and Marsh. There being a tie the president voted nay.

Resolved, That the matter relative to sewer be laid on table until next regular meeting. Carried.

Resolved, That the street committee be instructed to construct a water main on the north end of main on Union street to Evans creek. Carried.

On motion the council adjourned.

HARRY C. MOORE,
Village Clerk.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introdu ced this y ear. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

LITERARY NOTES.

In the August McClure's is a fine story by James Weber Linn, whose novel, "The Chameleon," brought him to notice as an author of much promise. "The Girl at Duke's" is a love story of the plains that shows the author to be at home in the far west among the scenes and types of the Arizona desert. It is one of the best stories in an unusually good fiction number.

* * *

The pathetic love-story called "The Seventeenth of August, 1844" which Marion Harland prints in the August number of Lippincott's magazine, whether truth or fiction, has the ring of actual life. It pictures a young revivalist of Virginia in love with a frivolous girl who yet had the courage to take her own life when her levity was punished. Marion Harland has rarely written anything more touching and convincing.

* * *

Few subjects have been more copiously discussed and less soundly understood than the principles of municipal school administration. Many persons therefore, will be profitably interested in the notable paper, by William Burnham, upon that subject in the July number of the Atlantic Monthly. Mr. Burnham outlines clearly the leading principles which must be considered in the administration of city schools, the principles inherent in the nature of the school itself, and its purpose in society. He then points out some of the more current evils and fallacies in the conduct of schools, and shows per contra what has been accomplished in the few cities where the reform principles have been followed.

* * *

From certain standpoints the August or Midsummer number of the Critic ranks an exceptional issue. The combination of attractive appearance and make-up, with variety in letterpress, has been attained with measurable success. As befitting the season, the cover represents a young girl with hair wreathed with garlands and brightened by choice blossoms. It is reproduced in three colors and printed on tinted paper from a design by Mr. Ernest Haskell, and the effect is both novel and appealing. The leading article in the August Critic, which is, of course, devoted to the late Pope, is from the pen of Signor Raffaelle Simboli, the well-known Italian correspondent and man-of-letters.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by which strengthens the whole digestive system

Mrs John Werner, who has been ill for some time with enlargement of the lungs, died at her home in Brownville yesterday morning at 8:30. The funeral will be held Saturday at 2 o'clock at her late home. Rev. Seelye will officiate.

John O'Neil, of Toledo, was in Tecumseh yesterday. He is erecting a monument in memory of his daughter in Brookside cemetery. Mr. O'Neil is remembered by many people here, having for many years been a resident of Tecumseh.

I have two good building lots for sale at a bargain. One on Maiden Lane near West Branch school and one at corner of Pottawatamie street and Maumee street. See me and I will tell you how to get a home cheap.

THIS TIME DUNDEE

Went down before Tecumseh's Strong Aggregation

DUNDEE IN NAME ONLY

As the entire "bunch" were from Toledo.

A special train, with two well filled coaches, came up from Dundee yesterday afternoon to see the Dundee team (all imported from Toledo) "do up" the Tecumseh nine. They went home sadder, if not wiser, and with their fond hopes blasted.

In the box they had George, the Indian pitcher from Canada, who is now signed with Strobel's Toledo league team. The Indian, however, did not seem to cause our boys any uneasiness, as they made nine hits off him, one of them a triple and two of them 2-baggers, while he failed to strike out a single man.

Gilbert pitched his usual fine game for the locals, striking out 9 men and allowing but two hits.

While the error column was larger than it usually is, there was some pretty work done by both teams, among which may be mentioned a difficult catch of a hot liner by Hadley in the 3rd and a fine running catch by Russell of Striker's fly in Tecumseh's half of the third, which cut off a probable score.

A double play, Hadley to Knickerbocker to Beasley, in the 6th, was one of the fastest of the season.

The only Dundee boy in the team was on the bench as reserve man, and he works in Toledo. The game was close and interesting from start to finish and was witnessed by a large crowd.

BASE BALL NOTES.

How could Dundee expect to win with only two hits?

The Mt. Pleasant ball team who play in Tecumseh next Monday and Tuesday, defeated the Ionias yesterday by a score of 3 to 6.

Pitcher Angus George, of the Toledo American League, who holds a record of 26 games out of 27 played, went down to defeat before the Tecumseh team, they finding him easy.

A hot game anticipated tomorrow. Clinton informs Tecumseh that they have a South Bend battery, and we are also informed they have a solid fielding outfit from among Detroit players.

Dundee scored its second run on a fluke. Beasley captured a difficult foul over the fence, back of first, and before he could recover, the runner at second raced for third and came home on Beasley's wild throw.

THE SEWER.

The Property Owners were Asked to Appear at the COUNCIL ROOMS

Last Monday Evening and Present a Remonstrance, if they had any, against Building the Sewer on Chicago Street.

For some weeks there has been an agitation in the village, concerning the building of a sewer on Chicago street from the west end of the street to the river. By a petition of the citizens the council secured the services of engineers who drafted a plan of the sewer and estimated the expense of building, and it is now "up to" the council to decide whether the sewer shall be built or not.

According to the law the vote of the council decides the matter and the law does not state that the members of the council shall be influenced in any way by petitions or anything else in their decision. But as the members of the council are elected by the people, there is no doubt they will in a measure be influenced by the feelings of the citizens who are mostly interested and have to pay the BURDEN OF THE TAX.

The plan as is now proposed is that the city shall pay about one-fourth of the tax, about $1500.00, and the abutting property owners about three-fourths, or $4500.00, the property to be assessed according to the value of their property.

The last petition in favor of the sewer was signed by 53 Chicago street property owners. The petition of remonstrance contained about 200 names but only 62 were Chicago street property owners and 12 of these names were also on the contra petition, so that there was in reality one more Chicago street property owner in favor of the sewer than against it. And, according to the sewer assessment, two dollars are for it to one against.

It is as certain that Tecumseh needs a sewer as that we have a good system of water works. I was not a resident of Tecumseh when the system of water works was built, but men who were here at that time tell me there was a much stronger opposition to the building of the water works than to the sewer now, and if a vote could be taken today as to the benefit of the water works to Tecumseh, it would carry in its favor four to one.

I can well remember when the council purchased the fire engine, and at that time there was a strong contingent who favored the bucket brigade, instead of the proposed new way of fighting fire.

The few people on Chicago street who do not wish this sewer, are more afraid of the new idea than of the dollars it will cost. The council can arrange to have the taxes come due in five equal payments, so it will be easy for all to raise the money, and it is the duty of the council to ORDER THE SEWER BUILT.

The majority of property owners in Tecumseh will spend their days here. With good sewerage, Tecumseh is the best kept, best lighted and handsomest town in Michigan. We are all of us proud of our homes, proud of our village and will never stop in the necessary improvements for the lack of a few paltry dollars which no one will miss at the end of the first year.

It is not the purpose of the HERALD to single out one person in urging this sewer improvement, but for example, Dr. J. F. Jenkins is said to be opposed to the sewer. He owns one of the handsomest and most comfortable homes in Tecumseh. If I remember correctly the sewer tax assessed to him would be $39.00. The doctor is a progressive, well-to-do, earnest citizen, with the interest of the village at heart. Has any one any idea he could be induced to do without using the sewer at his beautiful Chicago street residence, at an expense of $39, if it would cost $500 to make the necessary connections. The doctor is simply opposed to the NEW IDEA and in five years will raise up both hands and bless the council for ordering the sewer put in.

The sewer MUST COME SOONER OR LATER. The time to have it is now and the place to start the sewer is at the head of Chicago street, which will make it a permanent improvement.

REV. NICKERSON

Pastor of Presbyterian church at Olena was given a

HEARTY RECEPTION

By his Admiring Congregation. He was formerly pastor at Britton.

On Wednesday evening of this week, as the Rev. N. F. Nickerson was returning home from prayer service in the church, he saw the residence of Mr. James Stone, where he resides, lighted up from top to bottom and the lawn gailey decorated with Chinese lanterns. As he had not learned of any festivities planned he was puzzled to understand the situation. But when, on reaching the house, he was greeted by a hundred or more of his congregation with hearty welcomings, he understood why he had been left out of the list of invited guests. But the shock (?) of surprise was still intensified when he was led up to a beautiful oaken chair of antique pattern, and a footrest, and told that these were gifts from his grateful people, who wished to make things easy and restful for him in his study.

The reverend gentleman replied to the presentation speech with well chosen remarks expressive of his appreciation of these tokens of his people's loving regard, and made all feel quite happy.

A portion of the evening was devoted to a program consisting of music and tableaux. These latter were given out of doors on the lawn and were illuminated with tableau powder and presented exceedingly fascinating scenes. After this a bountiful supper was served, which became a morning breakfast before all could be served and nobody retired until "the wee sma' hours" of the morn.

Such occasions are certainly very gratifying to both pastor and people and serve to cement more closely the bond of christian love amongst them.—Norwalk, O. Daily Reflector.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR.

Hundreds of Tecumseh Citizens can tell you all about it.

Home endorsement, the public expression of Tecumseh people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Tecumseh reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in far-away places. Read the following:

Mr. S. Erskine, proprietor of the well known barber shop, says: "For ten years off and on I had a dull pain in my back, imperfect action of the kidneys, and often I could hardly stoop or get up again. I think it was caused by standing so much at my work. Be that as it may I was in bad shape. I used a great many medicines, but without receiving much benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my notice and I got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. I must confess that I was agreeably surprised, for after using one box I was much relieved. After the use of two boxes my back is stronger and better than it has been for a long time. Doan's Kidney Pills are the best medicine I have ever used and I have such faith in them, I believe I will be conferring a kindness on those suffering from kidney trouble in making known their merits."

WHEN THE NERVES ARE SHATTERED.

When the nerves are shattered one cannot think, work, eat, sleep or accomplish anything.

It's a case of force all the time—a continued effort to keep going—no life—no energy—no ambition—upset at anything — nervous headaches — crying spells—fits of depression and utter despondency. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills cure this condition to stay cured by rebuilding the shattered nervous system—nourishing the nerve centers and resupplying what is lacking—the active principal of life—Nerve Force.

Mrs. B. E. Gray of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "Last summer I had an attack of fever which left me weak, dizzy and my nerves shattered. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and found them splendid, the medicine put me on my feet again rapidly and easily, nerves firm and steady, general health and strength splendid and not a vestige of dizziness. I think the medicine unequaled in such troubles and strongly recommend it." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. MAY LIBERATE HIM

Parole For Frank C. Andrews, the Noted Bank Breaker

EXPECTED FROM GOV. BLISS

Detroit's Once Noted Financier Promises to Pay Every Dollar He Owes If Given Liberty—Immediate Action Is Expected.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 6.—Men who have been working up sentiment among the victims of the Detroit City Savings bank, which Frank C. Andrews wrecked, have so far succeeded that they have been able to gather together a number of requests to the governor for his release. The governor himself, having rewarded Thomas J. Navin with a seat on the state prison board of control, has apparently been induced to grant this last favor to Navin's comrade and co-worker at once.

"Unless our plans miscarry," said this man, "Governor Bliss will sign Andrews' parole before the week expires. Andrews' friends hope and believe that Governor Bliss will stand by his promise this time."

As far as can be learned, the advisory board in the matter of pardons has not taken any action on the matter. The achievement lies with the governor acting singly and alone. It is this directness of responsibility that causes the Andrews clientele to fear, and yet it is their only hope.

A straight pardon, it is stated, might leave Andrews liable to trial on another charge, while a parole will leave him more serenly his own master and als oavoid the possibility of confusion or worse, that might arise over the absolute release of a prisoner who has not served half his sentence.

The Arguments Used.

The argument is used that as a free man he will be able to straighten out the affairs of the institution he ruined and make more adequate restitution to the depositors than can any other man or men. The considerations that have been urged on the governor are something like these:

"It is Andrews' desire to pay all his creditors every dollar he owes them and that the bank owes them, and if he is given a chance he will do so. He wants to clear his name for his son's sake, and if he is kept in prison and 'his' property confiscated he will be a total wreck when his term expires. 'His' residence in Detroit was sold for $56,000 and the rents realized out of the property amounted to $18,000 a year. 'His' farm was sold for much less than it cost to plant the shrubbery."

Frank C. Andrews was committed to state's prison at Jackson on Nov. 13, 1903, to serve a fifteen-year sentence for the wreck of the City Savings bank of Detroit. During his incarceration he has been allowed all the privileges that could be given him. He was so pleased with his treatment that he gave Warden Vincent his personal indorsement as a first-class official.

Wants Tobacco Confiscated.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 6.—Claiming that the conditions under which cigars are made at Marquette prison threaten the public health, Deputy Labor Commissioner McLeod of Detroit asks power to confiscate the product, and will consult the attorney-general, with the consent of Commissioner Griswold. McLeod watched the convicts at their work on a recent visit of inspection and says it is the invariable practice to moisten the tips in the mouth before winding the wrapper down. Some of the prisoners are plainly diseased, and he believes the filthy practice endangers the health of smokers.

For Monument at Andersonville.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 6.—The members of the Andersonville monument commission met with Governor Bliss Wednesday and decided to call for designs for the monument to be submitted at a meeting here September 21. It is the purpose of the commission to make an early selection of a design so that the contract can be executed in time to permit the monument to be dedicated next Memorial day.

New Church Organ Burned.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 6.—Fire broke out in the organ loft of the Central Christian church, at the corner of Second avenue and Ledyard street, shortly before 1 o'clock yesterday noon and the fine new instrument, which was valued at about $2,500, was almost totally destroyed. What the flames did not lick up the firemen and water finished.

Killed After Celebrating.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 6.—James Tolliver, colored, of Battle Creek, who celebrated emancipation day here, attempted to board a train for home yesterday, and was instantly killed by falling under the wheels. He pushed through the gates after the train was in motion. Tolliver is said to have been under the influence of liquor.

Crushed to Death.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 6.—Chas. Patton, aged 55, trucking a ten-ton load of machinery to the freight depot, got caught between his load and a fence Wednesday afternoon and his life was crushed out. He leaves a widow and four children.

Blew Out the Gas.

Atlantic City, Aug. 6.—Pearce Thaxton of Millersburg, Ky., aged 20 years, was found dead in bed in his room Wednesday. Deceased registered at a prominent beach front hotel with five friends. When he arrived, two days ago, he told the bellboy of the hotel that this was his first trip away from home, and asked him to show how the gas was used. Tuesday night Thaxton retired early. When he failed to rise in the morning the door of his room was forced open and the young man was found dead in bed. He had evidently blown out the gas.

Another Drowning at Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—Harrison Dunn, the 15-year-old son of Fred Dunn, was drowned Wednesday in St. Clair river while swimming. Young Dunn began to call for help, but his companions and some other people on the bank thought he was fooling until he sank from sight. His body has not been recovered. This is about the tenth drowning at Port Huron this season.

JUDSON IS DEAD

State Oil Inspector Dies Very Suddenly.

AT HIS HOME IN ANN ARBOR

Sharp Pain Over Heart Alarmed Him—Doctor Temporarily Gave Relief—Prominent Republican For Twenty-five Years.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 5.—Hon. William Judson, state oil inspector, died at his home a few minutes before 9 o'clock last evening. Yesterday he complained of a sharp pain over his heart and Dr. Lynds was called, who gave him some tablets. He was down town in the morning and talked with friends as usual, and no one suspected his end was so near. He ate his supper last evening as usual and read the paper, as was his custom.

During the evening the pain returned and became so severe that he retired, and an effort was made to summon Dr. Lynds again. Not being able to get him, Dr. Belser was called, but before he arrived Judson was dead.

Mr. Judson was born Oct. 13, 1842, in Sylvan township, his father being William Judson, who had immigrated from Lincolnshire, England, and his mother, Jane, from Ireland. All the education he received was in the district school in his town. He left home when 17 years of age, going to work at $5 a month. He cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln as president, and has voted for every succeeding republican presidential candidate.

A Prominent Republican.

For the past 25 years Mr. Judson has been a prominent delegate at nearly every republican state convention. In 1899 he was appointed state oil inspector by Gov. Pingree.

In 1866 he married Fannie I. Morton, who, with two children, Mrs. John Schlee and Arthur Judson, of this city, survive him.

Michigan Inventors.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Michigan patents were issued Tuesday as follows: George A. Archambault, Clare, sack scale; George Banks, Greenville, hook; George Brady, Jackson, machine for molding concrete blocks; August S. Cramer, Coopersville, mold for concrete walls; Elliot H. Crane, Kalamazoo, fishing rod; Joseph F. Genta, Mt. Clemens, machine for splitting kernels of Indian corn; also bolting reel; also apparatus for determination and decortication of Indian corn; James E. Harkins and J. B. Willis, Ann Arbor, toaster; Charles I. Huxley, Athens, fence fastener; George W. Lilley, Lapeer, land roller; James M. MacDonald, Detroit, machine for grading tablets; J. L. Pilling and R. J. Kruz, Port Huron, motor; David J. Richards, Baltimore, synchronizer; Theo. A. Seitz, Grand Rapids, electric motor; Sylvanus Stevens, Grayling, salt cellar; David K. Stone, Bloomingdale, vehicle pole tip; Edward Tannewitz, Grand Rapids, furniture coupling; James E. Twitchell, Detroit, coat hanger.

Eloped With Wife's Niece.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 5.—Will Meyers, an ice man, and Bertie Goodman, a niece of Will's wife, have eloped, so declares the unfortunate Mrs. Meyers, who is still living at 333 Monroe avenue. Meyers, who is 35 years old, and Miss Goodman disappeared three weeks ago. For some time Meyers had been paying far more attention to the handsome niece, aged 17, than to his wife, the latter claims. Miss Goodman had been boarding with the Meyers family.

Lineman Electrocuted.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 5.—Matthew Curran Eardley, a lineman on the street railway, while working on a Monroe street pole Tuesday afternoon came in contact with a live wire and was instantly killed. The body hung suspended until lowered with a rope, and a great crowd gathered to see the gruesome sight. Eardley was 25 years old and was to have been married soon to Miss Anna Kerscham.

Want Cumins Pardoned.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 5.—An effort is being made to secure the parole or pardon of Albert B. Cumins of this county, who was sent to the Jackson prison nearly two years ago for five years for obtaining money under false pretenses. It is reported that he is suffering from heart trouble, which is aggravated by his confinement, and that if kept there he will not live out his term.

Hundreds of Chinese Drowned.

Berlin, Aug. 6.—A dispatch received here says 700 persons were drowned in the disastrous floods which occured at Che Foo, China, July 27. The bridges within the city and many houses with their occupants were swept away in the torrent. Two thousand of the inhabitants are left without means of subsistence.

Robbed the Mint.

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—Robert J. Kilpatrick, employed as a laborer at the United States mint, in this city, has been arrested by secret service operatives charged with stealing 868 silver dollars from a vault. The money was stolen while the coins in the mint were being transferred from one vault to another. The robbery occurred in December and January last. The coins were in canvas bags and boxes. A loose dollar aroused suspicion and led to the discovery. During the search a penknife with which the packages had been opened was found and led to the identification of Kilpatrick.

Nipped Elopement In Bud.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 6.—Garina Joseph, the beautiful Assyrian woman who eloped some time ago with George Zeha, the Beau Brummel of the colony, and is suing her husband, Peter Joseph, for a divorce, was the heroine in another elopement, which was nipped in the bud. There is a capias out for George for alienating Garina's affection from her husband, and he has located in Sarnia. He took two Indians into his confidence and they were to come to the Harrington hotel and Garina was to meet them and flee with them in a boat across the St. Clair river. Sheriff Davidson heard of the plot and nipped it in the bud. The Indians, who belong to the Sarnia reservation, skipped out in time to avoid arrest. Garina is still at work and George, her lover, is waiting on the shores of Canada for another opportunity to come.

To Sacrifice Her Babe.

Corunna, Mich., Aug. 6.—Mrs. Edward Hath of Perry has been adjudged insane in the probate court and was taken to the asylum at Pontiac. Mrs. Hath is 38 years of age and has a babe 18 months old. She was not allowed to take the child, as she recently declared "the Lord has commanded me to kill my daughter as a sacrifice." The woman is insane over religion.

Honor and Temperance.

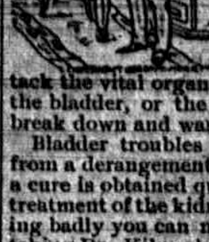
Missing Hunter Found Dead.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 6.—The body of Samuel Charles, who disappeared Sunday morning, was found Wednesday on the farm of George Perry, of Lake Cognac, with a big hole in the side of his head. Charles was hunting and his gun evidently exploded, accidently. He was about 20 years of age.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.



There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Who is powerful? He who can control his passions. Who is rich? He who is contented with what he has.

Eczema, scald head, hives, itchiness of the skin of any sort instantly relieved, permanently cured. Doan's Ointment. At any drug store.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

342 1-2 Congress St.,
PORTLAND, MAINE, Oct. 17, 1902.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina [illegible]

Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

A MAGNIFICENT CEREMONY

People Manifested Great Enthusiasm as Pope Appeared—Cardinal Macchi Placed Crown Upon His Head—Pontiff Exceedingly Fatigued.

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X took place Sunday in the Basilica of St. Peter's in the presence of the princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles and with all the splendor and solemnity associated with this the most magnificent rite in the Roman catholic church.

As Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the cardinal-deacons, placed the triple crown on the head of the venerable pontiff, the throng of seventy thousand persons gathered within the cathedral burst into unrestrained acclamations, the choir intoned a hymn of triumph and the bells of Rome rang out a joyful peal.

It is fifty-seven years since the Romans and Europe assisted at such a function as was held at St. Peter's Sunday. The great Basilica, popularly supposed never to have been quite full, was overflowing with humanity. The papal throne, a bewildering mixture of gold, red and silver, was erected in front of the high altar. On the altar, which was dressed in white, stood the famous silver gilt candlesticks and a magnificent crucifix.

At 6 a. m. the ringing of bells announced the imminent opening of the doors and a commotion at once began among the crowd. The police and Italian soldiers had a difficult task to maintain order, as the crushing and fatigue had begun to tell on the patience of the people.

Lifted Off Their Feet.

When the doors were opened the inrush was terrific, many who started from the bottom of the steps outside were lifted off their feet and carried into the cathedral. It was a great human torrent let loose, thousands of people rushing, crushing and squeezing, mid screams, protests, gesticulation and cries for help. But once in the whirlpool there was no escape and the compactness of the crowd proved to be the safety of those caught in it. Women fainted in comparatively large numbers and even men were overcome by the heat, but no serious accidents were reported. After their entrance the people had long hours of waiting, and it is computed that the majority were on their feet altogether ten hours, five before the ceremony and another five hours while it lasted.

Those who had received special invitations, including the high ecclesiastics, had a reserved entrance through the sacristy of St. Peter's.

Inside the Vatican palace there was no less movement and bustle as the papal procession, composed of about 500 persons, all of whom had gathered early in the apostolic palace, was formed. The pope seemed to be the only tranquil one amongst them all. He rose unusually early and took a stroll in the Vatican garden.

The central figure in the long cortege was Pius X, borne in the Sedia Gestatoria. His heavy white robes and the red and gold mitre were worn without an effort. Over the pontiff's head a canopy was held by eight men, while the historic ostrich feather fans, with peacock tips, gave a touch of barbaric splendor to western eyes.

The Crownbearer.

Surrounding Pope Pius were the noble guard in new red uniforms, while in front marched the cardinals. Another figure which evoked murmurs of admiration was the chaplain in his crimson cape, proudly bearing the cushion on which reposed the famous tripple crown, so soon to rest on the head of Pius. He was followed by the choir of the Sistine chapel in white, which sang as it went along.

Before leaving the Vatican the pope went to the Sistine chapel to worship before the sacrament exposed therein.

The procession proceeded to the door of the Basilica, through which Pius X cast an almost terror-stricken glance, whispering to Dr. Lapponi, "shall I ever be able to go through it?"

The people in the Basilica had meantime become very impatient and when the gleaming cross which preceded the cortege was seen it was greeted with great applause.

On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, our pope, our father," and "long live Pius X," were heard, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the Basilica saying: "Acclamations are forbidden." The cries continued until the pontiff was compelled to rise and bless the multitude. The quaint ceremony was then carried out.

The master of the ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp which surmounted a silver torch and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted "Pater Sancte, sic Transit Gloria Mundi" (Holy Father, thus passeth away the glory of the world).

The procession then proceeded. At the chapel of the sacrament there was another halt and his holiness left the Sedia Gestatoria and prayed at the altar. On re-entering the chair he was carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass. Then all the cardinals donned their silver copes and white mitres, and the pope was borne to the throne amid renewed acclamations and waving of handkerchiefs, fans and hats.

The scene presented on his mounting the throne formed a magnificent picture, to which no pen could do justice. The central figure was the venerable pontiff seated on the throne. Two lines of cardinals clad in silver and scarlet reached to the high altar with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials. Over head was the most magnificent dome in the world, up to which floated the harmony of the music.

From the throne Pius X, surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar standing over the crypt of St. Peter's, into which meanwhile Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The appearance of the pope in that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar.

Cardinals Kissed His Feet.

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony. Following this, Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the pope, [illegible] subsequently kissed three [illegible] on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Segna and Vannutelli. Upon the pope's return to the throne the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hand and feet, and being embraced by him twice in return. The holy father then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The whole sacred college gathered about the pope singing Palestrina's "Corona Aurea Super Capute Ejus," while the choir burst forth into song. Cardinal Macchi then recited "Pater Noster" and offered a prayer.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre and Senior Cardinal Macchi placed on the venerable white head the tripple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets, the triumphant strains of the choir and the acclamations of the multitude, which could no longer be repressed.

"Receive the tiara ornamented with three crowns. Remember thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Savior, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen, amen," burst forth from the concourse.

Pope Pius was quite overcome and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinal Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present, and the procession then re-formed and left the Basilica in the same form as it came.

The pope was visibly fatigued and his right hand shook as he raised it time after time to bestow his blessing.

When the ceremony was over all the exits to the Basilica were opened and within less than an hour the vast cathedral was empty.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Weds a Countess' Brother.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 8.—Society in this city is agog over the announcement made today by John W. Thompson, a prominent coal dealer, of the engagement of his daughter, Miss Mary Harrington Thompson, a leading socity belle of this city, to Joseph Copley Thaw, son of the late William Thaw, of Pittsburg, and brother of Miss Alice Cornelia Thaw, who in April last became the wife of the earl of Yarmouth.

William Judson's Funeral.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 8.—Short funeral services were held Friday morning at the late residence of Oil Inspector Judson, before the remains were taken to Chelsea. Among those present were Governor Bliss, Secretary of State Warner and Senator Alger's private secretary, John W. Perkins. The Ann Arbor lodge of Elks attended in a body.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults It never fails and is pleasant to take. FEARS BEING LYNCHED.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—Charles Thomas, colored, aged 27, when brought into police headquarters yesterday confessed he was wanted for the murder of another colored man at Athens, Ga.

Thomas has been living at 362 Macomb street ever since a year ago last July under the name of Gaston Brown. It took the detectives only two hours to discover him after receiving a letter from the Augusta police.

Thomas states that he owed the man 10 cents. One afternoon a year ago last March, he says, his creditor went after him with a club and split his head open. He was knocked down and while in that position says he pulled a knife from his pocket and began to thrust upwards until his antagonist arose. Later he learned that the man had died and he fled.

Thomas says he fears to return to the south for fear he will be lynched. His plea not to be taken back was most pitiful. He says if the deed had been committed in the north there would be no doubt of the result.

Age Won Her Honors.

Adrian, Mich., Aug. 8.—The annual picnic of the Lenawee County Pioneer and Historical society at the fair grounds here Friday was an unqualified success in every sense. Three thousand people, mostly old folks, were on hand. Interest centered about Mrs. Marie Hixon of Clinton, who is 104 years old and has lived in the county upwards of seventy years. President Knapp arranged for her to come to the picnic in an automobile, and the trip was successfully made. After the exercises were over she rode out of the grounds in great state homeward bound.

More Rural Routes.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Rural routes established in Michigan to commence service Sept. 15: Cadillac, Wexford county (route 1), length of route 21 miles, population served, 544; Evart, Osceola county (route 1), length of route 23 miles, population served 544; Merrill, Saginaw county (additional service route 4), length of route 21 miles, population served 549. Elisha E. Berthal has been appointed rural carrier to fill a vacancy at Ida; John Heckles, sub.

The Attendance Reduced.

Coldwater, Mich., Aug. 8.—Records at the state public school show that when the institution was opened there were 600 children living in county poor houses in Michigan. Now, although the population has increased nearly 90 per cent since the opening of the school, there are only 200 children here, and none in the poor houses, the rest being at good homes in the state under the care and surveillance of the state school.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

DID HE POISON HER?

Detroit Woman Swallowed Carbolic Acid—Husband Arrested.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—Carbolic acid, whether self-administered or otherwise, is responsible for the presence in Maney's morgue of the lifeless body of Mrs. Gusta Hischke, aged 23, of 873 Farnsworth avenue. The husband of the dead woman, August Hischke, aged 24, is locked up at the Chene street station, and opposite his name is registered a charge of suspicion. The man declares the woman took the poison in a fit of anger.

It seems that neighbors had heard the husband and wife quarreling and notofied the police. Upon their arrival the husband was found in the yard, but the wife was discovered in the house on the bed, her face and mouth terribly burned by carbolic acid. Hischke informed the police he had no intimation of what his wife had done, save hearing a small bottle fall to the floor. The bottle, however, was found concealed in the stove.

FIVE ITALIANS DROWNED.

Boat Containing the Men Capsized Near Norway.

Norway, Mich., Aug. 10.—Five Italians were drowned Sunday at Vulcan, two miles from Norway. The accident was caused by the capsizing of the boat containing the men 100 yards from shore. All were single men except one, who had a wife in Italy.

His Arm Torn Off.

Three Rivers, Mich., Aug. 10.—Roy Jackson, the 15-year-old son of Beecher Jackson, one of the contrators on the big bridge here, lost an arm at the pumphouse of the Michigan Central railroad in a horrible manner Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, the member being torn from the body at the shoulder.

Young Jackson, in company with Charles Hessemer, son of the engineer at the pumphouse, went to the place, unknown to the latter, the boy having secured the key. It is thought Jackson had reached through the wheel to wipe some of the bright parts of the pump and that his companion accidentally or carelessly started the machinery, as he had seen his father do.

The boy's injuries were attended promptly and he stood the operation well. His father is in Chicago.

Unknown Man Killed.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 8.—The body of an unknown man was found lying beside the Grand Trunk track a mile east of Otterburn Friday morning. The body was horribly mangled, the legs and arms being cut off. No papers or other means of identification was found on the body.

Discovered Oil.

Rogers, Mich., Aug. 8.—Oil has been discovered on the farm of August Barbas, six miles from this village. Some capitalists have leased his land and will begin drilling at once. Great excitement prevails and other persons are endeavoring to get control of adjoining lands.

Over 30,000 Delegates.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 8.—The official report made by L. W. Austin, in charge of the Epworth League ticket agency, to the reception committee shows that [illegible] delegates attended the recent monster convention.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

"It's very pretty," he said.

"Pooh!" said Maisie, with a little laugh of gratified vanity. She stood close to Dick as he loaded the revolver for the last time and fired across the sea with a vague notion at the back of his head that he was protecting Maisie from all the evils of the world. A puddle far across the mud caught the last rays of the sun and turned into a wrathful red disk. The light held Dick's attention for a moment, and as he raised his revolver there fell upon him a renewed sense of the miraculous, in that he was standing by Maisie, who had promised to care for him for an indefinite length of time till such date as— A gust of the growing wind drove the girl's long black hair across his face as she stood with her hand on his shoulder calling Amomma "a little beast," and for a moment he was in the dark—a darkness that stung. The bullet went singing out to the empty sea.

"Spoiled my aim," said he, shaking his head. "There aren't any more cartridges. We shall have to run home." But they did not run. They walked very slowly arm in arm. And it was a matter of indifference to them whether the neglected Amomma, with two pin fire cartridges in his inside, blew up or trotted beside them, for they had come into a golden heritage and were disposing of it with all the wisdom of their years.

"And I shall be"—quoth Dick valiantly. Then he checked himself. "I don't know what I shall be. I don't seem to be able to pass any exams., but I can make awful caricatures of the master. Ho, ho!"

"Be an artist, then," said Maisie. "You're always laughing at my trying to draw, and it will do you good."

"I'll never laugh at anything you do," he answered. "I'll be an artist, and I'll do things."

"Artists always want money, don't they?"

"I've got £120 a year of my own. My guardians tell me I'm to have it when I come of age. That will be enough to begin with."

"Ah, I'm rich," said Maisie. "I've got £300 a year all my own when I'm twenty-one. That is why Mrs. Jennett is kinder to me than she is to you. I wish, though, that I had somebody that belonged to me—just a father or a mother."

"You belong to me," said Dick, "for ever and ever."

"I know I do. It's very nice." She squeezed his arm. The kindly darkness hid them both, and, emboldened because he could only just see the profile of Maisie's cheek, with the long lashes veiling the gray eyes, Dick at the front door delivered himself of the words he had been boggling over for the last two hours.

"And I—I love you, Maisie," he said in a whisper that seemed to him to ring across the world—the world that he would tomorrow or the next day set out and conquer.

There was a scene, not, for the sake of discipline, to be reported, when Mrs. Jennett would have fallen upon him, first for disgraceful unpunctuality, and secondly for nearly killing himself with a forbidden weapon.

"I was playing with it, and it went off by itself," said Dick when the powder packed cheek could no longer be hidden, "but if you think you're going to lick me you're wrong. You are never going to touch me again. Sit down and give me my tea. You can't cheat us out of that anyhow."

Mrs. Jennett gasped and became livid. Maisie said nothing, but encouraged Dick with her eyes, and he behaved abominably all that evening. Mrs. Jennett prophesied an immediate judgment of Providence and a descent into Tophet later. But Dick walked in paradise and would not hear. Only when he was going to bed Mrs. Jennett recovered and asserted herself. He had bidden Maisie good night with down dropped eyes and from a distance.

"If you aren't a gentleman, you might try to behave like one," said Mrs. Jennett spitefully. "You've been quarreling with Maisie again."

This meant that the regulation good night kiss had been omitted. Maisie, white to the lips, thrust her cheek forward with a fine air of indifference and was duly pecked by Dick, who tramped out of the room red as fire. That night he dreamed a wild dream. He had won all the world and brought it to Maisie in a cartridge box, but she turned it over with her foot and instead of saying, "Thank you," cried:

"Where is the brass collar you promised for Amomma? Oh, how selfish you are!"

CHAPTER II.

Then we brought the lances down, then the bugles blew,
When we went to Kandahar, ridin' two an' two,
Ridin', ridin', ridin', two an' two,
Ta-ra-ra-ra-ra-ra-ra,
All the way to Kandahar, ridin' two an' two.
—Barrack Room Ballad.

"I'M not angry with the British public, but I do wish we had a few thousand of them scattered among these rocks. They wouldn't be in such a hurry to get at their morning papers then. Can't you imagine the regulation householder—Lover of Justice, Constant Reader, Paterfamilias and all that lot—frizzling on hot gravel?"

"With a blue veil over his head and his clothes in strips. Has any man here a needle? I've got a piece of sugar sack."

"I'll lend you a packing needle for six square inches of it, then. Both my knees are worn through."

"Why not six square acres while you're about it? But lend me the needle, and I'll see what I can do with the selvage. I don't think there's enough to protect my royal body from the cold blast as it is. What are you doing with that everlasting sketchbook of yours, Dick?"

"Study of our special correspondent repairing his wardrobe," said Dick gravely as the other man kicked off a pair of sorely worn riding breeches and began to fit a square of coarse canvas over the most obvious open space. He grunted disconsolately as the vastness of the void developed itself.

"Sugar bags, indeed! Hi, you pilot man there! Lend me all the sails of that whaleboat."

A fez crowned head bobbed up in the stern sheets, divided itself into exact halves with one flashing grin and bobbed down again. The man of the battered breeches, clad only in a Norfolk jacket and a gray flannel shirt, went on with his clumsy sewing, while Dick chuckled over his sketch.

Some twenty whaleboats were nuzzling a sand bank which was dotted with English soldiery of half a dozen corps, bathing or washing their clothes. A heap of boat rollers, commissariat boxes, sugar bags and flour and small arm ammunition cases showed where one of the whaleboats had been compelled to unload hastily, and a regimental carpenter was swearing aloud as he tried on a wholly insufficient allowance of white lead to plaster up the sun parched gaping seams of the boat herself.

"First the bloomin' rudder snaps," said he to the world in general; "then the mast goes, an' then, s' 'elp me, when she can't do nothin' else she opens 'erself out like a cock eyed Chinese lotus."

"Exactly the case with my breeches, whoever you are," said the tailor, without looking up. "Dick, I wonder when I shall see a decent shop again."

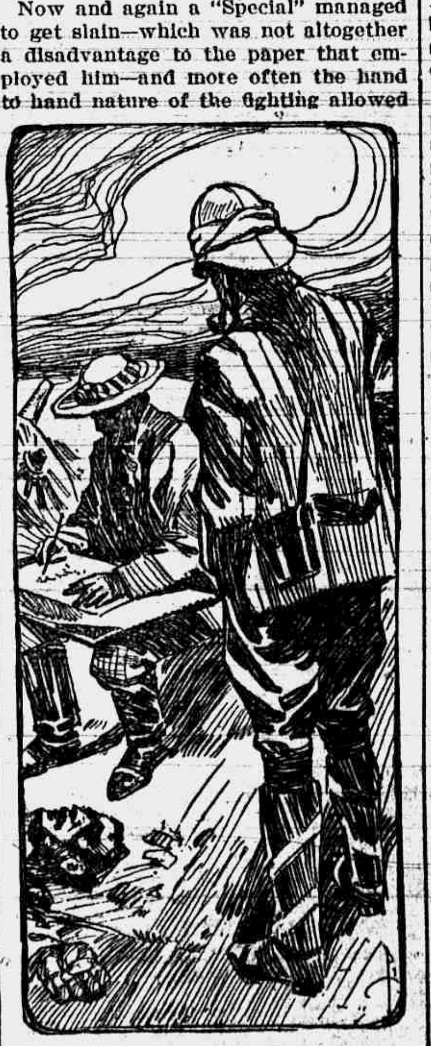
There was no answer save the incessant angry murmur of the Nile as it raced round a basalt walled bend and foamed across a rock ridge half a mile up stream. It was as though the brown weight of the river would drive the white men back to their own country. The indescribable weight of the Nile mud in the air told that the stream was falling and that the next few miles would be no light thing for the whaleboats to overpass.

The desert ran down almost to the banks, where among gray, red and black hillocks a camel corps was encamped. No man dared, even for a day, lose touch of the slow moving boats. There had been no fighting for weeks past, and throughout all that time the Nile had never spared them. Rapid had followed rapid, rock rock, and island group island group, till the rank and file had long since lost all count of direction and very nearly of time. They were moving somewhere, they did not know why, to do something, they did not know what. Before them lay the Nile, and at the other end of it was one Gordon, fighting for dear life, in a town called Khartum.

There were columns of British troops in the desert, or in one of the many deserts; there were columns on the river; there were yet more columns waiting to embark on the river; there were fresh drafts waiting at Assiut and Assouan; there were lies and rumors running over the face of the hopeless land from Suakim to the Sixth cataract, and men supposed generally that there must be some one in authority to direct the general scheme of the many movements. The duty of that particular river column was to keep the whaleboats afloat in the water, to avoid trampling on the villagers' crops when the gangs "tracked" the boats with lines thrown from midstream, to get as much sleep and food as was possible and, above all, to press on without delay in the teeth of the churning Nile.

With the soldiers sweated and toiled the correspondents of the newspapers, and they were almost as ignorant as their companions. But it was above all things necessary that England at breakfast should be amused and thrilled and interested, whether Gordon lived or died or half the British army went to pieces in the sands. The Sudan campaign was a picturesque one and lent itself to vivid word painting.

Now and again a "Special" managed to get slain—which was not altogether a disadvantage to the paper that employed him—and more often the hand to hand nature of the fighting allowed of miraculous escapes which were worth telegraphing home at 18 pence the word. There were many correspondents with many corps and columns, from the veterans who had followed on the heels of the cavalry that occupied Cairo in 1882, what time Arabi Pasha called himself king, who had seen the first miserable work round Suakim when the sentries were cut up nightly and the scrub swarmed with spears, to youngsters jerked into the business at the end of a telegraph wire to take the place of their betters killed or invalided.



"What are you for?" said Torpenhow.

Among the seniors—those who knew every shift and change in the perplexing postal arrangements, the value of the seediest, weediest Egyptian garron offered for sale in Cairo or Alexandria, who could talk a telegraph clerk into amiability and soothe the ruffled vanity of a newly appointed staff officer when press regulations became burdensome—was the man in the flannel shirt, the black browed Torpenhow. He represented the Central Southern syndicate in the campaign, as he had represented it in the Egyptian war and elsewhere.

The syndicate did not concern itself greatly with criticisms of attack and the like. It supplied the masses, and all it demanded was picturesqueness and abundance of detail. There is more joy in England over one soldier who insubordinately steps out of a square to rescue a comrade than over twenty generals slaving even to baldness over the gross details of transport and commissariat.

Hump Back

SCOTT'S EMULSION won't make a hump back straight, neither will it make a short leg long, but it feeds soft bone and heals diseased bone and is among the few genuine means of recovery in rickets and bone consumption.

He had met at Suakim a young man, sitting on the edge of a recently abandoned redoubt about the size of a hatbox, sketching a clump of shell torn bodies on the gravel plain.

"What are you for?" said Torpenhow. The formula of the correspondent is that of the commercial traveler on the road.

"My own hand," said the young man without looking up. "Have you any tobacco?"

Torpenhow waited till the sketch was finished, and when he had looked at it said, "What's your business here?"

"Nothing. There was a row, so I came. I'm supposed to be doing something down at the painting slips among the boats, or else I'm in charge of the condenser on one of the water ships. I've forgotten which."

"You've cheek enough to build a redoubt with," said Torpenhow, and took stock of the new acquaintance. "Do you always draw like that?"

The young man produced more sketches. "Row on a Chinese pigboat," said he sententiously, showing them one after another. "Chief mate dirked by a comprador; junk ashore off Hakodate; Somali muleteer being flogged; star shell bursting over camp at Berbera; slave dhow being chivied round Tajurrah bay; soldier lying dead in the moonlight outside Suakim; throat cut by Fuzzies."

"H'm!" said Torpenhow. "Can't say I care for Verestchagin and water myself, but there is no accounting for tastes. Doing anything now, are you?"

"No; amusing myself here."

Torpenhow looked at the aching desolation of the place. "Faith, you've queer notions of amusement. Got any money?"

"Enough to go on with. Look here, do you want me to do war work?"

"I don't. My syndicate may, though. You can draw more than a little, and I don't suppose you care much what you get, do you?"

"Not this time. I want my chance first."

Torpenhow looked at the sketches again and nodded. "Yes, you're right to take your first chance when you can get it."

He rode away swiftly through the Gate of the Two Warships, rattled across the causeway into the town and wired to his syndicate:

"Got man here, picture work. Good and cheap. Shall I arrange? Will do letterpress with sketches."

The man on the redoubt sat swinging his legs and murmuring: "I knew the chance would come sooner or later. By heaven, they'll have to sweat for it if I come through this business alive!"

In the evening Torpenhow was able to announce to his friend that the Central Southern agency was willing to take him on trial, paying expenses for three months. "And, by the way, what's your name?" said Torpenhow.

"Heldar. Do they give me a free hand?"

"They've taken you on chance. You must justify the choice. You'd better stick to me. I'm going up country with a column, and I'll do what I can for you. Give me some of your sketches taken here, and I'll send 'em along." To himself he said, "That's the best bargain the Central Southern has ever made, and they got me cheaply enough."

So it came to pass that after some purchase of horseflesh and arrangements financial and political Dick was made free of the New and Honorable Fraternity of War Correspondents, who all possess the inalienable right of doing as much work as they can and getting as much for it as Providence and their owners shall please. To these things are added in time, if the brother be worthy, the power of glib speech that neither man nor woman can resist when a meal or a bed is in question, the eye of a horse coper, the skill of a cook, the constitution of a bullock, the digestion of an ostrich and an infinite adaptability to all circumstances. But many die before they attain to this degree, and the past masters in the craft appear for the most part in dress clothes when they are in England, and thus is their glory hidden from the multitude.

Dick followed Torpenhow wherever the latter's fancy chose to lead him, and between the two they managed to accomplish some work that almost satisfied themselves. It was not an easy life in any way, and under its influence the two were drawn very closely together, for they ate from the same dish, they shared the same water bottle, and, most binding tie of all, their mails went off together.

It was Dick who managed to make gloriously drunk a telegraph clerk in a palm hut far beyond the Second cataract and while the man lay in bliss on the floor possessed himself of some laboriously acquired exclusive information forwarded by a confiding correspondent of an opposition syndicate, made a careful duplicate of the matter and brought the result to Torpenhow, who said that all was fair in love or war correspondence and built an excellent descriptive article from his rival's riotous waste of words. It was Torpenhow who—but the tale of their adventures, together and apart, from Philæ to the waste wilderness of Herawi and Muella, would fill many books.

They had been penned into a square side by side in deathly fear of being shot by overexcited soldiers, they had fought with baggage camels in the chill dawn, they had jogged along in silence under a blinding sun on indefatigable little Egyptian horses, and they had floundered on the shallows of the Nile when the whaleboat in which they had found a berth chose to smite a hidden rock and rip out half her bottom planks.

Now they were sitting on the sand bank, and the whaleboats were bringing up the remainder of the column.

"Yes," said Torpenhow as he put the last rude stitches into his overlong neglected gear; "it has been a beautiful business."

"The patch or the campaign?" said Heldar. "Don't think much of either myself."

"You want the Euryalus brought up above the Third cataract, don't you, and eighty-one-ton guns at Jakdul? Now, I'm quite satisfied with my breeches." He turned round gravely to exhibit himself after the manner of a clown.

"It's very pretty. Specially the lettering on the sack, G. B. T. Government Bullock Train. That's a sack from India."

"It's my initials—Gilbert Belling Torpenhow. I stole the cloth on purpose. What the mischief are the camel corps doing yonder?" Torpenhow shaded his eyes and looked across the scrub strewn gravel.

A bugle blew furiously, and the men on the bank hurried to their arms and accouterments.

"'Pisan soldiery surprised while bathing,'" remarked Dick calmly. "Do you remember the picture? It's by Michael Angelo. All beginners copy it. That scrub's alive with enemy."

The camel corps on the bank yelled to the infantry to come to them, and a hoarse shouting down the river showed that the remainder of the column had wind of the trouble and was hastening to take share in it. As swiftly as a reach of still water is crisped by the wind the rock strewn ridges and scrub topped hills were troubled and alive with armed men. Mercifully it occurred to these to stand far off for a time, to shout and gesticulate joyously. One man even delivered himself of a long story. The camel corps did not fire. They were only too glad for a little breathing space until some sort of square could be formed. The men on the sand bank ran to their side, and the whaleboats, as they toiled up within shouting distance, were thrust into the nearest bank and emptied of all save the sick and a few men to guard them. The Arab orator ceased his outcries, and his friends howled.

"They look like mahdi's men," said Torpenhow, elbowing himself into the crush of the square, "but what thousands of 'em there are! The tribes hereabout aren't against us, I know."

"Then the mahdi's taken another town," said Dick, "and set all these yelping devils free to chaw us up. Lend us your glass."

"Our scouts should have told us of this. We've been trapped," said a subaltern. "Aren't the camel guns ever going to begin? Hurry up, you men!"

There was no need for any order. The men flung themselves, panting, against the sides of the square, for they had good reason to know that whoso was left outside when the fighting began would very probably die in an extremely unpleasant fashion. The little 150 pound camel guns posted at one corner of the square opened the ball as the square moved forward by its right to get possession of a knoll of rising ground.

All had fought in this manner many times before, and there was no novelty in the entertainment, always the same hot and stifling formation, the smell of dust and leather, the same boltlike rush of the enemy, the same pressure on the weakest side of the square, a few minutes of desperate hand to hand scuffle and then the silence of the desert, broken only by the yells of those whom the handful of cavalry attempted to pursue. They had grown careless. The camel guns spoke at intervals, and the square slouched forward amid the protests of the camels. Then came the attack of 3,000 men, who had not learned from books that it is impossible for troops in close order to attack against breechloading fire.

A few dropping shots heralded their approach, and a few horsemen led, but the bulk of the force was naked humanity mad with rage and armed with the spear and the sword. The instinct of the desert, where there is always much war, told them that the right flank of the square was the weakest, for they swung clear of the front. The camel guns shelled them as they passed and opened for an instant lanes through their midst most like those quick closing vistas in a Kentish hop garden seen when the train races by at full speed, and the infantry fire, held till the opportune moment, dropped them in close packed hundreds.

No civilized troops in the world could have endured the hell through which they came, the living leaping high to avoid the dead clutching at their heels, the wounded cursing and staggering forward till they fell—a torrent black as the sliding water above a milldam—full on the right flank of the square. Then the line of the dusty troops and the faint blue desert sky overhead went out in rolling smoke, and the little stones on the heated ground and the tinder dry clumps of scrub became matters of surpassing interest, for men measured their agonized retreat and recovery by these things, counting mechanically and hewing their way back to chosen pebble and branch.

There was no semblance of any concerted fighting. For aught the men knew the enemy might be attempting all four sides of the square at once. Their business was to destroy what lay in front of them, to bayonet in the back those who passed over them, and, dying, to drag down the slayer till he could be knocked on the head by some avenging gun butt. Dick waited quietly with Torpenhow and a young doctor till the stress became unendurable. There was no hope of attending to the wounded till the attack was repulsed, so the three moved forward gingerly toward the weakest side.

There was a rush from without, the short hough-hough of the stabbing spears, and a man on a horse, followed by thirty or forty others, dashed through, yelling and hacking. The right flank of the square sucked in after them and the other sides sent help. The wounded, who knew that they had but a few hours more to live, caught at the enemy's feet and brought them down, or, staggering to a discarded rifle, fired blindly into the scuffle that raged in the center of the square.

Letter From Warm Climate.

"Speaking of pulpit jokes," a churchgoer remarked, "I have yet to hear a better one than that on a reverend gentleman of a small congregation in the city. He is a fine preacher, a man along in years, loved and revered by his flock. His pulpit utterances never verge upon levity of any sort. He abhors a resort to humor in church.

"One Sunday evening he was speaking to his congregation about Mrs. Jones, one of the prominent women of his church, who had gone south for her health. In his previous remarks he had, with feeling, referred to Mrs. Smith, who had recently left this world for a better one.

"He startled his hearers by saying: 'I have just received a letter from Mrs. Smith. She says it is very warm where she is now.'

"Shocked at the audible titter in the staid congregation, the good man paused, looked blank and then gasped, 'I meant from Mrs. Jones,' and hastily announced the hymn."—New York Telegram.

The Hillsdale Standard says that plans are being made for a southern Michigan baseball league which will include Adrian, Hudson, Pittsford and Hillsdale. It is hoped that this combination on the baseball idea may be formed in this section of the state, and if it is, would probably receive a good patronage. Push the thing along a little, Hillsdale, and see if you can't make a go of it.

A Hudson girl was entertaining a gentleman friend from out of town. They were seated on the porch, in the soft gloaming and during a momentary silence he whistled, "Oh, come and fly with me." Instantly the lady jumped from her half of the hammock and running into the house, sat down at the piano and played. "I wish I were a bird." A wedding in the near future may be looked for.—Hudson Post.

An exchange said one of its subscribers looked in the bible to find scripture to justify him in using tobacco, and found but one passage. It was found in the last chapter of Revelations, and is the second clause of the eleventh verse. We'll bet every one of the old sinners who use tobacco will read the verse within an hour after reading this paragraph. You bet! We did and it reads: "He that is filthy, let him be filthy still."

Two boys living out of Quincy a short distance found a paper balloon that had been sent up on the 4th, no doubt, and conceived the idea of inflating it. Saturating some rags with kerosene oil they sent the balloon up, and as it sailed away, the burning rags dropped upon a newly built stack of wheat, and instantly the stack was in flames and ten acres of wheat up in smoke. By heroic efforts on the part of neighbors, the farmer's buildings were saved.—Jonesville Gazette.

An affecting scene occurred at a wedding yesterday in Justice McBride's court room. The justice had called in as a witness to the ceremony a well known and supposedly confirmed bachelor, who became so interested in the ceremony as it was impressively performed by the justice that at the critical point, when the groom was placing upon the finger of the bride a ring, the symbol of their complete union, the bachelor perhaps impressed with his lonely and forlorn condition, fell in a faint, which almost broke up the service.—Owosso Argus.

An incident occurred at one of our country schools the other day that goes to show that the average youth knows no such word as impossible. A class in arithmetic was wrestling with subtraction, and the teacher was explaining that the thing subtracted must be the same kind or denomination as the thing subtracted from. She said you cannot take five peaches from six apples, five lemons from six oranges, etc., when up went a hand from a boy in the class. "What is it, Johnie?" said the teacher. "Please can't you take five quarts of milk from six cows?" And the teacher collapsed.—Nashville News.

Wednesday evening a number of people at the casino at Wolf Lake were startled by hearing an exclamation on the third floor to the effect "Here goes nothing," and still more startled by hearing a loud splash in the water. Investigation was made at once. A man's hat was found on the third floor of the casino, and at once it was suspected that a suicide had occurred. Just as boats were being launched and preparations made to alarm the restorers, a peal of demoniac laughter was heard from the shore, and floating in the moonlight could be seen a long plank bearing upon it a standard, inscribed Rubber. Some witless wag had thrown it from the third floor in hope of creating the commotion he did. The hat found on the floor belonged to him, but some one got even with him for the fright the crowd had been given and threw it into the lake.—Jackson Patriot.

A HOME RUN

By Vick, of Detroit, was Clinton's only Hit and Saved Them from

A SHUT-OUT.

Rapp, of South Bend, was Easy and was Touched Up for Eleven Hits.

Saturday's game with Clinton drew out a good crowd, a large delegation of enthusiastic rooters from our sister village accompanying the team. A good deal of interest was aroused in this game by the rumor that Clinton had imported some formidable talent from Detroit and South Bend and was coming down to win. When they arrived, however, it was found that they were strengthened only by two outside players—Rapp, a pitcher from South Bend, and Vick, who holds down the second bag for the Detroit Wheelmen.

The game started out auspiciously for the visitors. In the first inning, after Gillen had struck out and Matteson was retired on a foul fly to Chaffee, the sturdy Vick found one to his liking and gave it a tremendous thwack that lifted it far over right field fence for a homer.

Johnson, who was in the box for the the locals, proved the truth of the old adage that a poor beginning makes a good ending, and undaunted by the discouraging start, struck out the next man and from then on did not allow another hit to be made. He struck out nine men and his support was perfect until in the ninth inning Hadley let Gillen's grounder get away from him and "Knick," in his eagerness to make a double play, fumbled the ball thrown him by Hadley. These errors cost nothing, however, as the next man up struck out and ended the game.

BASE BALL NOTES.

Ball game next Saturday afternoon between the Beauties and Chics of Freeman's and Whiting's cigar factories.

The Tecumseh ball team will come out tomorrow in a dandy new uniform. Come to the game and see them, it will be worth the price of admission.

A very interesting game was played Saturday on the home grounds between the Tecumseh and Clinton juniors, the former winning with a score of 4 to 1.

In this morning's Free Press appeared an item in the state base ball news under the caption "Tecumseh Beaten," in which it was stated that Clinton team won from Tecumseh team yesterday by a score of 12 to 1, with Martin in the box. This purposely misleading item was evidently sent in by some Clinton party who wished to make outsiders think our crack team had been beaten by Clinton's team, when as a matter of fact the Clinton and Tecumseh Maccabees played here and not one of the Tecumseh team played with them. The Clinton team, as it now is, could not beat our team if they tried it 6 days in a week. The item was probably phoned in and the Free Press made to believe it came from its regular correspondent here, who did not think the game of sufficient importance to send in and knew nothing of any such item sent to that paper.

ROUND ABOUT US.

The Clinton Woolen Manufacturing Co. has secured the contract for furnishing the gray cloth wanted at the Industrial Home for boys at Lansing during the coming year.—Clinton Local.

Recently one of Ann Arbor's well-to-do citizens settled with one of his tenants and when the receipts were compared it was found they were 10 cents out of the way. Upon further investigation it was discovered that the 10 cents arose from the landlord charging the tenant three-sevenths of a day's rent. The tenant has moved, as he thought this was getting down to too fine a point.—Times.

A young man by the name of Roy Hall has been through the country soliciting orders for enlarging pictures. He made quite a stay at Chelsea and while there fell in love with a young lady. He went from there to Manchester where he hired a rig and disappeared. One day the lady at Chelsea received a letter from him bearing the postmark Fostoria, Ohio. He was immediately arrested and brought to Ann Arbor where his examination will take place. —Saline Observer.

J. W. WIGHTMAN

Writes a letter to the Herald on the

SEWER QUESTION

Tecumseh, Mich., August 8, 1903.

EDITOR TECUMSEH HERALD:

Will you permit me to use a little of your valuable space to correct some of the errors in your yesterday's issue of the HERALD, under the caption, "The Sewer."

In the first place there are only 52 names upon the sewer petition filed with the council; in the next place there is the name of a co-partnership signed by the name of each co-partner and that should count but one; then there is a name upon the petition that nowhere appears on the tax roll; then there comes another co-partnership in which the partnership signs and both members of the partnership sign as individuals, counting three when there should be but one. Thus there is an excess of five. Take the 5 from the 52 and the original petition starts out with 47 bonifida signers. Now you admit that 12 of the sewer petition signers had signed the remonstrance. We think there were but 11 of them. Subtract the 11 from 47 and you have exactly 36 original signers to the petition.

Now you say there are 200 names on the remonstrance. There are exactly 211 of which 69 are property owners on Chicago street, which seems to be a clear majority of 33; but you say according to the sewer assessment, $2.00 are for it to $1.00 against it. Now grant for the sake of argument that $2.00 are against $1.00 sewer assessment. Do you wish to be understood as endorsing a sentiment so un-American as that? I have been taught to believe that the words of the Declaration of Independence, "all men are born equal," meant that the poorest man in Tecumseh should be counted the same as the biggest tax-payer in Tecumseh, and I still believe it. We in Tecumseh are mostly Americans, not Russians or Chinese, we elect men to be servants of the people, not masters.

You allude to the water works: That was submitted to popular vote and carried by a handsome majority. Now submit the sewer question to vote of the people and stop all disputes among the people and also stop the demand of a few upon the council for arbitrary action. And in conclusion let me quote from the printed report of the engineer: "All property south of Evans Creek should share in this, approximately will cost $1,050.00. The corporation at large should also pay for street intersections, manholes and flush tanks, approximately $900.00. Now if those amounts aggregate $1500.00 what few days I spent in school were wasted.

J. W. WIGHTMAN.

In the above answer to my article in last Friday's HERALD concerning the sewer, it is evident that our friend Wightman is not well acquainted with the usual plan of arranging to build sewers. The water works were built by the entire village and to cover practically the whole city. The village was bonded for something like $30,000 and the law states that to bond a town or city a vote must first be taken.

The water works cover the whole village, the sewer only Chicago street, and it would be as sensible to ask the township of Raisin to vote on this question for a Chicago street sewer as the whole village.

I have this day looked over the petition to the council again, and the quibbling about two or three names on either petition amounts to nothing. A property owner is entitled to sign the petition as many times as he has pieces of property on the street and, no doubt, this is the way the names appear several times. In fact, names were signed in this way several times on Wightman's petition. Mr. Wightman deducts the names signed to both petitions from the "For the Sewer" petition, but does not from the Chicago street residents on his petition. The names on the "For the Sewer" petition were signed first and should remain.

But this is not the issue. The residents on Chicago street DO WANT THE SEWER, not only this, but J. W. Wightman wants the sewer, at least he says so by his circular when running for president of the council last spring. It speaks as follows:

"Believing it IMPERATIVE that better sanitation be adopted, I would favor a sewer of sufficient capacity to serve the public for the ensuing fifty years, beginning at Pearl street, running east on Chicago street to river; and if sewerage be needed west of Pearl street, let it be done on petition of majority of lot owners on each block to be effected by such sewerage. J. W. WIGHTMAN."

Tecumseh people at large desire the sewer and, if there are a few who do not wish it, they should be willing to pay what is necessary for their neighbors and the good of the village as a whole. We cannot build the entire system of sewerage at one time, nor would it be wise, but a start must be made and the most logical place in Tecumseh is on Chicago street.

ARNOLD McLEOD

Nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Smeltzer of this place

WAS MURDERED

In Detroit Saturday evening by Charles Ismond, who stabbed him in the neck with scissors.

Arnold McLeod, an employe at the City Gas Co., of Detroit, was stabbed in the neck with a pair of scissors by Charles Ismond Saturday. When Ismond returned home from work Saturday evening he found Arnold McLeod in company with his wife at their home 219 Fifth street. It was a frightful ending to a suspicion that had been lurking in Ismond's mind that an intimacy existed between McLeod and his wife, and all the circumstances indicate that he went home prepared to wreak vengeance. He looked through the window and saw McLeod on the sofa and Mrs. Ismond sitting near.

Ismond crawled through the window and with a curse, he bounded into the room and caught McLeod by the throat. The latter got as far as a sitting posture, when Ismond plunged the scissors into the right side of his neck, causing the blood to spurt all over him. McLeod who is the bigger man of the two, drew Ismond close to him, but he was fast losing strength from the loss of blood. He was not able to get to his feet, and pushing his head back against the wall, Ismond again sank the blade of the scissors into his neck. This time they broke off and severed the jugular vein, as the blood came out in a perfect stream. Ismond had no trouble in freeing himself, and when he let go of McLeod, the latter toppled over face downward on the floor.

After he did the work he went to the home of his mother, changed his clothes and then went to the police station and gave himself up. The remains of the murdered man will be brought here Wednesday for interment.

WHAT A FEMALE REGULATOR IS

A vegetable liquid for governing or equalizing the flow of women's menses which occur once in every lunar month.

BRADFIELD'S Female Regulator

is the essential quality of powerful herbs. It is a concentrated essence best adapted for women's delicate organism, and put in such form that it is always properly assimilated and taken into the system.

Stoppages, suppression, painful or other irregularity of the menses and sickly flows are corrected and cured by the regular use of this superior emmenagogue.

Menstruation, or periodic flows, necessitate a breaking down of cells lining the mucous membrane and a reconstruction after every sickness, which is accompanied with marked congestion and loss of blood. Such changes are very apt to produce chronic catarrh. Leucorrhea or Whites is the result of these irritating discharges. Regulator cures these troubles and restores to perfect health the patient who suffered the debilitating losses.

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith, residing in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptoms of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. The Appalling Disaster Was Due to Failure of Air Brakes to Work—Several Valuable Animals Were Killed.

THE DEAD.

A. W. Lange of Battle Creek, chief detective of the Grand Trunk lines; James W. McCarthy, Grand Trunk trainmaster; Frank Thorpe, Wallace Bros.' chief trainmaster, Dundee Mich.; John Purcell, Peru, Ind.; Harry St. Clair, G. Thomas, Lafe Larson, Columbus, O.; John Leary, Springfield, O.; Andrew Haviland, New York; Robert Rhe; George Smith, Charles Sands, Peru, Ind.; Joseph Wilson, Pittsburg, Pa.; W. J. McCoy, Columbus, O.; Edward York, Terre Haute, Ind.; James Toffelmire, Orient, Ind.; six men whose names are not known.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 8.—By one of the most serious train wrecks in the history of the state, in the yards of the Grand Trunk Western between 3 and 4 o'clock Friday morning, at least twenty-two persons lost their lives, while the total number of injured will reach sixty, more than half of whom are under the care of surgeons here or at Detroit, where those who could be moved were taken.

Most of those killed and injured were employes of Wallace Bros.' circus, enroute from Charlotte to Lapeer, but among the dead are three prominent railroad men, who were in charge of the special trains by which the circus was traveling.

Two Sections.

The circus train was run in two sections, the first of twenty-one and the second of seventeen cars. These started from Charlotte at midnight, half an hour apart. The first section contained the cars carrying the canvas and some of the animals and the coaches occupied by the drivers, canvasmen and unskilled employes. The owners and managers of the circus, with the performers, occupied sleepers on the second section, and none of them were injured. The railroad officials who lost their lives had preferred to ride with the first section, and occupied the caboose, which received the full force of the collision.

Section No. 1, drawn by engine 1126, with Engineer Schlyberiet at the throttle and in charge of Conductor Welch, arrived at Durand about 3 o'clock and stopped at the west end of the yards, being flagged by a freight train. A brakeman was sent back to guard the rear from the second section, all precautions being taken to avoid accident.

Airbrakes Failed.

The freight having got out of the way, the section was coupled up and about to move, when section No. 2, Conductor Hubbard, Engineer Propst and engine 1133, came around the curve, and although answering the signals, drove into the rear of the standing train at the rate of perhaps fifteen miles an hour. The crew afterward explained that the airbrakes failed to work and it was impossible to do more than reverse the engine before the collision.

The fireman and head brakeman jumped from their engine when they saw the danger, escaping with slight injuries, but the engineer stood by the throttle until almost upon the other train before he threw himself to the ground to escape almost certain death. He was not seriously hurt, although considerably jarred by his jump.

The engine of the second section plowed into the cars ahead, five of which were wrecked, one being that in which some of the animals were carried. Of these one elephant, two camels and a valuable bloodhound were killed. Several cars in rear of the engine were derailed and broken by the force of the impact, and in these, too, were unskilled employes of the circus, many of whom were hurt.

An Improvised Morgue.

Residents of Durand were summoned to the scene by the ringing of firebells, and the work of organized relief was soon begun. The dead were taken from the wreck and placed in a freight car on the siding, an improvised morgue, while the injured were taken to the Hotel Richelieu, where they were attended by surgeons summoned from this place, Flint, Owosso, Corunna and Bancroft, who came on handcars and in other conveyances. Men and women assisted in the care of the injured.

Words would fail to give an adequate description of the awful scene. To the gruesome sight which struck the gaze of those called out in the early morning were added the groans of the dying, while the frightened animals in the cars made the air resound with their cries. The work of rescuing the men from the wreckage was bravely commenced, however, and when the sun rose all had been taken out. It was found necessary to move the cages from the cars, and they were taken into a nearby field, where the beasts slowly recovered from the terror into which the accident had plunged them.

Wallace Bros. were in a wreck at Shelbyville, Ind., less than a month ago, in which two employes were killed.

Charged With Incendiarism.

Colon, Mich., Aug. 8.—A man by the name of Hutchinson has been arrested at Mendon and brought here to answer the charge of burning the Westbrook barn Tuesday night. Hutchinson, who had recently been discharged, is said to have made numerous threats.

Reward For Missing Man.

Olivet, Mich., Aug. 8.—A posse of men is searching the woods and swamps between Olivet and Ainger for the body of Franz, who disappeared Wednesday night, but no trace has been found. A reward has been offered for information of his whereabouts, dead or alive.

At the Masked Ball.

Male Ditto—Oh, I am quite positive, I recognize you by those lovely white, pearly teeth.

Female Ditto—Why, I only got them this morning. Ha, ha!—From the German.

COMMANDS ON MORE

General Miles Reaches Age Limit and Retires.

MAKES FAREWELL ADDRESS

Only Words of Praise and Good Advice in the Parting Words of the Great Soldier — He Wishes All Well.

Washington, Aug. 8.—Lieut.-General Nelson A. Miles, commanding the army, retires from active service at noon today, having reached the age limit of 64 years.

General Miles has issued an address on the occasion of his retirement from active service. In part it is as follows:

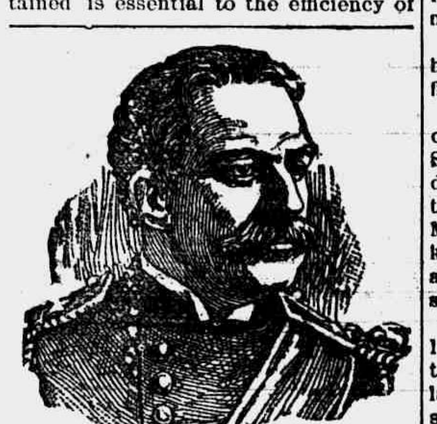
General Orders, No. 116.
Headquarters of the army.
Washington, Aug. 5, 1903.

In accordance with the provisions of the act of congress of June 30, 1882, the undersigned will retire from the active service August 8, 1903.

In relinquishing the command of the army of the United States, to which he was assigned by the president October 2, 1895, he hereby acknowledges his appreciation of the fidelity manifested by the officers and soldiers during the past eventful years.

To those who were his companions and associates during one of the greatest of all wars, he takes pleasure in expressing his gratification that they have lived through the trials and dangers of long service to witness the results of their fortitude, heroism, and unselfish devotion to the welfare of their country. The time and occasion are considered opportune for expressing to the army a few thoughts concerning its past and that which may effect its future welfare.

Unswerving devotion to our government and the principles upon which it was established and has been maintained is essential to the efficiency of the national forces, and especially is this so in a democratic government, where the individual in order to be a perfect soldier must first be a true citizen.



LIEUT.-GEN. MILES.

During the darkest hour of history the first commander of the American forces demonstrated the grandeur and nobility of his character by combatting the evil influences then pervading the army and by manifesting the strength, confidence and faith in the ultimate justice and integrity of his government. It is one of the glories of our country that the army has maintained those principles for more than a century.

The commanders of the army succeeding Washington have by their example, influence and orders engendered and maintained the highest degree of efficiency, discipline and patriotism.

Since its organization the army has been charged with a great variety of responsibilities, all subordinate to defending the country and maintaining the rights of its citizens.

All honorable activity and life for the army must exist within the well-defined lines of patriotism, untarnished honor, sterling integrity, impartial justice, obedience to rightful authority, and incessant warfare against armed enemies.

A serious duty and a great honor are now presented to every officer and soldier, namely, to exemplify to those with whom he comes in contact our country's principles of equal and exact justice, immunity from violence, equality before the law and the peaceful use and possession of his own.

Marked changes at different times have occurred in the strength and organization of the army, resulting from diverse influences, and various experiments have been tried. Time has rectified errors in the past, and will do so in the future. The lieutenant general has faith that under all circumstances the army will maintain its high character, and that its future will be as honorable and glorious as has been its history in the past. His earnest solicitude and best wishes will ever follow the fortunes of the army.

NELSON A. MILES,
Lieutenant General,
Commanding.

Thirty-five Deserted.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—Thirty-five of the 240 artillerymen orederd out two weeks ago on a march of 150 miles to Camp Douglas, Wis., have deserted, according to the reports received at Fort Sheridan. The Eleventh and Twenty-fourth batteries were sent and are expected to arrive at the camp today. Twelve other men went by train to join them.

First Love.

People who marry while very young are apt to find out when it is too late that they have made the greatest mistake in their lives and that, though it may seem very sweet to marry "the first and only love," this same "first love" is the very last person in the world that they ought to have married.

Some, indeed, may advise couples to marry before they are out of their teens and settle down before the distractions of the world can attempt to shake their allegiance to each other, but this settling down too often proves to be a mere temporary phase and is followed by an unsettled condition that lasts for the rest of their unhappy lives. Second thoughts are often best in love.

Earthquake Destroyed Houses.—Dispatches received in London say that an earthquake has destroyed some houses in the town of Filattierra and Mulazzo, in the province of Tuscany, Italy. Filattierra is a town of 20,000 inhabitants and Mulazzo a town of 4,000 inhabitants. They are near the Gulf of Genoa.

A SAD DISCOVERY

Railway Brakeman Finds Body of Brother Among Dead.

KILLED IN DURAND WRECK

Was Looking at Bodies of the Unknown — Others Identified — Many Requests For Descriptions—Another Victim Dying at Detroit.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 10.—Henry Griffin, a brakeman employed on the Grand Trunk, was a visitor at the morgue Sunday, having come from Saginaw, as many other visitors have come since the wreck from every direction.

He passed along the line of coffins and viewed five of the mangled bodies. As he came to the sixth he exclaimed: "My God, my brother Bill!" There is no question of the identification being correct. The man is William Griffin, home unknown. Griffin is positive it is his brother, although he has not seen him for several years. He will have his brother's remains interred at Durand.

The bodies of twelve of the unfortunate victims of the wreck are still in the undertaking parlors here. More representatives from the Wallace shows came yesterday and have identified the bodies of Robert Rice, harnessmaker, of Sand Lake, Mich., and Charles McCoy of Cincinnati, O. These will be forwarded from Durand today.

They have also partially identified three others, which heretofore were among the unknown. One was known among the circus employes as "Animal Red," and worked about the menagerie. His true name was John Stillman, home unknown. Another they identified as "Fatty Johnson"—correct name Allen Johnston, home unknown. The third was known as "Back Door Red"—correct name Joe Keyes. His home was in a little town in Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, near Pittsburg.

The remaining bodies will be buried here tomorrow if they are not identified in the meantime.

Letters and telegrams have been received from all parts of the United States asking for descriptions of the dead bodies. Master of Transportation X. H. Cornell, Undertaker G. W. McLain and village officials have been kept busy furnishing information, but all their work does not seem to straighten out matters very rapidly.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—Frank Tilley, one of the victims of the disastrous railroad wreck at Durand early last Friday morning, and who was subsequently brought to Harper hospital, was reported to be in a dying condition last evening at that institution.

The man sustained internal injuries, from which he suffers terrible agony. At first it was thought he had a chance for recovery, but at time wore on and he failed to take the expected turn for the better his condition was considered more grave. Last evening Dr. Ben Brodie said he apparently had little time to live.

KILLED HIM WITH SCISSORS.

Detroit Barber Stabs Man Whom He Found With His Wife.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—Charles Ismond, a barber living at 219 Fifth street, stabbed and instantly killed Amos McLeod, a former partner, whom he found in a compromising position with his wife. The killing occurred Saturday night, Ismond doing the deed with a pair of barber's scissors, and shortly after 2 o'clock Sunday morning Ismond walked into police headquarters and gave himself up.

And now, with her husband in jail charged with the murder of her nocturnal visitor, Mrs. Flora Ismond tosses on a bed of pain and it is feared she may go insane from the fearful shock. All day Sunday she lay in a front bedroom at her home and fainted a number of times. A physician who was called last evening declares the woman is in a serious condition physically and mentally and that her reason may succumb to the awful shock.

Ismond himself sits in a cell at police headquarters with his head in his hands, wondering how the terrible affair is going to end. He freely admits having committed the deed, but declares that the cause was sufficient.

The Feet of Chameleons.

Chameleons, as no doubt readers are aware, all belong to the old world, and particularly to Africa. In their tongue, their feet and their eyes they differ remarkably from other lizards. Their feet, though possessing five toes, are divided into two grasping groups, looking like a hand in mittens, and only by close examination you perceive the presence of the two or the three opposing respectively, but so close together as to appear like one broad one.

On the padded soles or palms of these grasping limbs you can feel and see the small—may one say—palpi, which enable them to grasp so firmly that it is difficult to detach a chameleon from its foothold. These clinging feet, together with their prehensile tail, enable them to sustain themselves on the branches in the strongest gale.

Paying a Call In China.

A Chinese bride called upon a foreign lady, says a missionary. On entering the room she deliberately turned her back upon her hostess and made an elaborate obeisance. Of course the foreign lady was amazed and annoyed, but she found out the reason of the strange proceeding afterward. The bride's conduct had conformed to Chinese etiquette.

She had performed her obeisance, her k'o-t'-ou, to the north because that is the direction of the royal abode. If the foreign lady was so ignorant as to stand on the south side of the room, that was not the bride's concern. She knew, if her hostess did not, in what direction to bow her head.

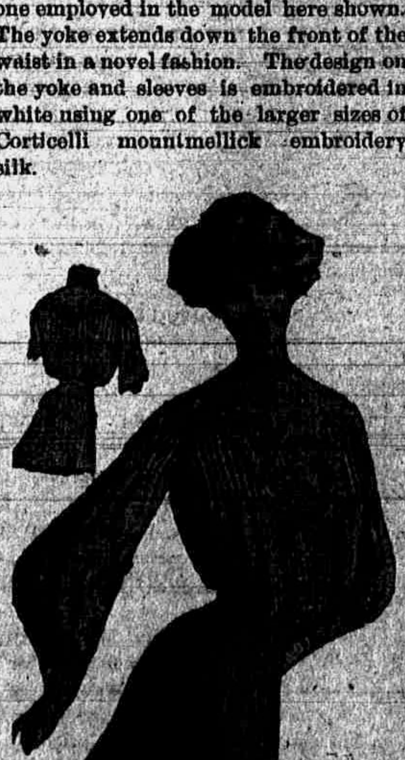
Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

A BEAUTIFUL WAIST.

There are various devices by means of which the long shouldered effect may be produced, one of which is by cutting the front of the waist and the upper part of the sleeve all in one piece, or by extending the yoke trimming out on to the shoulder. The latter method is the one employed in the model here shown. The yoke extends down the front of the waist in a novel fashion. The design on the yoke and sleeves is embroidered in white using one of the larger sizes of Corticelli mountmellick embroidery silk.



Among the popular fabrics for summer wear, foulards promise to be well to the front. Some models made of this material are seen built in almost tailor fashion, with a simple skirt and with a sac coat, having a deep collar of cloth. The deep cape collar has sprung into prominence of late, one reason for its popularity probably being the absence of revers. This style of collar gives the desired width to the shoulders.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

DURAND BESIEGED

By People and Letters Inquiring About Unknown Dead.

MISTAKES IN IDENTIFICATION

Some of Them Not Very Clear in the Descriptions of Their Missing Ones —Thomas Hall, Reported Missing, Has Shown Up.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 13.—Scores of inquiries regarding the unknown dead of last Friday's wreck have been received since the funerals Tuesday, and nearly as many people have been here looking for lost relatives. Many mistakes in proper identification were made.

Among Wednesday's visitors was Harry Hopkins of Grand Rapids, who came to claim the body of his brother. He said he had received a telegram from the circus that the brother was killed in the wreck. His description was not satisfactory.

Another was a man who gave his name as Hall, from a town in Indiana. He gave a description of a man whom he claimed to be his son. He was shown a photograph of a dead body and said it was the one he was looking for. The photograph was that of Charles McCoy, whose body was identified and forwarded to his wife.

B. E. Wallace, of the circus, has written to Mayor Maybury of Detroit saying that Thomas Hall, who was reported missing, has turned up and is working with the concern again.

Groom Returns With Wierd Tale.

Olivet, Mich., Aug. 13.—Alexander Frans, the Battle Creek young man who disappeared from this village last Wednesday, the day he was to have married Miss Winnifred Patton, returned here Wednesday, with a weird tale of how he had been kidnapped by hoboes and robbed of $18. He also tells of his prowess in knocking three of his assailants out before he submitted to capture. Frans claimed he made a dash for liberty near Goshen, Ind., which city he reached, after wandering through fields to evade pursuit, Monday night. From there he went to South Bend, and thence came here. The friends of Frans apparently believe his story, and the ceremony took place quietly last evening.

Battle Creek Contributes.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 13.—Battle Creek has mailed a check for $500 to the treasurer of the McKinley memorial fund at Cleveland. Local factories furnished most of the money.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and [illegible] C. A. Wright's drug store.

A HOT ENCOUNTER

Erie, Pa., Fishing Boat Fired on By Canadian Ship.

WHILE IN CANADIAN WATERS

Revenue Cutter Petrel Gave Chase, but Fishermen Succeeded in Reaching American Waters — Thought Americans Were Poaching.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 13.—The Silver Spray, a fishing boat owned here, came into port Wednesday afternoon in a badly shattered condition, due to an encounter in midlake about noon with the Canadian revenue cutter Petrel.

The Canadian authorities have had trouble with American fishermen for years, who were poaching on their side of the lake, and the Petrel is kept constantly on the lookout for them. About noon she came upon the Silver Spray on the Canadian side of the lake and at once ordered Captain Chris Schau to stop. The Petrel is a strong steel craft, and it is said attempted to ram the American boat before she she could comply with the former's order. Captain Schau, remembering the fate of several other boats from this side which had been captured and confiscated, two from Erie only last season, decided to try and escape and started ahead at full speed.

The captain of the Petrel, when he saw that the Silver Spray was trying to get away, opened fire with all the guns he had on board, and before he ceased firing some twenty shots had struck her.

The fact that no one was killed is simply miraculous, as two shots entered the water close, two in the cabin, two in the roof, three in the after hurricane deck and the others in various parts of the boat.

The chase was kept up for some little time and Captain Schau was nearly in despair as his cold water pump refused to work and he was afraid that his boat might be struck below the water line and sunk. He was very lucky, however, to get across the dividing line and the Petrel gave up the pursuit.

The Silver Spray is a double decker and was for twelve years in service in Buffalo as a pleasure steamer. Captain Schau will report the affair to the state department at Washington, as he says he was only looking for some of his nets which had drifted from this side toward the Canadian shore.

A large number of American fishing tugs have been confiscated by the Canadian government, one, however, belonging at Dunkirk, was a few weeks ago ordered returned by Secretary of State Hay.

Hardware Dealers in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—The ninth annual convention of the Michigan Retail Hardware Dealers' association opened Wednesday morning at the Hotel Cadillac. Prominent hardware men from all over the state are in attendance and will remain in the city until Friday.

ROOT TO RETIRE

Secretary of War Will File His Resignation.

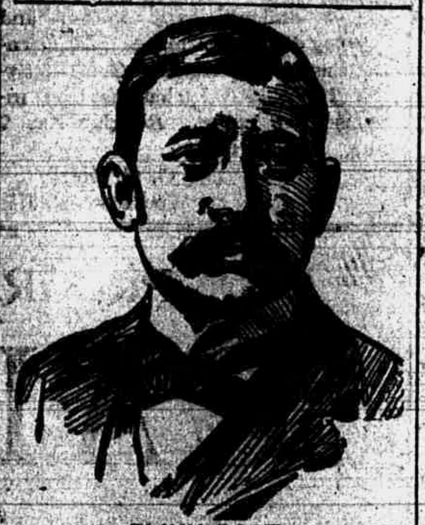
BEFORE HE SAILS FOR EUROPE

Stokers Feared Ship Would Be Blown Up and Deserted Their Posts—Drifted For Hours in a Big Storm.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Elihu Root will resign as secretary of war, the resignation to take effect about the first of next January. He will be succeeded, unless present plans miscarry, by Judge William H. Taft, now governor of the Philippines.

For a long time Secretary Root has desired, for pressing private reasons, to retire from the cabinet. When Mr. Roosevelt became president Secretary Root indicated his wish to leave the cabinet within a year, but his friendship for the president and his interest in pending questions before the war department caused him to remain for a longer period.

It is now expected that the secretary will present his resignation to the president before he leaves for England to take up the work of the Alaskan boundary commission.



ELIHU ROOT,
Secretary of war, who will resign and retire next January, to be succeeded by Judge Taft.

That Governor Taft will be Mr. Root's successor as secretary of war there can be little or no doubt.

Washington, Aug. 12.—Before Secretary Root sails for London to sit with the Alaskan commission he will place his resignation in the hands of President Roosevelt in order that the President may appoint a secretary of war if it is deemed necessary during Mr. Root's absence. It is expected, however, that the resignation will not be acted upon until after congress meets. The appointment of Mr. Root's successor will depend somewhat upon the length of time that Secretary Root will be engaged upon the Alaskan boundary commission. It has been known for some time that Secretary Root intended to retire, but he did not wish to leave the department until the general staff bill was in operation and other matters pertaining to the department were well under way. It is understood that the matter of his successor has been discussed, and while nothing official can be obtained, it is believed the position will be tendered to Governor Taft.

While Secretary Root is in London he will remain in communication with the war department and matters pertaining to the general staff and other important affairs will be referred to him.

If the sittings of the Alaskan commission extend beyond Dec. 1 it is likely that the secretary's resignation will be accepted and his successor appointed at that time, and if the situation in the war department becomes such that a secretary is needed to take charge of affairs one will be appointed earlier. It is believed here there will be a great deal of delay in consideration of the Alaskan boundary case, and that the United States commissioners may be detained in London several months.

Secretary Root's desire to leave public life is based on personal grounds largely. His family does not like life in Washington and the secretary desires also to return to his law practice in New York.

Cashier Skipped.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 12.—The police, after searching for two days, have been unable to locate John K. Brown, cashier of the Union bank at New Holland, Pickaway county, O. Brown boarded a train for Cincinnati last Saturday and he has not been seen since. The bank was unable to open as Brown has the combination, and dispatches received here state, that there is great excitement in New Holland.

A Monster Cheese.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 12.—A monster cheese, weighing two tons, will probably be manufactured in this state and sent to the St. Louis exposition next spring. "New York is the greatest cheese-producing state in the Union," said Agricultural Commissioner Wieting today, "and the biggest cheese ever made in the world ought to grace our exhibit in St. Louis."

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

FEARFUL STORMS

Sweep Island of Jamaica Devastating Portions of It.

ALL PLANTATIONS SUFFERED

Heavy Loss of Life Feared—Coast Is Strewn With Wreckage of Ships—Villages Wiped Out—Orange and Coffee Crops Injured.

Kingston, Jamaica, Aug. 13.—The hurricane, only the fringe of which struck the western end of Jamaica Tuesday, and which it was thought had passed, veered to the south and struck Jamaica with its full force, inflicting damage which it will take years to repair.

Every banana plantation in the eastern half of the island has been davastated.

Port Antonio, on the north coast, was completely overwhelmed. Only six houses were left standing there. The United Fruit company's wharves, offices, hotel and plantations were utterly demolished. Five of the company's steamers, including the Simon Dumois, Alfred Dumois and Brighton, were driven ashore, but are lying in easy positions. Port Maria, another town on the north coast, also suffered similarly. The coast is strewn with wreckage of local sailing vessels.

It is feared the loss of life has been heavy, thirty fatalities having already been reported, principally among seamen. The entire eastern end of the island has been davastated. Villages have been wiped out and public buildings and churches demolished. Thousands of the peasantry, rendered homeless and destitute, are wandering about, seeking food and shelter. The destruction of the banana plantations has been complete and the fruit trade is paralyzed for the next twelve months. Hundreds of prosperous fruit growers have been brought to bankruptcy and ruin.

The western end of the island, which it was at first supposed had escaped also suffered considerably, though not to the extent which the eastern end did. New banana plantations planted there were partly destroyed and the orange and coffee crops were also injured.

The Norwegian steamer Salvatore di Giorgi was driven ashore at Annetta Bay and lies in a dangerous position. Several sailing vessels were wrecked on the north side.

It is still stormy and threatening and there are fears that there may be a renewal of the storm. Torrential rains have increased the misery of the poor and homeless. Thousands of houses in Kingston were damaged, the wharves were battered and several coasting vessels were sunk in the harbor.

Trade is practically at a standstill.

STRUCK ROCKS.

Battleship Massachusetts Damaged Off Coast of Maine.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 13.—While leaving the harbor during a thick fog about noon Wednesday, in company with other vessels of the North Atlantic squadron, the battleship Massachusetts sustained considerable damage by striking on a ledge of rocks off the western end of Egg Rock. The big vessel slipped over the rocks into deep water, but the two forward bulkheads soon filled and it was subesquently found that several plates forward had been cracked. The Massachusetts was headed back into the harbor with considerable difficulty, accompanied by her sister vessel, the Indiana, and the gunboat Scorpion. She will remain here until Captain Manning, her commander, receives orders from Washington, when it is expected she will proceed to Brooklyn to be dry docked.

The squadron, under the command of Rear Admiral Barker, which has been on this part of the coast engaged in a war game, got under way shortly before noon today for Long Island Sound, where there will be tactical exercises previous to an inspection and review next Monday by President Roosevelt, Secretary Moody and Admiral Dewey.

King Travels Incog.

London, Aug. 13.—King Edward sailed Wednesday from Port Victoria, at the mouth of the Thames, on the royal yacht Victoria and Albert for Flushing, whence he will go direct to Marienbad to take the waters for a fortnight. He will travel incognito, as duke of Lancaster, until Aug. 31, when he will proceed to Vienna to pay his accession visit to Emperor Francis Joseph.

Senator Heyburn Wedded.

Westchester, Pa., Aug. 13.—In strict accordance with the usages of the Society of Friends, United States Senator Heyburn of Idaho and Miss Gheraten Yeatman of this county were married at noon Wednesday in the parlor of the Yeatman homestead in Kennett township, culminating a romance of twenty-five years ago.

After a wedding dinner the newly married couple left on a wedding tour, which will end next week at Wallace, Idaho.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

THOUGHT SON DEAD.

Lansing Mother Identified Wrong Body at Durand.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas of this city went to Durand in search of her son George, who is employed as a brakeman by the Grand Trunk, and from whom she had not heard for some time. She identified the body of one of the victims of Friday's wreck as that of her son. Then she went to a restaurant to get something to eat.

While in the restaurant she mentioned her sad experience to the proprietor, who told her he had seen her son alive and well but a few hours before. This proved to be the truth and before night the mother and son were reunited.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 12.—The business houses of Durand were closed Tuesday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock while the funeral services of the unknown dead of the Wallace circus wreck were conducted by the ministers of the town. The services were held in front of the morgue on the sidewalk, and a large crowd gathered. It was a sad affair and strong men shed tears. The ten unknown dead received a christian burial. The bodies were photographed before being interred and an accurate description taken of each.

Just before the services a lady from Bay City entered the morgue and identified the body that has borne only the name "Ringling," as Frank Kerns. Her name was Mrs. Minnie Gaines, and the body was that of her brother.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 12.—Frank Tilley, one of the employes of Wallace Bros.' circus, who was brought to Harper hospital after the accident at Durand suffering from internal injuries, died Tuesday afternoon. Tilley's home was in Rising Sun, Ind. All the other wreck victims at the hospital are reported as improving.

JUDSON LEFT BUT LITTLE.

A Proof That He Was Honest In Handling Political Money.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 12.—A petition filed in probate court Tuesday asking the appointment of an administrator for the estate of William Judson, the deceased oil inspector and political leader, estimates his estate as worth $5,500, of which $5,000 is in personal property and $500 in real estate. He is known to have held $5,000 in life insurance.

With the opportunities the deceased leader had for enriching himself, this is considered proof here that he never dishonestly appropriated funds intrusted to him for the conduct of his campaigns. His expenditures for office were never questioned by them, and detailed reports were never given or expected. That many thousands of dollars passed through his hands within recent years is a fact. In the Pingree, Stearns and Alger campaigns, had he chosen to do so, he might have personally benefited to an extent that would have relieved him of the necessity of conducting other business.

A BIG BLAZE.

Fire Destroys $100,000 Worth of Property In Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 12.—Fire was discovered this morning at 1:40 o'clock in the basement of Radcliffe & Co.'s four-story brick storehouse in Oakes street, near South Division street. The fire gained a terrific headway when the city firemen had arrived, but after a desperate fight it was gotten under control.

The loss on the building is estimated by the fire authorities at $40,000.

Radcliffe & Co. were unable to fix the exact loss on the contents, but said it would reach $60,000.

No Money For Game Wardens.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 12.—All of the deputy state game wardens except Chief Deputy Brewster are enjoying enforced vacations just at present, and their idleness will continue until Nov. 1 at least. This situation is due to the fact that the fund available for paying the salaries and expenses of these deputies is exhausted. The statute provides an annual appropriation of $2,000 for this purpose. In addition to this the revenue from license fees paid by non-residents and one of the fees paid by resident hunters goes into this fund.

Three Injuns and a Knife.

Hart, Mich., Aug. 12.—Three Injuns, Jack Robinson, Jack Green and Mike Cone, filled up on firewater and then got into a three-cornered fight. When they were distangled Robinson had a bad knife stab between the ribs, and may die. The other two Injuns are in jail.

Gives Up the Chase.

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 12.—Sheriff Reese has practically abandoned the hunt for the escaped convicts known to have been in the city last Friday, including Ray Fahey, a notorious highwayman. Sheriff Reese feels it is useless to further pursue an oganized chase for the escaped men. The five convicts fleeing through the corral flat country are believed to have escaped to the Devil's Basin region, a rocky and heavily timbered section, affording good shelter and protection.

MACCABEE DAY.

Hillsdale and Washtenaw Counties Celebrate.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 13.—Maccabee day for Washtenaw county was held here Wednesday and attracted a crowd, among them a number from Lenawee county. A very creditable procession was held, there being many business floats. The balloon ascension at noon was not a success as a large hole was blown out of the top of the bag. After dinner, on the south side of the court house, the exercises were held, Attorney Frank Jones presiding. The welcoming address was given by Mayor Arthur Brown. Hon. Perry F. Powers of Cadillac, Tubbs of Chesaning and Grand Recorder Emma Bower of this city spoke.

Jonesville, Mich., Aug. 13.—The seventh annual picnic of the Hillsdale county K. & L. O. T. M. M. association was held here Wednesday, and large delegations from all lodges of the county were in attendance. The day was taken up with band concerts, sports, and ball games.

At the annual meeting of the association the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, George Schmidt, Hillsdale; vice-president, Clara Kinney, Reading; secretary-treasurer, Frank M. Hall, Hillsdale. It was voted to hold the picnic next year at Hillsdale.

Detroit Man Missing.

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 13.—Captain Harry E. Smith of Detroit, who has been a guest at the Riviera hotel here since last November, is missing, and much anxiety is felt for his safety. He left the house Aug. 3, presumably to go to Los [illegible] not return. The [illegible] nks and clothes were left [illegible] wife, who is a daughter of Judge Brewster of Michigan, has been notified at Detroit of Captain Smith's disappearance. Captain Smith lost his health in Cuba and has been here recuperating.

Big Blaze in Calumet.

Calumet, Mich., Aug. 13.—Early Wednesday morning fire destroyed the building and plant of the Suometar Printing company and the adjoining frame structure. Loss, $3,000; fully insured. The new $40,000 Walz block, owned by Maggie Walz, a Finnish woman, editress and publisher, was considerably damaged. Miss Walz narrowly escaped death from suffocation while endeavoring to save her personal effects.

Whopper Picnic of Grocers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 13.—Grand Rapids was Wednesday in possession of over 10,000 grocers who came on special trains from Lansing, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek and Jackson, joining with the local bretheron for a whopper of a picnic. The visitors were received at the depot by brass bands and reception committees of business men, and escorted about the parks and other resorts for a general holiday.

Carved His Way to Liberty.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13.—Private Charles W. Robinson, Co. E, Fourteenth United States infantry, a prisoner awaiting trial at Fort Wayne, charged with desertion, carved his way out of the fort hospital to liberty during the night, traded his night shirt for a suit of clothes, and was scot free before the escape was discovered in the morning at 5 o'clock. Robinson is said to be a bad man.

MINERS SUFFOCATED.

Were Caught In Drift When Powder Exploded.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Aug. 13.—Joseph Lang and John Meyer, miners, were suffocated in the Hamilton shaft of the Chapin mine Wednesday morning. They were working in the end of a drift. An Italian looking in a tool box with a lighted candle, set a box of powder afire and an explosion followed. All escaped but the men in the drift.

A FRIEND'S MISTAKE.

Caused the Death of Walter Bates of Spring Lake.

Spring Lake, Mich., Aug. 13.—Second Engineer Walter Bates, of the Goodrich steamer Georgia, and one of the most popular younger marine men living here, has met accidental death at the hands of his best friend, Chief Engineer Charles Bon, of the same boat, who also lives in Spring Lake.

The Georgia was at Milwaukee and Bates was standing with his head out of one of the engine room portholes watching the crowd on the dock. Bon stood at his post with his back turned to the second engineer, and he never saw that Bates was standing where he would be crushed if the engines were reversed.

An order came from the pilot house to back the engine, and Bon obeyed it. Bates heard the sound and drew back, just in time to be struck full on the head by the heavy weight. Death was instantaneous.

Bates was to have been married at the close of the season to a young lady here. The dead man and his accidental slayer grew up together as boys here and had also been close associates through many years of manhood.

Spider Fancies.

An elderly lady who lives in her own house at Buttes Chaumont, Paris, has discovered that spiders are peculiarly appreciative of music. She has made great pets of them, and her house is full of spiders of all kinds, on whom she spends her time and fortune.

Her proteges are lodged in a large, airy room, where she has provided every necessary support for their different webs. Her great favorites are immense black spiders, which, with their hairy legs and great bodies, look very repulsive to others.

When she is inclined to show off their capabilities for music, she surrounds herself with a circle of water to keep off their too delicate attentions and plays slowly, softly and in a minor key on the harp. From all corners of the room the [illegible] run toward her, listening with evident pleasure, but should she strike up a noisy, gay, inharmonious strain they scamper back to their holes as though disgusted.

A curious fact in connection with this story is that the lady bears the birthmark of a spider.

Train Cut His Legs Off.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 10.—Harry Amos, aged 20, met a horrible death here Sunday afternoon. While attempting to board a moving freight train he was thrown under the wheels. Both legs were severed from the body and he sustained internal injuries. The injured man was taken to the Children's Home hospital, where he died three hours later. His home was in Mobile, Ala.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

One of Herrmann's Tricks.

Not many months before his death Alexander Herrmann, the magician, was a guest at the famous but now defunct Whitechapel club, the rendezvous of Chicago Bohemians. On the night in question a venerable Japanese priest was present. In the course of a few tricks Herrmann picked up a deck of cards and asked some one to select a card. The seven of clubs was the card drawn from the pack, and it was shown to the spectators, but not to the magician. The card was replaced in the deck, which was shuffled and then handed to one of the spectators.

"Look through the deck, please," said Herrmann.

The holder of the cards did as requested.

"Is the card that was drawn in the pack?" asked the wizard.

"No, sir," answered the spectator.

"What was the card?"

"The seven of clubs."

"Well, gentlemen," said Herrmann, "if one of you will kindly unlace the prelate's shoe you will find the card that has vanished from the pack."

After a smiling protest the Japanese priest unlaced his shoe, and there, to the amazement of all, was found the seven spot of clubs.—Rochester Post-Express.

"The Heart of Chicago."

Those who like a stirring drama of today go to the New Bradley Friday, Aug. 21, when Lincoln J. Carter's great spectacular production "The Heart of Chicago" will be shown for the first time in this city. Like all of its kind it tells an intense story but only more emphatically and artistically. It has been cleverly conceived and well written. The author has been particularly fortunate in his comedy scenes and has furnished some bright lines to those who are entrusted with the task of relieving tension of wrought up nerves and emotions of the audience. It is in its wonderful scenery that the great strength of the play is discovered, however, the author, who is unquestionably the cleverest man in America at devising strong scenic surprises, has surpassed himself in his latest efforts.

THE LATE D. H. ZELUFF,

Aged 89 Years, Survived by Mrs. Zeluff, Aged 85 Years,

WHO DIED SUDDENLY

Thursday Morning of Heart Disease.

Thursday morning David H. Zeluff went up town of an errand. On returning, about eight o'clock, he was taken sick and fell. Medical aid was summoned, but before any help could be given him, he died. No doubt of heart failure.

Mr. Zeluff was a pioneer of Lenawee county. He would have been 89 years old the 26th day of this month. He was born in Morristown, N. Y., moved to Petersburg, Mich., when a small boy and has lived in Lenawee county since.

He was married to Miss Louisa Russell in 1837 and has passed a married life of 66 years with her. For several years an anniversary of their wedding day has been celebrated in Tecumseh, many relatives being present each year. He is survived by the widow and three children, Miss Viola, of Tecumseh; John Zeluff and Mrs. Frank Pocklington, of Britton.

D. H. Zeluff was a man of sterling integrity and was honored and respected by the whole community for years and years.

The funeral will be held under Masonic auspices at his late residence, Sunday at two o'clock p. m.

The John H. Sparks Show.

For general cleanliness of performance there has not been an exhibit in this place for many years that excelled the Sparks show. They make no pretense of having a great three-ring circus neither do they advertise things they do not exhibit but simply travel from one place to another in their massive cars with an aggregation of performers and animals that keep you watching for the two hours of performance with as much interest as if they had a train of 50 cars and two brass bands. The whole of the seating capacity of their circus tent was crowded and several hundred people were compelled to stand or to accept a seat on the grass at the side of circus ring. Besides having a good show they are free from a gang of parasites that usually follow shows in the shape of gamblers.—Greenville, S C. Dailey.

THE CHURCHES.

Religion in the Daily Life, will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning.

Rev. Geo. B. Marsh, of Tipton, will occupy the Tecumseh M. E. pulpit next Sunday morning and evening. M. T. Seelye will preach in Ann Arbor that day.

After being closed for six weeks for repairs, the Baptist church will be re-opened next Sunday with appropriate service. Subject morning service, "Church Prosperity"; evening, "The Mission of the Church."

The Rubber.

The next game will be with the Wheelman of Detroit, and this will be the "rubber." The game will be "fast" ball. Don't forget the date, Tuesday, August 18.

A vacation at the sea shore. Go on Lake Shore Ry., excursion, August 18. Low rates; tickets good 12 days. Inquire of agents.

Farmers Attention.

We will be in the market for oats this season. See Brown before selling. L. FRENSDORF.

Special Sale.

B. A. Rauch will make a special sale on bed room sets for the rest of August, making a discount of $3.00 on each set sold. The stock is too large and must be decreased to make room for fall goods.

Michigan Crop Report.

The season has been fairly favorable for wheat this year. It was too cold and dry in some counties early this spring for the crop but it recovered largely later on.

The condition of corn improved somewhat during July. From present indications there will be some corn that will only make fodder. On the other hand there are some fields which, with favorable weather, will make an average crop in some counties, where corn was planted on warm soil it has made a large growth and will no doubt yield well.

The oat crop varies throughout the state similar to corn. In some localities it made a large growth while in other counties the condition has not been up to the average.

The season this year has been better than the average for potatoes. So far they have not suffered on account of dry weather. If present conditions prevail until the crop ripens naturally the yield will be large.

The prospect for apples is very fair at the present time. Frequent showers have been favorable for the growth of the crop. Where any fair degree of care has been taken of the orchard, by the way of cultivation and spraying, both the yield and quality will be good.

WON BOTH GAMES

With Mt. Pleasant Team. Tuesday's Game was Easy, but it took

FIFTEEN INNINGS

To Decide Wednesday's Game. It was a "Crackerjack."

The opening game with Mt. Pleasant Tuesday was rather one-sided, the visitors narrowly escaping a shut-out. Johnson pitched a fine game for the locals, only allowing 3 hits. Fisher was quite easy for our boys who "fanned him" for 12 hits.

The score:

Earned runs Tecumseh 5, Mt. Pleasant 0; 2-base hits Hadley, Beasley, Miller, Furlong; first on balls Johnson 1, Fisher 2; struck out by Johnson 6, by Fisher 4; left on bases Tecumseh 6, Mt. Pleasant 4; double plays Hadley to Knickerbocker to Beasley; wild pitches Johnson 1; umpire, Will Hicks.

Wednesday's game was one of the kind to delight the hearts of base ball enthusiasts. Paige was in the box for the visitors. He had great speed and good control and proved a puzzler for our batters, striking out 16 men and "walking" but one. Gilbert was unusually wild, giving 7 men first base on balls. He was not hit hard, however, (only 6 hits) and was fortunate several times in "pulling out of a tight place."

The game was lively and interesting from start to finish and when Striker came home in the 9th with the score that tied, making it 2 and 2, the crowd went wild. For 6 more innings the struggle continued without a run until finally in our half of the 15th, Knickerbocker made a hit, was advanced by Johnson's out, reached third on Hadley's hit and came home on Beasley's fly to center field. MY DREAM.

One summer night I had a dream. I dreamed that I was down at the pond. The pond looked nice and cool and the shadows of the trees were in the water. And I heard a noise, the strangest noise I ever heard, and when I looked into the water there were frogs and they kept saying, "Get up! Get up! You are lazy!" Then I looked up and saw a great many frogs sitting near me and they all had on green coats. Then other frogs jumped out of the pond and rolled me into the pond, and the water felt so strange and cool.

I awoke and found myself on the floor in my own room. I had fallen out of my bed. I got up and dressed, then went down to the pond. I saw a great many frogs. Some seemed to say, "Cut across! Cut across!" and others seemed to say, "Go around! Go around!" and still others seemed to say, "Step in! Step in!" I caught one of the frogs and told the rest "Good bye", and went home, taking the frog with me. But it would not talk any more.

SEE-SAW IN THE MEADOW.

Once old farmer Hayseed, as he was called, had so many hens that he could not keep them in the hen house, so he let them stray in a meadow. But what do you suppose one of the hens did? She hid herself in the grass and laid two eggs. In three weeks two little chicks were running around.

When old farmer Hayseed came out and saw those chicks he was so surprised that he jumped into the air and landed on his nose, which made it bleed. He ran to the house and went in.

When he was gone the chicks played around until one happened to find a board with a tin can under it. The chick jumped upon the board and called to the other who came and jumped upon the other end. And they teetered away, and for all I know they are teetering yet.

Some Tecumseh People to Realize the Seriousness.

The constant aching of a bad back,
The weariness, the tired feeling,
The pains and aches of kidney ills
Are serious if neglected.
Dangerous urinary troubles follow

Mr. F. A. Ferguson, tinsmith residing in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I had symptoms of kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were very irregular and at times too frequent and highly colored. Having seen so many cases of severe kidney trouble I thought it wise to do something at once, so I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store and took them. I began to improve from the very start and continued to do so. I emphatically declare Doan's Kidney Pills to be up to the representations made for them."

Answers to Correspondents.

Madame Yelle, the world-renowned beauty specialist and authority upon all matters pertaining to the heart or wardrobe, will cheerfully answer questions referred to her by our readers. Anonymous communications will receive no attention.

Dere Madem: I am a widow with 1 lung and 2 frunt rooms to rent. can you help me rent them to somebody who wud be good pay. I am a gret suferer. I here you are good to the poor of which I am one. hoping to here soon.
"MRS. DOUGHERTY."

At present I know of no one desiring rooms meeting your requirements. I would suggest advertising, which would also be the best method of disposing of your lung. Advertise in the local papers of Asheville, North Carolina, and Denver, Colorado, where many persons are located who would be willing to pay a good price for a perfectly sound and reliable lung.

Dear Madam: My present life is a confining one. I feel that I do not get enough exercise. My muscles are growing flabby and my lack-lustre eyes startle me each time that I look in the glass. When working at my trade I am very active and much in the open air. I am a second-story man. Kindly suggest some simple exercise which I may take in a limited space.
WILLIAM MASON.
State Penitentiary.

A brisk gallop in the park would prove beneficial, but if you find this not practicable, watch your chance and jump on your keeper when his back is turned. Pound him well about the head and ears for at least fifteen minutes each morning. Though the exercise is violent, you will find in the end that it will do you much good. Your step will become elastic, your eyes brighter, and your sallowness will give place to the glow of health. If you can obtain a small piece of tin or barrel-hoop, wrap a rag about one end and sharpen the edge. Many persons situated as you are whose equipments have been limited have found this simple invention very useful.

"Dere Madam: I am a stenographer and last week my employer invited me out for luncheon. I went. Yesterday his wife waited for me at the door and grabbed me by the pompadour, which, fortunately, gave way, and she disappeared with my rat. Do you think she is jealous? What shall I do?
"DOTTIE."

Do not be too quick to jump at conclusions. She may have needed the rat. If she comes back for the rest of your hair, you will be reasonably safe in believing her to be annoyed with you, in which case, Dottie, you would better hunt another job.

Dear Madam: I am a young man about to butt into society. In other words, I am going to be married. I have never been married before nor seen anybody else being married. How much shall I give the minister? Would it be proper for me to wear a bicycle suit? What time shall I get to her house and where shall I go when I get there? I have been much troubled over these questions, and am afraid to ask my friends for fear they will laugh at me. Can you get me a pass for self and wife to Chicago?
WILL.

Now, Will, do not get nervous over the step you are about to take. Keep a cool head and you will come out all right. Your fee to the minister depends upon your circumstances, but I would not give him less than a quarter. If you can afford $5, do so—but do not give it to him in nickels. Such a display would be vulgar. It would not be considered improper for you to wear a dress suit at your wedding. It seems to us it would be preferable to the bicycle suit. Under no circumstances wear a sweater. Evening clothes may now be hired quite reasonably and are much worn by smart society. Do not reach the bride's house before sun-up if it is to be an evening wedding. Upon arriving do not clutter up the rooms with your presence, but go at once to the cellar, where you will remain cool and collected until you are needed. The editor is using the business manager's annual pass, so I cannot accommodate you.

"Dear Madam: Although I am still a young woman, seventy-six my next birthday, I find that my face is growing very wrinkled. This worries me a great deal, as I believe it is every woman's duty to make herself as attractive looking as possible. I do not dissipate. I ride ten miles every day on my bicycle and drink a quart of hot water before every meal. In spite of my care, my skin is not what it was and I realize that I am going off in my looks.

P. S.—The lines about my mouth look like quotation marks. Can they be removed?"
NANNIE DAVIS.

There is no reason why a woman of your age should not preserve her looks for at least ten years longer. Sprinkle your face with lukewarm water, then lay upon an ironing board and go over quickly with a hot iron. Be careful not to scorch. Wipe carefully afterwards with a damp cloth and dry before fire. Iron your face every day for six month's and at the end of that time your skin will be as soft and smooth as a baby's. Keep up your hot water and exercises.

Paid $8,000 In Duties.

New York, Aug. 13.—Reginald C. Vanderbilt, who has just returned from a European trip with his bride, paid $8,000 in duty to the collector of the port of Boston. It is said the examiners checked up Va[illegible] declaration item by item, requiring two hours to go through forty trunks which the couple brought in.

AN INFRINGEMENT?

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 13.—Ten thousand dollars damages is asked for by W. G. Embrick of this city against the Saginaw Valley Traction company, in United States circuit court at Bay City.

It is claimed that the traction company is using an insulating plug for electric line support purchased from a brass company of Mansfield, O., which is an infringment of a patent secured by L. A. Williams of 510 Adams street, this city, in 1899. It is claimed that the patent has already been sustained by the United States court in Detroit, in a suit brought against Mr. Noxon in January last, who was selling a similar plug in the eastern market. Emerick is assignee of the patent and W. F. Paine his solicitor.

Suits will probably be started all over the state in connection with the same matter.

Boy cured of colic after physicians treatment had failed

My boy when four years old was taken with colic and cramps in his stomach. I sent for the doctor and he injected morphine, but the child kept getting worse. I then gave him half a teaspoonful of Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in half an hour he was sleeping and soon recovered.—F. L. Wilkins, Shell Lake, Wis. DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

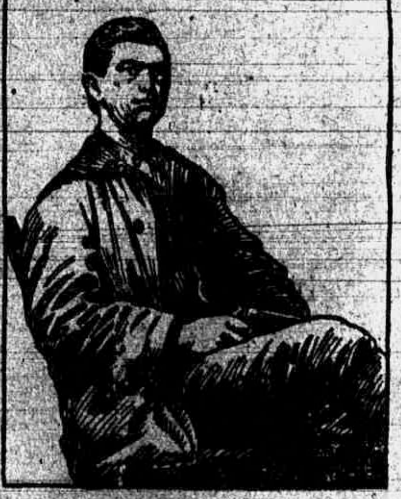
SENT UP FOR LIFE.

Feud Murderers, Jett and White, Escape the Gallows.

Synthiana, Ky., Aug. 15.—Curtis Jett and Tom White, charged with the murder of J. B. Marcum at Jackson, Ky., several months ago were Friday morning found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The case was given to the jury at 10:46 a. m. yesterday.

Jett received the verdict with comparative indifference and calmness. White, who has been apparently under a severe strain during the trial, flushed up and his eyes filled with tears. Attorney Golden, for the defense, stated that a motion for a new trial would be made as soon as possible.



CURTIS JETT,

Kentucky feud murderer, who with Tom White is sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of J. B. Marcum.

The case has been on trial almost three weeks, having been begun July 27. At the first trial at Jackson, the jury disagreed and it is believed the verdict today was a compromise with a juror opposed to capital punishment. The friends of Captain B. L. Ewen and other witnesses for the commonwealth who have suffered greatly and were living in fear of their lives, are greatly relieved.

Fryer devoted himself for a half hour to a scathing denunciation of James Hargis and Ed. Callahan, to whom he said the proof pointed as the men who had hired Jett and White to murder J. B. Marcum.

He said he was confident Judge Hargis had procured perjurers to make an alibi for Jett and had sought in every way to defeat the ends of justice.

James B. Marcum was a prominent lawyer in Jackson, Ky., and was counsel for fusionists in contested election cases in Breathitt county. Just after he had finished filing papers for reopening the cases he was shot down in the front entrance of the court house. He never spoke, death being almost instantaneous.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

BIG MINE DEAL.

Saginaw Companies Secure Foothold in Bay County.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 15.—The Saginaw Coal company and the Pere Marquette Coal company are under the same ownership and the same management. H. C. Potter, Jr., of Detroit is president and St. T. Crapo vice-president of both companies; R. H. Randall is secretary and manager of both companies and treasurer of the Saginaw company, while Harry T. Wicks is the treasurer of the Pere Marquette company.

This combination has closed the deal for the purchase of the two mines, Wolverine Nos. 1 and 2, in Bay county, which were put down and have been operated by Handy Bros. of West Bay City. The Saginaw company controls the output of several mines in Saginaw county and will by this purchase secure a foothold in Bay.

Handy Bros. built a railroad nine miles long, called the Huron & Western, connecting their mines with West Bay City, and operated this road several months. This road, with its equipment, has been purchased by the Pere Marquette and will be operated by that company, giving it the freight of two coal mines, amounting to several hundred tons daily.

Botsford Can't Be Reached.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 15.—J. E. Botsford, a prominent capitalist of this city and one of the principal stockholders of the embarrassed Columbia Iron Works, is residing temporarily in Canada and sensational developments are expected, as a writ of attachment has been issued against Mr. Botsford's property in this city in favor of the State Savings bank of Detroit. Service cannot be had on Mr. Botsford owing to his absence in Canada. It is alleged that Mr. Botsford secured a one hundred thousand dollar loan from the bank for the company. Mr. Botsford was supposed to be worth about $200,000, but the records show a number of transfers to his wife and others, made recently. F. D. Jenks, another member of the Columbia firm, has also transferred a lot of property in the past thirty days.

Murder in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—Rochus Affeldt, a Pole, about 45 years old, who boarded at 384 Poplar street, shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night was shot and almost instantly killed by Joseph Freischman, a young man about 19 years old, who was engaged to Affeldt's daughter. Freischman fired the shot, it is alleged, at the instigation of Affeldt's son, who had picked a quarrel with his father and then called on Freischman for assistance. It was nearly an hour before the police heard of the affair, and Freischman made good his escape, but young Affeldt was arrested and taken to the station.

Demented Man Stabbed Himself.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—While in a demented condition of mind, John Nangle, living at 103 Harrison avenue, stabbed himself with a carving knife twice in the abdomen, once below the heart, and also on the left side of the neck. The attempted suicide occurred at 5 a. m. Sunday morning in the yard of the house where he lives with his sister, Annie Nangle, and three brothers. The wounded man is 45 years of age.

TWO WALKED AWAY

Trusties at Jackson Prison Escaped to a Swamp.

OFFICERS HARD AFTER THEM

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 15.—Twenty officers from the state prison are out in the township of Leoni searching for two escaped convicts, who made away at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. They were two trusties employed upon the farm at digging potatoes. At 4 o'clock they dropped their hoes and made away, taking an easterly direction. They were missed soon after and telephones to farmers aroused people in the direction taken. They were sighted about 6 o'clock entering a large swamp east of the city.

The convicts are William Skahan, 40 years old, sentenced from Grand Rapids to ten years for burglary, sentence expiring June 5, 1905, and George Dwight, 55 years, from Ionia for assault with intent to murder, sentence expiring April 13, 1906. Skahan is about blind from cataracts and Dwight is 55 years old. They wore blue overalls and black slouch hats.

Several women were berrying in the swamp when the men entered, but were not alarmed, not recognizing them as convicts because of their dress as farmers.

That any of the inmates at the prison should be so ungrateful as to leave the hospitable board of Warden Vincent is provocation for extending sympathy.

GUILTY OF NEGLIGENCE.

Engineer of Wrecked Train at Durand Admits It.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 15.—In the coroner's inquest, started here Friday to ascertain the cause and attach the blame for last Friday's wreck of the Wallace Bros'. two circus trains, in which twenty-four lives were lost and a score seriously hurt. In the engineer's testimony it was brought out that Charles Propst of Battle Creek, the engineer on the second section, which crashed into the first section on the main line of the Grand Trunk railway here, run his train a distance of sixty miles without looking at the valve that would show whether or not his air brake system was in working order. He admitted this fact. The jury will find that Propst was guilty of negligence, but whether or not it was criminal negligence is the question.

Fire Sweeps Over Dansville.

Mason, Mich., Aug. 15.—Fire broke out at Dansville, a town of about 400 people, eight miles east of here, Thursday night, and destroyed these business places: A building owned by A. Bears, and occupied by Claude Wests, grocer; building owned by F. Clickner and occupied by Shehan, dealer in agricultural impliments; building owned by H. Doane, and occupied by Clickner Bros., ice cream and soda; building owned by M. M. Joy, and occupied by I. Moe, undertaker; also two barnes at the rear of the stores. The Maccabees, Lady Maccabees, Foresters, Woodmen and G. A. R. meeting rooms and paraphernalia were destroyed. It is not known how the fire started.

Ate Poisoned Canned Salmon.

Three Rivers, Mich., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Martha Hagerman, wife of Noah Hagerman, an old veteran of the Nineteenth Michigan infantry, died at her home in this city Friday, aged 66. Mr. Hagerman is very ill and chances are against his recovery. Both partook of some canned salmon a short time ago and were immediately taken sick with this result.

Robbers Were [illegible].

Birmingham, Mich., Aug. 15.—While going home with his arms full of groceries, Ed. Schuler met two strangers who attempted to take his watch. One of them grabbed for it, but the chain broke and the watch is still in Schuler's pocket. Mr. Schuler happened to have his jackknife in his hand, and he slashed one of the fellows on the neck.

Lockjaw From Scalding.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 15.—Mabel, the 9-year-old daughter of L. C. Amy, died Friday of lockjaw, resulting from terrible scalds sustained over two weeks ago from tipping a tub of hot water upon herself. The child was apparently making a rapid recovery until a few days ago, when lockjaw set in.

Millionaire's Brother Arrested.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 15.—Local officers have caused the arrest of Basil Hutchinson of Ypsilanti, whom they charge with pocket-picking. He is a younger brother of Shelley Hutchinson, the trading stamp millionaire, who has spent much money in an effort to keep the young man straight.

Deserted His Bride.

Laporte, Ind., Aug. 17.—Roy Young of Pittsford, Mich., who three weeks ago married Mrs. Nellie Mynck at North Vernon, Ind., after a correspondence started by a matrimonial ad. inserted by her, has deserted his bride and says he will return to Pittsford. She is nearly distracted and says they had no difficulty and she knows no reason for his sudden departure.

BULGARIA APPEALS

Atrocious Acts of Turks Have Gone Beyond Endurance.

TERRIBLE CRIMES COMMITTED

Category of Murder, Torture, Incendiarism, Pillage and Brutal Acts of Oppression Recited—Performed Under Cover of Reform.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 17.—The Bulgarian government has presented a memorandum to the powers, setting out at great length the condition of affairs during the past three months in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate the promised reforms. The most precise details, dates, places and names of persons are given in the memorandum, the whole constituting a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression committed by the Ottoman soldiers and officials. These particulars were obtained entirely from official sources, such as the reports of the Bulgarian consuls and agents of the Bulgarian government, and in many instances the reports made by Turkish authorities. The Bulgarian government guarantees the absolute truth of every statement and challenges the Porte to disprove a single charge made in the memorandum.

The memorandum begins by stating that during the past three months the Ottoman government has taken a series of measures with the alleged intention of inaugurating the era of promised reform and of assuring peace and tranquility to the Bulgarian population of European Turkey, but instead of proceeding solely against persons guilty of breaches of the public order, the military and civil authorities have sought every possible pretext to persecute, terrorize and ruin the Bulgarian inhabitants, alike in the large cities and in the small villages.

Atrocious Acts.

Wholesale massacres, individual murders, the destruction of villages, the pillaging and setting fire to houses, the arrests, ill-treatment, tortures, arbitrary imprisonment and banishment, the closing and disorganizing of churches and schools, the ruining of merchants, the collection of taxes for many years in advance—such, proceeds the memorandum, are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskub and Adrianople.

The memorandum next relates in detail a number of such cases in each vilayet. Beginning with the vilayet of Salonica, it states that in the town of Salonica itself the Bulgarian professors of the university, the students and shopkeepers, in fact all the intelligent Bulgarians in the city, have been cast into prison. One hundred and twenty soldiers entered the village of Gorna-Ribnitza May 19 and tortured to death five men and two women. During the first three weeks of July twenty-five villages in the districts of Tikyesch were subjected to the depredations of the Turkish soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks. The villagers were beaten and tortured, the women violated and the houses plundered, while the administrative authorities looked on. In the vilayet of Monastir artillery bombarded and razed the flourishing town of Smerdesch, the 300 houses being left a heap of ruins. At the beginning of July two Greek bands, with the connivance of the authorities, pillaged Bulgarian villages and murdered many of their inhabitants. In the vilayet of Uskub the entire Bulgarian population has been systematically persecuted since last May.

In the districts of Palanka, Koschani, Koumanovo and Gostigar, the prisons are filled. The soldiers and Bashi Bazouks terrorized the inhabitants of the Schtif district, torturing the people with redhot irons. Similar atrocities perpetrated in the vilayet of Adrianople are cited.

Two Hundred Killed.

At Smerdesch over 200 Bulgarians were shot, killed with swords or burned to death. Over 250 houses and the churches and schools were set on fire. Similar scenes occurred at the villages of Gorona-Ribuintza, Nikoden, Igoumenetz and Dobrilaki. Over 3,000 men, women and children fled from the Sanjak of Seres and even more from the Sanjak of Kirkkleisse.

In conclusion, the memorandum asserts that the foregoing exposure once more condemns Ottoman administrative government in Europe. It says:

"The Porte formally promised the Bulgarian government to cease the arrests of Bulgarian priests and schoolmasters, reopen the churches and schools, release the prisoners and punish the officials guilty of exactions; in short, to adopt a policy of justice and amelioration.

"Not only has the Porte failed to observe a single one of these promises, but it has enacted sterner measures of repression.

"What must be the result of all this? Tired of waiting the fulfillment of promises of better conditions and driven to despair, the Bulgarian population have thrown themselves into a revolution, which is now spreading in an Ottoman province, 150 miles from the Bulgarian frontier.

"The causes of this revolution are today known. The responsibility is fixed and the Porte can no longer accuse the Bulgarian principality."

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." J. J. Orr

Not over-wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of needlessly treading on a snake. This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. Sold by all druggists.

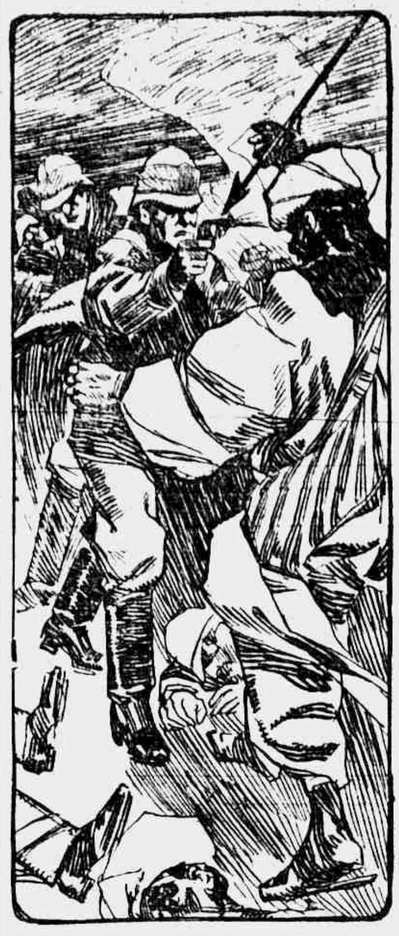
THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

Dick was conscious that somebody had cut him violently across his helmet, that he had fired his revolver into a black, foam flecked face which forthwith ceased to bear any resemblance to a face, and that Torpenhow had gone down under an Arab whom he had tried to "collar low" and was turning over and over with his captive, feeling for the man's eyes. The doctor was jabbing at a venture with a bayonet, and a helmetless soldier was firing over Dick's shoulder. The flying grains of powder stung his cheek. It was to Torpenhow that Dick turned by instinct. The representative of the Central Southern syndicate had shaken himself clear of his enemy and rose, wiping his thumb on his trousers.



Dick fired twice.

The Arab, both hands to his forehead, screamed aloud, then snatched up his spear and rushed at Torpenhow, who was panting under shelter of Dick's revolver. Dick fired twice, and the man dropped limply. His upturned face lacked one eye.

The musketry fire redoubled, but cheers mingled with it. The rush had failed, and the enemy were flying. If the heart of the square were shambles, the ground beyond was a butcher's shop. Dick thrust his way forward between the maddened men. The remnants of the enemy were retiring, and the few—the very few—English cavalry were riding down the laggards.

Beyond the lines of the dead a broad blood stained Arab spear cast aside in the retreat lay across a stump of scrub, and beyond this again the illimitable dark level of the desert. The sun caught the steel and turned it into a savage red disk. Some one behind him was saying, "Ah, get away, you brute!" Dick raised his revolver and pointed toward the desert. His eye was held by the red splash in the distance, and the clamor about him seemed to die down to a very faraway whisper like the whisper of a level sea.

There was the revolver and the red light and the voice of some one scaring something away exactly as had fallen somewhere before, probably in a past life. Dick waited for what should happen afterward. Something seemed to crack inside his head, and for an instant he stood in the dark, a darkness that stung. He fired at random, and the bullet went out across the desert as he muttered: "Spoiled my aim. There aren't any more cartridges. We shall have to run home." He put his hand to his head and brought it away covered with blood.

"Old man, you're cut rather badly," said Torpenhow. "I owe you something for this business. Thanks. Stand up! I say, you can't be ill here."

Dick had fallen stiffly on Torpenhow's shoulder and was muttering something about aiming low and to the left. Then he sank to the ground and was silent. Torpenhow dragged him off to a doctor and sat down to work up his account of what he was pleased to call "a sanguinary battle, in which our arms had acquitted themselves," etc.

All that night when the troops were encamped by the whaleboats a black figure danced in the strong moonlight on the sand bar and shouted that "Khartum, the accursed one, was dead—was dead—was dead; that two steamers were rock staked on the Nile outside the city, and that all of their crews there remained not one, and Khartum was dead—was dead—was dead."

But Torpenhow took no heed. He was watching Dick, who was calling aloud to the restless Nile for Maisie—and again Maisie!

"Behold a phenomenon," said Torpenhow, rearranging the blanket. "Here is a man, presumably human, who mentions the name of one woman only. And I've seen a good deal of delirium too. Dick, here's some fizzy drink."

"Thank you, Maisie," said Dick.

CHAPTER III.

So he thinks he shall take to the sea again
For one more cruise with his buccaneers,
To singe the beard of the king of Spain
And capture another dean of Jaen
And sell him in Algiers.

THE Sudan campaign and Dick's broken head had been some months ended and mended, and the Central Southern syndicate had paid Dick a certain sum on account for work done, which work they were careful to assure him was not altogether up to their standard. Dick heaved the letter into the Nile at Cairo, cashed the draft in the same town and bade a warm farewell to Torpenhow at the station.

"I am going to lie up for awhile and rest," said Torpenhow. "I don't know where I shall live in London, but if God brings us to meet, we shall meet. Are you staying here on the off chance of another row? There will be none till the southern Sudan is reoccupied by our troops. Mark that. Goodby, bless you. Come back when your money's spent and give me your address."

Dick loitered in Cairo, Alexandria, Ismailia and Port Said—especially Port Said. There is iniquity in many parts of the world, and vice in all, but the concentrated essence of all the iniquities and all the vices in all the continents finds itself at Port Said. And through the heart of that sand bordered hell, where the mirage flickers all day long above the Bitter lakes, move, if you only wait, most of the men and women you have known in this life. Dick established himself in quarters more riotous than respectable. He spent his evenings on the quay, and boarded many ships, and saw very many friends—gracious Englishwomen with whom he had talked not too wisely in the veranda of Shepheard's hotel, hurrying war correspondents, skippers of the contract troopships employed in the campaign, army officers by the score and others of less reputable trades.

He had choice of all the races of the east and west for studies, and the advantage of seeing his subjects under the influence of strong excitement at the gaming tables, saloons, dancing hells and elsewhere. For recreation there was the straight vista of the canal, the blazing sands, the procession of shipping and the white hospitals where the English soldiers lay. Dick strove to pen down in black and white and colors all that Providence sent him, and when that supply was ended sought about for fresh material. It was a fascinating employment, but it ran away with his money, and he had drawn in advance the £120 to which he was entitled yearly.

"Now I shall have to work or starve," thought he, and was addressing himself to this new fate when the mysterious telegram arrived from Torpenhow in England which said: "Come back quick. You have caught on. Come." A large smile overspread his face. "So soon! That's good hearing," said he to himself. "There will be an orgy tonight. I'll stand or fall by my luck. Faith, it's time it came!" He deposited half of his funds in the hands of his well known friends, M. and Mme. Binat, and ordered himself a Zanzibar dance of the finest. M. Binat was shaking with drink, but madame smiled sympathetically.

"Monsieur needs a chair, of course; and of course monsieur will sketch. Monsieur amuses himself strangely."

Binat raised a blue-white face from a cot in the inner room. "I understand," he quavered. "We all know monsieur. Monsieur is an artist, as I have been." Dick nodded. "In the end," said Binat, with gravity, "monsieur will descend alive into hell, as I have descended." And he laughed.

"You must come to the dance too," said Dick. "I shall want you."

"For my face? I knew it would be so. For my face? And for my degradation so tremendous! I will not. Take him away. He is a devil. Or at least do thou, Celeste, demand of him more." The excellent Binat began to kick and scream.

"All things are for sale in Port Said," said madame. "If my husband comes, it will be so much more. Eh, 'ow you call—'alf a sovereign."

The money was paid, and the mad dance came off that night in the walled courtyard at the back of Mme. Binat's house. The lady herself, in faded mauve silk always about to slide from her yellow shoulders, played the piano, and to the tinpot music of a western waltz the Zanzibar girls danced furiously by the light of kerosene lamps.

Binat sat upon a chair and stared with eyes that saw nothing till the whirl of the dance and the clang of the rattling piano stole into the drink that took the place of blood in his veins, and his face glistened. Dick took him by the chin brutally and turned that face to the light. Mme. Binat looked over her shoulder and smiled with many teeth. Dick leaned against the wall and sketched for an hour, till the kerosene lamps began to smell and the girls threw themselves panting on the hard beaten ground.

Then he shut his book with a snap and moved away, Binat plucking feebly at his elbow. "Show me," he whimpered. "I, too, was once an artist, even I!" Dick showed him the rough sketch. "Am I that?" he screamed. "Will you take that away with you and show all the world that it is I, Binat?" He moaned and wept.

"Monsieur has paid for all," said madame. "To the pleasure of seeing monsieur again."

The courtyard gate shut, and Dick hurried up the sandy street to the nearest gambling hell, where he was well known. "If the luck holds, it's an omen; if I lose, I must stay here." He placed his money picturesquely about the board, hardly daring to look at what he did. The luck held. Three turns of the wheel left him richer by £20, and he went down to the shipping to make friends with the captain of a decayed cargo steamer, who landed him in London with fewer pounds in his pocket than he cared to think about.

A thin gray fog hung over the city, and the streets were very cold, for summer was in England.

"It's a cheerless wilderness, and it hasn't the knack of altering much," Dick thought as he tramped from the docks westward. "Now, what must I do?"

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Splendid Isolation.

"Why do you remain apart from others?" asked a young lion of his sire. "Would not a herd of lions present an imposing array?"

"By no means," answered the elder. "It would greatly diminish the respect now felt for us. Sheep may herd together, but the lion must flock by himself."—New York Herald.

Answers to Correspondents.

Madame Yelle, the world-renowned specialist and authority upon all matters pertaining to the heart or wardrobe, will cheerfully answer questions referred to her by our readers. Anonymous communications will receive no attention.

"Dear Madam: I have an affliction which has caused me much embarrassment and the loss of old friends. Doctors seem unable to help me, though I have tried everything known to science. Every time I go to a funeral I laugh. Threats, entreaties, scorn—all are alike to me. I cannot control myself, but laugh myself into fits. I have tried to count one hundred, have thought of a herd of black sheep jumping over a fence, have pinched myself, and pulled my own hair, but in vain. Nothing stops me. But let me go to a minstrel show or a comic opera or a farce comedy and my face seems frozen. I cannot smile. The corner of my mouth droops, and before I realize it the tears are rolling down my cheeks. As the jokes and fun of the comedians increase, I find myself shaken with convulsive sobs. I weep so bitterly that often I am obliged to leave the place of amusement and seek refuge in an undertaking establishment. There I recover my spirits and am soon my merry self again.

"Can you help me?"
DOLORES GRAVES."

Will some of our kind readers suggest a remedy which may be of benefit to our afflicted correspondent?

Dear Madam: Noticing your helpful hints to the troubled, I write to ask you if you won't please plan a nice fall suit for me. I have about the house three flour-sacks and four nice gunny sacks. How can I make them up?
"LILLY BELLE."

Thank you for your kind words. Rip the sacks at the seams and press carefully with a lukewarm iron. Make the burlap into a seven-gored skirt, strapping the seams with the flour-sacking and finishing the ends with rosettes of ooze calf. Make a bolero jacket of the flour-sacking, strapping the seams with the burlap. A row of china buttons around the edge of the jacket gives a very Frenchy touch. To complete this natty costume get a large, hairy beaver and trim with the fruit trimming now so much in vogue. A gourd or a parsnip would be original and fetching.

WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if here is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

When a person wants to elevate anything he should keep off of it. It would be well for the stage if some actors would remember this.

If a man is in love his intentions are as serious as his attentions are ridiculous.

ANDERSON BROS. R. S. MOORE.
C. E. WILLIAMSON
JAS. LOWRY AVERY & CO.

I have seen "The Heart of Chicago" and can guarantee it to be a clean moral play, very much above the average and am sure the people of Tecumseh will be pleased with it. I hope it may have a packed house which it certainly deserves. ARTHUR BRADLEY, Mgr.

Miss Nellie Avery, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Avery, and Louis Fabrique of Clinton, were married at Windsor Saturday. Rev. Brown, pastor of the M. E. church, performed the ceremony. They will make their home in Clinton, where Mr. Fabrique has a position in the woolen mill. Their many friends wish them a happy and prosperous life.

Tecumseh is to celebrate on the 25th of August with a Carnival, 4 bands, 2 ball games, Tecumseh vs D. A. C's. of Detroit, a ladies walking match for a $35.00 gold watch, a scrub horse running race on Chicago street, and other good attractions such as Tecumseh always puts up. There is a guarrantee of 10,000 or more people for their big day. Their transportation committee is active in arranging excursions and securing rates that will make it attractive and an inducement to visit "The Beautiful City" on that date.

The funeral of D. H. Zeluff was held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock under auspices of the F. and A. M. Rev. Jones officiated. The following relatives from out of town were in attendance: J. B. Mrs. Swif. of Buffalo, and Miss Linda Dewey of Cambridge, who have been guests of Miss Lillie Dewey, returned to their homes this morning.

"The Heart of Chicago."

Lincoln J. Carter's thrilling dramatic novelty, "The Heart of Chicago" which will begin an engagement of one night at the New Bradley opera house Friday, Aug. 21, promises to be on the road even longer than its money winning predecessors, "The Fast Mail" and "The Tornado" from the same pen. It carries enough scenery to stock half dozen meldramas of other days, and the story of its mechanical effects would have seemed to the managers of a decade ago to be comparable to an opium smoker's roseate dreams. Two of the scenes are absolute marvels of the stage painter and stage mechanicals. They are astonishing fire scenes of which a vivid reproduction of the burning of a section of Chicago during the great fire is shown and the famous approaching train.

Farmers' Picnic.

The Eastern Hillsdale and Western Lenawee Farmers' Picnic association will hold its 31st annual picnic at Lake View, Devil's Lake, on Thursday, August 27th, 1903. Prof. H. R. Smith, of the University of Nebraska, and Judge Fred H. Stone, of Hillsdale, will be the orators of the day. An excellent musical and literary program will be carried out and in addition to this there will be an excellent program of sport events consisting of foot races, tub races, greased pole climbing, etc. There will also be a ball game both in the forenoon and afternoon, between Ann Arbor and Pittsford. All railroads furnish special accomodations for this popular annual event.

St. Stanislaus College.

Bay St. Louis, Miss., Jan. 13, 1902.
To Whom it May Concern:

I take this occasion to recommend the John H. Sparks shows as an interesting entertainment, wholly moral and markedly free from obnoxious features so often attendant upon this line of business. The gentlemen in charge are courteous and obliging, and live up to their promises to the public. The students of the college vote it the best show the coast has seen in years. This recommendation is given unsolicited.
BROTHER DANIEL, V. Pres.

Will exhibit at Tecumseh Aug. 20.

Special Sale.

B. A. Rauch will make a special sale on bed room sets for the rest of August, making a discount of $3.00 on each set sold. The stock is too large and must be decreased to make room for fall goods.

Farmers Attention.

We will be in the market for oats his season. See Brown before selling.
L. FRENSDORF.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

Morris Primrose.

Morris Primrose was born in Groveland, N. Y. in 1831. At 24 years of age he came to Tecumseh, where he has since resided. Twenty years ago when the Tecumseh Lumber Company's mills were destroyed by fire he was seriously burned. Since that time he has been more or less invalided.

Of a quiet, unobtrusive nature, his life stood for all that was good and uplifting. He was particularly devoted to his family, showing forth in his domestic life those qualities which go to make a home in the best sense of the word. It is here the loss of his companionship will be keenly felt and mourned.

The manner of his sudden death August 10 correspond with his quiet, gentle life. He was buried with Masonic honors Thursday morning and laid away amidst a profusion of beautiful flowers.

Mrs. Hannah A. Werner.

Mrs. Hannah A. Werner, wife of J. I. Werner, was born in Cayuga county, N. Y., April 5th, 1821 and died in Tecumseh Aug. 6th, 1903.

Mrs. Werner was the daughter of Mr. Philander Green and the last member of her father's family. When fourteen years of age she came to Michigan and and settled in Tipton township. In 1864 she married Mr. O. G. Adams. After his death she became the wife of J. I. Werner, who, with one daughter, Mrs. Helen Snedicor, still survives to mourn her loss.

At an early age Mrs. Werner united with the M. E. church, of which she was a consistant and faithful member until her death, a period of 60 years. For several months past she has suffered with a painful disease, yet suffered patiently, making herself dearer to all by her gentleness.

She had an abiding faith in her Lord and often spoke to her friends of the certainty of eternal life with him. While she tarried, her hands were full of blessings for others, when she passed on, it was in peace with God and man.

Though we are glad her sufferings are over, we deeply regret the loss of one so well and universally beloved and sincerely sympathize with her beloved family.

OUR BALL TEAM

At the present time
AS GOOD AS SECOND

In the State and in the best repute all over.

When one stops to think of the Tecumseh ball team, the games they have played and the strong teams they have played against, it is really wonderful their success during the season this far.

Gilbert won 11, lost 0; Harris won 3, lost 3; Johnson won 6, lost 3; Striker won 2, lost 0.

This makes 28 games played and 6 games lost and the Indians have only been shut out twice. Certainly this record shows great ball. This season the clubs have stood in the state, Ionia first and Holland, Mt. Pleasant and Tecumseh about equal for second place.

Now that Tecumseh has beaten Mt. Pleasant three games out of four, Tecumseh can easily stand for second place; and there is a question if Ionia can play better ball, as the Indians shut out Ionia for the first time this season.

This list shows that all the games played here this season have been good and most of them first class.

The base ball association have done great work in securing good teams and playing good ball. Even the league clubs have played poorer ball than at Tecumseh this summer, but the Tecumseh people have not patronized the games as they should. At a number of the best games the grand stand has not been filled and if this continues something must stop. With the Indians, Tecumseh is being advertised all over the state. Her fast ball team is known in every town and at several of the games the old town has been crowded to overflowing with country people.

If the town people would turn out at the games as they should there would be no trouble and the association would wind up the summer with money in the bank. The town is advertised with every game and the merchants are paying their good money to keep up the team. Let us all assist with a little gate money for each game and all will wind up well.

The Beauties and Chicks played a lively game of ball Saturday. The Chicks were victors by a score of 17 to 16. The Beauties were in lead until the last half of the ninth when the Chicks made a great spurt and run in 5 scores, winning the game. Batteries, Hannah and Heidenrich, VanDuser and Whiting.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Owing to the exorbitant rate asked picnicers at Sand lake for the use of the grounds and the cold shoulder turned on them by the proprietor, the usual crowds of people from the country and small towns are going to Wamplers and Devils lakes this season to eat picnic dinners and enjoy their outings of a week or two.—Onsted News.

Don Armstrong fell from and under an electric line hand car while it was in quite rapid motion, last Saturday evening. The obstruction of his body caused the stoppage of the car and he emerged with some cuts and bruises on his left arm and leg. It was lucky indeed that he was not more seriously injured. Dr Ewart surgically attended to the young man's injuries.—Morenci Observer.

Manchester was right in it at Maccabee celebration at Ann Arbor yesterday. Got first prize, $15, for having largest number of men in line; first prize $25 for tent coming longest distance. The Manchester military band made the best appearance of those in attendance. E. F. Chase was elected president and W. J. Hoffer secretary of the county association. The celebration will be at Manchester next year.—Manchester Enterprise.

A story was told in Brooklyn this week on "Doc" Smith, the well known politician of Adrian. Doc always dresses in a clerical coat and has much the appearance of a clergyman. In fact, he is often mistaken for a minister and no one more fully appreciates the humor of these situations than himself. Not long since he stopped at a fashionable haberdasher's in Detroit to purchase a new hat. He had selected a stunning piece of masculine millinery and in his dignified manner inquired the price. The man behind the counter replied, "The usual price for that hat is $—, but to men of your cloth," he suggested, nodding at Mr. Smith's long coat, "we make a little concession and you may have it for $—." Doc knew that he was again taken for a preacher and just as he was passing out the door with his purchase nearly paralyzed the clerk with surprise by remarking, "I rather like the hat and if my congregation don't they can go to h—l."—Brooklyn Exponent.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

A Citizen of Tecumseh Pays a Well-Earned Tribute.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mrs. E. D. Fryer, who lives in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off an l-on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the after noon and I often felt like giving up, but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and, in spite of all the remedies I used, I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store, I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

PEOPLE WHO CAN'T SLEEP.

Many people go to bed—not to sleep, but to think—to tumble and toss—to get up, walk about until tired Nature gives way and a few fitful hours of sleep are obtained just before dawn—a sleep that does not rest—a sleep from which one wakes weary and tired, wholly unfitted to take up the daily routine of household, shop or office duties. That this condition goes on uncared for is almost criminal, when the well-known, time-tried and tested powers of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give restful natural sleep have been so fully proven in such cases.

Mrs. E. Anderson of Tecumseh, Mich., says;—"I was so nervous that I could not sleep at night and was weak and suffered from dizzy spells. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. A. Wright's drug store and they were just what I needed. Since I used the medicine my nerves are steady and strong—I sleep finely—the dizziness is all gone and the general health, strength and vigor splendid. I think the pills a splendid nerve medicine and have no hesitation in recommending it strongly." 50c a box at dealers or Dr A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. A WAIST WIT NOVEL FICHU.

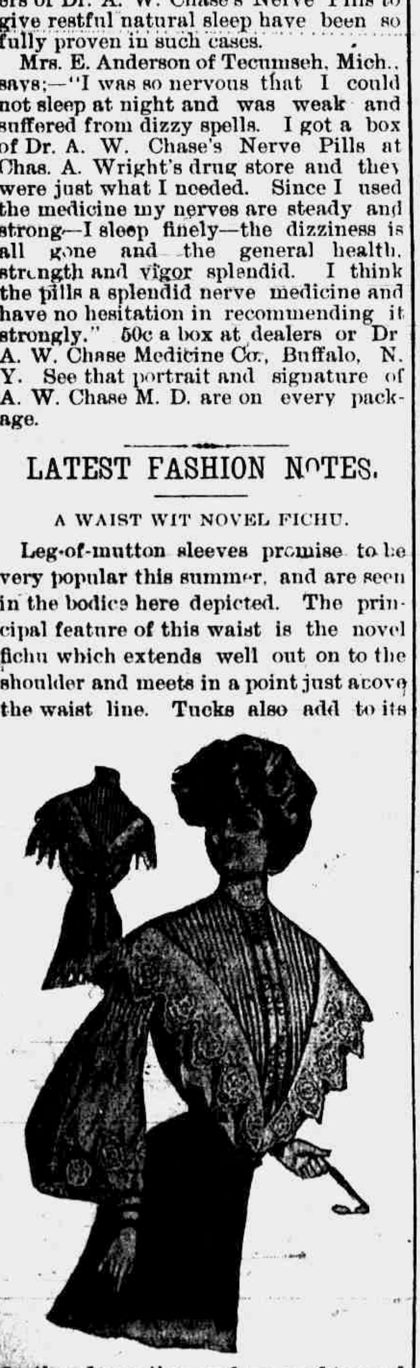
Leg-of-mutton sleeves promise to be very popular this summer, and are seen in the bodice here depicted. The principal feature of this waist is the novel fichu which extends well out on to the shoulder and meets in a point just above the waist line. Tucks also add to its further decoration, and are used to good effect in the upper part of the sleeves.



Elbow sleeves, bracelets and mitts are coming into vogue. Of mitts there are many kinds shown, but the most durable and beautiful are those which are of very fine hard twisted silk in very fine meshes. These are embroidered by hand after they are made.

WHEN BABY IS COMING USE Mother's Friend

Woman's greatest dream of beauty and glory is when nature has chosen her to become a mother. Every faculty is keenly alert as she foresees the joy, ambition, success and the life-long satisfaction coming nearer, day by day, in the dear and innocent being so soon to see light, and the uncertainty whether she shall see a sweet girl or a brave boy face beside her on the pillow adds zest to her expectancy. Mother's Friend applied externally throughout pregnancy will relieve the pain of parturition, and no mother and child can fail to be healthy, hearty, strong, clear complexioned, pure blooded and heedful in disposition, who are mutually influenced by the continued use of this great liniment, MOTHER'S FRIEND.

CONVICTS ELUDE THEM.

Escaped Jackson Prisoners Giving Officers Merry Chase.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 17.—Dwight and Skahan, two convicts who left the prison potato patch Friday, are giving the prison officers a merry chase. The convicts first went into a swamp in Leoni township. During the night they stole through a line of officers on guard and got away.

Saturday afternoon the farmers in Sandstone, eight miles in the opposite direction from the Leoni swamp, notified the prison by telephone that the convicts had been seen there and were headed north. This report was verified by a telephone message later in the day, that a woman on a farm in Rives had accidentally run onto the men lunching on green apples in her orchard and milking a cow pastured there. The convicts made a hasty retreat.

Late Sunday afternoon the convicts became braver, or perhaps more hungry, and went to John Gee, a farmer in Henrietta township, and were fed. They then put into a large swamp.

The country is thoroughly aroused and the escaped convicts are the chief topic of conversation in the country districts. It seems as if the convicts cannot elude their pursuers much longer.

Want to Divorce at Eighty.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 17.—After forty years of wedded life, Mrs. Catherine Hathaway has applied to the circuit court for a separation from her husband and maintenance by him. Each of the couple is nearly 80 years of age and they have a family of grown children. Two years ago they agreed to separate and Hathaway went east. He learned this spring that his wife was mourning for him and he returned. All went well for a few days until on coming home from down town one day he found the door locked against him. He battered it in with an ax. Since then scraps have been frequent. Hathaway is a civil war pensioner and is well to do.

STILL HOLDS BELT

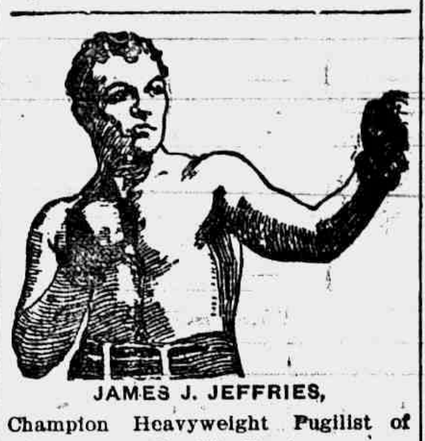
Jeffries Defeats Corbett In the Tenth Round.

NO SHOW FOR CORBETT

Ex-Champion Acknowledges Jeffries' Superiority—Jeffries Shows Remarkable Improvement—Stomach Blows Brought Defeat.

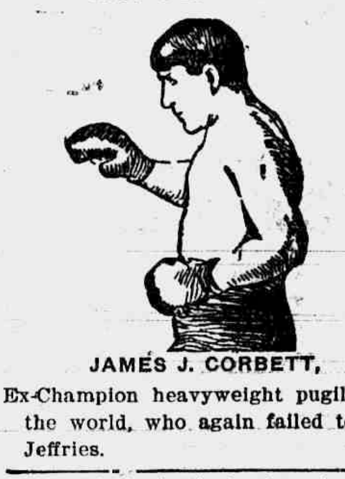
San Francisco, Aug. 15.—James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight of the world, played with Jim Corbett for nine rounds and a half last night and then Corbett's seconds motioned to Referee Graney to stop the fight in order to save their man from needless punishment. The end came shortly after the beginning of the tenth round, when Jeffries planted one of his terrific left swings on Corbett's stomach. Corbett dropped to the floor, but struggled to his feet and again faced his gigantic adversary. With hardly a moment's hesitation, Jeffries swung his right and again landed on Corbett's stomach. Jim dropped to the floor again, and then it was that Tommy Ryan, seeing that it was all over, motioned to Referee Graney to stop the punishment.

The fight last night demonstrated beyond all doubt that Jeffries stands alone in his class. He showed remarkable improvement in both speed and skill. Corbett during the first part of the fight was almost outpointed, and the few blows that he landed on Jeffries were apparently without sting.



JAMES J. JEFFRIES,
Champion Heavyweight Pugilist of the World.

Jeffries was never in better condition. He looked lighter than usual and the way he moved about on his feet and the frequency with which he countered Corbett's leads astonished everybody. Corbett, in comparison with the big man opposed to him, looked very light, but was really heavier than ever before. He appeared to have lost some of his old-time speed and skill during the early part of the fight, but this may have been due to Jeffries' marvelous improvement. Corbett's physical condition appeared to be all that he had claimed for it. He stood many of Jeffries' terrific blows without winching and came back, swinging left and rights and landing frequently, but his blows hardly stung Jeffries. Jeffries was not only stronger, faster and cleverer than ever before, but he used his head to better purpose, and although Corbett hit him hard enough to hurt an ordinary man, Jeffries bored right in without noticing the blows and delivered telling hits that materially helped in deciding the result of the fight.



JAMES J. CORBETT,
Ex-Champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, who again failed to lick Jeffries.

At first Corbett was very cautious and apparently was outpointed by Jeffries, but later in the fight he warmed up and showed some of his old-time cleverness. From the first, however, it was generally regarded as a hopeless case for Corbett. He made a gallant fight, but he never stood a show to win.

After the fight was over Corbett quickly recovered, walked over to Jeffries and shook him warmly by the hand. He said:

"Jim, you beat me fairly. You stand alone. No one can touch you."

Referee Graney said after the fight that it was a great heavyweight contest.

"Corbett was very clever, but Jeffries was almost equally so and showed marvelous improvement. He practically out-boxed Corbett with the exception of the eighth and ninth rounds. Every blow that he landed told, and his superior weight and strength was bound to win in the end."

Timekeeper George Harting stated that the blows that won the fight were a left to the stomach, followed by a right to the same place as soon as Corbett arose to his feet after taking the count of nine."

Borrowed $400,000.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—One of the largest financial transactions of 1903 was completed Saturday, when the Union Trust company made a loan of $400,000 to the Detroit United Railway, taking the company's obligations therefor, backed by collateral of a satisfactory character. Debentures were issued and before noon, so high does the company's credit stand, every one of them was gobbled up by the national banks of Detroit.

Wanted For a Detroit Murder.

Vassar, Mich., Aug. 17.—A young man, 19 years old, was locked up at the police station Sunday. He had just alighted from a Michigan Central freight train. A telephone message from Police Superintendent Downey of Detroit said the man was wanted on suspicion of knowing something of a murder in Detroit Saturday night. He gave his name as Les W. Dulmage of Michigan avenue, Detroit, a printer, and says his home is in Saginaw.

Where Iron Is Sacred.

Among the Baralongs, a great African people, iron is a sacred object. They are expert workers in metal, which they still smelt from its native ore by the most primitive methods ever devised by man. This art was to them in former days a source of wealth, influence and power, and the legend is that when people did not know the value of the stones found in their brooks a "wise man" saw a vision. The spirit of his chief stood beside him and said, "Gather stones and burn them to make spears." The sage thought it was a dream and that the chief was hungry, so he sacrificed an ox. But the vision returned, and the chief looked sorrowful. He stood a long time and at last said:

"My son, why do you not obey your father? Go to the river, gather stones and make a hot fire. After that you will see iron with your eyes."

The sage was greatly frightened and feared some calamity, but dared not refuse. When he had made a hot fire, iron came out of it, and then he knew the chief had taken pity on his children. He told his son the secret before he died, but he was a vain coxcomb and, wishing to show his own wisdom, made iron in the presence of strangers, and so the secret of the art was lost to his tribe, but they have always continued to regard iron as sacred above all other metals.

Hopeless.

He—Suppose I should ask your father if I could marry you. Do you think I would stand any chance?

She—No. Your case would be hopeless.

He—Do you think he would really say "No?"

She—Not that; but he would leave it to me.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

BULL KILLED HIM

Gratiot County Farmer, Named Boyer, Gored to Death.

FOUND NEARLY DEAD IN FIELD

Son Attempted to Rescue His Father and Had Difficulty In Escaping Himself—Dead Man a Veteran of the Civil War.

Ithaca, Mich., Aug. 17.—George Boyer, a prominent farmer living eleven miles southeast of here, was gored to death by a bull Sunday morning.

Mr. Boyer left the house to drive the cows from a field at the back of the farm up to the barn early in the morning, and as he was gone for a longer time than was thought necessary, the son went out to find out the trouble and discovered his father in a pool of his own blood.

The bull left for the other side of the field as the son entered it, but just as he found his father the animal started for him, and it was with difficulty that the boy kept the bull off so he could get his father, who was yet alive, to the house, where he died shortly afterwards.

Mr. Boyer was a member of the G. A. R., 69 years of age, and leaves a widow and four children. The suspicion is that the bull, which has been acting very viciously of late, made a rush for the old gentleman, and, after knocking him over, trampled him into the condition he was found.

Contest For Marksmanship.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 17.—The second in a series of four competitive matches between teams of five marksmen from each company in Mayor George B. McCaughna's battalion of the Third infantry, M. N. G., was held at the armory here Saturday evening. The honors went to Company B of Bay City, whose team secured a score of 194 out of a possible 250. Company F of Saginaw, W. S., was second with 180, Company H of Owosso next with 176, and Company C, Saginaw, E. S., made 157 points. The next shoot will be at Bay City Aug. 29. The trophy is a gold medal offered by Company F.

Sadiron and Tailor's Goose.

A "sadiron" is the style in which the common flatiron is spoken of in print, says the Syracuse Herald. "Sad" is an old English synonym for heavy, and Spenser wrote, "More sad than lump of lead." A "sadiron" was a heavy iron and long ago was applied to the flatiron now in common domestic use. The tailor's "goose" was so called because the handle bears a fanciful resemblance to the neck of a goose. This name because it had a reason for being still survives.

Literary Diseases.

Many occupations have diseases which are more or less incidental to them, and literature is not exempt. The two most prevalent literary maladies are writer's cramp and swelled head. The unfortunate thing about writer's cramp is that it is never cured. The [illegible] thing about swelled head is that it never kills.—Exchange.

Lansing Officials Sued.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 17.—Wheeler Mumford, one of the motormen for the Lansing Street Railway company, who defied the officers of the city when an attempt was made to stop the street cars a few weeks ago, and was arrested by an order of the mayor and detained at the city jail for a few hours, has brought suit against Mayor Hammell and Chief of Police Starmont for $5,000 damages for false imprisonment.

THE EARTH SHOOK.

Disturbances Felt In St. Louis and Vicinity Awakened Sleepers.

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—An earthquake shock, which lasted for several seconds, was distinctly felt in all parts of St. Louis Sunday morning. So marked was the seismic disturbance that many slumbering residents of the city jumped from [illegible] beds in fright and waited there [illegible] greater shocks, but they did not materialize. According to those who felt the disturbance, the shock took place about 11 minutes before 4 o'clock. It was a jar rather than a trembling of the earth, but so violent was its nature that houses shook at their foundations as if they were about to fall.

Alton, Ill., Aug. 17.—An earthquake shock was felt here Sunday. The majority of the residents of Alton were awakened. At [illegible] Alton bricks were shaken from chimneys and glass broken in many windows. From the best information the shock lasted nearly eight seconds.

The Kinyon Medical Co.

Gentlemen:—I wish to state that I have taken three bottles of your Blood and Kidney Remedy, and it has done me more good than anything I have taken, and I have tried a great many different remedies but not one of them has done what yours has done. My nervous system was all run down. I could not sleep nights and had no appetite; now my appetite is good and I can sleep good all night.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

FARMERS MAY ORGANIZE.

Agriculturists, Meeting in Chicago, Lay Plans.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Plans for combining farmers, fruit growers, dairymen and al other producers of natural food products into one national organization, were considered at a conference here Wednesday between representatives of several farmers' co-operative associations. This movement has for its purpose the maintaining of prices, the control of distribution of products and the saving of large sums of money paid in commissions. The plan under consideration contemplates the erection of grain elevators and cold storage warehouses in all parts of the country where products may be held if necessary until such times as they can be marketed at a fair price. As a result of the conference it was decided to hold a farmers' convention in Chicago Sept. 8 to consider detailed plans of organization.

Progressive farmers are all invited to attend, so that one of the present plans may be adopted or that from all of them one may be devised that will be most acceptable to the agricultural interests and in which al workers for the upbuilding of the country can unite.

The call is signed by Robert Lindblom, president of the Farmers' National Co-operative Exchange, Chicago; J. A. Everitt, president American Society of Equity, Indianapolis, and D. L. Wilson, representing the dairy interests, Elgin, Ill.

It was claimed by those who attended to-day's conference that when the organization is completed the farmer will be able to get $1 a bushel for wheat, 60 cents for corn and 40 cents for oats throughout the year.

MORE INDICTMENTS.

Expected Grand Jury Will Soon Issue Another Batch.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The grand jury Wednesday resumed its inquiry into the affairs of the postoffice department and it is expected that at the conclusion of the investigation there will be another batch of indictments.

Postoffice inspectors also are still engaged in original inquiries, and it is understood will present the facts in the cases of a number of department employes which while not criminal in character are considered sufficiently irregular to call for attention at the hands of the high officials of the department. Among the cases of this character is that of W. C. Hazzard, division superintendent of rural free delivery for the state of New York, who, it is charged, drew a per diem allowance of $4 per day from the government as if on active field duty while confined in a hospital under treatment for a gunshot wound.

These cases have not been brought officially to the attention of the postmaster-general and no decision regarding them has been arrived at.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

VETERANS IN LINE

Ten Thousand Parade the Streets of San Francisco.

EVERY MARCHER HAD A FLAG

Men From Every Corner of the Nation—Illinois and Ohio Followed California in Point of Numbers—A Few "Buck Tails."

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—Ten thousand survivors of the civil war passed in review Wednesday, marching to the martial tunes that inspired them to endeavor forty years ago. Above the national colors, borne by every marcher, proudly floated torn and tattered flags. These, with empty sleeves and limping gait, were eloquent reminders of the sorrow and glory of war. Unlike the parade of Tuesday with the quick marching youth, this procession was the measured and steady tread of age. As the different divisions marched along, waves of sentiment passed over marchers and spectators. There were many still vigorous in line, but they waited for their weaker comrades and the column halted often on its two-mile course.

Of all the states, California excepted, the one that had the largest number in line was Illinois, but Ohio was a close second. Almost every delegation had its emblem, Ohio its buckeye, Connecticut a wooden nutmeg, Minnesota a loaf of bread, and so on indefinitely. There was something distinctive to each group. The men from Vermont, "the green mountain state," bore a line of seven green banners, each containing a letter, the whole spelling the name of the state.

One thousand men marched under the yellow banner of Illinois. At the head marched Colonel Thomas G. Lawler, past commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. The Wisconsin division was led by General Arthur Macarthur, in civilian clothes.

Penasylvania headed the second division. Here and there in the line appeared a buck tail, indicating the presence of a survivor of the famous First Pennsylvania rifles, the "buck tails." The New York section followed Pennsylvania, led by John S. Koster.

The afternoon was devoted largely to receptions and reunions.

He'd Use Horsewhip.

Quincy, Mich., Aug. 20.—The meetings of the North Quincy camp meeting association still continue in interest. Last night Evangelist Morehouse took his congregation by storm when he delivered his address on "Popular Amusements." Among other things he said: "The three popular amusements of to-day are card-playing, dancing and theater-going. Any church that sanctions them is spiritually dead. Dancing is hugging set to music. If a man should come into my house and hug my wife as I saw other men hug other men's wives at a bon ton dance once at a hotel where I boarded, I would horsewhip him and so would you.

KIDNAPED A GIRL

Negroes Stole White Child and Kept Her on an Island.

NEAR FORT SMITH, ARKANSAS

Posse of Farmers Began Investigation—Negroes Shot One Man to Death—Girl Escaped—Men Endeavoring to Route Desperados.

Fort Smith, Ark., Aug. 19.—The kidnaping of a young white girl and the killing of one of a posse that tried to rescue her are the crimes charged against a party of eight negroes fortified on Bruce Island, 16 miles west of this city. It is feared their capture will lead to a bloody encounter. The negroes are said to be well armed.

A few days ago two farmers, living near Wilson's Rock, landed on Bruce's Island in search of plums and accidentally ran into a camp in which there were two negro men and a white girl about 12 years old. They made some inquiries about the girl and the negroes said she was the daughter of a white man who was traveling with them and who had gone to Fort Smith for provisions. The negroes would not let the girl take part in the conversation and this aroused suspicion.

A watch was kept on the negroes for two days, but no white man appeared. Monday afternoon a party of farmers decided to investigate the case, and as they neared the island were fired on by the negroes and one of the party, Roland by name, was killed. A sharp fight was kept up for some time, during which the girl escaped from the negroes and ran to the white men. She was so excited that she could not give any intelligent account of herself. She said, however, that her father was no traveling with the negroes, but that she had been stolen from her home near Fort Gibson, I. T. She has been taken to Muldrew.

Roland, the dead man, was a comparative stranger, at Wilson's Rock Bruce's island is in the center of the Arkansas river, contains about 25 acres and is densely covered with timber and thick underbrush. Posses of citizens left Tuesday for the scene of the trouble from Fort Smith, Shiro, Muldrew and Fort Gibson. There is much excitement around the island. One or two of the negroes are known to be desperate characters.

Found in Ruins of Rome.

Rome, Aug. 19.—A most important discovery was made Tuesday during excavations in the Roman forum consisting of the base of the celebrated equestrian statue of the Roman emperor Damitian, which is of the greatest interest in determining the topography of the forum during the first century of the empire. The base stands five feet below the present level of the forum. It is thirty feet long, twenty feet wide and over ten feet high. On the top are three blocks of travert in stone showing where the feet of the horse stood. The fourth block is lacking, indicating that the right forefoot of the horse was raised. The distance between the blocks is so great that it is calculated the statue was six times life size.

HONOR TO VERERANS.

Allied Organizations of 'Frisco Gave a Parade.

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Seldom has a finer parade been witnessed in San Francisco than that which Tuesday did honor to the Grand Army of the Republic. The veterans were not in line, their procession being scheduled for to-day, but many allied organizations participated, chief among these being the naval reserve, the veterans of the Spanish-American war and the national guard of California. The regular army was well represented. The Order of Red Men, which was largely represented, added a picturesque feature to the display. The German societies of the city, including amateur athletes and children from the various turner schools, made a splendid showing, as also did the league of Cross Cadets. Generals Miles and Shafter were greeted with cheers along the line of march, which included the citys chief thoroughfares.

During the day reunions of the Ladies of the Grand Army, the Womans Relief Corps, the Union Ex-Prisoners of War and Berdan's Sharpshooters were held, all being well attended.

Last night Mechanics Pavilion was crowded to the doors by Grand Army men, their wives and friends, the occasion being an informal reception of General Stewart, commander-in-chief.

The Spanish-American veterans met in a social way and open house was kept by the departments of Illinois, Missouri and Ohio at the Palace hotel.

All opposition to General Black for commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. has vanished with the announcement by Lieut.-Gen. Nelson A. Miles that he will not oppose General Black, and his election by acclamation is expected. The same compliment for General Miles in 1904 is anticipated.

The Weather.

A PERVERT'S DEED

Little Detroit Boy Murdered and Mutilated.

HORRIBLE IN THE EXTREME

Equal to Whitechapel Crimes of London—Body Found in Rear of Michigan Stove Works—Fiend Left Not the Slighest Clew.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 19.—A murder was committed in the city Monday night which for gruesomeness and brutality is almost without a parallel in the criminal history of the world, not excepting even the Whitechapel murders in London, England.

In the case of the latter crimes, adult women were slain and mutilated, but the unknown pervert's victim in Detroit Monday was a poor, innocent lad of 4½ years, Alphonse Welmes, who a little after 2 o'clock in the afternoon pressed a kiss upon his mother's lips and left his home at 244 St. Aubin avenue, to pass the time in joyful play with other boys of his age. Nothing can be said of the boys movements after he left the parental domicile, but the discovery of his mutilated remains Tuesday morning tell of a most revolting story, almost too horrible to relate. The little corpse was found by Edward Federle of the Michigan Stove works among a pile of molding boxes on the commons back and east of the stove works plant. The child's dark blue knee trousers were pulled down, his red-striped shirt pulled up, the waist opened and his white undershirt cut from top to bottom and soaked with the little one's life blood.

Hacked to Pieces.

A long piece of copper wire was tied around his right wrist so tightly as to cut deep into the flesh. An old red handkerchief, a bandana, was forced down his throat so completely as to leave only a very small end exposed and to render it difficult to remove it.

The injuries inflicted, however, were appalling. Below the right breast and extending downward there was a cut eight and a half inches long, made with a dull knife or like instrument, and penetrating deep enough to cut some of the intestines and the liver. It was deep enough to make the interior organs protrude. Another cut, three inches long, extended over another vital part and served perhaps to disclose the preverted object of the inhuman fiend. Part of the boy's flesh had been removed, subjected to close [illegible] and placed upon the lad's right limb, while other parts were missing.

On the left thigh there was an incision, also made with a knife three quarters inches in length and two and a half inches deep. On the back part of the upper portion of the limbs there were two more cuts, the one on the right being seven inches long and two deep, while that on the left was carved, as though with demoniacal delight, in a semi-circle, about eight inches in length, and fully three inches deep. The left wrist was cut as to be nearly severed from the arm. There were still other injuries.

There were abrasions and finger marks at the little one's throat. After all these injuries were inflicted and life had been extinct, the murderer completed his work by twisting his victims head and breaking the neck.

It is evident that after the awful crime was completed, the murderer carefully washed the blood off the body and prepared to dispose of it.

Coroner Harrison took charge of the remains, while the entire police force is bending every effort to get trace of the murderer, of whom there is yet no clue. Every detective available has been ordered on the case.

Mrs. Wilmes in discussing the terrible fate that had befallen her son declared that no motive of revenge nor of spite could have prompted it.

"We have only lived at this house, 244 St. Aubin avenue, a very short time. My husband has no enemies, and I am sure I have not. Some crazy person must have done it."

Suspicion Foul Play.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 19.—Jas. A. McCarthy, a railway crossing watchman, was found in the gutter at the corner of Cherry and Ellsworth avenues Monday midnight with fractured ribs and skull. He died without speaking. The circumstances surrounding the case are somewhat mysterious. Friends of McCarthy assert that he was murdered. The coroner and police are conducting an investigation. McCarthy was 60 years old and had no money.

Humbert Trail Near End.

Paris, Aug. 19.—The Humbert trial is approaching its close. The last witnesses were heard Tuesday and the addresses of counsel were begun, Advocate-General Blondel opening for the prosecution. Maitre Labori follows today. It is expected that the case will reach the jury on Thursday unless the promised revelations of Mme. Humbert cause delay.

Knocked From His Train.

Newaygo, Mich., Aug. 19.—Albert Vosburg, of Allegan, a Pere Marquette brakeman, was knocked from his train by a bridge four miles south of Newaygo, at [illegible] o'clock last night, and instantly killed. The body was terribly mangled.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is [illegible] take. For sale by all druggists.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

There is no virtue in doing what you have to do. Even the devil will behave himself when he is chained.

Was Wasting Away.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." J. J. Orr.

How can a naturally awkward person learn to grow old gracefully?

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by C. A. Wright, druggist.

When some men discharge an obligation you can hear the report for miles around.

Not over-wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of needlessly treading on a snake This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. Sold by all druggists.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

The packed houses gave no answer Dick looked down the long, lightless streets and at the appalling rush of traffic. "Oh, you rabbit hutches!" said he, addressing a row of highly respectable, semidetached residences. "Do you know what you've got to do later on? You have to supply me with menservants and maidservants"—here he smacked his lips—"and the peculiar treasure of kings. Meantime I'll get clothes and boots, and presently I will return and trample on you." He stepped forward energetically; he saw that one of his shoes was burst at the side. As he stooped to make investigation a man jostled him into the gutter. "All right," he said. "That's another nick in the score. I'll jostle you later on."

Good clothes and boots are not cheap, and Dick left his last shop with the certainty that he would be respectably arrayed for a time, but with only 50 shillings in his pocket. He returned to streets by the docks and lodged himself in one room, where the sheets on the bed were almost audibly marked in case of theft and where nobody seemed to go to bed at all. When his clothes arrived, he sought the Central Southern syndicate for Torpenhow's address and got it, with the intimation that there was still some money owing to him.

"How much?" said Dick as one who habitually dealt in millions.

"Between £30 and £40. If it would be any convenience to you, of course we could let you have it at once, but we usually settle accounts monthly."

"If I show that I want anything now, I'm lost," he said to himself. "All I need I'll take later on." Then aloud: "It's hardly worth while, and I'm going into the country for a month too. Wait till I come back, and I'll see about it."

"But we trust, Mr. Heldar, that you do not intend to sever your connection with us?"

Dick's business in life was the study of faces, and he watched the speaker keenly. "That man means something," he said. "I'll do no business till I've seen Torpenhow. There's a big deal coming." So he departed, making no promises, to his one little room by the docks. And that day was the 7th of the month, and that month, he reckoned with awful distinctness, had thirty-one days in it!

It is not easy for a man of catholic tastes and healthy appetite to exist for twenty-four days on 50 shillings, nor is it cheering to begin the experiment alone in all the loneliness of London. Dick paid 7 shillings a week for his lodging, which left him rather less than a shilling a day for food and drink. Naturally his first purchase was of the materials of his craft. He had been without them too long.

Half a day's investigation and comparison brought him to the conclusion that sausages and mashed potatoes, twopence a plate, were the best food. Now, sausages once or twice a week for breakfast are not unpleasant; as lunch, even, with mashed potatoes, they become monotonous; as dinner they are impertinent. At the end of three days Dick loathed sausages, and, going forth, pawned his watch to revel on sheep's head, which is not so cheap as it looks owing to the bones and the gravy; then he returned to sausages and mashed potatoes; then he confined himself entirely to mashed potatoes for a day and was unhappy because of pain in his inside; then he pawned his waistcoat and his tie and thought regretfully of money thrown away in times past.

There are few things more edifying unto art than the actual belly pinch of hunger, and Dick in his few walks abroad—he did not care for exercise; it raised desires that could not be satisfied—found himself dividing mankind into two classes—those who looked as if they might give him something to eat, and those who looked otherwise.

"I never knew what I had to learn about the human face before," he thought, and as a reward for his humility Providence caused a cab driver at a sausage shop where Dick fed that night to leave half eaten a great chunk of bread. Dick took it—would have fought all the world for its possession—and it cheered him.

A month dragged through at last, and, fairly prancing with impatience, he went to draw his money. Then he hastened to Torpenhow's address and smelled the smell of cooking meats all along the corridors of the chambers. Torpenhow was on the top floor, and Dick burst into his room, to be received with a hug which nearly cracked his ribs as Torpenhow dragged him to the light and spoke of twenty different things in the same breath.

"But you're looking tucked up," he concluded.

"Got anything to eat?" said Dick, his eye roaming round the room.

"I shall be having breakfast in a minute. What do you say to sausages?"

"No; anything but sausages. Torp, I've been starving on that accursed horseflesh for thirty days and thirty nights."

"Now, what lunacy has been your latest?"

Dick spoke of the last few weeks with unbridled speech. Then he opened his coat. There was no waistcoat below. "I ran it fine, awfully fine, but I've just scraped through."

"You haven't much sense, but you've got a backbone anyhow. Eat and talk afterward." Dick fell upon eggs and bacon and gorged till he could gorge no more. Torpenhow handed him a filled pipe, and he smoked as men smoke who for three weeks have been deprived of good tobacco.

"Ouf!" said he. "That's heavenly. Well?"

"Why in the world didn't you come to me?"

"Couldn't. I owe you too much already, old man. Besides, I had a sort of superstition that this temporary starvation—that's what it was, and it hurt—would bring me more luck later. It's over and done with now, and none of the syndicate knows how hard up I was. Fire away. What's the exact state of affairs as regards myself?"

"You had my wire? You've caught on here. People like your work immensely. I don't know why, but they do. They say you have a fresh touch and a new way of drawing things. And, because they are chiefly home bred English, they say you have insight. You're wanted by half a dozen papers. You're wanted to illustrate books."

Dick grunted scornfully.

"You're wanted to work up your smaller sketches and sell them to the dealers. They seem to think the money sunk in you is a good investment. Who can account for the fathomless folly of the public?"

"They're a remarkably sensible people."

"They are subject to fits, if that's what you mean, and you happen to be the object of the latest fit among those who are interested in what they call art. Just now you're a fashion, a phenomenon, or whatever you please. I appeared to be the only person who knew anything about you here, and I have been showing the most useful men a few of the sketches you gave me from time to time. Those coming after your work on the Central Southern syndicate appear to have done your business. You're in luck."

"Huh! Call it luck! Do call it luck! When a man has been kicking about the world like a dog waiting for it to come. I'll luck 'em later on. I want a place to work in first."

"Come here," said Torpenhow, crossing the landing. "This place is a big box room really, but it will do for you. There's your skylight, or your north light, or whatever window you call it, and plenty of room to slash about in and a bedroom. What more do you want?"

"Good enough," said Dick, looking round the large room that took up a third of a top story in the rickety chambers overlooking the Thames. A pale yellow sun shone through the skylight and showed the much dirt of the place. Three steps led from the door to the landing, and three more to Torpenhow's room. The well of the staircase disappeared into darkness, pricked by tiny gas jets, and there were sounds of men talking and doors slamming seven flights below, in the warm gloom.

"Do they give you a free hand here?" said Dick cautiously. He was Ishmael enough to know the value of liberty.

"Anything you like—latchkeys and license unlimited. We are permanent tenants for the most part here. 'Tisn't a place I would recommend for a Young Men's Christian association, but it will serve. I took these rooms for you when I wired."

"You're a great deal too kind, old man."

"You didn't suppose you were going away from me, did you?" Torpenhow put his hand on Dick's shoulder, and the two walked up and down the room, henceforward to be called the studio, in sweet and silent communion. They heard rapping at Torpenhow's door "That's some ruffian come up for a drink," said Torpenhow, and he raised his voice cheerily. There entered no one more ruffianly than a portly, middle aged gentleman in a satin faced frock coat. His lips were parted and pale, and there were deep pouches under the eyes.

"Weak heart," said Dick to himself and, as he shook hands—"very weak heart. His pulse is shaking his fingers."

The man introduced himself as the head of the Central Southern syndicate and "one of the most ardent admirers of your work, Mr. Heldar. I assure you, in the name of the syndicate, that we are immensely indebted to you, and I trust, Mr. Heldar, you won't forget that we were largely instrumental in bringing you before the public." He panted because of the seven flights of stairs.

"I shan't forget," said Dick, every instinct of defense roused in him. "You've paid me so well that I couldn't, you know. By the way, when I am settled in this place I should like to send and get my sketches. There must be nearly 150 of them with you."

"That is—er—is what I came to speak about. I fear we can't allow it exactly, Mr. Heldar. In the absence of any specified agreement the sketches are our property, of course."

"Do you mean to say that you are going to keep them?"

"Yes, and we hope to have your help, on your own terms, Mr. Heldar, to assist us in arranging a little exhibition which, backed by our name and the influence we naturally command among the press, should be of material service to you. Sketches such as yours"—

"Belong to me. You engaged me by wire, you paid me the lowest rates you dared. You can't mean to keep them! Why, man, they're all I've got in the world!"

Torpenhow watched Dick's face and whistled. Dick walked up and down, thinking. He saw the whole of his little stock in trade, the first weapon of his equipment, annexed at the outset of his campaign by an elderly gentleman whose name Dick had not caught aright, who said that he represented a syndicate, which was a thing for which Dick had not the least reverence. The injustice of the proceedings did not much move him. He had seen the strong hand prevail too often in other places to be squeamish over the moral aspects of right and wrong. But he ardently desired the blood of the gentleman in the frock coat, and when he spoke again it was with a strained sweetness that Torpenhow knew well for the beginning of strife.

"Forgive me, sir, but you have no—no younger man who can arrange this business with me?"

"I speak for the syndicate. I see no reason for a third party to"—

"You will in a minute. Be good enough to give back my sketches."

The man stared blankly at Dick and then at Torpenhow, who was leaning against the wall. He was not used to ex-employees who ordered him to be good enough to do things.

"Yes, it is rather a cold blooded steal," said Torpenhow critically, "but I'm afraid, I am very much afraid, you've struck the wrong man. Be careful, Dick. Remember, this isn't the Sudan."

"Considering what services the syndicate has done you in putting your name before the world"—

This was not a fortunate remark. It reminded Dick of certain vagrant years lived out in loneliness and strife and unsatisfied desires. The memory did not contrast well with the prosperous gentleman who proposed to enjoy the fruit of those years.

"I don't know quite what to do with you," began Dick meditatively. "Of course you're a thief, and you ought to be half killed, but in your case you'd probably die. I don't want you dead on this floor, and, besides, it's unlucky just as one's moving in. Don't hit, sir. You'll only excite yourself." He put one hand on the man's forearm and the other down the plump body beneath the coat. "My goodness," said he to Torpenhow, "and this gray oaf dares to be a thief! I have seen an Esneh camel driver have the black hide taken off his body in strips for stealing half a pound of wet dates, and he was as tough as whipcord. This thing's soft all over—like a woman."

There are few things more poignantly humiliating than being handled by a man who does not intend to strike. The head of the syndicate began to breathe heavily. Dick walked around him, pawing him as a cat paws a soft hearth rug. Then he traced with his forefinger the leaden pouches underneath the eyes and shook his head. "You were going to steal my things—mine, mine, mine!—you, who don't know when you may die! Write a note to your office—you say you're the head of it—and order them to give Torpenhow my sketches—every one of them. Wait a minute—your hand's shaking. Now!" He thrust a pocketbook before him. The note was written.

Torpenhow took it and departed without a word, while Dick walked round and round the spellbound captive, giving him such advice as he conceived best for the welfare of his soul. When Torpenhow returned with a gigantic portfolio, he heard Dick say, almost soothingly: "Now, I hope this will be a lesson to you, and if you worry me when I have settled down to work with any nonsense about actions for assault, believe me, I'll catch you and manhandle you, and you'll die. You haven't very long to live anyhow. Go—get out!"

The man departed, staggering and dazed. Dick drew a long breath. "Phew! What a lawless lot these people are! The first thing a poor orphan meets is gang robbery, organized burglary! Think of the hideous blackness of that man's mind! Are my sketches all right, Torp?"

"Yes; 147 of them. Well, I must say, Dick, you've begun well."

"He was interfering with me. It only meant a few pounds to him, but it was everything to me. I don't think he'll bring an action. I gave him some medical advice gratis about the state of his body. It was cheap at the little flurry it cost him. Now, let's look."

Two minutes later Dick had thrown himself down on the floor and was deep in the portfolio, chuckling lovingly as he turned the drawings over and thought of the price at which they had been bought.

The afternoon was well advanced when Torpenhow came to the door and saw Dick dancing a wild saraband under the skylight.

"I builded better than I knew, Torp," he said without stopping the dance. "They're good! They're very good! They'll go like flame! I shall have an exhibition of them on my own brazen hook. And that man would have cheated me out of it! Do you know that I'm sorry now that I didn't actually hit him?"

"Go out," said Torpenhow, "go out and pray to be delivered from the sin of arrogance, which you never will be. Bring your things up from whatever place you're staying in and we'll try to make this barn a little more shipshape."

"And then—oh, then," said Dick, still capering, "we will spoil the Egyptians!"

TWO WERE DROWNED.

Gallant Teacher Lost Life in Attempt to Rescue Companion.

Holland, Mich., Aug. 20.—John Van Dillan, of Chicago, and Henrietta Wrikkers, of Grand Rapids, were drowned in Black lake Wednesday afternoon. Their boat struck a log and Miss Wrikkers lost her balance and fell into the water. Van Dillan leaped after her, but as neither could swim they drowned before help could arrive.

The bodies were recovered in half an hour.

ORGANIC UNION

Congregational Assembly at New Buffalo Favors It.

New Buffalo, Mich., Aug. 20.—The Congregational summer assembly holding its two weeks' session here, with representatives present from Massachusetts Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Iowa, Wednesday adopted a resolution endorsing the plan of organic union now under consideration by the United Brethren, Methodist Protestants and Congregational denominations. This is the largest meeting of any denomination to endorse the plan since its adoption by the joint committee at the recent conferences of the three bodies held at Pittsburg. The resolution follows:

The plan of organic union now before the denominations concerned has our unqualified endorsement, and seems to us, if it shall be cordially adopted to be a step of incalculable significance in its bearing upon the reunion of Christendom. We pledge our earnest prayers and enthusiastic efforts in aid of the movement thus begun.

One of the principal scenes in "A Montana Outlaw," a new Western play to be seen at the New Bradley Tuesday Aug. 25, matinee and evening, is a thrilling rescue from lynching. Jack, the Buster, a cowboy hero, makes his entrance upon a frisky broncho and severed the rope with a shot from his rifle. The play deals with ranching life in the Koonenai Valley of Montana. It is strongly melo-dramatic. New Bradley matinee and night, Aug. 25.

WHEEMMAN WON

The Rubber Game with Tecumseh by a score of 6 and 5 in a

TEN INNING GAME

That was replete with hard hitting and fine fielding.

The Detroit Wheelman won the rubber game with Tecumseh Tuesday in a close and exciting contest, not by superior hitting or fielding, as the home team made one error to their three and the same number of hits, but through the wildness of Gilbert, who gave 9 men bases on balls and forced in the winning run in the tenth inning by throwing four wide ones when the sacks were full.

Gilbert has been pitching remarkably fine ball for our team all the season, but has been placed in the box two often, it would seem, as his work in the last few games has not been up to that of his former ones and he seems to lose control toward the end of the game.

The Wheelman came up with the strongest "bunch" they have ever brought here, but probably would have gone home defeated, had another pitcher been put in to relieve Gilbert toward the close of the game.

The features of the game were the batting of Beasley and Zigbine, for the locals, and of Harrington and Brickman for the visitors, and in fielding two fast double plays by Tecumseh, one from right field, and difficult fly catches by Zigbine, Striker, Johnson, Vick and Miller. The score:

BASE BALL NOTES.

At Montpelier today.

Rain prevented the game at Mt. Clemens Wednesday. The Tecumseh Indians will go there again Thursday, August 27.

The special attraction on Carnival day will be two games of ball, at 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. D. A. C's of Detroit vs Tecumseh Indians. Five thousand people are expected to see these two games.

"A Montana Outlaw"

"A Montana Outlaw" will be exploited at the New Bradley Tuesday Aug. 25. There is much more of a story about "A Montana Outlaw than one has come to look for in the border drama. Back in the days when two families were rich and prosperous a boy and a girl loved. The boy went away, the girl's father lost his money and moved West, and the boy returned to find that as a man he no longer had the love of his boyhood's sweetheart. Under an assumed name he enters upon the life of a cowboy on a Montana ranch of the girl's father. He saves her father from a lynching when charged with the killing of an undesirable outlaw. The company presenting the play is a strong popular price organization.

An Unusual Treat.

Tuesday evening Miss Henrietta Brown gave a song recital at the residence of Seaton Anderson. Those who heard Miss Brown may well count themselves favored. She sang exquisitely, rendering eleven numbers with great charm and polish.

Her voice is perfectly placed and shows the best of training. Its resonance gives life and sweetness to each tone. Every number was interpreted with a sympathy and effectiveness that proved Miss Brown an artist in any mood. In addition to her beautiful voice, Miss Brown has a manner and presence exceptionally pleasing. Mrs. Norma Brown Simmons accompanied her sister with great delicacy and skill. Miss Brown was also assisted by Miss Helen Anderson who rendered two bright piano solos with vigor and warmth of feeling.

Thomas C. Rogers.

Mr. Thomas C. Rogers, a venerable and highly respected citizen of Fort Wayne, underwent the amputation of his right leg at Hope hospital Wednesday night. The operation was the result of gangrene setting in and as the disease threatened to permeate his entire system eventually destroying life, it was decided to amputate the limb.

Two weeks ago the venerable citizen suffered from pains in his foot, but at the time did not mind them, thinking it only an attack of rheumatism from which he had been suffering. The pains increased within a few days to such an extent that a physician was called and he diagnosed the case as gangrene.

Mr. Rogers, who is over eighty years of age, has practically retired from active life, resigning as book-keeper at the Fort Wayne Trust company office some time ago.—Ft. Wayne Journal Gazette.

Mr. Rogers is a stepfather of C. E. Colson, who recently moved from Tecumseh to Napoleon, O.

WITHERELL-COLLER

Miss Lena Sophia Witherell and Will Lester Coller

WERE UNITED IN MARRIAGE

Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Witherell.

The marriage of Miss Lena Sophia Witherell, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Witherell, and Will Lester Coller was solemnized Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, on Pottawatamie street, in an informal yet none less elegant manner.

The ceremony was performed in the sitting room before the mantel which was a beautiful background of ferns. The impressive words were spoken by Rev. M. T. Seelye, pastor of M. E. church, in the presence of 80 relatives and friends. The bride and groom received the guests informally as they arrived. The bride was beautiful in a gown of white silk with lace yoke.

A reception to the wedding guests was held after the ceremony, a dinner being served in the dining room. The tables were prettily decorated with cut flowers. In an upstairs room the presents were shown. They were very handsome and many in number, among which was one hundred dollars, a gift from the bride's parents.

The bride and groom are both well and favorably known here and have the best wishes of a large circle of friends. They left Wednesday morning for Buffalo, where they expect to remain a week, after which they will be at home to their friends.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Witherell, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Witherell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bailey, Miss Bell Hardy, of Manchester; Earl Hendershot, of Toledo; Mrs. Abbie Lambson of Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Sisson and daughter Norma of Adrian; Mr. and Mrs. Leon Allen, of Tipton; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coller, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Coller, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Coller of Macon; Miss Eva L. Reefy of Elyria, O.

WIGHTMAN AND LEE

Is the

SEWER QUESTION

Of our Beautiful Village.

It is to be deeply regretted that the council voted down the sewer question at the meeting last Monday evening. By this vote the council has stopped the growth of Tecumseh easily

TWENTY YEARS.

C. F. Patterson, P. W. A. Fitzsimmons and others have worked very hard for several weeks securing the petition for the consideration of the sewer construction. It is now a complete failure. Wightman and Lee and others claim the sewer should start from Pearl street and such a petition would be generally signed. Will they start such a petition?

The HERALD thinks with Wightman, that a sewer for the business portion of Tecumseh at least is

and the question of sewer is now up to

WIGHTMAN AND LEE.

Gentlemen, walk up to the HERALD office and get your petition for a sewer on Chicago street below Pearl, started. The circulating of such a petition will prove whether the signers of the contra petition really desire a sewer or whether they have defeated the sewer agitation and in this way seriously injured the town.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

G. G. Green,
Woodbury, N. J.

As the result of the Cheyenne Indian sun-dance, which was held near Watonga, Okla., recently an aged squaw died while dancing. She was 70 years old and had danced nearly three days without food. There have been a number of record-holding Indians at the dance. Among them is a young buck, who won the prize offered by the tribe last year for the person dancing the longest number of hours without food. His record was three days and nights. There have been 2,000 Indians attending the dance, the largest assemblage of Cheyennes and Arapahoes for several years. There are also numerous visitors from South Dakota and other northern points where there are Indian reservations.—New York World.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

A Citizen of Tecumseh Pays a Well-Earned Tribute.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mrs. E. D. Fryer, who lives in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off and on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the afternoon and I often felt like giving up, but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and, in spite of all the remedies I used, I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store, I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

Half the ills that man is heir to come from indigestion. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens and tones the stomach; makes indigestion impossible.

PEOPLE WHO CAN'T SLEEP.

Many people go to bed—not to sleep, but to think—to tumble and toss—to get up, walk about until tired Nature gives way and a few fitful hours of sleep are obtained just before dawn—a sleep that does not rest—a sleep from which one wakes weary and tired, wholly unfitted to take up the daily routine of household, shop or office duties. That this condition goes on uncared for is almost criminal, when the well-known, time-tried and tested powers of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills to give restful natural sleep have been so fully proven in such cases.

Mrs. E. Anderson of Tecumseh, Mich., says:—"I was so nervous that I could not sleep at night and was weak and suffered from dizzy spells. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. A. Wright's drug store and they were just what I needed. Since I used the medicine my nerves are steady and strong—I sleep finely—the dizziness is all gone and the general health, strength and vigor splendid. I think the pills a splendid nerve medicine and have no hesitation in recommending it strongly." 50c a box at dealers or Dr A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every package.

WILL ESTABLISH ORDER.

Turkish Porte Declares Consuls Are Protected in Macedonia.

Rome, Aug. 20.—The Italian ambassador at Constantinople has telegraphed to the foreign office saying the porte has declared it will soon be able to re-establish order in Macedonia and that it has already secured effective protection for all the foreign consuls there.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 20.—The Vedcomosti, the organ of the Daneff party, discussing the situation in Bulgaria in the event of a war with Turkey, says that at the recent visit of the king of Roumania to Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl, the monarchs arrived at an understanding that in the event of such a war Roumania should mobilize her army and occupy the triangular territory between Rustchuk, Varna and Silistria, including these towns, in order to maintain the equilibrium of power in the Balkans in the event of Macedonia becoming an autonomous province, which would otherwise give Bulgaria too predominating influence in the peninsula.

Indians Want to Fight.

Guthrie, Okla., Aug. 20.—Four hundred Snake Indians have concluded a prolonged conference, a council of war, in the Flint hills near Tucker Springs, I. T., where rebellion against the government was advocated by Crazy Snake. The council was composed of the Keetowah, Night Hawks and Snake factions of the discontented Indians of the Five Tribes. The session lasted three days and the Indian police were in close proximity. Crazy Snake made a fiery speech, in which he advocated removal to old Mexico. Wolf Tone made a speech in which he discouraged the idea of taking up arms against the government.

TEAMSTERS STRIKE

Street Paving Contractor at Albion Delayed In His Work.

THEY DEMAND $4.00 PER DAY

Only Getting $3.75—Cement Sidewalk Gangs and Shovelers Sympathize—Trouble Threatened If Italian Labor Is Employed.

Albion, Mich., Aug. 20.—Dean & Connors, local contractors who have the job of paving Superior street, have a teamsters' strike on their hands, the trouble beginning Wednesday morning, when they refused to raise wages from $3.75 to $4 per day. The shovelers also struck for a raise from $1.75 to $2. Work is consequently at a standstill, neither side being willing to give in. The job was started Monday morning. The teamsters threatened to [illegible] Tuesday because one non-union man was employed, but the mater was settled [illegible] until the contractors demanded that two inches be added to the side planks so larger loads could be drawn. The teamsters gave in on this point. Deans cement sidewalk gangs are also on a sympathetic strike.

Alexander Simpson, president of the federated labor union, who acted as spokesman for the teamsters in the absence of their president, claims Dean & Conors promised two weeks ago that teamsters should receive 40 cents and shovelers 20 cents an hour, and that the contractors figured on those prices in making their bid. The paving laborers also believe they should receive that price because the city is paying it for similar labor.

Dean & Connors claim they cannot afford to grant the increase, and will not take the strikers back at any price. They are contemplating the importation of Italian laborers to take the places of the striking shovelers.

The union men say if this is done there will be serious trouble, and as this is a strong union town it looks as if there might be.

Three Men Paroled.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 20.—Governor Bliss has paroled the following convicts: George C. Nearh, sent from St. Clair county to Ionia prison for seven years for taking indecent liberties with a child; Charles E. Prince, sent from Kent county to Jackson prison in April, 1896, for ten years, for burglary; Claude Faery, sent from Genesee county to Jackson prison in November, 1901, for three and one-half years, for arson. Nearh is fatally ill with heart disease. The prison physician says he can live but a few months, and he is released so that he can go to the Soldiers' home.

Captured Convict Dwight.

Eaton Rapids, Mich., Aug. 20.—Word was received here Tuesday night that one of the escaped convicts from Jackson state prison was headed this way. About 12 o'clock at night Bert Collins and Clarence Orr, living six miles east of here, saw a strange man making across a field and laid in wait for him. Upon his arrival he was ordered to throw up his hands. It proved to be John Dwight, one of the men who escaped Friday afternoon. Dwight made no resistance to arrest. Deputy Sheriff Hodges, of Leslie, was notified and came and took Dwight back to Jackson.

Unable to Sell Bonds.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 20.—Despite the fact that Port Huron's credit is A1, no offers can be secured for a bond issue of $200,000, interest 4 per cent, recently authorized for public improvements. Bids were twice asked for. Agents of bond buyers say that fifty-seven other cities this year also had 4 per cent bond issues turned down, and all for the same reason that Port Huron's issue is turned down—which is stringency of the money market. The council Tuesday evening raised the rate of interest on the issue to 5 per cent.

W. C. T. U. After Saloonists.

Prescot, Mich., Aug. 20.—The W. C. T. U. has instituted criminal proceedings against the local saloon men for having their saloons open on the Fourth of July. The township board and village trustees adopted resolutions giving the liquor dealers the privilege.

Pellston, Mich., Aug. 20.—Charles Meek was killed and Henry Gamen severely shocked by lightning while standing in a feed store, where they had sought shelter from the rain.

Threatened With Tetanus.

Olivet, Mich., Aug. 20.—Fred W. Ellis, electrical engineer, has been taken to the Newark sanitarium at Charlotte suffering from a revolver shot wound in the hand. An operation has been performed, but lockjaw is feared.

Tarred a Michigan Man.

Hillsboro, Oregon, Aug. 20.—D. J. Trombley, who claims to be a private detective from Michigan, was taken from the city jail at night by a crowd of twenty-five men and was tarred and feathered. Trombley, it is alleged, had made himself obnoxious to the women who reside in the vicinity of his boarding house. After he had been tarred, Trombley was told to leave Hillsboro and not to return.

Burglars Made a Rich Haul.

Palmer, Mich., Aug. 20.—The safe in the store of the Pittsburg & Lake Superior Iron company was blown open by burglars at night and $1,500 in cash and a large amount in stmps taken. The money had been brought to the store for paying employes of the mines.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

STILL A MYSTERY.

Detroit Police in Dark as to Who Killed Wilmes Boy.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20.—The mystery of the atrocious murder of little Alphonse Wilmes has resolved itself a search for blood. The police regard as the first step in the discovery of the fiendish perpetrator, the location of the life blood of the child and the scene of the actual crime.

No single clue either of the time, the place, or the perpetrator of the unparalleled deed has been gained by the police. The vicinity has been passed through the fine-meshed seive of police inquisition and public curiosity and nothing but empty theory remains. The detective force is now beginning to feel that the wild beast whose unholy desires has left this foul stain upon the public memory will never be caught. That he will continue his outrages until death or absolute seclusion ends his career is the opinion of eminent alienists in the city.

A constitutional inhibition prevents the city from offering a reward for his arrest, but to-day the board of county auditors will probably post a reward of $1,000 for his capture. Another srum of $500 is to be offered for the detection of the assailant of little Bertha Brosowska, of Delray.

Enraged Employe Kills Foreman.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 20.—Edwin H. Welburn was shot and killed Wednesday in the composing room of the Southern Methodist publishing house. He was the foreman of that department and was killed by C. Orator, Entre Nous Club.

176 Warren Avenue,

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

STATE INSURANCE

Commissioner's Annual Report Is Encouraging.

CONCERNS IN GOOD CONDITION

Six Old Line Life Companies Admitted During Year—Volume of Business Greater Than Ever—Bond Investment Scheme Scored.

Lansing, Mich., Aug. 22.—In his annual report covering the business of life, casualty and miscellaneous insurance companies transacting business in Michigan during the last year, which was received from the state printer Friday, the commissioner of insurance states that the whole number of companies operating in Michigan is 204, classified as follows: Michigan old line life companies, 2; life companies of other states, 49; casualty, fidelity and surety companies, 39; assessment life, accident and sick benefit associations of other states, 15; fraternal beneficiary societies of Michigan, 30; fraternal beneficiary societies of other states, 48.

During the year six old line life companies were admitted to Michigan; one casualty company was admitted and two withdrew; eight co-operative or assesment associations were admitted and six withdrew; 14 fraternal beneficiary societies were admitted and four ceased operations.

The total receipts of the department were $370,484.23, as follows: From fire and marine companies of other states and foreign countries, 3 per cent on gross Michigan premiums, $189,262.56; from life insurance companies, 2 per cent on Michigan premiums, $18,264.71; from co-operative and assessment companies, $595; retaliatory fees, $15,270.56. This is $47,407.22 more than the receipts of the previous year, and the largest in the history of the department.

The total disbursements, including salaries, printing, express, telegraph, postage, office furniture, card system, etc., were $13,264.75.

The commissioner comments upon the situation as follows:

"An inspection of these reports shows that the companies are, for the most part, in excellent condition and that the volume of business written during the year exceeded even that of 1901, when all previous records were surpassed.

"While the best thought of the actuaries of the country is being devoted to the perfection of methods designed to strengthen and develop the legal reserve life insurance business, there are two phases of this business as at present classified, which, while technically within the scope of so-called old line insurance, are, in my judgment, liable to bring disrepute to the business and disappointment to the policy holders. I refer to the so-called bond investment schemes with life insurance attachments, and the accumulation of fictitious assets under the guise of policy liens.

"In the case of the bond contracts, no reference is ever made by their purveyors to the infinitesimally meager life insurance feature of the contracts, the entire appeal being made to the gambling instincts of the prospective purchaser. The principle of these contracts is not indemnity for loss, but the hope of gain from the misfortune of others.

"In my opinion the only liens that should be recognized are those for bona fide loans actually made from the company's reserve. In the financial world the accumulation of assets by giving a note for $100,000, making an indorsement of $50,000 thereon, and listing such indorsement as a valuable asset would be laughed to scorn."

Marquette Mistified.

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 22.—Mysterious streak of light in the sky, that completely circled the city, caused great wonder and in some quarters a feeling of apprehension last evening. The streak steadily gained in brilliancy and then as slowly faded. At first it was directly overhead, but not until it was very low in the sky had it entirely disappeared. Nothing like it was ever seen here before, and its cause cannot be satisfactorily explained, although in some quarters it is believed to have been the northern lights. The same phenomenon was equally visible at Ishpeming, fifteen miles away, where it also caused considerable curiosity and excitement.

Secretary Root Sails.

New York, Aug. 22.—Secretary of War Elihu Root departed for Liverpool Friday on the Celtic, of the White Star line. He goes to England to act with Senator Lodge and former Senator Turner, of Washington, as the United States representatives of the Alaskan boundary dispute. Before sailing the secretary declared that he would, according to his present plans, get out of the cabinet about the middle of the winter. He would not enter into any discussion of his future plans except to deny that he was going to enter actively in politics in this state. With the secretary went Mrs. Elihu Root and Miss Edith Root.

Alpena Cement Company Sued.

Alpena, Mich., Aug. 22.—F. W. Gilchrist has commenced a suit against the Alpena Portland Cement company to enforce the payment of a $4,000 demand note. The outcome of the suit will be watched with interest in financial circles, as it is claimed that the Gilchrists and Fletchers hold paper against the cement company aggregating in the neighborhood of $100,000.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

KILLED AT PLAY

Two Saginaw Boys Electrocuted and Bodies Burned.

CLIMBED AN ELECTRIC TOWER

Came in Contact With heavily charged Wire—Their Clothing Caught Fire—Death Was Instantaneous—Out of Reach of Help.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 21.—Two Saginaw lads, James Budd and Eugene Moss, each about 16 years of age, both met a terrible fate last night in which both were burned to death on the top of an electric light tower standing at the corner of Clark avenue and Schaefer street, by coming in contact with a live electric light wire carrying a current of 22,000 volts.

While playing hide and go seek with companions of their own age the lads conceived the idea of climbing the tower to get away from the others. The Moss boy suddenly came in contact with the heavily charged wire and in an instant was a mass of flames. Budd in the meantime had started down, but seeing his companion afire bravely returned to rescue him. He, too, became entangled with the wire and, like Moss, his clothes instantly took fire and there, in sight of playmates and a crowd of people which had gathered below, both boys perished. Death, without doubt, was instantaneous from the electric shock, and their bodies were terribly charred.

The electric current on the entire west side of the city was turned off while linemen were engaged in securing the bodies of the young men, a process that required two hours. Two thousand persons stood in the dark street and watched the gruesome work of recovering the charred and naked bodies.

Budd was an son of Joseph D. Budd, an engineer on the steamer Rhodie Emily, and Moss' father is Andrew Moss, now in Lansing.

Hunchback Tired of Life.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21.—Tired of having fun poked at him, sensitive Herbert Morse, a homeless hunchback, committed suicide by asphyxiation in the office of Thomas Lynn's livery, 20 Elizabeth street west, Thursday morning. In winter the office is heated by gas, and during the summer a cap is put over the pipe. Over the pipe he shoved his cot, after removing the plug. Then he turned the gas into the unused pipe and threw himself on the cot, to be enveloped by the rising fumes.

Claims Wife's a Bigamist.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 21.—A bill has been filed by Emil Krobetski, of this city, in the circuit court, asking that his marriage with Elizabeth Krobetski be annulled. He represents that they were married in Cleveland in 1900, the brides name being, as Krobetski supposed, Elizabeth Deagan. They lived together until the 15th inst., when Krobetski says he made an investigation and found that his wife had not been divorced from William Perry, of Bay City, to whom she was married Nov. 11, 1896, by Justice Allan.

Believe He Is Drowned.

Petoskey, Mich., Aug. 21.—Albert W. Barnum, a young Chicago lawyer, who has a summer home at Castle Air Point, Walloon Lake, is missing and is believe to be drowned. The last man who saw him alive was a guide, C. H. Rice, with whom he was drinking on his way home from Petoskey. Rice put him in a boat to row across to his home and left him. That was the last seen of him. Rice believes he had fallen into the water, but was too drunk to obtain help at once. No trace has yet been found.

Negroes Only on the Jury.

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 21.—Coroner Merritt has started a new precedent for this county by impaneling a coroners jury entirely composed of negroes, to sit upon the inquest into the death of James Williams, an aged negro, from Saline, who was killed by a Michigan Central train near here Monday.

Struck By Fast Train.

Ainger, Mich., Aug. 21.—Will Hall, of Bellevue, working with a special train gang, was instantly killed by train No. 7 near the Grand Trunk depot, Thursday. He was standing behind a gravel car and as the fast train came along stepped in front of it.

Anchor Pulled Him Overboard.

Wyandotte, Mich., Aug. 21.—Fred Miller, of this village, who, until last spring, kept a saloon here, was drowned Thursday afternoon at Calf island. He was in a sailboat pulling up the anchor when he fell in.

Fell From a Stepladder.

Wayne, Mich., Aug. 21.—Frank Coon of this place was taken to Grace hospital, Detroit, suffering from internal injuries that may kill him. He fell from a stepladder.

Deaf Mute Struck by Train.

White Cloud, Mich., Aug. 21.—Geo. Flinton, a deaf mute, was run down by a train here and injured so that he cannot live.

Keg of Beer Started Riot.

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 22.—Women, mixed with men, engaged in a street riot here Friday. The trouble took place on Thirteenth street, as a number of workmen employed at the Portvue tinplate mill, where the strike occurred three months ago still remains unsettled. The workmen had a keg of beer and the strikers attempted to take it from them. Shots were exchanged, but no one was injured. The women, armed with brooms and other nondescript weapons, took part in the affair. Several of the workmen were badly beaten by the attack of the Amazons, who for the first time have taken a hand in the strike riots here.

TO ALL EMPLOYES

President's Policy Relative to Unions to Be Applied.

THEY MUST NOT INTERFERE

Government Employes May Unionize—William Miller Case an Example—Strike Commission Decision Adheared to.

Oyster Bay, Aug. 21.—President Roosevelt has made applicable to all departments of the government service the principle he enunciated at the time he reinstated William A. Miller to the position in the government printing office, from which Miller had been dismissed because of a disagreement with the bookbinders' union. The president has plainly stated to the members of his cabinet that that principle is to "indicate the policy of the president in similar cases.

Last night the president authorized the publication of a letter which was sent to each member of his cabinet on the 22nd of July. The letter was signed by Mr. Barnes, the acting secretary to the president, and is as follows:

"My Dear Sir—The president directs me to send you herewith, for your information, copies of two letters sent to Secretary Cortelyou with reference to the government printing office, which define the attitude of the administration in connection with the subject discussed. They are sent to you for your information and guidance, as they indicate the policy of the president in this matter."

The letters to Secretary Cortelyou were written on July 13 and 14. The salient sentence of the first letter was:

"There is no objection to the employes of the government printing office constituting themselves into a union if they so desire, but no rules or resolutions of that union can be permitted to override the laws of the United States, which it is my sworn duty to enforce."

In the letter of the 14th the president quoted the finding of the anthracite strike commission regarding the employment of labor as follows:

"It is adjudged and awarded that no person shall be refused employment or in any way discriminated against on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor organization or that there shall be no discrimination against or interference with any one not a member of any labor organization by members of such organization."

Concerning this principle the president wrote:

"It is expected, of course, mere elementary decency to require that all the government department shall be handled in accordance with the principle thus clearly and fearlessly enunciated."

LANGLEY'S AIRSHIP.

Widewater, Va., Aug. 22.—Langley's aerodrome was placed in position on the superstructure of the houseboat late Friday afternoon. The whole airship force worked on the body, arranging machinery and adjusting the wings until sundown. The flying machine then was returned to the interior. It was the first time that it had been exposed to the press representatives. Her machinery and dimensions were plainly visible.

Amidships is a great mass of wheels, rods, boilers, pistons and various other mechanical devices. It is exceedingly complicated. The body consists of several long steel bars centrally located. With bowsprit and rudder it will measure sixty feet. Close to the motor is the navigator's car. This is built for a weight of 150 pounds. It probably will carry Prof. Langley, who was in it repeatedly during the afternoon.

The gasoline motor, which weighs 200 pounds, generates something in excess of twenty-seven horsepower. It is connected by bars with the propellers, about six feet in diameter, capable of revolving 1,200 times per minute. The motive power is sufficient to produce a velocity of forty miles per hour. Placed equally about the ship are five empty conical bodies designed as floats to keep the airship up when she strikes the water. Fore and aft are two strong platforms on each side to support the wings. These are of delicate but rigid construction, 20 by 10 feet allowing a sustaining capacity of 800 square feet. During the week repeated photographs of the machine were made. The wings were placed in compartments on the superstructure and repeated adjusted. With good weather conditions a test is expected today.

Shot Hies Own Head Off.

Manton, Mich., Aug. 22.—Wesley Hulbert, aged 36, who has been mentally unbalanced since he was hit on the head by a falling limb several years ago, committed suicide by shooting off the top of his head with a shotgun.

Berrien's Big Berry Crop.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 22.—To Berrien county's claim of being the first in the quantity of all kinds of fruit produced annually in Michigan, is added now the claim of having this year produced a most remarkable crop of berries. Of the 150,000 cases of blackberries grown in Michigan this year there were grown in Berrien 120,000 cases, or 80 per cent of the entire amount.

THEY DIDN'T FINISH

First of Yacht Race Series Was Declared Off.

RELIANCE TO THE FRONT

Experts Believe Shamrock III. Is Doomed to Disappointment—American Boat Mile Ahead at the Turning Post.

New York, Aug. 21.—One of the biggest crowds of sightseers and yachtsmen that ever sailed down Sandy Hook to witness an attempt of a foreign cup hunter to wrest from America the yachting supremacy of the world returned to New York last night disappointed because the sea had refused a field of combat to the racers, but, nevertheless, jubilant in the conviction that Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger, like the two Shamrocks which had preceded her, was doomed to return to England empty handed.

Of course the race Thursday was not absolutely conclusive owing to the light and shifting character of the airs, but in a fifteen-mile beat to windward, a portion of which was sailed in a driving rain, the cup defender, Reliance, showed her heels to Shamrock III. in commanding style and in weather conditions which were supposed to be to the particular liking of the challenger. Fife's latest creation has been heralded as a varitable wizard in light breezes, in windward work especially with a jumpy sea on, while the Reliance in her trials had demonstrated best reaching and running in a whole sail-wind. Yet yesterday, with a breeze varying from one to twelve knots, and against a long ground swell, the defender outfooted and outpointed her. The Shamrock did not turn the outer mark, and there is therefore no way of knowing absolutely how badly she was beaten, but it was estimated that she was more than a mile astern, or about sixteen minutes in the existing strength of the wind, when the Reliance rounded.

As a result of the trial the experts believe, blow high or low, that the Reliance will win this, the thirteenth series for the America's cup.

Six-Knot Breeze.

The day was a miserable one for those who went down to the ocean race course off Sandy Hook. The breeze was not over six knots, and the murky waves spilled no white froth from their crests.

The course was set fifteen miles southwest, straight down the Jersey coast, and return. At the very start Captain Barr cleverly out-generaled Captain Wringe, sending the Reliance over the line thirty-three seconds behind the challenger, but in the windward berth. In the first twenty minutes of sailing the defender showed her windward qualities, drawing up on even terms with the challenger, besides being about 200 yards to windward. Then a storm broke and for thirty minutes rain came down in torrents, the wind meanwhile increasing to twelve knots.

When the storm had passed the defender was seen to be firmly established on the weather bow of Shamrock III. and she was never afterward headed.

During the last two hours of the race the Reliance steadily increased her lead, rounding the turn a mile ahead of Shamrock III. Heading back for home closely hauled, she had just reached the Shamrock, still outward bound when, it being aparent that the race could not be finished in the time allowance, the regatta commitee boat at 3:45 fired the signal which declared the race off.

The Navy Wants Men.

Washington, Aug. 21.—To expedite the work of recuiting the navy department will authorize posting additional posters in various parts of the country and advertising extensively in the newspapers. This plan has been followed with excellent results by Lieutenant Everhardt, who is now on recruiting duty.

Nine Persons Hurt.

Connellsville, Pa., Aug. 21.—A B. & O. passenger train in running through the Connesville yard en route to Fairmont last evening ran through an open switch and crashed into the middle of a moving freight train on the west-bound track. Nine persons were hurt, three of them seriously.

Owosso the Victor.

Alma, Mich., Aug. 21.—Five to eight thousand visitors attended the Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors' annual picnic here Thursday. The Big Rapids, Durand, Weldman and Alma bands played, and J. G. Kress, of Alma, and E. J. Bullard, of St. Johns, addressed the crowd. The Owosso Foresters team secured the first prize of $50 for drill work and Ithaca the second, $30.

Carnival Company Sued.

Escanaba, Mich., Aug. 22.—Edward Brunnell, who fell 60 feet from a miniature Ferris wheel during the street fair at Hancock, has sued the Potter Rice Carnival company for $20,000 damages. The proprietors of the show, now in Escanaba, say Brunnell was drunk and the fall was caused by his own carelessness.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

There is no virtue in doing what you have to do. Even the devil will behave himself when he is chained.

Was Wasting Away.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." J. J. Orr

How can a naturally awkward person learn to grow old gracefully?

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by C. A. Wright, druggist.

When some men discharge an obligation you can hear the report for miles around.

Not over-wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of needlessly treading on a snake This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. Sold by all druggists.

The world would be much better than it is if men would live up to their obituaries.

Scrofula, salt Rheum, erysipelas and other distressing eruptive diseases yield quickly and permanently to the cleansing, purifying power of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Every man has his turn if he lives long enough to get gray.

"I had a running, itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, O.

"A friend of ours," says the editor of a contemporary, "is growing weaker and weaker every day. He has got so weak now that he can't raise five dollars."

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

CHAPTER IV.

The wolf cub at even lay hid in the corn
When the smoke of the cooking hung gray,
He knew where the doe made a couch for her fawn,
And he looked to his strength for his prey
But the moon swept the smoke wreaths away,
And he turned from his meal in the village's close,
And he bayed to the moon as she rose.
—In Seonee.

"WELL, and how does success taste?" said Torpenhow some three months later. He had just returned to chambers after a holiday in the country.

"Good," said Dick as he sat licking his lips before the easel in the studio. "I want more—heaps more. The lean years have passed, and I approve of these fat ones."

"Be careful, old man. That way lies bad work."

Torpenhow was sprawling in a long chair, with a small fox terrier asleep on his chest, while Dick was preparing a canvas. A dais, a background and a lay figure were the only fixed objects in the place. They rose from a wreck of oddments that began with felt covered water bottles, belts and regimental badges and ended with a small bale of secondhand uniforms and a stand of mixed arms. The mark of muddy feet on the dais showed that a military model had just gone away. The watery autumn sunlight was failing, and shadows sat in the corners of the studio.

"Yes," said Dick deliberately, "I like the power; I like the fun; I like the fuss, and, above all, I like the money. I almost like the people who make the fuss and pay the money—almost. But they're a queer gang—an amazingly queer gang!"

"They have been good enough to you, at any rate. That tin pot exhibition of your sketches must have paid. Did you see that the papers called it the 'Wild Work Show?'"

"Never mind. I sold every shred of canvas I wanted to, and on my word, I believe it was because they believed I was a self taught flagstone artist. I should have got better prices if I had worked my things on wool or scratched them on camel bone instead of using mere black and white and color. Verily, they are a queer gang, these people. Limited isn't the word to describe 'em. I met a fellow the other day who told m[illegible] it was impossible that shadow[illegible]ite sand should be blue—ultra[illegible] as they are. I found out later [illegible] had been as far as Bright[illegible] but he knew all about art, [illegible]. He gave me a lecture [illegible] recommended me to go to sch[illegible] learn technique. I wonder what old Kami would have said to that."

"When were you under Kami, man of extraordinary beginnings?"

"I studied with him for two years in Paris. He taught by personal magnetism. All he ever said was, 'Continuez, mes enfants,' and you had to make the best you could of that. He had a divine touch, and he knew something about color. Kami used to dream color. I swear he could never have seen the genuine article, but he evolved it, and it was good."

"Recollect some of those views in the Sudan?" said Torpenhow, with a provoking drawl.

Dick squirmed in his place. "Don't. It makes me want to get out there again. What color that was! Opal and umber and amber and claret and brick red and sulphur—cockatoo crest sulphur—against brown, with a nigger black rock sticking up in the middle of it all and a decorative frieze of camels festooning in front of a pure pale turquoise sky." He began to walk up and down. "And yet, you know, if you try to give these people the thing as God gave it keyed down to their comprehension and according to the powers he has given you"—

"Modest man! Go on."

"Half a dozen epicene young pagans who haven't even been to Algiers will tell you, first, that your notion is borrowed and, secondly, that it isn't art."

"This comes of my leaving town for a month. Dickie, you've been promenading among the toyshops and hearing people talk."

"I couldn't help it," said Dick penitently. "You weren't here, and it was lonely these long evenings. A man can't work forever."

"A man might have gone to a pub. and got decently drunk."

"I wish I had, but I foregathered with some men of sorts. They said they were artists, and I knew some of them could draw, but they wouldn't draw. They gave me tea—tea at 5 in the afternoon!—and talked about art and the state of their souls, as if their souls mattered. I've heard more about art and seen less of her in the last six months than in the whole of my life. Do you remember Cassavetti, who worked for some continental syndicate out with the desert column? He was a regular Christmas tree of contraptions when he took the field in full fig, with his water bottle, lanyard, revolver, writing case, housewife, gig lamps and the Lord knows what all. He used to fiddle about with 'em and show us how they worked, but he never seemed to do much except fudge his reports from the Nilghai. See?"

"Dear old Nilghai! He's in town, fatter than ever. He ought to be up here this evening. I see the comparison perfectly. You should have kept clear of all that man millinery. Serves you right, and I hope it will unsettle your mind."

"It won't. It has taught me what art—holy, sacred art—means."

"You've learned something while I've been away. What is art?"

"Give 'em what you know, and when you've done it once do it again." Dick dragged forward a canvas laid face to the wall. Here's a sample of real art. It's going to be a facsimile reproduction for a weekly. I called it 'His Last Shot.' It's worked up from the little water color I made outside El Maghrib. Well, I lured my model, a beautiful rifleman, up here with drink. I drored him, and I redrored him, and I tredrored him, and I made him a flushed, disheveled, bedeviled scalawag, with his helmet at the back of his head and the living fear of death in his eye and the blood oozing out of a cut over his ankle bone. He wasn't pretty, but he was all soldier and very much man."

"Once more, modest child!"

Dick laughed. "Well, it's only to you I'm talking. I did him just as well as I knew how, making allowance for the slickness of oils. Then the art manager of that abandoned paper said that his subscribers wouldn't like it. It was brutal and coarse and violent—man being naturally gentle when he's fighting for his life. They wanted something more restful, with a little more color. I could have said a good deal, but you might as well talk to a sheep as an art manager. I took my 'Last Shot' back. Behold the result! I put him into a lovely red coat without a speck on it. That's art. I polished his boots. Observe the high light on the toe. That's art. I cleaned his rifle—rifles are always clean on service—because that is art. I pipeclayed his helmet. Pipeclay is always used on active service and is indispensable to art. I shaved his chin, I washed his hands and gave him an air of fatted peace. Result, military tailor's pattern plate. Price, thank heaven, twice as much as for the first, which was moderately decent."

"And do you suppose you're going to give that thing out as your work?"

"Why not? I did it. Alone I did it in the interests of sacred, home bred art and Dickenson's Weekly."

Torpenhow smoked in silence for awhile. Then came the verdict, delivered from rolling clouds: "If you were only a mass of blathering vanity, Dick, I wouldn't mind. I'd let you go to the deuce on your own mahlstick. But when I consider what you are to me, and when I find that to vanity you add the twopenny halfpenny pique of a twelve-year-old girl, then I bestir myself in your behalf. Thus!"

The canvas ripped as Torpenhow's booted foot shot through it, and the terrier jumped down, thinking rats were about.

"If you have any bad language to use, use it. You have not. I continue You are an idiot, because no man born of woman is strong enough to take liberties with his public, even though they be, which they ain't, all you say they are."

"But they don't know any better. What can you expect from creatures born and bred in this light?" Dick pointed to the yellow fog. "If they want furniture polish, let them have furniture polish so long as they pay for it. They are only men and women. You talk as though they were gods."

"That sounds very fine, but it has nothing to do with the case. They are the people you have to work for, whether you like it or not. They are your masters. Don't be deceived, Dickie. You aren't strong enough to trifle with them, or with yourself, which is more important. Moreover—come back, Binkie—that red daub isn't going anywhere. Unless you take precious good care you will fall under the damnation of the checkbook, and that's worse than death. You will get drunk—you're half drunk already—on easily acquired money. For that money and your own infernal vanity you are willing to deliberately turn out bad work. You'll do quite enough bad work without knowing it. And, Dickie, as I love you and as I know you love me, I am not going to let you cut off your nose to spite your face for all the gold in England. That's settled. Now swear."

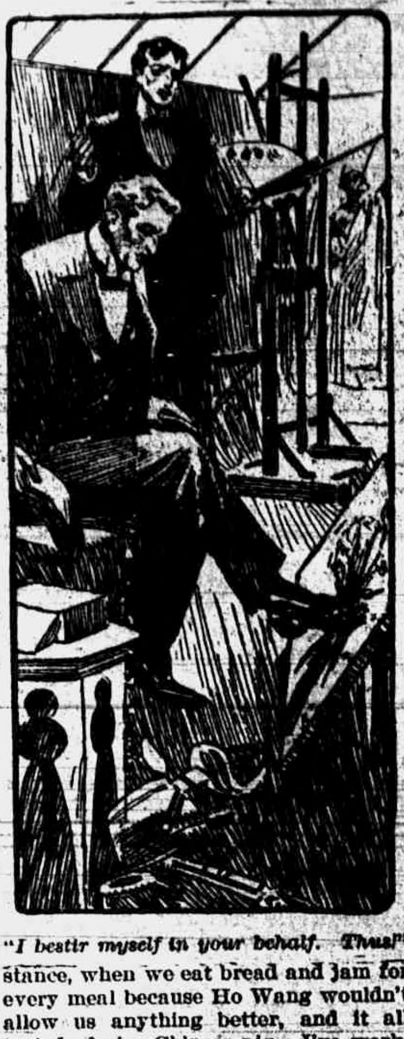
"Don't know," said Dick. "I've been trying to make myself angry, but I can't; you're so abominably reasonable. There will be a row on Dickenson's Weekly, I fancy."

"Why the Dickenson do you want to work on a weekly paper? It's slow bleeding of power."

"It brings in the very desirable dollars," said Dick, his hands in his pockets.

Torpenhow watched him with large contempt. "Why, I thought it was a man," said he. "It's a child."

"No, it isn't," said Dick, wheeling quickly. "You've no notion what the certainty of cash means to a man who has always wanted it badly. Nothing will pay me for some of my life's joys: and that Chinese pigboat, for instance, when we eat bread and jam for every meal because Ho Wang wouldn't allow us anything better, and it all tasted of pig—Chinese pig. I've worked for this, I've sweated and I've starved for this, line on line and month after month, and now I've got it I am going to make the most of it while it lasts. Let them pay. They've no knowledge."



"I bestir myself in your behalf. Thus!"

"What does your majesty please to want? You can't smoke more than you do, you won't drink, you're a gross feeder and you dress in the dark, by the look of you. You wouldn't keep a horse the other day when I suggested, because, you said, it might fall lame, and whenever you cross the street you take a hansom. Even you are not foolish enough to suppose that theaters and all the live things you can buy thereabout mean life. What earthly need have you for money?"

"It's there, bless its golden heart," said Dick. "It's there all the time. Providence has sent me nuts while I have teeth to crack 'em with. I haven't yet found the nut I wish to crack, but I'm keeping my teeth filled. Perhaps some day you and I will go for a walk round the wide earth."

"With no work to do, nobody to worry us and nobody to compete with, you would be unfit to speak to in a week. Besides, I shouldn't go. I don't care to profit by the price of a man's soul—for that's what it would mean. Dick, it's no use arguing. You're a fool."

"Don't see it. When I was on that Chinese pigboat, our captain got enormous credit for saving about 25,000 very seasick little pigs, when our old tramp of a steamer fell foul of a timber junk. Now, taking those pigs as a parallel"—

"Oh, confound your parallels! Whenever I try to improve your soul you always drag in some irrelevant anecdote from your very shady past. Pigs aren't the British public. Credit on the high seas isn't credit here, and self respect is self respect all the world over. Go out for a walk and try to catch some self respect. And, I say, if the Nilghai comes up this evening can I show him your diggings?"

"Surely. You'll be asking whether you must knock at my door next." And Dick departed to take counsel with himself in the rapidly gathering London fog.

Half an hour after he had left, the Nilghai labored up the staircase. He was the chiefest as he was the hugest of the war correspondents, and his experiences dated from the birth of the needle gun. Saving only his ally, Keneu the Great War Eagle, there was no man mightier in the craft than he, and he always opened his conversation with the news that there would be trouble in the Balkans in the spring. Torpenhow laughed as he entered.

"Never mind the trouble in the Balkans. Those little states are always screeching. You've heard about Dick's luck?"

"Yes. He has been called up to notoriety, hasn't he? I hope you keep him properly humble. He wants suppressing from time to time."

"He does. He's beginning to take liberties with what he thinks is his reputation."

"Already? By Jove, he has cheek! I don't know about his reputation, but he'll come a cropper if he tries that sort of thing."

"So I told him. I don't think he believes it."

"They never do when they first start off. What's that wreck on the ground there?"

"Specimen of his latest impertinence." Torpenhow thrust the torn edges of the canvas together and showed the well groomed picture to the Nilghai, who looked at it for a moment and then whistled.

"It's a chromo," said he—"a chromo litholeomargarine fake! What possessed him to do it? And yet how thoroughly he has caught the note that catches a public who think with their boots and read with their elbows! The cold blooded insolence of the work almost saves it. But he mustn't go on with this. Hasn't he been praised and cockered up too much? You know these people here have no sense of proportion. They'll catch him a second Detaille and a third hand Meissonier while his fashion lasts. It's windy diet for a colt."

"I don't think it affects Dick much. You might as well call a young wolf a lion and expect him to take the compliment in exchange for a shin bone. Dick's soul is in the bank. He's working for cash."

"Now he has thrown up war work I suppose he doesn't see that the obligations of the service are just the same; only the proprietors are changed."

"How should he know? He thinks he is his own master."

"Does he? I could undeceive him for his good if there's any virtue in print. He wants the whiplash."

"Lay it on with science, then. I'd flay him myself, but I like him too much."

"I've no scruples. He had the audacity to try to cut me out with a woman at Cairo once. I forgot that, but I remember now."

"Did he cut you out?"

"You'll see when I have dealt with him; but, after all, what's the good? Leave him alone, and he'll come home, if he has any stuff in him, dragging or wagging his tail behind him. There's more in a week of life than in a lively weekly. None the less, I'll slate him. I'll slate him ponderously in the Cataclysm."

"Good luck to you! But I fancy nothing short of a crowbar would make Dick wince. His soul seems to have been fired before we came across him. He's intensely suspicious and utterly lawless."

"Matter of temper," said the Nilghai. "It's the same with horses. Some you wollop and they work; some you wollop and they jibe, and some you wollop and they go out for a walk with their hands in their pockets."

"That's exactly what Dick has done," said Torpenhow. "Wait till he comes back. In the meantime you can begin your slating here. I'll show you some of his last and worst work in his studio."

Dick had instinctively sought running water for a comfort to his mood of mind. He was leaning over the embankment wall, watching the rush of the Thames through the arches of Westminster bridge. He began by thinking of Torpenhow's advice, but, as of custom, lost himself in the study of the faces flocking by. Some had death written on their features, and Dick marveled that they could laugh. Others, clumsy and coarse built for the most part, were alight with love; others were merely drawn and lined with work, but there was something, Dick knew, to be made out of them all.

One Little Day.

"It is a blessed secret," says one, "that of living by the day. Any one can carry his burden, however heavy, until nightfall, and any one can do his work, however hard, till the sun goes down. Any one can live patiently, lovingly and purely for one day. And this is all life means to us—just one little day." Why not try this truth.—Philadelphia North American.

Impaired Digestion

May not be all that is meant by dyspepsia now, but it will be if neglected.

The uneasiness after eating, fits of nervous headache, sourness of the stomach, and disagreeable belching may not be very bad now, but they will be if the stomach is suffered to grow weaker.

Dyspepsia is such a miserable disease that the tendency to it should be given early attention. This is completely overcome by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

which strengthens the whole digestive system

THE FAMOUS OPTICIAN of Detroit,

The eye, when properly cared for affords the keenest delight because of the pleasures we are able to enjoy through its medium. When not cared for and its warnings are unheeded, it becomes an instrument of torture. Headaches, eye pains, burning, itching sensation, strained vision, nervous troubles and many bodily ills are the results accruing from over worked eyes, eyes that need help. My examination reveals all hidden troubles, and it is my province to fit the right glasses to any and all defects of vision. SAATISFACTION GUARANTEED BY

SELLING & MAY

Easily Defeated by the Tecumseh Team in a game too one-sided to be Interesting

LOUIS STRIKER'S

First Appearance in the Box for Tecumseh on the home grounds, Fanning 9 men and allowing but 5 hits.

Saturday's game with Selling & May was below the average in point of interest, the visiting team being the weakest of the Detroit clubs who come up to give battle to the local aggregation.

Our team made several changes in men and their positions. Capt. Hosmer was in the hospital for repairs, and Chaffee took his place at third. Bucks, of Lansing, took Chaffee's place behind the bat, and Furlong, late of the Mt. Pleasant team, took Striker's place in left garden. The score:

Mull Reunion.

Thursday, Aug. 20, at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mull was held their seventh annual family reunion. Tents were placed on the lawn, under which were placed tables filled with every thing that heart could wish and to which every body did ample justice.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mull, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jones and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Mull and son, Mrs. John Mull, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carson of Tecumseh; Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Mull and children of Franklin; Mrs. Reynolds and grandson of Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rockwood and children of Cone; Mrs. Ed Barrett and children of Ridgeway; Mr. and Mrs. Adam Mull and son, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hayes and children, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hunt and children, Mr. and Mrs. John Bicylle, Miss Violet Story, Mrs. Frank Steins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hayes and children, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hess and baby, Mrs. Fred Dane and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hayes and children, Mrs. Paul Hayes of Blissfield; Mrs. Kate Hutchitson of Akron, Ohio.

In the afternoon a fine program was rendered.

Singing.
Prayer—Samuel Hayes.
Singing.
Recitation—Mrs. Mudge Jones.
Remarks by all.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year.

The next reunion will be held in Ohio.

CAUTION!

This is not a gentle word—but when you think how liable you are not to purchase the only remedy universally known and a remedy that has had the largest sale of any medicine in the world since 1868 for the cure and treatment of Consumption and Throat and Lung troubles without losing its great popularity all these years, you will be thankful we called your attention to Boschee's German Syrup. There are so many ordinary cough remedies made by druggists and others that are cheap and good for light colds perhaps, but for severe Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup—and especially for Consumption, where there is difficult expectoration and coughing during the nights and mornings, there is nothing like German Syrup. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

GRAND OPENING

At New Bradley Friday Evening

"HEART OF CHICAGO"

Played to a large audience.

The theatrical season in Tecumseh was auspiciously opened at the New Bradley Tuesday evening with Lincoln J. Carter's popular drama, "The Heart of Chicago." This play was ably presented by an excellent company of artists and the scenery used in its presentation was especially good. There was a good house. Manager Bradley has secured the following list of attractions for the coming season:

Montana Outlaw, Aug. 25.
In Convict's Stripes, Sept. 8.
Eleventh Hour, " 10.
For Mother's Sake " 25.
Down by the Sea, Oct. 13.
A Boy Wanted; " 20.
Howe's Moving Pictures, Nov. 24.
The Wizzard, Dec. 7.
Hilda Tucker Co., Jan. 6.
Johnstown Flood, Feb. 3.
Alma Sterling, " 10.
Niagara Falls, " 24.
Way Down East, Mar. 2.
Uncle Tom's Cabin, " 31.
County Fair, Apr. 19.
Her Only Sin, " 27.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, August 24, 1903.

It is confidently expected that the President will promptly appoint a commission, or commissioner, to investigate the alleged frauds perpetrated on the Five Civilized tribes of Indians in connection with the allotment in severalty of the lands in the Indian Territory, which they have heretofore held in tribal ownership, the attention of the President having been called to the scandal by a public letter of the Indian Rights Association. In this letter it is alleged that several members of the Dawes Commission, charged with the allotment of the lands, are stockholders and directors of companies and syndicates which are making large profits dealing in Indian lands and at the expense of the Indians to whom the desirability of ready cash, even in small amounts, far outweighs all considerations of actual or potential value.

When the attention of the Secretary of the Interior was called to the open letter of the Indian Rights Association he pointed out that most of the persons said to be associated with the companies in question were without his jurisdiction. In the case of Guy B. Cobb, formerly internal revenue inspector of the Indian Territory, the secretary said Cobb had consulted him with regard to the compatibility of retaining his federal office after becoming a director of an Indian Territory investment company and the Secretary had advised him of the necessity of handing in his resignation, which Cobb promptly did. The Secretary further called to the attention of the Department of Justice, some months ago, the fact that District attorney P. L. Soper, whose duties require him to protect the rights of the Indians, was associated with various land syndicates. So far as can be learned, the Department of Justice took no action in the matter. In so far as members of the Dawes Commission are concerned the Secretary of the Interior can do nothing as they are responsible only to Congress and to the President whose appointees they are. In this connection, however, it is interesting to know that Secretary Hitchcock, during a former administration, called the attention of the delicacy of the position occupied by Tams Bixby, chairman of the Dawes Commission, because of his association with interests inimical to those of the Indians. No action was taken in the premises, however.

An attempt to besmirch the reputation of the Secretary of the Interior, made by a prominent New York journal, your correspondent is in a position to pronounce entirely unwarranted by the facts. After a careful examination of extensive documentary evidence on record in the Department of the interior, it is evident that, in the first place, no fraud is charged by the Mayor of Lawton, and, in the second place, the delay in furnishing to Lawton and other towns in Oklahoma the improvements of which they doubtless stand sorely in need was due to the unscrupulous methods of the men who did on the construction of these improvements and the determination of the Secretary that the improvements, the construction of which had been delegated to his Department, shall be of a permanent and creditable character.

An interesting move, now being discussed as likely to be made by Congress with a view to preventing General Leonard Wood from occupying the position of Lieutenant General, is here made public for the first time. Leading members of Congress are seriously discussing the advisability of enacting a law abolishing the rank of lieutenant general, the law to take effect when the last veteran of the civil war retires from that position. This would have the effect of abolishing the rank just as Wood was about to succeed to that position and would, in the opinion of many members of Congress, be but poetic justice to a soldier whose promotion is regarded as having been more rapid than deserved. Many will see in this another expression of West Point-or Army class jealousy.

ROUND ABOUT US.

When Frank Sperry went to his chicken yard Saturday morning, he found that some "Varmint" had killed 53 of them during the night nearly all were just bitten on the back of the neck.—Blissfield Advance.

Burglars entered the post office at Chelsea last week Wednesday night, blew open the safe, got $100 in stamps, $40 in currency and skipped out with the swag. Milo Updike, the hotel man across the way, heard the noise and went out to see what was up. One of the men told him to go back and keep still or he would blow his d—n head off. He went.

Art Kinney came home Saturday night from Adrian, having injured his right hand in a wind mill. Dr. J. L. Tuttle who dressed the wound found the chord of the middle finger nearly severed and was obliged to sew the cord together. He hopes to grow it together again so that Art will have good use of the finger.—Clinton Local.

Joseph Edinger is a collector of Indian relics. He lives in Hillsdale, but occasionally visits Waldron. A few days ago, while at the latter place, he was shown a pipe which had been excavated and which he purchased greedily. But it seems the pipe was newly made from fresh clay and the honest Waldronites not only profited by their ingenuity but had the laugh on the collector from the county seat.—Hudson Post.

A motorman stopped his car Sunday about two miles below Riga, then went across the road and began looking up and down a ditch; the conductor soon joined him and after waiting awhile some of the men left the car and went over to find out what was the matter. Why! said the excited lightning jerker, there was a coon setting right on the track and he ran over here. Just then some one found a woodchuck hole and the party proceeded on their journey.—Blissfield Advance.

Dwight and Skahan, the two convicts who escaped from the prison farm Friday, were sighted several times Sunday around Rives Junction in which territory they have been the past two days. In all probability the men will be captured soon, for they have been nearly surrounded by officers from the prison, and a large posse of farmers who are assisting.—Jackson Patroit.

While loading the Gentry Brothers' show at the Lake Shore depot Monday night, one of the Gentry employes became involved in a war of words with the conductor of the east bound freight, when another of the showmen came up behind the conductor and dealt him a blow over the head with a heavy club, felling him to the ground and inflicting serious injury. By those who witnessed the difficulty it is said that the showmen's assault on the conductor was both unprovoked and cowardly.—Hudson Gazette.

While blackberries are a rather scarce article in almost any locality, but there are such things and E. C. Palmer stands ready to prove it. On Wednesday he went out in the woods at his country home and picked a lot of the white blackberries and sent some of the fruit to the Gazette office. The berries were of delicious flavor and better quality all around than the ordinary "black" blackberries.—Hudson Gazette.

MOST BEYOND BELIEF.

If it were not for Tecumseh Indorsement People might be Skeptical.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mrs. E. Fryer, who lives in the north western section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off and on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the afternoon and I often felt like giving up but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and in spite of all the remedies I used I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

"What kind of a carpet shall we get for the parson's study?" asked a church committee man of his colleague. "Axminster," was the comprehensive reply.

A blessing alike to young and and old: Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Nature's specific for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaint.

A little girl was asked the meaning of "happy." She gave a pretty answer, saying, "It is to feel as if you wanted to give up all your things to your sister."

Bodily pain loses its terror if you've a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the house. Instant relief in cases of burns, cuts, sprains, accidents of any sort.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANIY.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. J. F. Burtch of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was troubled with severe nervousness and nervous headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. Wright's drug store and after using two boxes I can say I am cured, my nerves are again strong and steady and the headaches all gone and I feel well in every way. As a nerve and general tonic I think the medicine unequaled." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every package.

In some cases jealousy is a sign of love. But it is more frequently proof of over-whelming egotism.

HERE'S A BABY
Its Mother is Well.

The baby is healthy because during the period of gestation its mother used the popular and purely vegetable liniment,

Mother's Friend

Mother's Friend is a soothing, softening, relaxing liniment, a muscle maker, invigorator and freshener. It puts new power into the back and hips of a coming mother.

It is applied externally only, there is no dosing and swallowing of nasty drugs, no inward treatment at all.

The state of the mother during gestation may influence the disposition and future of the child; that is one reason why mothers should watch their condition and avoid pain. ARGENTINA AHEAD.

Acceded United States in Increase of Population.

Washington, Aug. 22.—The census bureau has published a bulletin with a discussion of the increase of population in the United States as shown by the census of 1900. The principal results of the study of these figures are summarized as follows: Increase in population in the United States, that is the United States exclusive of Alaska and the recent insular accessions, was 13,046,861, or 20.7 per cent. Only one country, Argentina, has shown by the most recent figures a more rapid rate of growth. The present rate of growth in continental United States is estimated as double the average rate of Europe. It is nearly double that of Canada and exceeds by one-sixth that of Mexico, and by one-tenth that of Australia.

In the decade 1890 to 1900, for the first time in our national history the southern states increased faster than the northern. East of the Mississippi, however, the northern states as a group have grown in the last ten years somewhat more rapidly than the south, but west of that river the southern states have increased almost two and one-half times as rapidly as the northern, and it is this fact which makes the growth of the south as a whole exceed that of the north. In the North Atlantic division the rate of increase has risen steadily since the civil war, a notable contrast to the trend in the country as a whole. The region west of the Mississippi river is still increasing faster than that east of it.

Sentenced for Lese Majeste.

Berlin, Aug. 22.—Konrad Von Fielitz, an actor, was to-day sentenced to nine months imprisonment on a charge of lese majeste in libeling the German emperor in his jokes at the theater. Fielitz was engaged at the German theater at The Hague at the time when the emperor was honoring Field Marshal Lord Roberts in Berlin. He sang couplets voicing the feeling among the Dutch against Emperor William. After the performances there were festive gatherings, at which Fielitz indulged in pleasantries which two Germans present considered insulting to Emperor William and reported to Berlin. On Fielitz's return to Berlin he was arrested. The public prosecutor asked for a sentence of fifteen months' imprisonment.

A Soldiers' Monument.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 21.—The Woman's Relief Corps have made a contract for a monument to be erected upon the Soldiers' lot in Oak Grove cemetery. It is to be of Barry granite, surmounted by a soldier-life size standing at a parade rest. It is to be in place by Nov. 1.

Wants Negroes to Learn.

Washington, Aug. 22.—Secretary Wilson exhibited on his desk in the agricultural department to-day the first hank of silk reeled from the silk reeling machines recently purchased by the department. There are three of these machines, though onely one of them has been put in operation, the intention being to send one of the two remaining machines to Tuskegee and the other to some other place where sufficient interest may be shown to learn how to operate it. It is the desire of Secretary Wilson to have the people of the south learn the business, beacuse of the comparative cheapness of colored labor. Arrangements already have been made to have some girls come to Washington to learn the machines and they are expected daily.

DECATUR WILL GET IT.

New State Normal Will Go There Says Henry Russell.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 22.—"Decatur is the only town which stands a show of getting the new $40,000 normal school," said Henry Russel, chief counsel of the Michigan Central Railroad company.

The eminent barrister made the statement without the slightest reservation, though he declared that the Michigan Central had no interest in the thing at all.

"Are there any towns which can be considered competitors?"

"None at all. Even if Grand Rapids did stand a slight show, the school would be on our lines."

Despite the absolute secrecy preserved by the members of the state board of education who went a-junketing in the remote northern regions of the state's summer resorts, no bones are made about the fact that Decatur is decidedly "it."

Albion, having a college and incidentally being the home of Superintendent of Public Instruction Delos Fall, an ex-officio member of the state board, laid strong claims to the new educational structure. So did Niles by its different virtues. A happy medium is to be struck by apparently giving the bone of contention to a point between the two rival towns, Decatur.

STABBED WITH HAT PIN.

Unknown Woman Attacked Carnival Visitor at Kalamazoo.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 22.—F. B. McArthur, a stockman from Saco, Mont., was stabbed in the stomach with a hat pin by an unknown woman on the streets here Friday. He was passing along on the sidewalk in a large crowd which is here visiting the carnival, when a small boy brushed a little feather duster in a woman's face. Thinking it was McArthur, she grabbed her hat pin and jabbed it into his stomach.

McArthur hit the woman in the face and knocked her to the ground, but friends with her picked her up and she was soon lost in the crowd. Her identity cannot be learned.

McArthur was taken to the city hospital, and attending physicians say he cannot live. He was in Michigan spending the summer at resorts, and came to Kalamazoo to visit the carnival.

WOULDN'T SURRENDER THEM.

Supervisors at Corunna Hung to the Tax Rolls.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 22.—The state tax commission's representatives here, F. C. McLaughlin, commissioner; Fred M. Twiss, chief clerk; Glenn L. Williams, stenographer, and Leonard Herrmanau, received a rude surprise Friday when the board of supervisors refused to give up the assesment rolls for alteration at Lansing.

One of the commission's force, T. J. Bolt, spent a week in the county last spring, and jotted down a few figures as to the proper valuation. He selected a parcel of land in each section as a basis, but the supervisors declare it happened in each case to be the best land in the neighborhood. One supervisor says he placed a fancy value on swamp land because down his way they raise valuable peppermint crops upon it, while it is worth $10 per acre.

Mr. Bolt's valuations rather made the supervisors distrustful, and when Mr. McLaughlin Friday made formal demand for the rolls, so that the valuation might be jacked up in the tax commission's office, at Lansing, they refused to deliver. Mr. McLaughlin threatened to involve the law. The supervisors asked if the law gave him specific right to take the rolls, and he was forced to admit that no such right was specifically given.

Supervisors Showed the Bid.

Corunna, Mich., Aug. 22.—A sensation has been created by the charges of M. L. Lisowski, a Chicago contractor, that his bid of $78,685 for the construction of the proposed new court house was shown to a member of the firm of Rickman Sons, of Kalamazoo, who ewre awarded the contract at $78,600. The building committee admitted showing the bid, offering as an excuse that they were acquainted with the Kalamazoo firm and knew nothing of the Chicago man.

Petty Thief Showed Fight.

Traverse City, Mich., Aug. 22.—Clarence Hollenbaugh, of Mayfield, about 26 years old, was arrested charged with stealing a hat from the Hotel Columbia, being caught in the act. It required an officer and two citizens to take him to the jail, on the steps of which he showed fight and escaped by knocking the three out by a sudden coup. Hollenbaugh fled to a resort on the outskirts of the city, where he was arrested by the chief of police and brought back.

Proud of the Cure.

William R. Travers, the New York city broker, on one occasion desired to go to an address in suburban Brooklyn, but, being unacquainted with the locality, accosted a stranger and asked directions. It so happened that the stranger stuttered and stammered quite as badly as Travers, who after the man had made two or three ineffectual attempts to answer grew angry under the impression he was being mocked and hotly inquired:

"How d-d-dare you t-t-try to m-m-mock me?"

"Ex-ex-excuse m-me!" exclaimed the stranger. "I have an im-im-impediment in m-my s-s-s-speech."

"Oh, I s-s-see!" stammered Travers, the look of anger giving way to a look of sympathetic concern. "W-w-why d-d-don't you g-g-go s-s-see D-d-doctor S-s-smith? He c-c-cured m-me."—Philadelphia Times.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

GOWN OF SILVER-BLUE ZIBELINE.

A gown for a semi-formal occasion is always desirable. Silver-blue zibeline, which is now so much used for both formal and informal occasions, is the material of which this gown is made. Bands of the beautiful Bulgarian embroidery, executed with Corticelli embroidery silk and a lavish use of handsome Luxenil lace, add very materially to the beauty and finish of our model. The back is sure to please the feminine eye, being done in the popular cascade effect.

Assuming the Husband's Name.

The practice of the wife assuming the husband's name at marriage originated from a Roman custom and became the common custom after the Roman occupation. Thus, Julia and Octavia, married to Pompey and Cicero, were called by the Romans Julia of Pompey and Octavia of Cicero, and in later times married women in most European countries signed their names in the same manner, but omitted the "of."

Against this view it may be mentioned that during the sixteenth and even at the beginning of the seventeenth century the usage seems doubtful, since we find Catherine Parr so signing herself after she had been twice married, and we always hear of Lady Jane Grey (not Dudley), Arabella Stuart (not Seymour), etc. Some persons think that the custom originated from the Scriptural teaching that husband and wife are one. This was the rule of law so far back as Bracton (died 1268), and it was decided in the case of Bon versus Smith, in the reign of Elizabeth, that a woman by marriage loses her former name and legally receives the name of her husband. Altogether the custom is involved in much obscurity.

Little Big Men.

Suwarow, the greatest of Russian generals; Frederick the Great, David Garrick, the wonderful actor, and Alexander Hamilton, whom Talleyrand pronounced one of the three greatest men he had ever known, were slender and below the middle height. The brave General Marion "was in stature of the smallest size, thin as well as low," and Dr. Kane, who surpassed all of his arctic companions in braving torrid heat and polar cold, was but 5 feet 6 in height and weighed at his best only 135 pounds. But more dwarfish than any of these ghostly beings was that phenomenon of the eighteenth century, the Abbe Galiani of Naples. "Personally," says Marmontel, "the abbe, who was but 4 feet 6 inches in stature, was the prettiest little harlequin that Italy ever produced, but upon the shoulders of that harlequin was the head of a Machiavelli."

The Periods of Growth.

Children born between September and February are, some authorities state, not as tall as those born in summer and spring months, and the growth of children is much more rapid from March till August. The extremities grow rapidly up to the sixteenth year; then there is a slow growth until the thirtieth year. The legs chiefly grow between the tenth and seventeenth years. Comparing the general results, it appears that there are six periods of growth. The first extends up to the sixth or eighth year and is one of very rapid growth; the second period, from eleven to fourteen years, growth is slow; the third period, from sixteen to seventeen; the fourth period shows a slow growth up to the age of thirty for height, up to fifty for chest girth; the fifth period is one of rest, the sixth a decrease in the body.

A Roman Cure For Consumption.

Celsus was a Roman physician who flourished in the third century. He was a follower of Hippocrates and wrote various books on medicine. One of his prescriptions is for consumption and, strange enough, it is quite in accord with modern methods in some respects. He says: "As soon as a man finds himself spitting and hacking on rising in the morning he should immediately take possession of a cow and go high up into the mountains and live on the fruit of that cow." Although he knew nothing of the cause of phthisis, he had observed that good living, out of door life, lots of sunshine and an abundance of milk and cream were absolutely essential as prerequisites for treatment.—Journal of Hygiene.

A Remarkable Shawl.

The empress of Russia was once presented with a shawl of a remarkable kind. It is contained in a box only a few inches square, in which it fits easily, yet when it is shaken out it is ten yards square. This notable gift was the work of some women weavers in Orenberg, southern Russia, by whom it was presented. The box containing it is of wood, with hinges, hoops and fastenings of beaten silver.

Mistletoe.

The mistletoe comes chiefly from Brittany. Some 700 tons of the charming white berried plant are exported from French ports yearly. This mistletoe is to the Breton what the pig is to the Irishman—it pays the rent. The peasants of Normandy and Brittany cultivate the parasite on their apple trees—contrary to popular belief, it rarely grows on oaks—and it forms their most profitable crop. A few years ago the French department of agriculture decreed the destruction of all mistletoe, on the ground that it injured the apple trees. The peasants, however, denied the impeachment, and, as the order is not enforced, they grow and export more "gui" than ever for the Christmas enlivenment of English and American homes.

Instinct Stronger Than Will.

A curious story is told of Darwin and snakes. He used to go into the London Zoological society's gardens, Regent's park, and, standing by the glass case containing the cobra de capello, put his forehead against the glass while the cobra struck out at him. The glass was between them. Darwin's mind was perfectly convinced as to the inability of the snake to harm him, yet he would always dodge. Time after time he tried it, his will and reason keeping him there, his instinct making him dodge. The instinct was stronger than both will and reason.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marbichead, Ill.

NATIONAL IN CHARACTER.

New Buffalo Congregational Summer Assembly Has Expanded.

New Buffalo, Mich., Aug. 27.—The congregational summer assembly, holding a two weeks' session here, has expanded into a national organization and elected the following officers: President, Rev. A. M. Brodie, D. D., of Hinsdale, Ill.; vice-president, Rev. H. C. Herring, D. D., of Omaha, Neb.; secretary and treasurer, Rev. H. S. Wannamaker, Elyria, O. Among the directory are Rev. J. B. Nichols, Marietta, O.; Rev. H. S. Mills, Benzonia, Mich.; Rev. William Ewing, Lansing, Mich.; Rev. J. H. Hull, Marblehead, O.; Rev. A. H. Stoneman, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Rev. R. N. Higgins, Steubenville, O.

A committee was appointed to secure a permanent location for the assembly, where a meeting may be held two weeks every year for systematic study of portions of the bible. The Methodist and United Brethren denominations have decided to participate in the assembly.

GIRL LURED AWAY

Detroit Young Lady Fell In With Bad Company.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 27.—Late Tuesday night a Cleveland patrolman found a 16-year-old girl, who said she was Florence Eck of Detroit, wandering along the street. Sobbingly the girl told a pitiful tale. She says she came here to get work, and on the boat she met a woman who promised her a place.

When the boat arrived the woman attempted to lure the girl to a low resort. She refused to go. The older woman had persuaded the girl to let her take her pocketbook for safe-keeping. When she found that the girl was not to be enticed, she told her to wait for her while she went into a house. The woman did not return.

The girl was taken to the central station, where she slept in the hospital cell. She will be sent back to Detroit.

Drowned Her Child.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 26.—The police have arrested Mrs. Albert Williams, John Burrig and George Dill on the charge of murdering Mrs. Williams' 3-year-old daughter. Mrs. Williams admitted to the chief of police that Burrig had advised her to drown the child, as it was half-witted and worthless. The river was dragged and the body of the child found.

Ate Toadstools.

La Crosse, Wis., Aug. 26.—As a result of eating of mushrooms picked in their yard the entire family of six of R. L. Schuler, of this city, and a guest, Mrs. A. Clark, of Chicago, are seriously ill with ptomaine poisoning. It is thought that toadstools were mixed with the mushrooms.

TWO CLOUDBURSTS

Heavy Damages In Sections of Iowa By Rains.

COUNCIL BLUFFS SUFFERS

Streets Became Torrents—Families Driven From Their Homes—Wash outs on Railroads—Corn Crop Suffers—Six Inches Rainfall.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Aug. 27.—Two cloudbursts last night destroyed hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property in this city. The first storm turned the streets of the city into torrents and hundreds of families in the lower districts of the city were removed from their homes with difficulty. Many business houses were flooded by the first storm and the damage to stock will amount into the thousands. Another storm later in the evening raised the water still higher and many stocks were badly damaged. The loss in this city alone is estimated at easily half a million dollars.

The rainfall here for the twenty-four hours ending at midnight amounted to six inches.

The Northwestern railroad is not running a train in nor out of the city and reports washouts between Idaho Grove and Battle Creek, Ia., and between Mapleton and Castana, Ia.

The Rock Island and Milwaukee are both tied up and not running trains either in or out of this city.

The Nonpareil has reports from twenty-five southwestern Iowa points showing the fall of rain has been the heaviest ever known over so large an area. The damage to the corn crop cannot be estimated.

PRINTERS TOOK OATH.

A New Departure In Custom Among Government Types.

Washington, Aug. 27.—An order from Public Printer Palmer was issued to the heads of divisions in the government printing office just before the hour for closing Wednesday to appear before a notary public in the office and take oath of allegiance to the United States, as subscribed to by clerks under the civil service law.

Mr. Palmer said last night he had issued the order at the suggestion of a government official, whose name he declined to give. He said that its object was to place the per diem employes in the same attitude toward the government as that of the clerks on annual salaries, who have subscribed to the order.

The issuance of the order created considerable surprise among the employes of the office, especially among members of the bookbinders' union, who believe it has indirectly a bearing on the issues growing out of the case of W. A. Miller, the assistant foreman of the bindery, who was discharged from the office because he had been expelled from the local bookbinders' union, but who was afterward reinstated at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Quick Trip Around World.

New York, Aug. 27.—Henry Frederick, who left New York city on July 2 on the steamer Deutschland for a tour around the world with the hope of breaking the record for the shortest time consumed in circling the globe, returned to New York last night on the New York Central railroad. Mr. Frederick had been successful in his endeavor, having made the circuit in 54 days, 7 hours and 20 minutes. Mr. Frederick said that he found the line of the trans-Siberian railroad swarming with Russian troops, who were being poured into Manchuria at the rate of 1,000 a day. At Port Arthur were concentrated thirty-seven warships of all classes. In Japan he found the feeling for war with Russia running very high and active preparations being made for hostilities.

Dying of Yellow Fever.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 27.—A letter was received in this city from a responsible resident of Linares, Mexico, in which he states that yellow fever exists at that place and that the death rate is now fourteen a day. This information was given to the quarantine officials, both federal and state, of this city, and they will take the matter up at once for investigation. Linares is a small town on the gulf about three hours' ride from Monterey. The letter further said that people are fleeing from there in all directions as fast as they can get out.

Violinist Kubelik Weds.

Vienna, Aug. 27.—Jan Kubelik, the violinist, was married at Debreczin, Hunagry, Tuesday, to Countess Marianne Csaky, niece of Coloman Von Szell, former premier of Hungary. Only a few friends were present. Bishop Wolatka performed the ceremony. The couple have proceeded to Prague to visit the bridegroom's mother, and from there they will proceed to Marienbad to spend their honeymoon.

Booming a New Line.

Ionia, Mich., Aug. 27.—An enthusiastic electric railroad meeting was held here Wednesday, attended by a large representation of leading people along the prospective road to Crystal Lake. It was the voice of the meeting that money should be raised forthwith for the survey, and subscription papers were put in the hands of parties along the line between Ionia and Crystal Lake. Barring unforeseen delay it is predicted that this road will be put through by the fall of 1904.

Deaf Mute Ran Away.

Durand, Mich., Aug. 27.—Harry Murray, a deaf and dumb boy, who has been living with John Snell, five miles east of Durand, has run away from home. The boy took his belongings in shoe boxes and was last seen at Duffield. The lad has dark hair and complexion and is 14 years old, wears knee trousers and weighs 100 pounds. Mr. Snell has offered a liberal reward for information as to the boy's whereabouts.

HARD AFTER WALTZ

Whole State On Lookout for Alleged Murderer.

SUSPECT OF WILMES CRIME

Detroit, Flint, Saginaw and Port Huron Give Information—Flint Barber Says He Shaved Waltz Since the Crime.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 27.—Despite the numerous personal marks whereby Emil Waltz, alias Charles Price, the Wilmes murder suspect, can be recognized, Waltz was up to a late hour last night still at large. From points near and far reports arrive at police headquarters of the fugitive's alleged whereabouts. Every city, town and village is on the alert, and every man with some resemblance to Waltz is apprehended. A man-hunt at Windsor has been going on for the last two days. Another report from Flint, Mich., has it that Waltz was at work in that town until Aug. 15, two days before the tragedy. He is also said to have returned to Flint immediately after the evening of the crime, and got shaved in a barber shop there. Tramps all over the state live in constant terror of being hauled up before the magistrates suspected of being the perpetrators of the crime.

Two hours were consumed in holding the inquest upon the body of the unfortunate child yesterday in the county building. Few spectators were in the room when Coroner Harrison took the bench, and Assistant Prosecutor Ward N. Choate conducted the inquiry.

The jury deliberated ten minutes and returned the following verdict:

"Alphonse Wilmes came to his death on the dates of Aug. 17 or Aug. 18 from hemorrhage, due to a wound which severed the left radial artery, which was inflicted by criminal means by person or persons unknown."

FLOOD IN KANSAS.

One Man Drowned and Great Damage Done.

Marysville, Kas., Aug. 26.—A cloudburst in this vicinity Tuesday caused the Big Blue river to rise sixteen feet within a few hours and send a great flood of water south down the bottoms along that stream. Many inhabitants in the lowlands were driven from their homes and heavy damage to property was done. One death by drowning is reported.

Marysville was deluged and the bottoms were filled with water from ten to fifteen feet deep. Fifty houses were almost entirely submerged, their inmates taking refuge in trees and on house tops. Seventy-five persons were rescued in boats at daylight, and by noon twenty others were taken to places of safety.

The river is falling, although farms for miles around will be under water for several days. South of here, at the town of Blue Rapids, the Blue river rose to within a few inches of the highest point of the June rise, causing much damage to farm property.

A wall of water struck Vleit, a town of 1,000, on the Vermillion river, east of here, in the same county, driving the residents of the lowlands from their homes. Previously the Vermillion had risen four feet in an hour and to-day Vleit is five feet under water. All the stores and perhaps twenty-five residences are inundated and the damage at that place is estimated at $50,000. The river is three miles wide.

Slight damage also was done at Marietta, close to the Nebraska line.

PORTLAND ATTACKED

War Game Played With Much Zest Last Night.

Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—The attack on Portland by Admiral Barker's combined North Atlantic fleet began promptly at midnight last night, the alloted time, and was well under way at 1 o'clock. Vessels from the fleet entered the harbor. At least two landings were atempted and a torpedo boat destroyer succeeded in reaching Fort Prebele, the innermost fortification and the acknowledged key to the defenses, before being picked up by the searchlights and fired upon.

At 2 o'clock a heavy cannonading from the ships and fortifications had been in progres two hours. A part of the fleet at 3 o'clock was atempting to come in through Whitehead passage, one of the three available entrance channels to the harbor. Fort Preble was surrounded by landing parties, who were fought back by all the land forces massed for the defense of that point. A launch and cutter were captured by the Fort Preble forces.

Wanted In Ireland for Murder.

Indianapolis, Aug. 26.—James Lynchbaum, captured here to-day by Andrew Young, acting sergeant of the Royal Irish constabulary, and Pinkerton detectives, had been pursued from County Mayo, Ireland, across the sea and through many large cities of the United States. As soon as extradited he will be taken back for trial for attempting to murder Agnes McDonnell in County Mayo on Oct. 6, 1894. He escaped during his trial last September, was recaptured and again escaped. The officers watched his wife and 11-year-old son, and by following them found Lynchbaum. The prisoner was once a school teacher in England and is connected with a wealthy family.

Puts an end to it all.

A grievous wail oftimes comes as a result of unbearable pain from over taxed organs. Dizziness, Backache, Liver complaint and Constipation. But thanks to Dr. King's New Life Pills they put an end to it all. They are gentle but thorough. Try them. Only 25c. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright, Drug Store.

THEORY OF SUICIDE

Now Advanced In Case of William Benz's Death.

MAY HAVE BEEN DESPONDENT

Funeral Was Held—Remains Placed in Vault to Await Verdict of Coroner's Jury—Two Men Arrested in Hillsdale.

Dexter, Mich., Aug. 26.—Both public and coroner are quite as much in the dark as ever as to the cause of William Benz's death—whether murder or suicide.

The theory now generally accepted in regard to the tragic death of the young man is that while in an insane frenzy, produced probably by despondency, he commited suicide. Nevertheless, it is a most remarkable case, considering the fact that Benz, if he did the job himself, must have pounded his face with a hammer until he was unconscious, and then after regaining consciousness must have deliberately dragged himself into the house to procure the razor with which he completed the job by cutting his throat from ear to ear. But after a careful investigation of all the circumstances it would seem that that is just what he did.

When Mrs. Benz returned to her home after being away all day, she discovered pools of blood in the living room, and without investigating further called the neighbors. The body of the dead man was found in the woodshed. It was not lying on the ground, but was in a sort of stooping position and was supported by the left arm of the dead man, which hung over an old ash barrel. The right arm hung at his side and beneath it was found the bloody razor with which the gashes in the throat had been made. Benz had bled freely and the razor was lying in a pool of blood.

Persons who saw the body in the the father of the wife of the dead man, the suggestion was made that murder had been committed, and since then all the friends of the Aprill family have insisted that it was murder.

Evidences of Suicide.

A pool of blood was found near the chicken coop back of the house and blood was spattered all over the dining room in the house. The theory of the offiers in the case is that Benz hit himself in the face and head with the hammer perhaps until he was unconscious and that afterwards perhaps, he went into the house and secured the razor, with which he cut his throat, causing the blood to spurt around the room. When he got the razor there was blood on his hand, as he left the imprint of his hand on the door of the cupboard, where he kept the weapon. After gashing the throat once he staggered out into the shed, and just as he cut his throat a third time fell into the peculiar position in which he was afterwards found.

While it is asserted by the relatives that Benz had no reason to commit suicide, it may be that he was despondent on account of the condition of his finances. Benz was married about nine months ago, and for a time lived with his people. About seven months ago, however, he purchased the farm he lived on from Otto Jaeger for $8,000, paying $4,000 in cash and giving a mortgage for the rest. It is said the fact that he was in debt for such an amount of money bothered Benz greatly. In addition to this, it is also said that for some time he had not been on the best of terms with his father, and consequently things did not look any too bright for him.

It is reported on very good authority that several close relatives of Benz were afflicted with insanity, and it is believed by the persons who know these facts that Benz became violent while he was all alone and immediately started in to kill himself.

The funeral was held Tuesday about noon, and instead of the body being interred it was placed in the vault until after the coroner's jury shall decide whether it was murder or suicide. Dr. Theo. Klingmann, of Ann Arbor, who is the family physician of the Aprill family and who helped in conducting the postmortem examination, is of the opinion that Benz was murdered. Sheriff Gauntlett and his officers are convinced that it was suicide, but they are still working hard on the case so it cannot be said they left a stone unturned.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 26.—Ed. Van Fleet and Fred Jaeger were taken into custody here by Sheriff Chestnut at the request of Sheriff Gauntlett, of Ann Arbor, who wants them in connection with the case of William Benz, found dead near Dexter last Friday. The men were with the Sparks circus, which they joined Friday at Manchester. They were taken to Ann Arbor.

Cannon a Hard Drinker.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 26.—Hughie Cannon, the writer of "Goo-Goo Eyes" and "Bill Bailey, Won't You Come Home?" may be sent to Detroit and put up at the house of correction. He has a charge of drunkard and tippler hanging over him here. Cannon has become a slave to drink, and while in Jackson the last six months, has been in jail the greater portion of the time on this account. To-day in the police court Cannon was allowed his freedom, his case being adjourned until Sept. 4.

"I am just up from a hard spell of the flux (dysentry) says Mr. T. A. Pinner, a well known merchant of Drummond, Tenn. I used one small bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy and was cured without having a doctor. I consider it the best cholera medicine in the world." There is no need of employing a doctor when this remedy is used, for no doctor can prescribe a better medicine for bowel complaint in any form either for children or adults. It never fails and is pleasant to take. For sale by all druggists.

Was Wasting Away.

The following letter from Robert R. Watts, of Salem, Mo., is instructive. "I have been troubled with kidney disease for the last five years. I lost flesh and never felt well and doctored with leading physicians and tried all remedies suggested without relief. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and less than two bottles completely cured me and I am now sound and well." J. J. Orr.

How can a naturally awkward person learn to grow old gracefully?

Suicide Prevented.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system, or despondency invariably precede suicide and something has been found that will prevent that condition which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitters. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50c. Satisfaction guaranteed by C. A. Wright, druggist.

When some men discharge an obligation you can hear the report for miles around.

Not over-wise.

There is an old allegorical picture of a girl scared at a grass-hopper, but in the act of heedlessly treading on a snake This is paralleled by the man who spends a large sum of money building a cyclone cellar, but neglects to provide his family with a bottle of Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy as a safeguard against bowel complaints whose victims outnumber those of the cyclone a hundred to one. This remedy is everywhere recognized as the most prompt and reliable medicine in use for these diseases. Sold by all druggists.

The world would be much better than it is if men would live up to their obituaries.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

The poor at least should suffer that he might learn, and the rich should pay for the output of his learning. Thus his credit in the world and his cash balance at the bank would be increased. So much the better for him. He had suffered. Now he would take toll of the ills of others.

The fog was driven apart for a moment, and the sun shone, a blood red wafer, on the water. Dick watched the spot till he heard the voice of the tide between the piers die down like the wash of the sea at low tide. A girl hard pressed by her lover shouted, shamelessly, "Ah, get away, you beast!" and a shift of the same wind that had opened the fog drove across Dick's face the black smoke of a river steamer at her berth below the wall. He was blinded for the moment, then spun round and found himself face to face with—Maisie.

There was no mistaking. The years had turned the child to a woman, but they had not altered the dark gray eyes, the thin, scarlet lips or the firmly modeled mouth and chin, and, that all should be as it was of old, she wore a closely fitting gray dress.

Since the human soul is infinite and not in the least under its own command, Dick, advancing, said, "Hello!" after the manner of schoolboys, and Maisie answered, "Oh, Dick, is that you?" Then, against his will, and before the brain, newly released from considerations of the cash balance, had time to dictate to the nerves, every pulse in Dick's body throbbed furiously and his palate dried in his mouth. The fog shut down again, and Maisie's face was pearl white through it. No word was spoken, but Dick fell into step at her side, and the two paced the embankment together, keeping step as perfectly as in their afternoon excursions to the mud flats. Then Dick, a little hoarsely:

"What has happened to Amomma?"

"He died, Dick. Not cartridges; overeating. He was always greedy. Isn't it funny?"

"Yes. No. Do you mean Amomma?"

"Ye-es. No. This. Where have you come from?"

"Over there." Dick pointed eastward through the fog. "And you?"

"Oh, I'm in the north—the black north, across all the park. I am very busy."

"What do you do?"

"I paint. That's all I have to do."

"Why, what's happened? You had three hundred a year."

"I have that still. I am painting; that's all."

"Are you alone, then?"

"There's a girl living with me. Don't walk so fast, Dick. You're out of step."

"Then you noticed it too?"

"Of course. You're always out of step."

"So I am. I'm sorry. You went on with the painting?"

"Of course. I said I should. I was at the Slade, then at Morton's in St. John's Wood, the big studio, then I pepper potted—I mean I went to the National—and now I'm working under Kami."

"But Kami is in Paris surely."

"No; he has his teaching studio at Vitry-sur-Marne. I work with him in the summer, and I live in London in the winter. I'm a householder."

"Do you sell much?"

"Now and again, but not often. There is my bus. I must take it or lose half an hour. Goodby, Dick."

"Goodby, Maisie. Won't you tell me where you live? I must see you again, and perhaps I could help you. I paint a little myself."

"I may be in the park tomorrow if there is no working light. I walk from the Marble arch down and back again. That is my little excursion. But, of course, I shall see you again." She stepped into the omnibus and was swallowed up by the fog.

"Well—I—am d——d!" said Dick, and returned to his chambers.

Torpenhow and the Nilghai found him sitting on the steps of the studio door, repeating the phrase with awful gravity.

"You'll be worse off when I've done with you," said the Nilghai, upheaving his bulk from behind Torpenhow's shoulder and waving a sheaf of half dry manuscript. "Dick, it is of common report that you are suffering from swelled head."

"Hello, Nilghai! Back again? How are the Balkans and all the little Balkans? One side of your face is out of drawing, as usual."

"Never mind that. I am commissioned to smite you in print. Torpenhow refuses from false delicacy. I've been overhauling the potboilers in your studio. They are simply disgraceful."

"Oho! That's it, is it? If you think you can slate me, you're wrong. You can only describe, and you need as much room to turn in on paper as a P. and O. cargo boat. But continue, and be swift. I'm going to bed."

"H'm, h'm, h'm! The first part only deals with your pictures. Here's the peroration: 'For work done without conviction, for power wasted on trivialities, for labor expended with levity for the deliberate purpose of winning the easy applause of a fashion driven public'—

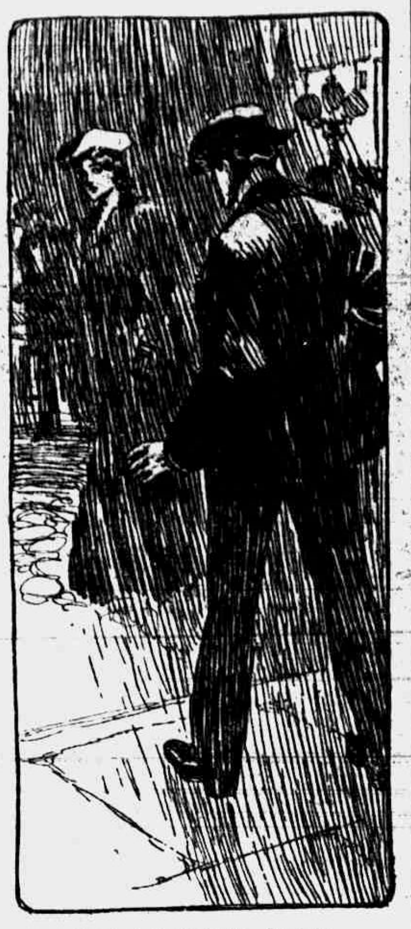
"That's 'His Last Shot,' second edition. Go on."

—"'public, there remains but one end—the oblivion that is preceded by toleration and cenotaphed with contempt. From that fate Mr. Heldar has yet to prove himself out of danger.'"

"Wow, wow, wow, wow!" said Dick profanely. "It's a clumsy ending and vile journalese, but it's quite true. And yet"—he sprang to his feet and snatched at the manuscript—"you scarred, deboshed, battered old gladiator! You're sent out when a war begins to minister to the blind, brutal British public's bestial thirst for blood. They have no arenas now, but they must have special correspondents. You're a fat gladiator who comes up through a trapdoor and talks of what he's seen. You stand on precisely the same level as an energetic bishop, an affable actress, a devastating cyclone or—mine own sweet self. And you presume to lecture me about my work! Nilghai, if it were worth while I'd caricature you in four papers."

The Nilghai winced. He had not thought of this.

"As it is, I shall take this stuff and tear it small—so!" The manuscript fluttered in slips down the dark well of the staircase. "Go home, Nilghai," said Dick. "Go home to your lonely little bed, and leave me in peace. I am about to turn in till tomorrow."



Face to face with—Maisie.

"Why, it isn't 7 yet!" said Torpenhow, with amazement.

"It shall be 2 in the morning, if I choose," said Dick, backing to the studio door. "I go to grapple with a serious crisis, and I shan't want any dinner."

The door shut and was locked.

"What can you do with a man like that?" said the Nilghai.

"Leave him alone. He's as mad as a hatter."

At 11 there was kicking on the studio door. "Is the Nilghai with you still?" said a voice from within. "Then tell him he might have condensed the whole of his lumbering nonsense into an epigram, 'Only the free are bond, and only the bond are free.' Tell him he's an idiot, Torp, and tell him I'm another."

"All right. Come out and have supper. You're smoking on an empty stomach."

There was no answer.

CHAPTER V.

"I have a thousand men," said he,
"To wait upon my will,
And towers nine upon the Tyne,
And three upon the Till."

"And what care I for your men," said she,
"Or towers from Tyne to Till,
Sith you must go with me," she said,
"To wait upon my will?"
—Sir Hoggie and the Fairies.

NEXT morning Torpenhow found Dick sunk in deepest repose of tobacco.

"Well, madman, how d'you feel?" asked Torpenhow.

"I don't know. I'm trying to find out."

"You had much better do some work."

"Maybe, but I'm in no hurry. I've made a discovery. Torp, there's too much Ego in my Cosmos."

"Not really! Is this revelation due to my lectures or the Nilghai's?"

"It came to me suddenly, all on my own account. Much too much Ego. And now I'm going to work."

He turned over a few half finished sketches, drummed on a new canvas, cleaned three brushes, set Binkie to bite the toes of the lay figure, rattled through his collection of arms and accouterments and then went out, declaring that he had done enough for the day.

"This is positively indecent," said Torpenhow, "and the first time that Dick has ever broken up a light morning. Perhaps he has found out that he has a soul, or an artistic temperament, or something equally valuable. That comes of leaving him alone for a month. Perhaps he has been going out of evenings. I must look to this." He rang for the baldheaded old housekeeper, whom nothing could astonish or annoy.

"Beeton, did Mr. Heldar dine out at all while I was out of town?"

"Never laid 'is dress clothes out once, sir, all the time. Mostly 'e dined in, but 'e brought some most remarkable fancy young gentlemen up 'ere after theaters once or twice. Remarkable fancy they was. You gentlemen on the top floor does very much as you likes, but it do seem to me, sir, droppin' a walkin' stick down five flights of stairs an' then goin' down four abreast to pick it up again at half past 2 in the morning, singing 'Bring back the whisky, Willie darling'—not once or twice, but scores o' times—isn't charity to the other tenants. What I say is, 'Do as you would be done by.' That's my motto."

"Of course, of course. I'm afraid the top floor isn't the quietest in the house."

"I make no complaints, sir. I have spoke to Mr. Heldar friendly, an' he laughed an' did me a picture of the missis that is as good as a colored print. It 'asn't the 'igh shine of a photograph, but what I say is, 'Never look a gift horse in the mouth.' Mr. Heldar's dress clothes 'aven't been on him for weeks."

"Then it's all right," said Torpenhow to himself. "Orgies are healthy, and Dick has a head of his own, but when it comes to women making eyes I'm not so certain. Binkie, never you be a man, little dorglums. They're contrary brutes, and do things without reason."

Dick had turned northward across the park, but he was walking in the spirit on the mud flats with Maisie. He laughed aloud as he remembered the day when he had decked Amomma's horns with the ham frills and Maisie, white with rage, had cuffed him. How long those four years had been, and how intimately Maisie was connected with every hour of them!

Storm across the sea, and Maisie in a gray dress on the beach, sweeping her drenched hair out of her eyes and laughing at the homeward race of the fishing smacks; hot sunshine on the mud flats and Maisie flying before the wind that thrashed the foreshore and drove the sand like small shot about her ears; Maisie, very composed and independent, telling lies to Mrs. Jennett while Dick supported her with coarser perjuries; Maisie picking her way delicately from stone to stone, a pistol in her hand and her teeth firm set, and Maisie in a gray dress sitting on the grass between the mouth of a cannon and a nodding yellow sea poppy. The pictures passed before him one by one, and the last stayed the longest. Dick was perfectly happy with a quiet peace that was as new to his mind as it was foreign to his experience. It never occurred to him that there might be other calls upon his time than loafing across the park in the forenoon.

"There's a good working light now," he said, watching his shadow placidly. "Some poor devil ought to be grateful. And there's Maisie!"

She was walking toward him from the Marble arch, and he saw that no mannerism of her gait had been changed. It was good to find her still Maisie and, so to speak, his next door neighbor. No greeting passed between them because there had been none in the old days.

The Bachelor.

A western editor pays this tribute to a type which has not its fair share of song and story: "The bachelor represents the most congenial and big hearted type of our commonwealth. His name, while held in public derision by a host of people, will always remain closely interwoven in the history of pioneer life. He it was who pushed out into the wild and woolly west at a time when the buffalo, Indians and coyote were lords of the prairies and by persistent efforts and under privation and want led a heroic life by converting vast areas of the barren wilderness into fertile lands of peace and plenty. Then, without aid of feminine piety to keep vigil over his everyday acts, this sturdy empire builder remained at his post, blazing out the path of fame and introducing thrift and civilization in his wake. Like the cowboy he is slowly passing into history, but his fame is as farreaching as civilization, his name indelibly stamped on the pages of history, while the humble dugout with its original environments will appear in scenic pictures above the footlights of future generations."

Persian Athletes.

Strong and skilled as western athletes are, there are some respects in which the athletes of the east, and especially those of Persia, surpass them.

Their skill is due to the fact that they do not rely on brute strength, but on adroitness, which they have acquired after years of strenuous training. They know the function of every muscle in their bodies, and they are not regarded as experts until they are so well trained that they can perform with ease any feat which depends for success not only upon their strength, but also upon the proper play of their muscles.

They are not as bulky as some of the well known athletes of Europe and America, but, on the other hand, their bodies are wonderfully symmetrical, and all their movements are most graceful.

In wrestling and swinging clubs they especially excel, and, no matter how expert they may be, not a day passes that they do not practice for several hours.

WANTED.

We would like to ask, through the columns of your paper, if here is any person who has used Green's August Flower for the cure of Indigestion, Dyspepsia, and Liver Troubles that has not been cured—and we also mean their results, such as sour stomach, fermentation of food, habitual costiveness, nervous dyspepsia, headaches, despondent feelings, sleeplessness—in fact, any trouble connected with the stomach or liver? This medicine has been sold for many years in all civilized countries, and we wish to correspond with you and send you one of our books free of cost. If you never tried August Flower, try a 25 cent bottle first. We have never known of its failing. If so, something more serious is the matter with you. The 25 cent size has just been introduced this year. Regular size 75 cents. At J. J. Orr's.

THE BIG DAY.

Tecumseh celebrated Tuesday as a DAY OF SPORT.

Carnival was a Success from Start to Finish.

Tecumseh's after harvest carnival did not start in very propitiously. First came a severe thunder storm and the expression on the faces of the executive committee was as gloomy as the sky, but in more ways than one this storm was a blessing. It settled the dust and made the roads fine for racing. It may have made the morning crowd smaller but certainly no one stayed at home the rest of the day as it is reckoned that about 5,000 people witnessed the performances.

During the forenoon the cowboys traveling with the "Montana Outlaw" which showed here in the evening, gave a good exhibition of broncho riding and lassoing and quite a parade with their band and stage coach.

All day the four bands, Manchester, Tipton, Fairfield and Holloway, discoursed good music, the Manchester band having 22 pieces and the Weston band 16. The Tipton band was a big one as Herb Dickson, Frank Cooley, Geo. Brighton, Carl Crone and Mr. Thompson, Adrian musicians, played with them.

At ten o'clock a ball game was announced between the D. A. C.'s of Detroit and the home club resulting in the score 2 to 1 in favor of the home club.

First on the program was a tug of war between Macon and Tecumseh. There were 13 men on a side, each side weighing a ton and the home aggregation pulled the visitors over twice thus winning the $25.

Then came the ladies walking match with some seven or eight contestants, but Miss Florence Kennedy of Raisin, could out-step them all and won the gold watch.

In the 100 yard dash foot race Sanford Cooley of Addison, was the best runner and it netted him $7. Bert Hoag of Brooklyn, came second for $3.

Ralph Bowen again won the 'scrub horse race, making $5. J. F. Brazee of Tipton, came second for $3 and Vern Russell third for $2, so you can see the boy's horses were not so scrubby either.

In the fat man's race there were not many contestants but F. R. Bartlett of Jackson, was the swiftest, prize $5, and John Smith of Macon, came second, winning $2.

A half dozen ladies tried throwing base balls and Miss Olive Smith of Rome, easily won first, $3, while little Myrna Service came second best for $2. These girls certainly could beat the Boston Bloomer girls.

The pie eating contest was about the most enjoyed by the crowd. Ben Garlinghouse, Fay Anderson and Jim Elliott were fearfully hungry and knew how good those huckleberry pies were, but some way they couldn't eat fast enough and Chas. Jernesy of Adrian, beat them all hollow to the prize of $2, with Leon Preston of Cone second for $1.

At the drawing for the Heesen Stock Feed Cooker, the owner of the first ticket out was not in the crowd but the second name was Mrs. Jas. McGuire of Clinton, who was on deck and claimed the prize.

Will Murphy brought 44 persons to see the celebration and this was the largest load so he is now busy putting up the $10 worth of Anthony Fence he won.

At three o'clock the second game with the D. A. C's was called and the visitors shut the In[illegible] out 6 to 0.

About 6 o'clock Prof. Cole, of Cole Bros. Adrian, balloonists, made a good ascension, one of the best ever made here and came down right side up near the D. S. bridge.

The day closed with beautiful fireworks and the show "Montana Outlaw," which was a good one.

PICKED UP ON THE STREET.

One sign read "Hot Lun Te Hes."

The balloon was found south of Ridgeway.

Every grocery in the village had outside stands.

Not a serious accident occurred in the village all day.

At Watt Schurtz stand, he made a specialty of root beer.

Avery will never need a megaphone while he employes Joe Hanford.

The crowd was an orderly, good-natured throng and no drunks in evidence.

Mrs. Erskine blistered both hands ringing the dinner bell for the Presbyterian ladies.

Miss Myrna Service can give some of our ball team pointers on throwing a straight ball.

Wm. Finch of Toledo, was on deck with his Coney Island Sausages and did a big business.

As usual all of our relatives came to town to take dinner with us and of course we were all delighted.

The oration which George Beneway gave at his lunch stand was worth listening to and we hope paid him well.

We were glad to see Bice's bakery opened up again in front of the opera house, even if it was for the benefit of the Rebekahs

One attraction was a woman eating the heads from snakes and she was so selfish she did not offer one of the delicious morsels.

It was noticeable when a girl wished to give her sweetheart a special notice of affection she would thump him with one of those dear little rubber balls.

Poor Willie Hicks has been laid up ever since Carnival Day with a sore throat from yelling all day "Sandwiches, sandwiches, such as mother made."

About 250 people came over from Adrian on the 2:30 and there would have been 400 had not the train been two hours late. Just like Adrian, always a little late.

The young men and women enjoyed the merry-go-round much better than the little tots. Strange how the older the girl is the more she had to be held on the ponies.

Mrs. Hugh Hendershot guessed nearest on the pile of shoe strings at Belcher's and won a coupon for $1 in trade.

Alva Spayde belongs to the humane society and received many blessings all day for that barrel of ice water in front of his store. Roy Codling reports putting over 50 pails of water in it

Ben Garlinghouse, Jim Elliott, Levi Hayden and Garland Gillespie nearly came to blows trying for first place to assist the charming young ladies to alight from Will Murphy's wagon.

ONE EACH

Was the result of Tuesday's double-header with the D. A. C. CLUB

Tecumseh takes the morning game by a score of 2 and 1, and is shut out in the afternoon, 6 and 0.

The forenoon game with the D. A. C. club Tuesday was close, both teams putting up a good article of base ball. The visitors narrowly escaped a shut out, being unable to score until the 7th inning and making but two hits in the entire game. Smith, who pitched both games for them, was both effective and deliberate (especially the latter.) Gilbert, who had been resting for several days, was in fine form and twirled with his old-time skill and power. Both pitchers had admirable support, each team having but one error marked against it. The score:

AFTERNOON GAME.

So far as the home team was concerned, the afternoon game was a complete reversal of the morning's. In place of sharp, snappy fielding was to be seen a succession of costly errors, such as had not been seen before this season, and calculated to make the Tecumseh team's admirers crawl into their shells or "go way back and sit down."

Johnson was in the box and the game was lost through no fault of his, as he pitched well and made two hits, one a 2-bagger. To make matters worse, our boys, who hit Smith in the morning for triples and doubles, were almost harmless and only secured 5 hits (counting the two by Johnson.)

Bucks led in our error column, dropping a fly in the 2nd and two more in the 3rd, one of which let in three scores. The bright spot in the game was Hadley's good work at short, where he made 3 put-outs and 5 assists. Furlong took everything that came his way at center, and Striker would have done the same in left garden, if any flies had ventured near him, but they did not. The Detroiters put up a fine fielding game, making but 1 error. The score:

BASE BALL NOTES.

There is a possibility that the Tecumseh and Ionia ball teams will be here one week from today to play a game on the Lamb Fence grounds. We hope the possibility will become a sure thing. —Adrian Telegram.

Manager Smith has a letter this morning from E. G. Barrow asking for a game here Aug. 31st saying that he would bring the full line up of Detroit players, but on account of date being taken the offer could not be accepted.

Stockbridge, is saloonless, and the people there propose it shall continue that way. The drug store demands a written, iron-clad statement, with doctor's order; the hotel does not handle it, and thirsty travelers from other points seek in vain, for anything stronger than milk, ice water or birch beer. Cider wont even work in the place, any more than will a tramp.

Citizens of Ann Arbor have invented a scheme to prevent squirrels from destroying the pear trees. They tie two bands of sticky fly paper around the trunks, one a short distance above the other. They claim that if they pass the first paper they will not pass the second and they are very shy about trying one of those trees a second time. They are not stickers.—Ex.

M. F. STEIN

THE FAMOUS OPTICIAN of Detroit,

The eye, when properly cared for affords the keenest delight because of the pleasures we are able to enjoy through its medium. When not cared for and its warnings are unheeded, it becomes an instrument of torture. Headaches, eye pains, burning, itching sensation, strained vision, nervous troubles and many bodily ills are the results accruing from over worked eyes, eyes that need help. My examination reveals all hidden troubles, and it is my province to fit the right glasses to any and all defects of vision. SAATISFACTION GUARANTEED BY

How Other People Talk.

It's none of our business what the councilmen of other places do, but we cannot resist the inclination to say that in our opinion the Tecumseh dads made the mistake of their village lives, when they failed to pass the sewer improvement. Tecumseh is too handsome a village to be without the necessaries of village life.—Adrian Press.

"In Convict Stripes."

That powerful melodrama "In Convict Stripes" will be the attraction at the New Bradley opera house on Monday, Aug. 31. The play is best described as being one with heart interest for it tells a thrilling story of the human emotions and most deftly has the author constructed his work. Love and jealousy, comedy and pathos are admirably blended and never for once does the interest of the audience flag. The characters of this great play are distinct types and around their relations to one another has been woven a drama of overwhelming strength. The climaxes are extremely sensational and notable indeed is the realistic view of a Southern convict camp shown in the third act. A proper interpretation of such a play demands capable acting and an excellent company will appear in the presentation. Scenically the production will be most elaborate and the audience will be treated to a succession of effective stage pictures.

Mrs. Frederick P. Deuel.

The many friends of Mrs. Deuel were shocked to hear of her death in Detroit Tuesday, she having gone there only last Friday for treatment. The remains arrived here Tuesday evening on the Detroit Southern train and were immediately taken to the home she had loved so well. The funeral was held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Rev. M. T. Seelye officiating.

Miss Charlotte W. Conklin was born in Clinton township May 3rd, 1838. On Nov. 11th, 1858 she was married to Frederick P. Deuel. There were born to them two sons, Frank A. and Finley B. The husband and one son, Frank, survive to mourn her loss.

She has been a consistent and faithful member of the M. E. church for many years and her confidence in Christ failed not at the last. She was a member of the Women's Relief Corps and had known what it meant to be a soldier's wife. She has always made her home in Tecumseh, and was buried from the house in which she had lived for 34 years. We deeply regret that she has passed from us here, but hope to see her again, and while we wait, we extend our sincere sympathy to her bereaved family.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire through the columns of the HERALD to express our sincere thanks to our friends who remembered us in our late bereavement and especially those who donated flowers.

Tuesday Walter Cornelius, living four miles south west of town, came in to see the Carnival and his mother went over to a neighbor's. Upon their return they found thieves had visited them and secured a little change, also two suits of clothes which Mr. Cornelius had brought home on approval. There is no clue to the burglars but Deputy Sheriff Brown is doing his best to find the person.

KILLED BY CARS

At Ridgeway Tuesday Evening

GEORGE POCKLINGTON

Was Struck by Detroit Southern Train and Instantly Killed.

Geo. Pocklington, a Ridgeway farmer, attended the Carnival Tuesday and returned home on the Detroit Southern evening train. When but a short distance from the depot he sat down on the end of a tie to rest and was found there by Eva Beach, who was going for milk. She talked with him but he did not move on and was still sitting there when the west bound Detroit Southern train came along. It struck him, killing him instantly. His head and arms were crushed. The remains were taken to S. B. Smith's undertaking rooms and prepared for burial. He leaves a wife and three sons, Lafayette, Albert and Smith Pocklington.

The deceased was 68 years of age and owned a farm of 60 acres. The Adrian Telegram reported him a member of the 18th Michigan, but the members of the regiment here say the gentleman was never in the war.

End of Bitter Fight.

"Two physicians had a long and stubborn fight with an abcess on my right lung" writes J. F. Hughes of DuPont, Ga. "and gave me up. Everybody thought my time had come. As a last resort I tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. The benefit I received was striking and I was on my feet in a few days. Now I've entirely regained my health." It conquers all Coughs, Colds and Throat and Lung troubles. Guaranteed by C. A. Wright. Drug Store. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

THE CHURCHES.

At the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on the theme "I am Debtor."

The Epworth League will give a social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abrams Tuesday evening, Sept. 1. Corn roast and ice cream.

Next Sunday morning quarterly meeting services will be held at the M. E. church. Dr. Ryan will conduct them. The fourth quarterly conference will be held Saturday evening at seven o'clock.

When a person wants to elevate anything he should keep off of it. It would be well for the stage if some actors would remember this.

Some people are never contented unless the silver lining of the cloud is converted into gold.

Never does a man portray his own character more vividly (says Richter) than in his manner of portraying the character of another.

MOST BEYOND BELIEF.

If it were not for Tecumseh Indorsement People might be Skeptical.

The following public statement of a respected citizen adds one more emphatic endorsement of merit to the scores that have appeared before.

Mrs. E. Fryer, who lives in the northwestern section of Tecumseh, says: "I suffered from my kidneys off and on for about two years. During an attack the pain was worse along in the afternoon and I often felt like giving up but I kept on working in misery, for stooping or straightening made my back feel as if it were breaking in two. If I took a slight cold it always settled in my back and in spite of all the remedies I used I could not get relief. Procuring Doan's Kidney Pills at C. A. Wright's drug store I took a course of the treatment. It did more good than all the other medicine I ever used. The pain in my back was quickly relieved. I take pleasure in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills at every opportunity."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

"What kind of a carpet shall we get for the parson's study?" asked a church committee man of his colleague. "Axminster," was the comprehensive reply.

A blessing alike to young and and old; Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Nature's specific for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaint.

A little girl was asked the meaning of "happy." She gave a pretty answer, saying, "It is to feel as if you wanted to give up all your things to your sister."

Bodily pain loses its terror if you've a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the house. Instant relief in cases of burns, cuts, sprains, accidents of any sort.

NERVOUS HEADACHE BREEDS INSANIY.

Many a person's whole pleasure in life is ruined by the fear of nervous headaches. Any little excitement, no matter what, business or social, brings them on. The feet and hands grow cold, the head is hot, the eyes stiff, the temples throb, and only in the quiet of a darkened room is relief obtained. This condition must be checked or it means complete mental ruin. To those people Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills come as a blessing. They do not stop, they cure the headaches. They do not blanket, they build up. They put the nervous system in a strong, vigorous, sturdy condition—a condition that gives one resistive power and enables them to again enjoy life's pleasures.

Mrs. J. F. Burtch of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I was troubled with severe nervousness and nervous headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Chas. Wright's drug store and after using two boxes I can say I am cured. my nerves are again strong and steady and the headaches all gone and I feel well in every way. As a nerve and general tonic I think the medicine unequaled." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. Painted His Stock.

Cheboygan, Mich., Aug. 26.—Thomas Mooney, a prominent farmer, has been adjudged insane. His insanity first attracted attention last week, when he he painted the backs of his horses and cows to keep the flies off. As he was being taken to jail he wanted to stop so it would match the other. Officers will take him to Traverse City.

Peddler Dead In His Wagon.

Mason, Mich., Aug. 26.—A peddler, probably Frank Lehman, of Toledo, was found dead in his old democrat wagon by the side of a road three miles west of town Tuesday morning. The officers are not positive as to his identity.

Leg Cut Off by Engine.

Jackson, Mich., Aug. 26.—William Reid, 20 years of age, apprentice to the trade of machinist at the Michigan Central shops, was run over by a switch engine in the yards and a leg severed. He started to board the engine to ride home when the accident happened.

JOHNSON FOR GOVERNOR

Zimmerman Not Even Nominated For Senator.

Columbus, O., Aug. 27.—The Johnson program was carried out completely Wednesday in the Democratic state convention. Although the opposition obstructed the proceedings with minority reports for some hours, the name of John L. Zimmerman of Springfield was not presented for the gubernatorial nomination and every nomination on the state ticket, including Mayor Tom L. Johnson for governor, was made by acclamation. Even after the chair announced that the name of Mayor Johnson was the only one before the convention for governor, there were some dissenting Zimmerman votes on the motion to make the nomination unanimous, but the Zimmerman supporters subsided after the selections for governor and senator were made.

The following ticket was nominated: Governor, Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland; lieutenant-governor, Frank B. Niles of Toledo, attorney-general, F. S. Monnett of Bucyrus; state treasurer, V. J. Dahl of Washington Court House; auditor, Charles Kloeb of Wapakoneta; commissioner of schools, J. H. Secrist of Ottawa; member board of public works, W. B. Jones of Ironton; supreme judge, E. J. Dempsey of Cincinnati.

John B. Clark of Cleveland was indorsed for United States senator.

The opposition, by various obstruction movements, kept the convention in continuous session for about seven hours. While minority reports were presented from the committees, the only fight that worried the Johnson managers was on the senatorship. The only ballots forced on the dominant element were in that contest. The minority report on rules and order of business, which was intended to omit the indorsement of a senatorial candidate, was defeated by a vote of 211 ayes to 448 nays, which was considered a test vote between Johnson and Zimmerman, after all the contested seats had been decided in favor of the former.

BACK FROM ALASKA.

Senate Committee Returns—Has Recommends to Offer.

Victoria, B. C., Aug. 27.—The revenue cutter McCulloch dropped anchor in Victoria harbor at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning from Nome, having on board the sub-committee of the senate committee on territories. The party is all well and report a very pleasant and profitable trip. The members of the committee are evidently persuaded that Alaska should have a delegate in congress, but probably are not prepared to make him elective. The construction of a national highway from Valdez to Eagle by the government aid seems to be regarded with favor. It is believed too that the building of a wagon road through the interior from the south coast will stimulate the development of the country to such an extent as to hasten materially the time when private capital will construct a railroad over practically the same route. The committee also seem inclined to favor taking practical steps to perpetuate salmon and other fisheries by having the government establish hatcheries, to be supported by taxes levied on the canneries and other fisheries, according to output. The committee spent the day here, going to Seattle last evening, where they will separate for home.

Postoffice Robbed of $1,000.

Franklin, Pa., Aug. 27.—Robbers dynamited the safe in the postoffice at Sandy Lake, fifteen miles west of this city, early Wednesday morning and secured nearly $1,000. Mrs. Abraham Wilson, living near the postoffice, saw the three cracksmen at work, but was too frightened to give the alarm. Three suspicious looking men were arrested but none of the stolen property was found on them.

Green Apples Caused Death.

Albion, Mich., Aug. 27.—Lloyd, the 7-year-old son of A. F. Peelman, died suddenly Wednesday as the result of eating green apples. Two of his companions are said to be very sick from the same cause, but will recover. The remains will be taken to Chicago.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Count Committed Suicide.—The body of Count von Baudissin, an army officer of Berlin, was drawn out of the River Alsten at Hamburg, Germany, Wednesday. The count had shot himself and then jumped into the water because of unrequited love.

Emperor Turns Down King.—The Wiener Allgemeine Zeitung of Vienna says Emperor Francis Joseph has refused to receive King Leopold, who proposed to come to Vienna. The quarrel is due to King Leopold's treatment of his daughter, Countess Lonyay.

Misappropriated $1,000,000.—A bill in equity was filed in the county court at Philadelphia by Cassatt & Co., bankers of that city, against the widow of the late Howard T. Goodwin, in which it is alleged that Goodwin misappropriated about $1,000,000. Goodwin had been employed as manager for the firm for a long period and committed suicide last December.

Wouldn't Take a Dare.—Bert Clifford of No. 546 Hamilton street, Cleveland, O., a workingman, jumped from the Superior street viaduct, 110 feet above, into the Cuyahoga river, Wednesday night and his body lies at the bottom of the stream unrecovered. It is said that while Clifford was crossing the viaduct companions dared him to jump over the railing. Clifford would not take the dare.

Walked Off the Dock.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 27.—John Messler, 49 years old, a farm hand, living near Vassar, walked off the Fifth avenue dock about 8:30 last night and was drowned. The body was recovered about twenty minutes later, but all efforts at resuscitation were futile. Messler is believed to have been intoxicated.

Disease In Michigan.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

LIFE PLANT

Renews Life.

The Very Best TONIC Ever Discovered.

The kidneys are the blood filters intended to remove the waste, and most of these diseases result from overtaxing them with excessive waste. The most frequent cause of kidney trouble is indigestion. LIFE PLANT aids digestion, relieving the kidneys from the very start. Kidney diseases cause more deaths than any other human affliction. They are usually painless at first, the only warnings are shown in the Urine, being cloudy or of high color. It is by neglecting these symptoms that kidney diseases are allowed to progress. An improper treatment is worse than none. LIFE PLANT is the only sure cure for kidney trouble.

Read what a cured one says.

Rev. J. H. Marchant, Pastor M. E. church at Freeport, O., writes:

"I take great pleasure, and do not hesitate to recommend Life Plant as an excellent remedy for Liver and Kidney difficulties. Mrs. Merchant desires to bear testimony to the healing virtues of Life Plant, as a sure and certain remedy for Rheumatism."

The cure of all Kidney trouble must come through the use of LIFE PLANT. GET SOME NOW.

Color and Age No Bar.

Prescott, Mich., Aug. 26.—Thomas Daugherty, of Reno, a well-to-do widower of 68 years, has just been united in marriage to a colored girl of 18. The bride was a waitress in a local restaurant, and enjoys an excellent reputation for honesty and industry. That she was well thought of by her employers is attested by their gift to her, as a wedding present, of a gold watch.

Love Led to Tragedy.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 26.—Alice Sample, of this city, killed herself Tuesday morning by firing two bullets into her breast. Despondency over love affairs is responsible. She became prominent here two years ago in connection with the murder of Mrs. David Leslie by Miss Daisy Carlton, being an intimate friend of the Carlton girl and was with her when Mrs. Leslie was killed.

Heat Prostrated Many.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 26.—The hot wave which swept over central Illinois resulted in a number of prostrations. William Campbell, crazed by the heat, had to be placed in a straight jacket. J. W. Higgins, a Chicago & Alton engineer, was overcome by heat at Jacksonville while on his locomotive and is in a critical condition.

Wants Damages For Death.

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 27.—Mrs. Josephine Mercue has commenced suit against the Kilby Manufacturing company for $20,000. On Nov. 7 last her husband, Nelson P. Mercue, met instant death by falling sixty feet, the accident being caused by the breaking of scaffold ropes while painting at the Valley Sugar company's plant. Plaintiff alleges that the ropes were defective, and Mercue's death was due to the negligence of defendant.

A Reckless Driver.

Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 27.—Ambrose C. Tyler was killed by being struck by a baggage wagon, on its return from a late train. Tyler was on his way home and when crossing a street the wagon, driven at a furious pace, turned a corner and was upon him without warning. He was afflicted with heart trouble and it is thought the shock killed him, as there were no bruises upon the body.

LIVER TROUBLES

"I find Thedford's Black-Draught a good medicine for liver disease. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.

If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the constipated bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.

Thedford's Black-Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, biliousness, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and contagion. Weak kidneys result in Bright's disease which claims as many victims as consumption. A 25-cent package of Thedford's Black-Draught should always be kept in the house.

"I used Thedford's Black-Draught for liver and kidney complaints and found nothing to excel it."—WILLIAM COFFMAN, Marblehead, Ill.

KILLED BY ROBBERS

Robbers Make a Raid on Street Railway Offices.

SHOT WITHOUT WARNING

Desperate Deed of Chicago Highwaymen, Who Attacked Employes and Killed Two and Wounded Three Others—$10,000 in Cash Secured.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Without a word of warning, two men were killed and two others wounded by holdup men at the barns of Chicago City Railway company, Sixty-first and State streets, at an early hour Sunday. The shooting was done by three men, who escaped after securing $3,000. Three of the men who were shot were working in the cashier's office and the other was a motorman asleep in the outer office. The men in the office were shot before they were aware of the robbers' presence and the motorman was killed as he was raising from a bench where he had been asleep.

The dead: Frank Stewart, assistant clerk cashier's office, shot through body while standing at his desk. Died half an hour later. John B. Johnson, motorman, shot through head, died instantly.

Injured: William B. Edmond, receiving clerk; shot in left thigh while at his desk; will recover. Henry Biehl shot in head; will recover.

The robbers took no chance but disposed of all the opposition of the employes before they entered the office. Choosing the time when the employes were busily engaged in balancing up the receipts of the night, just after the last conductor had turned in his money and left the barns, the robbers suddenly appeared at the receiving window and began shooting. The first intimation those inside the office had that anything was wrong was when they heard the shots. The first bullet fired struck Stewart and he fell to the floor without a word. Biehl and Edmond, who were sitting near Stewart, turned to see what was the matter, but before they could leave their chairs they were rendered helpless by the well-directed bullets of the robbers. Johnson, the motorman, who was asleep on a bench in the outer office, hearing the noise, started up to go to the assistance of his companions, but was shot and killed before he could get on his feet. Making sure that all opposition had been removed, the robbers then broke open the door of the cashier's office with a sledge hammer and secured $3,000 in bills, which was lying on the desk. They then made their escape. Four men were arrested three hours after the robbery on suspicion of being implicated in the crime, but they have not as yet been identified.

THE MILK PROBLEM.

The Government Takes a Hand in Solving It.

Washington, Aug. 31.—The agricultural department has made a contribution to the general discussion on the quality of milk supplied to cities in the shape of a bulletin on that subject a large part of which is devoted to the question of transportation. The bulletin says the agitation of the question of impure milk has resulted in improved practices on the part of persons handling this article of food, but there is still much room for improvement. For instance, attention is called to the fact that the ideal vessel for the conveyance of milk remains to be discovered. There are many cities and towns which have no legal regulations whatever concerning milk. The opinion is expressed that the agitation of the question has caused much unnecessary alarm. The figures show that one thousand million gallons of milk are sold annually and the average quantity per capita consumed in the largest cities is somewhat less than two-thirds of a pint. The smallest consumption is in New Orleans, where it is about one-fourth of a pint. Milk is sold from 12,000 stores in New York city, or an average one store to every 286 persons, and it is delivered from 4,000 wagons, or an average of one wagon to every 859 persons. In cities with a population above 50,000 there is an average of one wagon to about 784 persons. Some cities report several thousand cows in herds within their boundaries, and most cities have quite a number of cows kept singly for the private use of the families owning them.

The tables show a wide variation in the prices paid for milk in different parts of the country. Producers usually receive, on their farms, from 2 to 3 cents per quart in the summer and 3 cents or more in winter, but these limits are often exceeded. On the other hand, in some cases and in some seasons producers receive less than 2 cents a quart. The average price paid by consumers of milk when retailed in small quantities is about 6 cents in summer and 7 cents in winter.

Moral: Don't Sleep.

Kansas City, Aug. 31.—Michael Hoolihan, a bartender, while sleeping in a chair in a saloon owned by his brother, John Hoolihan, at Sixth and Broadway, in the downtown district of this city, was beaten to death with a club by some unknown person, whose motive is supposed to have been robbery. Hoolihan's skull was crushed and his pockets had been rifled. Will Lee, a negro, has been arrested on suspicion.

Twenty-one Indictments.

Denver, Aug. 29.—Twenty-one indictments against City and County Clerk Alchele were reported by the grand jury Friday. The principal charges relate to the destruction of public records and an alleged shortage of $6,000 in the county clerk's office.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

Has world-wide fame for marvellous cures. It surpasses any other salve, lotion, ointment or balm for cuts, corns, burns, boils, sores, felons, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, skin eruptions; infallible for piles. Cure guaranteed. C. A. Wright, druggist.

EASTERN WARS ON

Turks Slay 1,000 Bulgarians In Battle.

OTHER FOREIGN MATTERS

Confirmation of Friday's Turkish Victory at Smilovo—New Uprising Reported in Macedonia — Servians Mobilizing Troops.

Salonica, Aug. 31.—The Bulgarian insurgents sustained a severe reverse at Smilove Friday, 1,000 of them being killed. The insurgents to the number of 3,000 occupied a position on a height, which was stormed by six battalions of Turkish troops, commanded by Servet Pasha. After losing 1,000 of their number the Bulgarians fled in the face of the heavy Turkish artillery fire. The Turkish losses were insignificant.

The Bulgarian insurgents on capturing the town of Naveska Aug. 25 seized the arms and ammunition of the garrison, levied a contribution of $5,000 on the town and then withdrew to the mountains. The Turkish troops on their arrival bombarded the town, but receiving no response they entered the town without molesting the inhabitants.

Constantinople, Aug. 31.—It appears that the report by the Austrian consul at Nskub that a detachment of troops discharged their rifles at the Austrian consulate there arose from the simple circumstance that a party of Albanian reservists on leaving Uskub station in a train fired in the air, as is their custom on joining the colors, and the Austrian consulate happened to be close to the station.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 31.—Dispatches received from Constantinople, Salonica, Monastir and Adrianople reveal an equally unsatisfactory condition of affairs in Macedonia. From Salonica come reports of new risings. At Monastir the insurgents are said to be masters of the situation. Telegrams from Adrianople declare that the insurgent bands are continuing their ravages.

The Dnevnik says the Servian diplomatic agent has notified the porte that two divisions of the Servian army have been mobilized without any hostile intention as regards Turkey, but they will be sent to the frontier to prevent Albanian incursions into Servia.

A new outbreak is reported to have occurred in the environs of Salonica and several skirmishes have taken place between Glevgyeli and Salonica and there has also been a fight near Edidjevarda, both sides losing heavily.

Sir Thomas Disgusted.

New York, Aug. 31.—Sir Thomas Lipton has expressed himself forcibly on the allegations that Designer Fife and Captain Wringe were in bitter controversy over the cause of the defeat of the Shamrock III. "I want to say," said Sir Thomas, "that I am absolutely disgusted with the continual repetition of the story that I have criticised Mr. Fife and that Mr. Fife and Captain Wringe are at loggerheads. I want the Associated Press to say distinctly and forcibly that I have never criticised Mr. Fife. I had Mr. Fife build me a boat. He built me a beautiful, and I think, a fast boat. He put in her his best endeavor and I have never questioned his loyalty and his ability. It is not his fault that Mr. Herreshoff built a better one for these waters. It is not his fault that the wizard of yacht building is in this country, and wizard he is. So, too, the stories of Mr. Fife's having a controversy with Captain Wringe are without foundation."

Fatal Family Row.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 31.—Joseph Uncather, aged 20, was found dead Sunday on a pile of ties near his front door, with his skull crushed. He was the son of Charles Uncather. Saturday night young Uncather and Harry Grace, whose attentions to Myrtie Uncather, a sister of Joseph, had been ordered stopped by her father, met the father and mother. A quarrel followed and Grace threw a stone, striking Uncather, who swore out a warrant for Grace's arrest. Mr. and Mrs. Uncather left the two young men together. Later, after Grace had been arrested, they returned home and saw young Uncather lying on the ties. They heard him breathing loudly, but did not disturb him. In the morning they found him lying in the same position dead. No arrests have been made.

Wireless Telegraph Prospects.

Washington, Aug. 31.—General A. W. Greely, general signal officer of the army, who has just returned home from the wireless telegraph congress at Berlin, will present a report on the subject to Secretary Hay on Tuesday. The report is considered of considerable scientific importance and probably will be made public soon. The purpose of the congress, General Greeley said, was to formulate international rules for the control of wireless telegraphy.

Two Engineers Killed.

Toledo, Aug. 31.—A freight wreck occurred in the yards of the Nickel Plate railway at Bellevue, O., at an early hour, in which Engineers James Rodenberg of Bellevue and J. G. Bartholomeu of Conneaut, O., were killed.

Twenty Soldiers Killed.

Rome, Aug. 29.—A disastrous railway accident has cut short the festivities and demonstrations in honor of the king and queen at Udine, the chief town on the eastern frontier, sixty miles from Venice, where the sovereigns had gone to view the grand army maneuvers. Near Udine, a train overflowing with soldiers collided with a freight train. Twenty soldiers were killed and over sixty injured, twelve dangerously so. The colonel in command of the soldiers was among the injured.

HER THROAT CUT

Mysterious Happening to a Child In Richmond.

SLEPT WITH HER FATHER

Crime Suspected at First—Investigation Shows That Child Evidently Fell on Glass Dish While Walking in Her Sleep.

Richmond, Mich., Aug. 29.—Agnes Douglas, 12 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Douglas, lies at the home of her parents in this village with her throat cut almost from ear to ear. The child was discovered on the floor of a bedroom in her home about 11 o'clock Thursday night by her father, John Douglas, with whom she had been sleeping. He was unaware that she had been injured until he discovered blood on his hands after placing the child back on the bed. He stuffed rags in the wound to stop the flow of blood, and then ran to a neighbor's and announced the mishap. A doctor was summoned and with considerable difficulty he succeeded in tying up the vein and then put six stitches in the wound.

How the child came to be so severely hurt is a mystery. The theory of the story of the father was that the child, who, the mother says, is a somnambulist, arose and in some way stumbled, caught hold of a small table that was near the bed and tipped it in such a manner that a china fruit dish that was on the table fell to the floor and the child, falling at the same time, fell in such a manner that her throat struck the jagged edge of the dish, which was broken in a diagonal direction by the fall from the table.

Many of the villagers scouted this theory and many dark insinuations were heard, but a thorough investigation appears to bear out the theory of the father. Very little blood was discovered on the jagged pieces of china, but a careful microscopic examination of the edges of the dish showed minute particles of human cuticle.

So strong was the belief that murder had been attempted that Justice Heath summoned Sheriff Alex. McInnes from Mt. Clemens and he made a rigid investigation. He discovered a table knife in the front room and carried it away with him, but he had his doubts from the first in regard to the attempted murder theory. In this he was strongly backed up by Deputy Miller and the town marshal.

The handiwork of the doctor was so thorough that the child was able to converse freely during the afternoon, but she could throw no light on the matter whatever. She told a reporter that she didnt remember a single thing until her father put her in bed. She said she didn't remember geting cut. Her mind appeared to be a total blank. To further bear out the theory that she received the wound from the broken dish, is a gash in her wrist evidently received when she threw her hand out involuntary to save herself from striking the floor.

Strange and Horrible Accident.

Owosso, Mich., Aug. 29.—Lawrence, the 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Perrin, of Linn street, was probably fatally injured Friday afternoon. He fell from a couch upon which he was standing on his head and face. A pencil which the boy held in his teeth was driven a distance of four inches into his neck, and death from loss of blood came near following its withdrawal. Lockjaw or blood poisoning are feared.

Demented Farmer Hangs Himself.

Flint, Mich., Aug. 29.—Franklin Groves, an old resident of Richfield township, was found dead by his granddaughter, Zedda Olds, hanging from the foot of an iron bedstead by a pair of old suspenders. Groves was about 65 years old, and has acted lately as if he was insane. He leaves a widow, two sons and daughter.

Colonel Hugh Theaker Dead.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 29.—Colonel Hugh Theaker, recently retired from the Sixteenth United States Infantry, died Friday morning at his cottage at Edison beach. Colonel Theaker was a well-known army officer and recently resided at Detroit with his family.

Murderous Hold-Up.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 29.—Issue park was the scene of a murderous hold-up during the night. The victim was George Riley, who was assaulted with a piece of gas pipe and then robbed. His condition to-day is considered serious.

Board Visited Hastings.

Hastings, Mich., Aug. 29.—The normal school committee met here Friday being met by a delegation of prominent citizens and escorted about the city. The committee visited the various sites offered and the members expressed themselves as highly pleased.

Ex-Mayor in Shooting Affray.

Seymour, Ind., Aug. 29.—As the result of a quarrel on the street Friday between former Mayor Albert W. Mills and Policemen John Reddinger and Enoch Baughman, Mills was shot and perhaps fatally wounded and Baughman was shot twice in the side. Mills had been ordered home by the officers and resented it. He flourished a revolver, which was taken from him and he then drew a knife. Later he went to his office, seized a revolver, and returned, when the shooting took place.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in constipation, headache or liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

CAPTURED BY KALAMAZOO

Celery City Gets the New State Normal School.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 31.—The state board of education has decided to locate the new Western Michigan Normal School at Kalamazoo, and work will be begun early next spring. Several cities were contestants for this plum, and the requirements of the board, which were enthusiastically accepted, show that the state officials took advantage of the situation. The requirements are:

First—A suitable site of not less than twenty acres, conveyed by warranty deed and free and clear of all incumbrances, the same to be selected by the state board of education.

Second—Gas, electric light, sewerage and water connections with said site free of cost to the state.

Third—All streets adjacent to said site shall be graded and maintained in first-class condition.

Fourth—Cement walks must be laid along streets bounding said site without expense to the state.

Fifth—A public school building suitable for use as a training school must be provided for the state, free of charge, for a period of five years, or until such time as the state shall erect a training school building of its own.

Sixth—For the first five years, or until such time as the state shall maintain a separate training school of its own, the board of education of the city must pay one-half of the salary of all teachers employed in said training school, but not to exceed $250 each.

Seventh—A cash gift to the state of the sum of $40,000, the same to be deposited with the treasurer of the state of Michigan and placed to the credit of the Western State Normal School, to be used by the state board of education in addition to such sum as is now available for building purposes and for ornamentation of grounds.

Labor Day Proclamation.

"To the People of the State of Michigan, Greeting:

"Acting under authority conferred upon the executive, I do hereby proclaim as Labor day Monday, Sept. 7, 1903, and request a general observance of this great holiday established in just recognition of all who toil. The dignity of labor demands the setting apart of this day for the purpose of impressive celebration in order that general attention may be concentrated upon the working man and woman who bear upon their shoulders the burdens of national existence, to the end that nothing may be left undone to improve the conditions under which they live and work. The problems presented command the attention of the keenest minds, and to attempt their solution is one of the first duties of patriotism. The relations of labor and capital touch every point of our life, and their fair, honest adjustment is vitally important to all people. Employers and employed, if they will, can convert this day into a powerful engine for mutual good, and a general entering into the spirit of the occasion is respectfully urged upon all who wish their fellows well.

"A. T. BLISS, Governor."

Sea Rolling Over Her.

Harrisville, Mich., Aug. 31.—The steamer John Duncan, which was beached off this place Friday noon after a terrific battle with the northeast gale, which is still sweeping over Lake Huron, is on a sandy bottom about half a mile from shore. Although the sea is too high to permit Captain McGee to go out to his ship there are no indications from shore that the boat is breaking up, although she is in a very exposed position. On account of the isolation of Harrisville, Captain McGee has been unable to communicate with his owners at Milwaukee and no arrangements have been made for a wrecking outfit, although James Reed of Sarnia is ready to undertake the job. Captain McGee says the trouble was unavoidable and it was through no fault of his the steamer nearly foundered and had to be driven ashore.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

A Woman's Complexion.

It is rank foolishness to attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. A single bottle of August Flower has been known to cure the most pronounced and distressing cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. New trial size bottle, 25 cents; regular size, 75 cents. THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

By Rudyard Kipling. . . .

"What are you doing out of your studio at this hour?" said Dick as one who was entitled to ask.

"Idling. Just idling. I got angry with a chin and scraped it out. Then I left it in a little heap of paint chips and came away."

"I know what palette knifing means. What was the piecy?"

"A fancy head that wouldn't come right—horrid thing!"

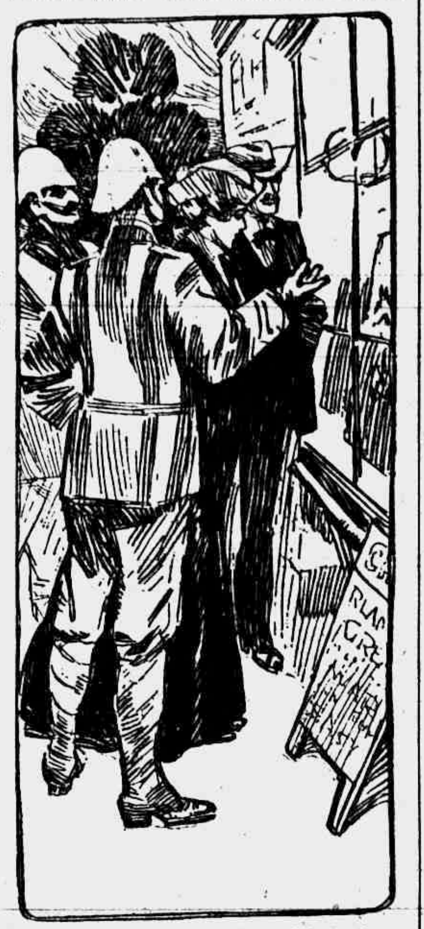
"I don't like working over scraped paint when I'm doing flesh. The grain comes up woolly as the paint dries."

"Not if you scrape properly." Maisie waved her hand to illustrate her methods. There was a dab of paint on the white cuff. Dick laughed.

"You're as untidy as ever."

"That comes well from you. Look at your own cuff."

"By Jove, yes! It's worse than yours. I don't think we've much altered in anything. Let's see, though." He looked at Maisie critically. The pale blue haze of an autumn day crept between the tree trunks of the park and made a background for the gray dress, the black velvet toque above the black hair and the resolute profile.



"They've chucked off lead 'orse."

"No, there's nothing changed. How good it is! D'you remember when I fastened your hair into the snap of a handbag?"

Maisie nodded, with a twinkle in her eyes, and turned her full face to Dick.

"Wait a minute," said he. "That mouth is down at the corners a little. Who's been worrying you, Maisie?"

"No one but myself. I never seem to get on with my work, and yet I try hard enough, and Kami says"—

"'Continuez, mesdemoiselles. Continuez toujours, mes enfants.' Kami is depressing. I beg your pardon."

"Yes, that's what he says. He told me last summer that I was doing better, and he'd let me exhibit this year."

"Not in this place, surely?"

"Of course not. The salon."

"You fly high."

"I've been beating my wings long enough. Where do you exhibit, Dick?"

"I don't exhibit. I sell."

"What is your line, then?"

"Haven't you heard?" Dick's eyes opened. Was this thing possible? He cast about for some means of conviction. They were not far from the Marble arch. "Come up Oxford street a little, and I'll show you."

A small knot of people stood round a printshop that Dick knew well. "Some reproduction of my work inside," he said, with suppressed triumph. Never had success tasted so sweet upon the tongue. "You see the sort of things I paint. D'you like them?"

Maisie looked at the wild, whirling rush of a field battery going into action under fire. Two artillerymen stood behind her in the crowd.

"They've chucked off lead 'orse," said one to the other. "'E's tore up awful, but they're making good time with the others. That lead driver drives better nor you, Tom. See 'ow cunning 'e's nursing 'is 'orse."

"No. 3 'll be off the limber next jolt," was the answer.

"No, 'e won't. See 'ow 'is foot's braced against the iron. 'E's all right."

Dick watched Maisie's face and swelled with joy—fine, rank, vulgar triumph. She was more interested in the little crowd than in the picture. That was something that she could understand.

"And I wanted it so! Oh, I did want it so!" she said at last under her breath.

"Me—all me!" said Dick placidly. "Look at their faces. It hits 'em. They don't know what makes their eyes and mouths open, but I know, and I know my work's right."

"Yes, I see. Oh, what a thing to have come to one!"

"Come to one, indeed! I had to go out and look for it. What do you think?"

"I call it success. Tell me how you got it."

They returned to the park, and Dick delivered himself of the Saga of his own doings with all the arrogance of a young man speaking to a woman. From the beginning he told the tale, the I, I, I's flashing through the records as telegraph poles fly past the traveler. Maisie listened and nodded her head. The histories of strife and privation did not move her a hair's breadth. At the end of each canto he would conclude, "and that gave me some notion of handling color," or light or whatever it might be that he had set out to pursue and understand.

He led her, breathless, across half the world, speaking as he had never spoken in his life before, and in the flood tide of his exaltation there came upon him a great desire to pick up this maiden who nodded her head and said: "I understand. Go on"—to pick her up and carry her away with him because she was Maisie, and because she understood, and because she was his right and a woman to be desired above all women.

Then he checked himself abruptly. "And so I took all I wanted," he said, "and I had to fight for it. Now you tell."

Maisie's tale was almost as gray as her dress. It covered years of patient toil backed by savage pride that would not be broken though dealers laughed, and fogs delayed work, and Kami was unkind and even sarcastic, and girls in other studios were painfully polite. It had a few bright spots—pictures accepted at provincial exhibitions—but it wound up with the oft repeated wail, "And so you see, Dick, I had no success, though I worked so hard."

Then pity filled Dick. Even thus had Maisie spoken when she could not hit the breakwater, half an hour before she had kissed him. And that had happened yesterday.

"Never mind," said he; "I'll tell you something if you'll believe it." The words were shaping themselves of their own accord. "The whole thing—lock, stock and barrel—isn't worth one big yellow sea poppy below Fort Keeling."

Maisie flushed a little. "It's all very well for you to talk, but you've had the success, and I haven't."

"Let me talk, then. I know you'll understand, Maisie dear, it sounds a bit absurd, but those ten years never existed, and I've come back again. It really is just the same. Can't you see? You're alone now and I'm alone. What's the use of worrying? Come to me instead, darling."

Maisie poked the gravel with her parasol. They were sitting on a bench. "I understand," she said slowly. "But I've got my work to do, and I must do it."

"Do it with me, then, dear. I won't interrupt."

"No, I couldn't. It's my work—mine—mine—mine! I've been alone all my life in myself, and I'm not going to belong to anybody except myself. I remember things as well as you do, but that doesn't count. We were babies then, and we didn't know what was before us. Dick, don't be selfish. I think I see my way to a little success next year. Don't take it away from me."

"I beg your pardon, darling. It is my fault for speaking idiotically. I can't expect you to throw up all your life just because I'm back. I'll go to my own place and wait a little."

"But, Dick, I don't want you to—go—out of—my life, now that you've just come back."

"I'm at your orders. Forgive me." Dick devoured the troubled little face with his eyes. There was triumph in them, because he could not conceive how Maisie could refuse sooner or later to love him, since he loved her.

"It's wrong of me," said Maisie, more slowly than before. "It's wrong and selfish, but—oh, I've been so lonely! No, you misunderstand. Now I've seen you again—it's absurd, but I want to keep you in my life."

"Naturally. We belong."

"We don't, but you always understood me, and there is so much in my work that you could help me in. You know things, and the ways of doing things. You must."

"I do, I fancy, or else I don't know myself. Then I suppose you won't care to lose sight of me altogether, and you want me to help you in your work?"

"Yes, but remember, Dick, nothing will ever come of it. That's why I feel so selfish. Let things stay as they are. I do want your help."

"You shall have it. But let's consider. I must see your pics first, and overhaul your sketches and find out about your tendencies. You should see what the papers say about my tendencies. Then I'll give you good advice, and you shall paint accordingly. Isn't that it, Maisie?"

Again there was unholy triumph in Dick's eyes.

"It's too good of you—much too good—because you are consoling yourself with what will never happen, and I know that, and yet I wish to keep you. Don't blame me later, please."

"I'm going into the matter with my eyes open. Moreover, the queen can do no wrong. It isn't your selfishness that impresses me. It's your audacity in proposing to make use of me."

"Pooh! You're only Dick—and a printshop."

"Very good. That's all I am. But, Maisie, you believe, don't you, that I love you? I don't want you to have any false notions about brothers and sisters."

Maisie looked up for a moment and dropped her eyes.

"It's absurd, but—I believe, I wish I could send you away before you get angry with me. But—but the girl that lives with me is red haired and an impressionist, and all our notions clash."

"So do ours, I think. Never mind. Three months from today we shall be laughing at this together."

Maisie shook her head mournfully. "I knew you wouldn't understand, and it will only hurt you more when you find out. Look at my face, Dick, and tell me what you see."

They stood up and faced each other for a moment. The fog was gathering, and it stifled the roar of the traffic of London beyond the railings. Dick brought all his painfully acquired knowledge of faces to bear on the eyes, mouth and chin underneath the black toque.

"It's the same Maisie, and it's the same me," he said. "We've both nice little wills of our own, and one or other of us has to be broken. Now about the future. I must come and see your pictures some day—I suppose when the red haired girl is on the premises."

"Sundays are my best times. You must come on Sundays. There are such heaps of things I want to talk about and ask your advice about. Now I must get back to work."

"Try to find out before next Sunday what I am," said Dick. "Don't take my word for anything I've told you. Goodby, darling, and bless you."

Maisie stole away like a little gray mouse. Dick watched her till she was out of sight, but he did not hear her say to herself very soberly: "I'm a wretch—a horrid, selfish wretch. But it's Dick, and Dick will understand."

No one has yet explained what actually happens when an irresistible force meets the immovable post, though many have thought deeply, even as Dick thought. He tried to assure himself that Maisie would be led in a few weeks by his mere presence and discourse to a better way of thinking. Then he remembered much too distinctly her face and all that was written on it.

"If I know anything of heads," he said, "there's everything in that face but love. I shall have to put that in myself. And that chin and mouth won't be won for nothing. But she's right. She knows what she wants, and she's going to get it. What insolence! Me! Of all the people in the wide world to use me! But then she's Maisie. There's no getting over that fact, and it's good to see her again. This business must have been simmering at the back of my head for years. She'll use me as I used Binat at Port Said. She's quite right. It will hurt a little. I shall have to see her every Sunday, like a young man courting a housemaid. She's sure to come round. And yet that mouth isn't a yielding mouth. I shall be wanting to kiss her all the time, and I shall have to look at her pictures—I don't even know what sort of work she does yet—and I shall have to talk about art—woman's art! Therefore, particularly and perpetually damn all varieties of art. It did me a good turn once, and now it's in my way. I'll go home and do some art."

Half way to the studio Dick was smitten with a terrible thought. The figure of a solitary woman in the fog suggested it.

"She's all alone in London with a red haired impressionist girl, who probably has the digestion of an ostrich. Most red haired people have. Maisie's a bilious little body. They'll eat like lone women—meals at all hours and tea with all meals. I remember how the students in Paris used to pig along. She may fall ill at any minute, and I shan't be able to help. Whew! This is ten times worse than owning a wife!"

Torpenhow came into the studio at dusk and looked at Dick, with his eyes full of the austere love that springs up between men who have tugged at the same oar together and are yoked by custom and use and the intimacies of toil. This is a good love, and, since it allows and even encourages strife, recrimination and the most brutal sincerity, does not die, but increases and is proof against any absence and evil conduct.

Dick was silent after he handed Torpenhow the filled pipe of council. He thought of Maisie and her possible needs. It was a new thing to think of anybody but Torpenhow, who could think for himself. Here at last was an outlet for that cash balance. He could adorn Maisie barbarically with jewelry—a thick gold necklace round that little neck, bracelets upon the rounded arms and rings of price upon her hands—the cool, temperate, ringless hands that he had taken between his own.

It was an absurd thought, for Maisie would not even allow him to put one ring on one finger, and she would laugh at golden trappings. It would be better to sit with her quietly in the dusk, his arm round her neck and her face on his shoulder, as befitted husband and wife. Torpenhow's boots creaked that night, and his strong voice jarred. Dick's brows contracted, and he murmured an evil word because he had taken all his success as a right and part payment for past discomfort, and now he was checked in his stride by a woman who admitted all the success and did not instantly care for him.

"I say, old man," said Torpenhow, who had made one or two vain attempts at conversation, "I haven't put your back up by anything I've said lately, have I?"

"You! No. How could you?"

"Liver out of order?"

"The truly healthy man doesn't know he has a liver. I'm only a bit worried about things in general. I suppose it's my soul."

"The truly healthy man doesn't know he has a soul. What business have you with luxuries of that kind?"

"It came of itself. Who's the man who says that we're all islands shouting lies to each other across seas of misunderstanding?"

"He's right, whoever he is, except about the misunderstanding. I don't think we could misunderstand each other."

The blue smoke curled back from the ceiling in clouds. Then Torpenhow said insinuatingly:

"Dick, is it a woman?"

"Be hanged if it's anything remotely resembling a woman, and if you begin to talk like that I'll hire a red brick studio with white paint trimmings and begonias and petunias and blue Hungarians to play among the three-and-sixpenny pot palms, and I'll mount all my pics in aniline dye plush plasters, and I'll invite every woman who yelps and maunders and moans over what her guidebooks tell her is art, and you shall receive 'em, Torp, in a snuff brown velvet coat with yellow trousers and an orange tie. You'll like that."

"Too thin, Dick. It's no business of mine, but it's comforting to think that somewhere under the stars there's saving up for you a tremendous thrashing. Whether it'll come from heaven or earth, I don't know, but it's bound to come and break you up a little. You want hammering."

Dick shivered. "All right," said he. "When this island is disintegrated, it will call for you."

"I shall come round the corner and help to disintegrate it some more. We're talking nonsense. Come along to a theater."

Distrust of Left Handed Barbers.

"I have struck all kinds of barbers in my trips about the country," said the man who travels, "but the one kind that always makes me feel as if I was balanced on the very brink of eternity is the left handed barber. I have been shaved by several of their class. They have been good barbers, too, every one of them, but no matter how well they knew their business they always gave me a bad turn, and every time they drew the razor across my face I felt as if life and I were about ready to part company. Of course it is foolish, but nowadays when I find myself assigned to a left handed barber I leave the shop on some pretext or other and go elsewhere to be beautified. Other men whom I have sounded on the subject have confessed to the same weakness, and women have told me that they have a like unexplainable dread of left handed hairdressers. In the dressmaking business, too, I am told, a left handed cutter and fitter is pretty sure to give the customer a crop of goose flesh, while even a harmless occupation like manicuring can always be relied on to produce real shivers if pursued by a person whose cleverness lies in her left hand."

What Tilden Lost.

When Mr. Tilden in 1874 was nominated for governor of New York, Mr. Dorsheimer received the nomination for lieutenant governor. The ticket thus headed was elected by about 50,000 majority. A little knot of Germans in New York city who usually voted the Republican ticket took Mr. Dorsheimer from his name to be a German, and they scratched their ticket in his favor, so that he had a majority of nearly 53,000. One day after Mr. Tilden and Mr. Dorsheimer had been inaugurated they met at a political breakfast at the former's house in Gramercy park. Mr. Tilden had always felt a little sore at Mr. Dorsheimer's extra majority, and so when in the current of conversation Mr. Dorsheimer jestingly said, "Well, governor, you must remember I had 3,000 more majority than you," as quick as a flash Mr. Tilden retorted, "Yes, you supplied the 3,000, and I lent you the fifty."

The Way of the World.

"There go the Spicer Wilcoxes, mamma! I'm told they're dying to know us. Hadn't we better call?"

"Certainly not, dear! If they're dying to know us, they're not worth knowing. The only people worth our knowing are the people who don't want to know us."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, August 24, 1903.

Excitement ran high in official circles in Washington during the past week at the news that Vice Consul Magelseen at Beirut, Syria, had been assassinated and as soon as the information reached Oyster Bay the President ordered the European squadron to proceed at once to Turkish waters. Later information soon followed the first report, however, saying that the Vice Consul had not been killed but had be fired at, that the shots failed to take effect, the miscreant had been arrested and the Turkish officials had made all due apologies. Meanwhile, the fleet is on the way to Genoa, where it will have to proceed to get coal, and it is announced that the squadron will proceed to the vicinity of Constantinople with a view of demonstrating to Turkey that further attempts at violence towards American representatives will be met with prompt action.

The situation in Turkey is appreciated to be exceedingly grave and it is known that the government is hard put to maintain any semblance of order in many portions of the Empire. Meanwhile, Great Britain is understood to deplore the prompt action of this Government in ordering the European squadron to the Mediterranean because it is feared that such action will encourage the rebels. To many persons familiar with the Eastern question, however, it appears that the partition Turkey cannot be much longer postponed and that only the moral effect of a powerful Amercan fleet can serve to protect from violence American consuls, their families and others in the event of a general war in the East. At Beirut, where the attempted assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen occurred, is the Euphrates College and anxiety is still felt for the safety of the American teachers and the American and Armenian pupils at the school.

Reports concerning the Panama canal treaty continue to improve, a very encouraging feature of the situation being the fact that Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge d' affairs here, has been instructed to subscribe to a press clipping service and send to the Colombian Congress all the clippings received. As many of the American papers, on receipt of the report that the Colombian Senate had "rejected" the treaty, published articles showing that any amendments meant the failure of the convention and that should the treaty fail the President would be compelled, under the provisions of the Spooner Amendment, to immediately open negotiations with Nicaragua and Costa Rica, it is believed that a large assortment of American press clippings cannot but have a salutary effect on the Colombians and may result in the ratification of the convention as negotiated.

Second only to the interest in events in the far east has been interest in the revelations concerning conditions in the far west. The report of an agent of the Indian Rights Association referred to in last week's letter, has resulted in the disclosure of disgraceful conditions in the Indian Territory where the Dawes Commission has long been engaged in parcelling out approximately 20,000,000 among the individual members of the five civilized tribes of Indians. Information to date is to the effect that the members of the Dawes Commission, to which is entrusted the interest of the Indians, have almost without exception associated themselves with land and investment companies organized for the purpose of acquiring eventual possession of the allotted lands, in which the possibilities of profit are enormous. Hon. Tams Bixby, the chairman of the Commission, has admitted the fact that he is a stockholder in a company, the Canadian Valley Trust Company, which has offices in the building at Muskogee also occupied by the Dawes Commission and that he is president of the company but he belittles the gravity of his offence on the ground that his holdings of stock are small, "only $500 worth." Other members of the Commission are yet to heard from.

Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock maintains that he has long been familiar with the situation and that he has been conducting an investigation ever since last May as a result of which a number of minor officials have been dismissed from the service, but it is a noteworthy fact that within the past week the Secretary has called upon the members of the Commission to explain their connection with the companies referred to and that, by order of the President, two commissioners are about to be appointed to investigate the scandals involving the departments of Justice and the Interior and the Dawes Commission. While Secretary Hitchcock is not altogether frank in discussing the situation, it appears that he made a trip through the territory last May in company with his private secretary and an Indian inspector, J. George Wright, and that the Secretary, whose confidence in Wright appears to be implicit, believed all that Wright told him to believe and discredited all that Wright told him to discredit. Subsequent events have revealed the fact that Wright is himself interested in one of the land companies so that it is not altogether surprising that the Secretary failed to gain a correct knowledge of the facts. No one doubts the integrity of the Secretary, but even his friends cannot deny that he has been duped

CHAS. BIDWELL, P. M.

A minister who was in dire straits financially had his affairs further complicated by the arrival of a bouncing baby boy. Realizing his predicament a number of members of his flock took up a subscription for him and presented him with a purse of $100. The following Sunday a couple of sporty members of the congregation made a bet as to which he would mention first the donation or the new arrival. Here is the way he concluded his morning prayer: "And we thank Thee, oh Lord, for the succor thou has sent." And now there is a dispute as to which won the bet.

Leon Farnham, son of Frank Farnham, postmaster at Pratville, committed suicide Sunday forenoon by shooting himself in the head. Young Farnham lived only about an hour after he fired the bullet into his brain. The young man was keeping company with a young lady in Pratville and seeing her in company with another young man of the village on Saturday night, aroused his jealousy to a high pitch, and added to this his friends, in a spirit of joking chided him until he temporarily lost control of himself and quickly ended his fancied trouble by putting an end to his life.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

Hillsdale Leader: Supervisor M. E Meredith of Wright, had a lightning experience Wednesday morning which for a time was painfully disturbing. In company with Deputy Sheriff R. Reynolds on the way to Hillsdale with Mrs. Amelia Adams, an insane person, the wife of David Adams, of Wright, they drove under the Foust church sheds southeast of Steamburg, for shelter during the fierce storm about 9 o'clock in the forenoon. Mr. Meredith was in the center of the sheds with one hand resting on a girth when a terrific bolt of lightning entered the building and apparently at the spot where he was standing. Both legs were paralyzed below the knees and it was nearly two hours before circulation was restored sufficiently for him to walk. He was the only one of the ten or twelve people in the sheds who was injured.

We just hate to come across a man, or, worse yet, a community, which is on the hog to that extent that it will take no interest in any matter of public improvement unless it brings dollars into its pockets. Even the Sioux Indian would decorate his tepee, nearly all birds will use art and refinement in the building of the nest, while thousands of so called civilized human beings will care as little for their home surroundings as a fox in his den. We have altogether too much civilization which does not civilize.—Exchange.

THE ALL STARS

Of Toledo, put up a pretty game of ball and

DEFEATED THE HOME TEAM

Saturday afternoon in an interesting game.

The sun and the wind got the better of the rain Saturday afternoon and partially dried up the ball grounds so that the game with the "All Stars," of Toledo, was called at 3 o'clock as advertised. The grounds were slippery and errorless playing was out of the question. Considering these conditions the game between the two teams was remarkably clean and fast, requiring but an hour and a quarter to complete it.

The visitors certainly had their horse shoes with them, and though they made fewer hits than the locals (7 against 10) won handily. Up to the 7th inning the score was 1 and 1, but right then the Stars made three hits and as many runs. This lead our boys were unable to cut down. Johnson pitched a fine game, fanning 8 men and allowing but 7 hits.

Every ball batted by the locals seemed to have for its objective point the capacious mits of an "All Star" and frequent were the deaths of our men on 2nd and 3rd base, some even being cut off within a few inches of the home plate.

If the All Stars should come here for another game in the near future they would doubtless be greeted with a good crowd, weather permitting. The score:

Mrs. Sarah Morse.

Sarah E. Brumfield was born in Fishkill, Dutchess county, N. Y., Oct. 30, 1834. In early life her parents moved to Palmyra, N. Y. Here she and her sister united with the Marion Baptist church, in 1855. Seeing the advantage of the West for teachers she came to Michigan in 1859.

On Nov. 17 of the same year she was married to William S. Morse of Elkhart, Ill. She then went farther West and took up the duties of a home maker in the state of Illinois. Here she passed seventeen years of her married life and here three children were born, two of whom survive her. In 1876 she came to Tecumseh where she has lived ever since.

She has been in poor health for a great deal of the time. On Sunday, Aug. 23, she was taken very ill and grew rapidly worse until death relieved her of suffering at 12:20 a. m. Friday. In her home she was a loving and devoted mother, while in the outer circle her friendship was highly valued, but she has only gone a little ways ahead to join her many friends who have gone before.

Her funeral took place Sunday afternoon at the Baptist church, Rev. Bower officiating. Her daily life was true and gentle and her influence will be felt for good whenever she was known. Her life and its purpose is well described in the following line.

"A noble effort never dies;
What though we fail? Its fire will give Desire in other hearts to rise
And kindled there it still will live.
"We never die; for every deed
That we have wrought will till remain
For good or ill and sow the seed
In other lives of joy or pain."

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank our many friends for their kindness and sympathy in the loss our mother and sister. Also for the many beautiful floral offerings.

W. JAY MORSE.
EMMA A. MORSE.
HATTIE A. SHELMIER.

There is no meaner kind of selfishness than that which wears the cloak of hypocrisy.

LITERARY NOTES.

Burton Egbert Stevenson's new romantic novel, called "The Blade That Won," is published complete in the September number of Lippincott's Magazine. It is replete with adventure and alive with tenderness. The assistance given a gentle maid in defending important papers introduces the hero to his love and the reader to them both without tiresome prelude. The tale is told with refreshing simplicity and directness and offers no temptation to take a nap between chapters.

Among contributors of short stories appears the name of Mary Moss, whose novels, "Fruit Out of Season" and "Julian Meldohla," proved so popular. Her story is called "Miss Atherten's Wanderjahr" and treats of an unconventional incident in the life of a conventional New York society girl. It ends as such things do sometimes.

* * *

R. E. Young, whose novel, "Sally of Missouri," is announced by McClure, Phillips & Co. for fall publication, has an admirable short story in the September McClure's called "Penangton's Love Affair," a story of unusual psychological grasp and dramatic power. The characters are boldly drawn Missouri types, gentlefolk of southern ancestry—Miss Kate Carew, her dissolute brother Marly, and her lover Major Masterson. The major is a fine figure of a man, whom Miss Kate, with her brother's example before her, will not accept until he shall sign the pledge which the major, on principle, as stoutly refuses to do.

* * *

Rev. Lyman Abbott opens the September Atlantic with an able and suggestive article on Why Women do not Wish the Suffrage, an attitude which he claims results not from any inferiority of woman to man, but from her essential difference, bodily and mentally. Herbert W. Horwill follows with a paper on the question of the Bible in Public Schools and he discusses as pertaining thereto the increasing and generally acknowledged Biblical ignorance of the rising generation. Other valuable and readable papers are Indifferentism by B. P., An Educated Wage-Earner—experiences and reflections by Jocelyn Lewis; and Paganism, a delightful paper by Harriet Waters Preston.

* * *

The September number of The Critic is distinguished by the inclusion of at least two articles of capital importance,—the paper on "Emerson," by Ambassador Choate, and the paper by Mrs. Humphry Ward on "James Martineau." Ambassador Choate's tribute to the poet and prophet of Concord is both eloquent and sincere. Mrs. Ward, on the other hand, is less rhetorical and more analytical in her discussion of Dr. Martineau's character and career. Both these papers are published in The Critic apropos the dedication of the busts of Emerson and Martineau, recently placed in the Hall of the Passmore Edwards Settlement in London. The busts are by the noted English sculptor, George Frampton, R. A., and admirable photographs of both appear in The Critic in connection with the two articles.

Beevers Family Reunion.

Mrs. Thos. Kyle entertained the Beever family at their annual reunion last Wednesday. There were about 75 persons present and to say they had a good time treats it rather lightly. Guests were there from Chelsea, Unadilla, Hillsdale, Dundee, Britton, Ridgeway and Macon.

Guy Stone, of Hillsdale, as president of the day, announced a very interesting program on which were songs by Mildred and Glen Sowle and Mrs. Vie Rennison. Recitations were given by Mildred and Glen Sowle, Maggie and Ethel Ball; Ruth Piper, Gladwin Boyd and Blanche Beevers. Instrumental music was furnished by Bernice Shultz, Erma Kyle and Mrs. Vie Rennison.

The house was beautifully decorated and the bountiful dinner was served on the lawn to graphaphone music. After dinner was held the election of officers for the coming year as follows:

President—Leon Boyd, Britton.
Vice Pres.—Miss Alta Stone, Hillsdale.
Sec'y.—Mrs. Lavern Ousterhout, Britton.
Treas.—Mrs. Vie Rennison, Britton.

The next reunion will be held at the home of David Boyd in Britton.

Patterson Reunion.

The third reunion of the Patterson family was held at Will Schreder's on Aug. 29, 1903. About sixty of the members of the Patterson family gathered at Mr. and Mrs. Schreder's. A shower drove them into the house where the ladies served a fine dinner, to which all did ample justice.

After dinner the gentlemen indulged in a game of ball the two sides being Boston and Chicago. Chicago won the game by 7 to 0. After the ball game they returned to the house and the meeting was called to order by the vice president, Charles Hindes, after which a program was given.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Pres.—Charles Hindes.
Vice Pres.—Sam Patterson.
Sec'y. and Treas.—Miss Lulu Mark.
Program Com.—Della Patterson, Lillian Patterson, Aggie McCarbery and Jennie Linton.
Arrangement Com.—Albert Schreder, Hugh Craig, David Linton and Sam Orr.

Ice cream was next served after which the meeting was adjourned to meet the last Saturday in August, 1904, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Patterson.

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With family around expecting him to die and a son riding for life 18 mile to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, W. H. Brown of Leesville, Ind. endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of consumption, coughs colds and grip prove its matchless merit for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at C. A. Wright's drug store.

He died shortly after the accident. The remains were taken to Port Huron, his old home. Deceased leaves a widow and one child.—Telegram.

Belle Weismyer of Salem has come back with an answer to Charles Wiesmyer's cross bill in the divorce case in which eight barrels of cider form an interesting item. She denies that he is the owner of certain personal property set forth in his cross bill and she denies that she became intoxicated on the cider.

Christopher Fischer of Riga, got mad at his wife last Friday and gave her such a beating that he broke one of her thumbs. Mrs. Fischer did not propose to submit peaceably to such inhuman treatment on the part of her husband and very promptly and properly swore out a warrant charging him with assault and battery. Now Christopher will be obliged to settle with Justice Treat of Adrian, for his exhibition of unmanliness in the unusually quiet township of Riga.—Hudson Gazette.

There is such a constantly increasing popularity of all kinds of breakfast food that the grocerymen are becoming alarmed at the immense stock and many varities which they are obliged to carry in stock. A groceryman said a few days ago that he was obliged to carry at least a dozen different varieties in stock all the time. He said that he had calls for other kinds and often some that he had never heard of. The interesting feature about it is that these foods are often advertised before they are manufactured and people are so in the habit of looking for new kinds of food that they cannot rest until they have at least tried it.—Ex. We interviewed several of our home merchants on this subject the other day and they expressed themselves precisely as the above statement. The opinions advanced by some that this great new industry is dying out were erroneous.—Onsted News.

Bullet Through Heart.

Traverse City, Mich., Aug 31.—T. Gilmore, aged about 70, committed suicide by putting a bullet through his heart. His wife went to call him for dinner and upon entering the room found his dead body laying across the bed. Being hard of hearing, she had not heard the shot.

Drowned at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 31.—A man named McLean was drowned Sunday afternoon at the lower end of the steamboat channel entering the Canadian lock.

MICHIGAN BREVITIES.

Saturday's fierce rain and hail storm did its heaviest damage in Monroe and Berrien counties. Fruit especially suffered from its effects. The Toledo & Monroe electric railway was temporarily put out of business.

A young woman stenographer in the office of the American Blower company, Detroit, was reprimanded by her employer Saturday and revenged herself by taking a dose of poison. The manager came back with an order to the doctor to use the stomach pump thoroughly, and at last accounts she was nearly as good as ever.

Mrs. Mabel Roeder, 18-year-old wife of Alex. Roeder, is dead at her home in Detroit. She attempted to light a wood fire with kerosene, in which there was some gasoline, the explosion set fire to her clothes and she was frightfully burned. Shortly before death she gave birth to still born child.

The state military department has issued orders requiring members of the state rifle team who expect to take part in the shoot at Sea Girt, N. J., Sept. 8 and 9 to report to Major Wagner at Port Huron not later than Sept. 8. Company commanders will furnish transportation to Port Huron and return. Government pay will be allowed.

Rain interfered with the big farmers' picnic at Whitmore Lake Saturday, but 500 of the faithful gathered and speeches were given in the hall. The chief topic was the proposed farmers' trust, and Hon. J. A. Everett was the chief speaker.

Graceful Women

The scent of the violet or rose is as precious as the lovely flowers whose breath they are, and while the lives of flowers are brief and we can only enjoy them for a day, the beautiful woman gives the pleasure of her fragrance to us as a permanent blessing. The soft fragrance of a beautiful woman suggests purity, health and elegance; she is the refinement of civilization; an index always of good taste and an unerring badge of gentility.

BRADFIELD'S Female Regulator

in regulating the lunar periods in woman permits of no wrinkles, pale cheeks or tortured nerves and shapeless figures. It is Nature's remedy. The druggist may offer something else and call it "just as good," but the menstrual organs will not be deceived, and permanent injury may result. Try our Regulator. Of all druggists $1. Our treatise on "Woman" mailed free.

A HELPING HAND

Is gladly extended by a Tecumseh Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Tecumseh prepared to tell their experience of the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence, and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

Mrs. J. H. Welch, who resides in the south western section of Tecumseh, says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back troubled me for a long time with a constant dull aching pain across my loins and when stooping or exerting myself it became very sharp. If I took cold it always settled in my kidneys and in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly attend to my work. I used several simple household remedies but they did not bring relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and spoken of so highly I concluded to test their merits and got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. They took right hold of the cause and in a short time the pain in my back was a thing of the past. I can now straighten after bending or stooping without any inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful remedy."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

"What kind of a carpet shall we get for the parson's study?" asked a church committee man of his colleague. "Axminster," was the comprehensive reply.

A blessing alike to young and and old; Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Nature's specific for dysentery, diarrhoea and summer complaint.

A little girl was asked the meaning of "happy." She gave a pretty answer, saying, "It is to feel as if you wanted to give up all your things to your sister."

Bodily pain loses its terror if you've a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the house. Instant relief in cases of burns, cuts, sprains, accidents of any sort.

A gentleman wishing not long since to "pop the question," took up the young lady's cat and said, "Pussy, may I have your mistress?" It was answered by the lady, "Say yes, Pussy."

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Overwork any organ and it gives out—the stomach is no exception. Ask it to digest anything, everything, at any time in half the time required, and like an over driven horse, it balks. Nature intended the stomach should have regular hours. A time to work, a time to rest—and when you break up this habit, you upset the whole arrangement. The stomach nerves become exhausted, the glands refuse to act, the food does not digest—lies heavy, ferments and repeats. There is pain, gas forms, bloating occurs, the heart becomes irregular and a nervous, irritable feeling sets in. This is nervous dyspepsia and Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills its cure.

Mrs. R. VanDuzer of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My trouble was with my stomach, the food did not digest properly and as a result I suffered from severe headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Wright's drug store and as a result of their use my stomach is again strong, the digestion is perfect and my headaches cured. I think the medicine for nervous troubles cannot be approached." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every package.

St. Joseph Child Missing.

St. Joseph, Mich., Aug. 29.—The father, friends and officers have been two days searching for 13-year-old Mary Bard, who mysteriously disappeared from her fathers home last Wednesday. The father works during the day time, and when he came home Wednesday night and found his daughter gone he supposed she was visiting friends, but when she failed to return his supicions were aroused, and constant search has since been kept up. The girl is a frail child of a quiet disposition, and the only theory advanced is that she was kidnaped.

FASHION ON PARADE.

First Great Exposition of Dressmakers in New York.

New York, Aug. 31.—For the next two weeks Madison Square Garden will be given over to the display of fine dresses, the Fashion Show formally opening there tonight. Acting Mayor Fornes, Secretary of Commerce J. B. Cortelyou, United States Senator C. M. Depew and others will deliver brief addresses.

This is the first exposition of its kind ever held in this country. Its purpose is to set styles and to establish a unity of ideas in the making of gowns between American and Parisian modistes.

Successfully to bring about this movement European modistes have contributed to the exposition 150 gowns of every style, while a large number of American designs will be displayed. Otto Adler, delegate from the Parisian dressmakers, will deliver addresses on European fashions. Handsome girls during the afternoon and evening sessions will wear the different style of gowns on a stage. Every style of garment favored by women in outdoor life will be shown, including golf, automobile, yachting, tennis and bicycle styles. The live exhibit will show the process of making many articles of apparel and will include the silk loom in operation.

There will be a display of the proper styles to be worn at various functions, including an ideal wedding costume. The millinery exhibit will be on a large scale and the display of domestic and foreign laces will be notable.

Train Robbers Foiled.

Havre, Mont., Aug. 31.—It has been learned here that an attempt was made Friday night to hold up the westbound flyer of the Great Northern near Malta. The attempt was frustrated by detectives riding on the engine. Three suspicious looking characters, believed to be members of the gang of Harvey Logan, alias "Kid" Curry, boarded the train and two of them started to climb over the tender when they were discovered by the officers, who covered them with guns and ordered them off. They promptly slid off the side of the tender, disappearing in the darkness. For three days the train crews, mail crews and express agents on passenger trains between Glasgow and Havre have been heavily armed and a score of detectives have been riding up and down the line. Several days ago the company received what they considered reliable information that Harvey Logan was back in Montana and would attempt a holdup. Malta is but a few miles from Wagner, the point where the Great Northern hold-up occurred two years ago. Logan escaped from the county jail at Knoxville, Tenn., June 27 last while awaiting removal to the Columbus, O., penitentiary.

Philippine Fighters Meet.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—Delegates are beginning to arrive for the annual reunion of the National Society of the Army of the Philippines, which begins its sessions this afternoon in the state capitol. The reception committees expect that fully 2,000 will attend, and it has accommodation for all that have made application. St. Louis is making a vigorous campaign for the next reunion. Chattanooga, Put-in-Bay, O., Buffalo, Cleveland and Chicago are also applicants. Two questions of vital importance to the society will be discussed at its business sessions. At present contract surgeons who served in the army of the Philippines are not eligible to the society. Many that have served in that capacity desire to become enrolled. It is thought at this reunion that the bylaws will be so amended that the contract surgeons may become members. In addition to this question, the society will consider the advisability of forming a ladies' auxiliary, similar to the Woman's Relief Corps.

LATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

Died Suddenly.—The Turkish consul-general at Marseilles, M. Gaetanaki, died Sunday evening suddenly while preparing to give a great feast in honor of the sultan on Tuesday.

Mills Will Start.—Most of the score or more of mills in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont and Maine, owned by the American Woolen company, which have been shut down from one to two weeks, have been reopened.

Only In Fun.—The Sofia correspondent of the London Times telegraphs that it is explained that the Beirut affair was merely a wedding party indulging in a jolly and the shots were not directed with design against the United States vice-consul, Mr. Magelssen.

Mighty Consolidation.—According to Frank Buchanan, president of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, it is planned to amalgamate the six powerful structural trades into a mighty national building trades council of 600,000 workmen and the absorption by these six of the smaller building trades, such as granite cutters, marble polishers, stone cutters, etc.

A Terrible Deed.—In a supposed fit of insanity, Mrs. Kathleen Johnson, 30 years old, living in an apartment house in New York, attempted to kill her 7-year-old daughter Alice by cutting her right wrist with a carving knife, and then slashed her own left wrist and her throat with the same weapon, inflicting injuries from which she died a few hours later. The girl will recover.

Three Were Drowned.

St. Paul, Aug. 31.—By the overturning of a rowboat on White Bear lake last night Wilbur Carlson and wife and Seth Johnson of St. Paul were drowned. The men were scuffling in the boat.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over 30 years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

To a Monastery for Life.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 29.—The announcement is made by Bishop Metz, of the Catholic church of Colorado, that Fr. Cushing, who has earned much notoriety by his fight upon the bishop during the past twelve years, has been ordered by Archbishop Falconi, the apostolic delegate, to go to the Trappist monastery at Gethsemane, Ky., where he will be practically a prisoner for the balance of his life. Bishop Metz will pay all of his expenses. Fr. Cushing is between 40 and 50 years old and is broken down in health.

Fought Over Crap Game.

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—In a shanty at Gladden Station, on the Washington branch of the Pan Handle railroad two negroes fought a revolver duel, during which Will White, one of the participants, was killed and Bob Muts his opponent, was wounded. The quarrel arose during a crap game in which eight or ten negroes were engaged. When revolvers were drawn by White and Muts to settle their dispute the rest of the players vacated the shanty. Muts escaped to the hills.

A Still Greater Contrast.

"Are you going to take that ugly pug dog with you again, Carrie?" asked Charles. "I really believe you take him simply to make yourself look prettier by the contrast."

"Don't be jealous of poor Pug, Charlie," replied Carrie. "I'll take you some time when I want to look especially handsome."

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

AN ALL-WHITE TOILETTE.

All-white toilettes seem to grow more popular with every one as the season advances, and this beautiful costume is of oyster-white satin cloth. The bolero waist is elaborated with medallions, also velvet and cord ornaments which are now playing such an important part on women's gowns. The cuffs and belt are of velvet, and the medallions appear also on the sleeves. The inverted box-plaited skirt is securely stitched with Corticelli stitching silk and just below the stitching are arranged medallions in graduated sizes. The skirt which clings about the upper part of the figure flares at the bottom and has a slight sweep.

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunker

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

LIFE PLANT
Renews Life.

The Very Best TONIC Ever Discovered.

The blood is a great source of health or disease in the human system. If the blood is pure, the individual is strong and healthy; if the blood is impure or diseased then there is sickness and disease in the whole system.

Impure blood causes such diseases as Eczema, and Scrofula. LIFE PLANT affects its wonderful cures by acting through the blood. It is impossible for that blood poison, uric acid, or any other blood impurity to exist in the presence of our harmless medicine. The phenomenal success of LIFE PLANT in the many forms of blood diseases, warrants us in stating that it is a positive cure for Eczema and Scrofula. Read what Mr. M. P. Hobbs says of LIFE PLANT:

Wilmot, O., Jan. 2, 1903.

The Life Plant Co., Canton, Ohio.

Gentlemen:

Two years ago I contracted a very aggravated case of Eczema. I tried many kinds of medicine called sure cures, but all failed. I was persuaded by a friend to give LIFE PLANT a trial, and by taking two bottles was cured. To test the real truth of this statement try LIFE PLANT and be convinced.

Yours truly,
M. P. HOBBS.

Better get LIFE PLANT next time. It's a wonder.

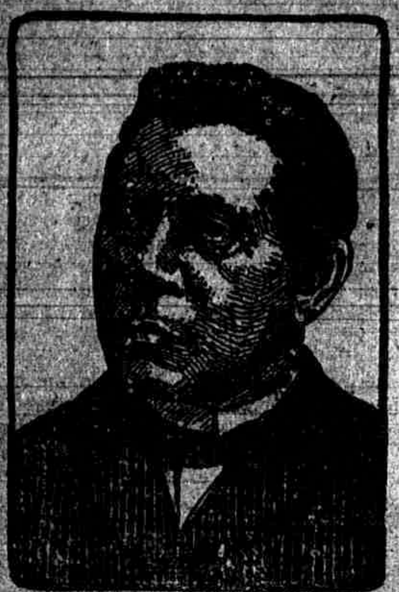
Boston Negroes Are Down On Booker T. Washington.

THEY APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

To Dispense With Washington as Their Political Spokesman—Not Fit Leader and Makes His People Laughingstock of World.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 2.—The Suffrage League of Boston, a negro organization, last night adopted resolutions declaring:

"Inasmuch, as Booker T. Washington has glorified the revised constitutions of the south, has minimized the Jim Crow car outrage, has attacked the wisdom of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution, has deprecated the primary importance of the ballot, has preached to the colored people of silent submission to intolerable conditions, and makes his people a by-word and laughingstock before the world, he is not a fit leader for the colored race, and no president who recognizes him as a political leader should receive the colored vote of the north.



BOOKER T. WASHINGTON,
President of Tuskegee (Ala.) Normal School, whom a Boston colored society declares is not a fit leader of his race.

"Therefore, Since President Roosevelt has given him charge of the appointment of all negroes of whatever state in the Union, and has made him the negro adviser as to all policies affecting colored Americans, in the interests of our race we call upon President Roosevelt to dispense with Mr. Washington as our political spokesman."

NATION'S FINANCES.

Receipts, Expenses and Coinage For Month of August.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business Aug. 31, 1903, the total debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $923,924,357, which is a decrease for the month of $6,098,951. This decrease is accounted for principally by the corresponding increase in the cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest bearing debt, $914,541,400; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,204,070; debt bearing no interest, $391,629,597; total, $1,307,375,067.

The monthly circulation statement issued by comptroller of the currency shows that at the close of business Aug. 31, 1903, the total circulation of national bank notes was $418,587,070, an increase for the year of $67,805,284, and an increase for the month of $1,241,488.

The monthly statement of the government receipts and expenditures show that for the month of August, 1903, the total receipts were $49,853,677 and the expenditures $43,024,544, leaving a surplus for the month of $6,828,133.

The monthly statement of the coinage executed at the mints of the United States shows the total coinage for August to have been $1,114,180.

A Legal Question.

Washington, Sept. 2.—The war department has decided to refer to the supreme court of the Philippine islands the case of the native Filipino, Dunphy, who was convicted of murder under the military government and sentenced to death. He escaped and was apprehended after the Philippines passed to civil control. His attorneys make the claim that the civil government cannot carry out the sentence of the military government. It is expected that the case ultimately will be taken to the supreme court of the United States.

Stockmen Must Pay.

Chicago, Sept. 2.—Stockmen throughout the west who have for many years been enjoying free transportation from their homes and the shipping centers, will find this privilege curtailed after Jan. 1, 1904. The executive officials of western lines met here Tuesday and agreed on and after the date mentioned they would discontinue the issuance to stockmen return transportation, thereby compelling them to pay their fare to their homes after having come to the various shipping centers with stock.

Killed by Electric Car.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 2.—Earl Stevens, aged 38, was struck by a street car Tuesday morning and died as the result of injuries received. He was a deaf mute and while riding a wheel turned to dodge one car and was run into by another.

SHAW HAS IDEAS

Advocates Plan For More Elastic Money Circulation.

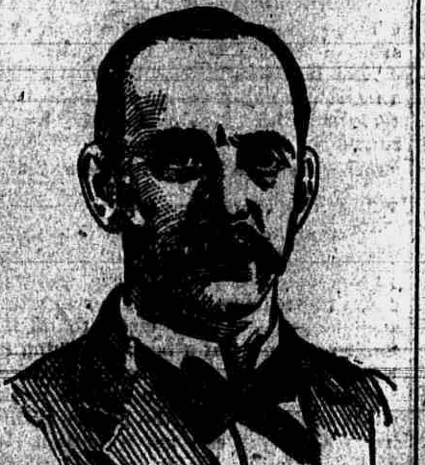
MERCHANTS AND TRAVELERS

At National Association Banquet In Chicago—Would Permit Banks to Issue Circulating Notes Equal to 50 Per Cent of Circulation.

Chicago, Sept. 3.—Two hundred business men from all parts of the country listened to Secretary of the Treasury Shaw talk on the "business outlook" at a banquet given last night at the Auditorium hotel by the National Association of Merchants and Travelers. Lyman J. Gage addressed the association on the same subject just before his retirement from the treasury department and great interest was attached to the speech last night of the present secretary.

In his discussion of the financial question, Secretary Shaw declared that what was needed was not an elastic dollar but some provision by which, automatically, the aggregate volume of dollars should increase whenever and wherever more dollars were needed, and would as promptly retire when not needed. Secretary Shaw said in part:

"We are the most prosperous people in the world because we both produce and consume more than others. The little that we sell abroad, about 10 per cent of our net production, and the little we purchase abroad, 6 or 7 per cent of our net consumption, constitute no challenge to the statement that our prosperity rests with ourselves.



SECRETARY TREASURER SHAW.

"A very respectable number of very good people, and of that number I desire to be classed, believe our financial system, good as it is, might be improved by adding an element of elasticity.

"If I were given authority to formulate a measure that would provide the requisite elasticity to our present currency system, I think I should add an amendment permitting national banks, with the consent of the comptroller of the currency, to issue a volume of circulating notes equal to 50 per cent of their bond-secured circulation, at a tax of 5 per cent, the same to be retired at will or by direction of the comptroller, by the deposit of an equal amount of lawful money with any subtreasury.

"Three things I know. First, this additional circulation would spring into existence almost instantly whenever and wherever interest rates advanced to the point of profit. Second, it would as promptly detire whenever interest rates became normal. Third, it would be absolutely safe—as good as the present national bank issue and with a slight and immaterial change identical in form and appearance—for the government, amply protected by the 5 per cent tax, would underwrite it.

"But you say this is emergency currency. Anything more is inflation. It has the advantage, however, over emergency currency, so-named, and over legalized clearinghouse certificates, in that it injects into the commerce of the country no new or doubtful form of money, and the presence of these notes will not advertise the stringent condition which is the occasion of their existence. The only persons who would know of its existence would be the comptroller, the bank, and the few people who would take sufficient interest in the published statement of the bank to compare the volume of circulation with the amount of government bonds on deposit in the treasury."

A Priceless Vase.

Boston, Sept. 3.—A Boston art collector has just started on a long and costly search for an ancient and valuable Japanese vase, for which J. Pierpont Morgan is willing to pay $400,000. The vase is a massive affair of solid gold, designed and wrought by Hidah Jingoro for the Emperor Yoshimitsu. It was intended for the palace of Muromachu, and has been lost to the world since Yoshimitsu precipitated Japan into civil strife.

Russia's World's Fair Exhibit.

St. Louis, Sept. 3.—Commissioner-General Alexandrovsky has applied for 5,000 square feet of space in the world's fair agricultural building for the Russian government, which desires to make exhibits in Russian grown cotton and several varieties of forage grass and Russia's staple cereals, such as rye, wheat and barley.

TOOK THEIR MONEY

Hillsdale Maccabee Finance Keeper Is Missing.

WIFE'S MONEY ALSO GONE

Said He Was to Organize Tents in Ohio—Departed For Port Huron to See Great Commander, but Never Reached His Destination.

Hillsdale, Mich., Sept. 3.—George N. Briggs of this city is missing, with several hundred dollars in cash belonging to his wife and nearly $300 of Maccabee friends, which he had in his possession as finance-keeper of the Hillsdale tent.

Briggs had been a resident of Hillsdale for several years and was a painter by trade; but for some time has been conducting a grocery. A short time ago he sold his interest in the store to his partner and gave out that he was to have a position in the Maccabees to organize tents in Ohio.

On the day he left he told friends he had been summoned to Port Huron to consult with the great commander on matters connected with the order, and was to go there that night. About the same time the officers of the local tent were notified by the grand treasurere that an assessment for death benefits due from the tent had not been paid. This led to an investigation and it was ascertained that Briggs had collected the money and claimed to have forwarded it.

Correspondence with Port Huron developed the fact that Briggs had not been summoned there; neither had he been there. His wife had $700 in one of the city banks and she has just ascertained that her husband had drawn it all out, and that she was penniless, with herself and a child to care for.

Caught the Quack.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 3.—Officers succeeded last night in capturing Dr. Paul Newton, who is alleged to have secured $200 from W. Howard, a Sodus farmer, under false pretenses. Newton was introduced to the Howard family by a neighbor, claiming to be a specialist from the Chicago Medical college, and was employed to treat Mrs. Howard for asthma. Howard gave a note due in six months, no money to be paid until the lady was cured. Mrs. Howard took the medicine prescribed, but grew worse. In the meantime Newton cashed the note at the bank and left the country.

Post Tells Sir Thomas.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 3.—C. W. Post, the Postum Cereal millionaire, has received a message from Sir Thomas Lipton, thanking him for the suggestion that the Shamrock be sailed once with a Yankee crew. The telegram is non-committal, but shows Sir Thomas may be thinking it over. Post offers to pay all expenses if the Yankee crew will run Shamrock as test of whether victory depends on boat or men. Post believes Lipton, who is a friend of his, will accept.

Another National Bank.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 3.—The Central National bank, capital $200,000, surplus $50,000, has been organized here. The president is Edward C. Hinman, secretary-treasurer of the American Steam Pump company; vice-president, Frank Wolfe, Mendon, banker; second vice-president, Carroll L. Post, brother of the Postum Cereal millionaire. Frank G. Evans, who has been connected with the First National bank, is cashier.

Build World's Fair Boats.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 3.—The Truscott Boat company of this city has closed a contract with the managers of the St. Louis exposition to manufacture all the electric, gas and gasoline launches, gondolas and other craft that will be used at the big fair next year. The contract calls for thirty-one launches on the first order, which must be completed and the boats shipped by April 1.

Praise For State Troops.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 3.—Adjt.-Gen. Brown is in receipt of a letter from Maj.-Gen. Bates thanking him for the promptness and thoroughness with which all requests of the department for information in connection with the trip of the Michigan National Guard to Kentucky have been met. The plan for the mobilization of the troops by battalions for transportation is especially commended by General Bates.

Moonshining in Michigan.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—A former saloonkeeper says moonshine whisky is being made in this country from sugar beet molasses. He has asked $100 from a representative of the government for information that will lead to the arrest of the illicit distillers, but the money is not forthcoming and he declines to disclose the identity of the men engaged in the illegal work.

Dying in England.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—A cablegram from England announces that Richard Padley of this city, who went there some months ago to spend a year in his old home, had been stricken with apoplexy and there was little hope of his recovery. Mr. Padley is a pioneer settler of Bay City, having lived here since 1852.

R. F. D. Routes in Danger.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 2.—Postmaster Foster threatens to recommend the discontinuance of three rural routes south of this city unless the roads are made passable within ten days.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in constipation, headache or liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

ILLEGAL FISHING.

Game Warden Gets After Violators of State Law.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 3.—Game Warden Chapman reports that the first twelve days of August were spent in visiting the remote commercial fishing grounds in upper Michigan. A tug was chartered and all of the fisheries on the south shore of Lake Superior, except those in Ontonagon county and at the extreme end of Keweenaw point, were inspected. All of the fishermen at Isle Royale were visited and their deep water nets were lifted to determine the kind and size of fish being taken. It was found that many miles of 2½-inch mesh nets were being fished at a depth averaging 600 feet, and that 50 per cent of the fish taken were lake trout, half of which were immature and of unlawful size.

The warden is bending every energy to correct this evil, which, if not checked, will destroy commercial fishing in Michigan waters. All of the violators are now being prosecuted.

IMPORTANT CATTLE SALE.

Asylum Holsteins Bought by New York Parties.

Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 3.—Probably the largest deal in Holstein cattle ever consummated in the state took place Wednesday morning, when W. C. Hunt of Syracuse, N. Y., paid the Eastern Michigan asylum $1,260 as the purchase price of fifteen head from the blooded asylum herd. The cattle were started for their new home yesterday. Mr. Hunt paid $100 each for nine cows and $60 each for six heifers.

The asylum is beginning to reap the fruits of its policy of keeping only the finest of blooded stock to provide milk for the inmates. The herd is well known to Holstein fanciers throughout the country, as is demonstrated when it becomes necessary to dispose of the surplus increase.

Michigan Patents.

Washington, Sept. 3.—These Michigan patents have been granted: Henry Bothuy, Emmett, thrashing machine; Edward Davis, Detroit, railway brake; Boyd J. Funsch, jack pine rail joint; Perry B. Garrison, Three Rivers, walking beam for handcars; Judson M. Griffin, Detroit, abraiding shoe; Henry L. Haskell, Ludington, polishing machine; Horace B. Murdock, Detroit, oar or scull; John Nelson, West Bay City, rail joint; Lafayette R. Parsons, Detroit, vaccasine and preparing same; Lester B. Perrin, Detroit, automatic fastener for car doors; Joseph H. Robbins, Owosso, table leg fastening; Edgar O. Sutton, Detroit, machine for forming butter pats; Edward S. Wheeler, Detroit, attachment for dust pans; Sherman S. Withington, Adrian, tie for wire fences.

St. Joe's Big Banquet.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 3.—The largest banquet held in this city in many years was that last night at the Hotel Whitcomb tendered by the business men to the stockholders of the Cooper-Wells knitting mill because the latter refused a bonus from the city when they rebuilt their factory, destroyed by fire last February. A. W. Wells, the leading stockholder, is one of our wealthiest men and refused a liberal offer from the city, declaring his company able to build the factory unaided. Two hundred business men attended the banquet, at which Rev. W. P. French, pastor of the First Methodist church, presided as toastmaster.

Detroit Is Growing.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 3.—Detroit has a population of 389,844 people, according to the new city directory which was issued yesterday by R. L. Polk & Co. The sixty-seventh annual edition of the directory shows a number of improvements over those of former issue. The book contains 600 more pages than did its predecessor, and a total of 155,940 names are in the list. Figuring on the conservative basis of two and one-half persons to each name entered, the population of the city mounts up to 389,844, an increase of 13,408 over last year.

Disease In Michigan.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 3.—Rheumatism, diarrhea, neuralgia, bronchitis and tonsilitis, in the order named, caused the most sickness in Michigan during the past week. Meningitis was reported present at 1 place, measles at 20, whooping cough at 27, diphtheria at 29, smallpox at 30, scarlet fever at 52, typhoid fever at 72, and consumption at 216.

Double Track Fatality.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 3.—John Jaukouzlak, walking on a Michigan Central track on the west side Wednesday, stepped to another track to avoid a passenger train and was struck by a freight engine, receiving injuries from which he died in a short time. He was 55 years old and leaves a large family.

Burglars Made Big Haul.

Newberry, Mich., Sept. 3.—John I. Bellaire's store at Seney, in which is also the postoffice, twenty miles west of here, was broken into Tuesday night and the safe blown open with nitroglycerine. The burglars got $50 in cash, $3,000 in negotiable notes, besides postage stamps and money order blanks. The books were also taken.

Trampled Upon by Team.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 2.—Edward Arney, a prominent Niles farmer, was trampled upon by a runaway team and sustained injuries that may prove fatal.

Hon. Charles Randall Dead.

Coldwater, Mich., Sept. 2.—Hon. Charles D. Randall, member of the board of control of the state public school, died Tuesday evening, aged 73 years. He had been ill two weeks.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

Bedridden, alone and destitute. Such in brief was the condition of an old soldier by the name of J. J. Havens, Versailles, O. For years he was troubled with kidney disease and neither doctors nor medicines gave him relief. At length he tried Electric Bitters. It put him on his feet in short order and now he writes "I'm on the road to complete recovery." Best on earth for liver and kidney troubles and all forms of stomach and bowel complaints. Only 50c. German Syrup.

We want to impress on our readers that Boschee's German Syrup is positively the only preparation on the market to-day that does relieve and cure consumption. It contains the specifics, such as pure tar, extracts of gums, etc., which have been so highly endorsed for the cure of coughs, colds and consumption by the great medical congresses. The consumptive, whether his disease is in the throat or lungs, must have rest at night, and be free from the spasm of dry and racking cough in the morning. The diseased parts want rest, healing and soothing treatment, and the patient needs fresh air, good food, etc. German Syrup will give free and easy expectoration in the morning with speedy and permanent relief. Small bottles, 25 cents, regular size, containing four times as much, 75 cents. At all druggists. G. G. GREEN, Woodbury, N. J.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

CHAPTER VI.

"And you may lead a thousand men
Nor ever draw the rein,
But ere ye lead the Faery Queen
'Twill burst your heart in twain."

He has slipped his foot from the stirrup bar,
The bridle from his hand,
And he is bound by hand and foot
To the queen o' Faeryland.
—Sir Hoggie and the Fairies.

SOME weeks later, on a very foggy Sunday, Dick was returning across the park to his studio. "This," he said, "is evidently the thrashing that Torp meant. It hurts more than I expected, but the queen can do no wrong, and she certainly has some notion of drawing."

He had just finished a Sunday visit to Maisie—always under the green eyes of the red haired impressionist girl whom he learned to hate at sight—and was tingling with a keen sense of shame. Sunday after Sunday, putting on his best clothes, he had walked over to the untidy house north of the park, first to see Maisie's pictures and then to criticise and advise upon them as he realized that they were productions on which advice would not be wasted. Sunday after Sunday, and his love grew with each visit. He had been compelled to cram his heart back from between his lips when it prompted him to kiss Maisie several times and very much indeed. Sunday after Sunday the head above the heart had warned him that Maisie was not yet attainable and that it would be better to talk as connectedly as possible upon the mysteries of the craft that was all and all to her.

Therefore it was his fate to endure weekly torture in the studio built out over the clammy back garden of a frail, stuffy little villa where nothing was ever in its right place and nobody ever called—to endure and to watch Maisie moving to and fro with the teacups. He abhorred tea, but since it gave him a little longer time in her presence he drank it devoutly, and the red haired girl sat in an untidy heap and eyed him without speaking. She was always watching him.

Once, and only once, when she had left the studio, Maisie showed him an album that held a few poor cuttings from provincial papers—the briefest of hurried notes on some of her pictures sent to outlying exhibitions. Dick stooped and kissed the paint smudged thumb on the open page. "Oh, my love, my love," he muttered, "do you value these things? Chuck 'em into the waste paper basket!"

"Not till I get something better," said Maisie, shutting the book.

Then Dick, moved by no respect for his public and a very deep regard for the maiden, did deliberately propose, in order to secure more of these coveted cuttings, that he should paint a picture which Maisie should sign.

"That's childish," said Maisie, "and I didn't think it of you. It must be my work—mine, mine, mine!"

"Go and design decorative medallions for rich brewers' houses. You are thoroughly good at that."

Dick was sick and savage.

"Better things than medallions, Dick," was the answer in tones that recalled a gray eyed atom's fearless speech to Mrs. Jennett. Dick would have abased himself utterly but that the other girl trailed in.

Next Sunday he laid at Maisie's feet small gifts of pencils that could almost draw of themselves and colors in whose permanence he believed, and he was ostentatiously attentive to the work in hand. It demanded, among other things, an exposition of the faith that was in him. Torpenhow's hair would have stood on end had he heard the fluency with which Dick preached his own gospel of art.

A month before Dick would have been equally astonished, but it was Maisie's will and pleasure, and he dragged his words together to make plain to her comprehension all that had been hidden to himself of the whys and wherefores of work. There is not the least difficulty in doing a thing if you only know how to do it; the trouble is to explain your method.

"I could put this right if I had a brush in my hand," said Dick despairingly over the modeling of a chin that Maisie complained would not "look flesh." It was the same chin that she had scraped out with the palette knife. "But I find it almost impossible to teach you. There's a queer, grim, Dutch touch about your painting that I like, but I've a notion that you're weak in drawing. You foreshorten as though you never used the model, and you've caught Kami's pasty way of dealing with flesh in shadow. Then, again, though you don't know it yourself, you shirk hard work. Suppose you spend some of your time on line alone. Line doesn't allow of shirking. Oils do, and three square inches of flashy, tricky stuff in the corner of a pic sometimes carry a bad thing off, as I know. That's immortal. Do line work for a little while, and then I can tell more about your powers, as old Kami used to say."

Maisie protested. She did not care for the pure line.

"I know," said Dick. "You want to do your own fancy heads with a bunch of flowers at the base of the neck to hide bad modeling." The red haired girl laughed a little. "You want to do landscapes with cattle knee deep in grass to hide bad drawing. You want to do a great deal more than you can do. You have sense of color, but you want form. Color's a gift—put it aside and think no more about it—but form you can be drilled into. Now, all your fancy heads—and some of them are very good—will keep you exactly where you are. With line you must go forward or backward, and it will show up all your weaknesses."

"But other people"— began Maisie.

"You mustn't mind what other people do. If their souls were your soul, it would be different. You stand and fall by your own work, remember, and it's waste of time to think of any one else in this battle."

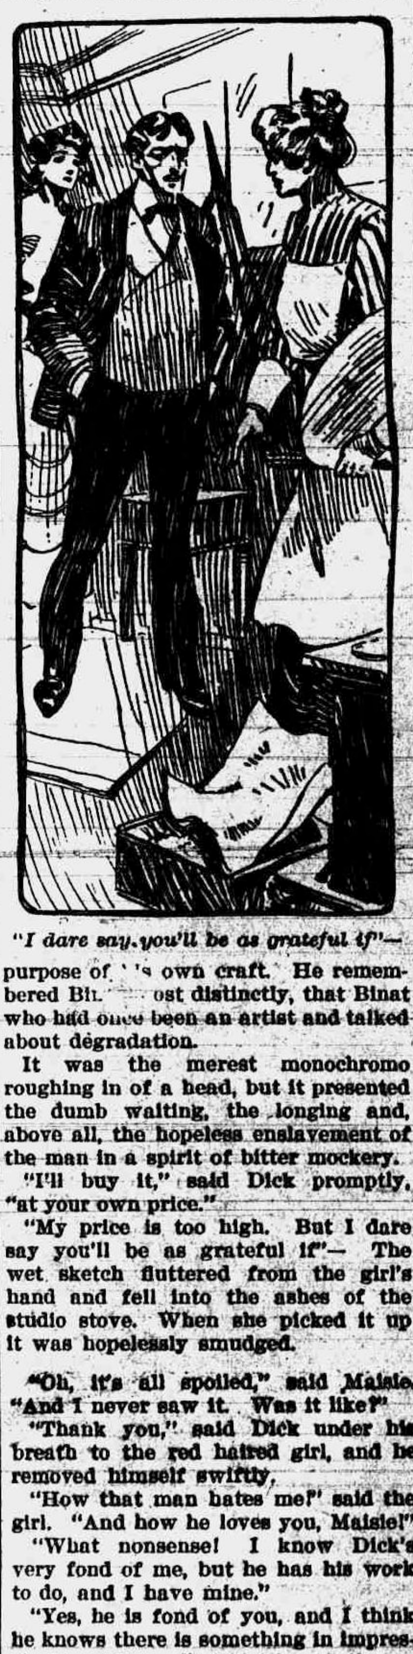
Dick paused, and the longing that had been so resolutely put away came back into his eyes. He looked at Maisie, and the look asked as plainly as words, Was it not time to leave all this barren wilderness of canvas and counsel and join hands with life and love?

Maisie assented to the new programme of schooling so adorably that Dick could hardly restrain himself from picking her up then and there and carrying her off to the nearest registrar's office. It was the implicit obedience to the spoken word and the blank indifference to the unspoken desire that baffled and buffeted his soul. He held authority in that house—authority limited, indeed—for one half of one afternoon in seven, but very real while it lasted. Maisie had learned to appeal to him on many subjects, from the proper packing of pictures to the condition of a smoky chimney.

The red haired girl never consulted him about anything. On the other hand, she accepted his appearance without protest and watched him always. He discovered that the meals of the establishment were irregular and fragmentary. They depended chiefly on tea, pickles and biscuit, as he had suspected from the beginning. The girls were supposed to market week and week about, but they lived, with the help of a charwoman, as casually as the young ravens.

Maisie spent most of her income on models, and the other girl reveled in apparatus as refined as her work was rough. Armed with knowledge dear bought from the docks, Dick warned Maisie that the end of semistarvation meant the crippling of power to work, which was considerably worse than death. Maisie took the warning and gave more thought to what they ate and drank. When his trouble returned upon him, as it generally did in the long winter twilights, the remembrance of that little act of domestic authority and his coercion with a hearth brush of the smoky drawing room chimney stung Dick like a whiplash.

He conceived that his memory would be the extreme of his sufferings till one Sunday the red haired girl announced that she would make a study of Dick's head, and that he would be good enough to sit still and—quite as an afterthought—look at Maisie. He sat because he could not well refuse, and for the space of half an hour he reflected on all the people in the past whom he had laid open for the purpose of [illegible]'s own craft. He remembered Bi[illegible]ost distinctly, that Binat who had once been an artist and talked about degradation.



"I dare say, you'll be as grateful if"—

It was the merest monochromo roughing in of a head, but it presented the dumb waiting, the longing and, above all, the hopeless enslavement of the man in a spirit of bitter mockery.

"I'll buy it," said Dick promptly, "at your own price."

"My price is too high. But I dare say you'll be as grateful if"— The wet sketch fluttered from the girl's hand and fell into the ashes of the studio stove. When she picked it up it was hopelessly smudged.

"Oh, it's all spoiled," said Maisie. "And I never saw it. Was it like?"

"Thank you," said Dick under his breath to the red haired girl, and he removed himself swiftly.

"How that man hates me!" said the girl. "And how he loves you, Maisie!"

"What nonsense! I know Dick's very fond of me, but he has his work to do, and I have mine."

"Yes, he is fond of you, and I think he knows there is something in impressionism after all. Maisie, can't you see?"

"See? See what?"

"Nothing. Only I know that if I could get any man to look at me as that man looks at you I'd—I don't know what I'd do. But he hates me. Oh, how he hates me!"

She was not altogether correct. Dick's hatred was tempered with gratitude for a few moments, and then he forgot the girl entirely. Only the sense of shame remained, and he was nursing it across the park in the fog. "There'll be an explosion one of these days," he said wrathfully. "But it isn't Maisie's fault. She's right—quite right, as far as she knows, and I can't blame her. This business has been going on for three months nearly—three months—and it cost me ten years' knocking about to get at the notion—the merest raw notion—of my work. That's true. But, then, I didn't have pins—drawing pins—and palette knives stuck into me every Sunday. Oh, my little darling, if ever I break you somebody will have a very bad time of it. No, she won't. I'd be as big a fool about her as I am now. I'll poison that red haired girl on my wedding day—she's unwholesome—and now I'll pass on these present bad times to Torp."

Torpenhow had been moved to lecture Dick more than once lately on the sin of levity, and Dick had listened and recoiled not a word. In the weeks between the first few Sundays of his discipline he had flung himself savagely into his work, resolved that Maisie should at least know the full stretch of his powers. Then he had taught Maisie that she must not pay the least attention to any work outside her own, and Maisie had obeyed him all too well.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales!

Some people call it tetter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to—they mitigate, but cannot cure.

It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

"Your things smell of tobacco and blood," she said once. "Can't you do anything except soldiers?"

"I could do a head of you that would startle you," thought Dick—this was before the red haired girl had brought him under the guillotine—but he only said, "I am very sorry," and harrowed Torpenhow's soul that evening with blasphemies against art. Later, insensibly and to a large extent against his own will, he ceased to interest himself in his own work. For Maisie's sake and to soothe the self respect that, it seemed to him, he lost each Sunday, he would not consciously turn out bad stuff, but since Maisie did not care even for his best it were better not to do anything at all save wait and mark time between Sunday and Sunday.

Torpenhow was disgusted as the weeks went by fruitless, and then attacked him one Sunday evening when Dick felt utterly exhausted after three hours' biting self restraint in Maisie's presence. There was language, and Torpenhow withdrew to consult the Nilghai who had come in to talk continental politics.

"Bone idle, is he? Careless, and touched in the temper?" said the Nilghai. "It isn't worth worrying over. Dick is probably playing the fool with a woman."

"Isn't that bad enough?"

"No. She may throw him out of gear and knock his work to pieces for awhile. She may even turn up here some day and make a scene on the staircase. One never knows. But until Dick speaks of his own accord you had better not touch him. He is no easy tempered man to handle."

"No. I wish he were. He is such an aggressive, cocksure fellow."

"He'll get that knocked out of him in time. He must learn that he can't storm up and down the world with a box of moist tubes and a slick brush. You're fond of him?"

"I'd take any punishment that's in store for him if I could, but the worst of it is no man can save his brother."

"No, and the worser of it is, there is no discharge in this war. Dick must learn his lesson like the rest of us. Talking of war, there 'll be trouble in the Balkans in the spring."

"That trouble is long coming. I wonder if we could drag Dick out there when it comes."

Dick entered the room shortly afterward and the question was put to him. "Not good enough," he said shortly. "I'm too comfy where I am."

"Surely you aren't taking all the stuff in the papers seriously," said the Nilghai. "Your vogue will be ended in less than six months—the public will know your touch and go on to something new—and where will you be then?"

"Here, in England."

"When you might be doing decent work among us out there. Nonsense! I shall go; the Keneu will be there, Torp will be there, Cassavetti will be there, and the whole lot of us will be there, and we shall have as much as ever we can do, with unlimited fighting and the chance for you of seeing things that would make the reputation of three Verestchagins."

"Um!" said Dick, pulling at his pipe.

"You prefer to stay here and imagine that all the world is gaping at your pictures? Just think how full an average man's life is of his own pursuits and pleasures. When 20,000 of him find time to look up between mouthfuls and grunt something about something that they aren't the least interested in, the net result is called fame, reputation or notoriety, according to the taste and fancy of the speller, my lord."

"I know that as well as you do. Give me credit for a little gumption."

"Be hanged if I do!"

"Be hanged, then. You probably will be—for a spy, by excited Turks. Heigh-ho! I'm weary, dead weary, and virtue has gone out of me." Dick dropped into a chair and was fast asleep in a minute.

"That's a bad sign," said the Nilghai in an undertone.

Torpenhow picked the pipe from the waistcoat where it was beginning to burn and put a pillow behind the head. "We can't help; we can't help," he said. "It's a good, ugly sort of old cocoanut, and I'm fond of it. There's the scar of the wipe he got when he was cut over in the square."

"Shouldn't wonder if that has made him a trifle mad."

"I should. He's a most businesslike madman."

Then Dick began to snore furiously.

"Oh, here! No affection can stand this sort of thing. Wake up, Dick, and go and sleep somewhere else if you intend to make a noise about it."

"When a cat has been out on the tiles all night," said the Nilghai in his beard, "I notice that she usually sleeps all day. This is natural history."

Dick staggered away, rubbing his eyes and yawning.

He did no work of any kind for a week. Then came another Sunday. He dreaded and longed for the day always, but since the red haired girl had sketched him there was rather more dread than desire in his mind.

He discovered that Maisie had entirely neglected his suggestions about line work. She had gone off at score filled with some absurd notion for a "fancy head." It cost Dick something to command his temper.

"What's the good of suggesting anything?" he said pointedly.

"Ah, but this will be a picture—a real picture, and I know that Kami will let me send it to the salon. You don't mind, do you?"

"I suppose not. But you won't have time for the salon."

Maisie hesitated a little. She even felt uncomfortable.

"We're going over to France a month sooner because of it. I shall get the idea sketched out here and work it up at Kami's."

Dick's heart stood still, and he came very near to being disgusted with his queen who could do no wrong. "Just when I thought I had made some headway she goes off chasing butterflies. It's too maddening!"

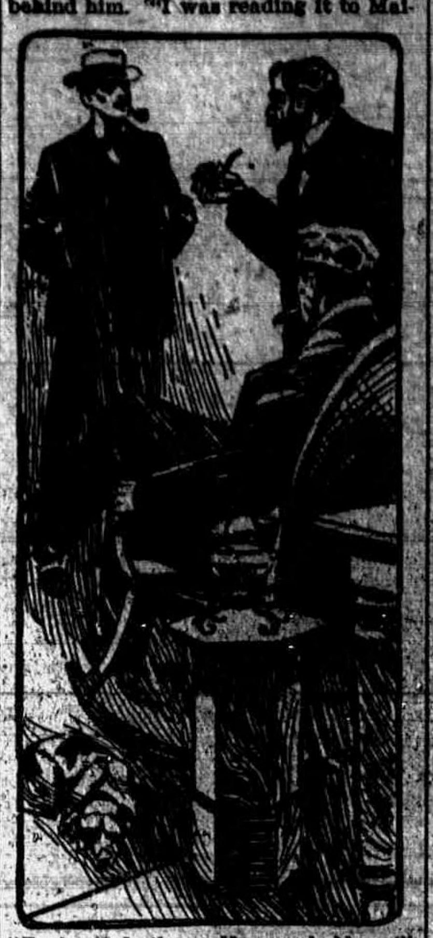
There was no possibility of arguing, for the red haired girl was in the studio. Dick could only look unutterable reproach.

"I'm sorry," he said, "and I think you made a mistake. But what's the idea of your new picture?"

"I took it from a book."

"That's bad to begin with. Books are not the places for pictures. And"—

"It's this," said the red haired girl behind him. "I was reading it to Maisie the other day from the 'City of Dreadful Night.' D'you know the book?"



"Be hanged, then. You probably will be."

"A little. I am sorry I spoke. There are pictures in it. What has taken her fancy?"

"The description of the Melancolia:

"Her folded wings as of a mighty eagle,
But all too impotent to lift the regal
Robustness of her earth born strength and pride.

"The forehead charged with baleful thoughts and dreams,
The household bunch of keys, the housewife's gown,
Voluminous invented and yet rigid,
As though a shell of burnished metal frigid,
Her feet thick shod to tread all weakness down."

There was no attempt to conceal the scorn of the lazy voice. Dick winced.

"But that has been done already by an obscure artist of the name of Durer," said he. "How does the poem run?

"Three centuries and threescore years ago
With fantasies of his peculiar thought.

"You might just as well try to rewrite 'Hamlet.' It will be waste of time."

"No, it won't," said Maisie, putting down the teacups with clatter to reassure herself. "And I mean to do it. Can't you see what a beautiful thing it would make?"

"How in perdition can one do work when one hasn't had the proper training? Any fool can get a notion. It needs training to drive the thing through—training and conviction—not rushing after the first fancy." Dick spoke between his teeth.

"You don't understand," said Maisie. "I think I can do it."

Again the voice of the girl behind him:

"Baffled and beaten back, she works on still;
Weary and sick of soul, she works the more.
Sustained by her indomitable will,
The hands shall fashion, and the brain shall pore,
And all her sorrow shall be turned to labor—

"I fancy Maisie means to embody herself in the picture."

"Sitting on a throne of rejected pictures? No, I shan't, dear. The notion in itself has fascinated me. Of course you don't care for fancy heads, Dick. I don't think you could do them. You like blood and bones."

"That's a direct challenge. If you can do a Melancolia that isn't merely a sorrowful female head, I can do a better one, and I will, too. What do you know about Melancolias?" Dick firmly believed that he was even then tasting three-quarters of all the sorrow in the world.

"She was a woman," said Maisie, "and she suffered a great deal—till she could suffer no more. Then she began to laugh at it all, and then I painted her and sent her to the salon."

Pere Marquette Buys a Road.

Petoskey, Mich., Sept. 3.—The Pere Marquette will shorten its distance from Petoskey to Detroit by sixty miles. It has purchased the Klondike road in Kalkaska county, which can easily be connected with the Pere Marquette at Clare and at Bellaire, thus giving a cross-state route that will reduce their time to Detroit two hours.

An Effective Threat.

A youth was engaged as junior clerk by a firm of lawyers, and by way of filling in his time and testing his worth on his first day he was told to write a letter demanding payment of a debt from a client who was long in arrears. To the great surprise of his employers a check for the amount arrived the next day. They sent for the young clerk and asked him to produce a copy of the letter which had had such an astonishing result. The letter ran as follows:

Dear Sir—If you do not at once remit payment of the amount which you owe us, we will take steps that will amaze you.

An Event With Him.

Famley—It isn't possible for me to be well dressed, then?

Famley—That's just it. I couldn't get a new suit without attracting unusual attention.—Philadelphia Press.

Reed Enjoyed It.

Thomas B. Reed was once the victim of a printer's error the unusual aptness of which, after the first flush of indignation had subsided, appealed so strongly to his sense of the comic that he never failed to refer to the matter with the keenest gusto whenever he met the man whom he, with the utmost mock solemnity, always held responsible for it.

The late Colonel John A. Cockerill's handwriting in the heat of composition was sometimes liable to lose itself in an almost interminable tangle, decipherable only with the greatest difficulty. On one occasion he undertook to say that "any one can see Tom Reed has the face of an honest man," but was horrified when he opened his paper the following morning and found that the types made him say that "any one can see Tom Reed has a face like a harvest moon."

An Effective "Attachment."

Attaching a man's property for debt is supposed to be a legal process, but an incident which occurred years ago in the city of Natchez, as related by Davy Crockett in his "Life and Adventures," shows that there are other "attachments" which sometimes accomplish a beneficent purpose.

An odd affair occurred when I was last at Natchez, says Mr. Crockett. A steamboat stopped at the landing, and one of the crew went ashore to purchase provisions. He went into a saloon on the way, and the adroit inmates contrived to rob him of all his money. The captain of the boat, a determined fellow, went ashore in the hope of persuading them to refund, but they declined.

Without further ceremony, the captain, assisted by his crew and passengers, some 300 or 400 in number, made fast an immense cable to the frame building where the theft had been committed. Then he allowed fifteen minutes for the money to be forthcoming, vowing that if it were not produced within that time he would put steam to his boat and drag the house into the river.

The thieves knew that he would keep his word, and the money was promptly produced.

A Fine Piece of Work.

"How's that?" asked his chum.

"Well, a fellow was brought in with a crushed leg. The professor said it must come off. But by some means or other he cut off the wrong leg."

"Do you call that a fine piece of surgery?"

"Wait a bit. The professor said it would be terrible for the poor fellow to go about with no legs at all, so he splintered up the crushed leg instead of cutting that off, too, and now it is as good as ever. An ordinary surgeon would have left the fellow legless. Wonderful skill, the professor's!"

Wonders of the Human Heart.

The workings of the human heart have been computed by a celebrated physiologist, and he has demonstrated that it is equal to the lifting of 120 tons in twenty-four hours. Presuming that the blood is thrown out of the heart at each pulsation in the proportion of sixty-nine strokes of nine feet, the mileage of the blood through the body might be taken at 207 yards per minute, seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, 61,320 miles per year, or 5,150,000 miles in a lifetime of eighty-four years. In the same period of time the heart must beat 2,869,776,000 times.

Toggery for the Steamer.
The Mistakes of the Inexperienced.
The Appropriate Frock.

After a week's residence on the mammoth floating hotel Arabic, which brought me comfortably through, according to the ships log, "high seas, heavy seas, rough seas," I have arrived at the first stage of my journey and stop to record a few of my impressions of the woman who travels and what she wears, or should wear, before proceeding to London.

I could write a long chapter on what to avoid in providing a steamer outfit, but I will be generous and draw a veil over the chiffon, be-flounced and be-ruffled short-comings of our inexperienced sister, and alas I saw many of her, knowing full well that our American Woman's far-famed adaptability will come to her rescue and she will never, never do it again.

A woman naturally wishes to look her best during the week on shipboard when she is in as constant evidence as at a hotel, but an elaborate wardrobe is out of place at sea, and only permissible on boarding the steamer, and again on landing, when the tailor-made woman may once more appear in soft silks and furbelows.

It is the tailor-made woman who wins laurels for her appropriate travelling costume. She is always trim, neat and smart. On shipboard her walking skirt escapes the deck. Her hat or cap fits snugly. A shirt waist of severe cut worn under a stunning Forsythe sweater, high shoes and a heavy "man's glove for women" complete a costume comfortable, chic and becoming.

One of the most admired Forsythe sweaters seen on board was of white, hand-knitted in cable design, the cable running from neck to waist-line forming the tapering French back and fastened down the slightly bloused front with crocheted loops and pearl buttons. A chic standing collar to be buttoned close or left open at the throat completed this stunning garment.

Nothing is more comfortable for a windy walk on deck than the long ulster which comes in varying weights of Covert cloth, Scotch and English weaves and Cravenette. Among these cloths the Cravenette is the most popular and no amount of dampness seems to dim or penetrate its glossy surface.

Equipped thus, with the addition of rug and pillow, a golf cape for steamer chair wrapping up, and a Continental comfort garment for cosying herself in her cabin, a woman can cross the ocean comfortably, and with the happy assurance that she is looking her best.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

A pleasing vein of rich comedy runs through "The Eleventh Hour" the pleasing and entertaining melodrama by Lincoln J. Carter which comes to the New Bradley on Tuesday Sept. 8, which relieves the tense excitement of the plot. The characters are exceptionally well taken. The five acts of the play are rich in detail and thrilling in the extreme. From the rising to the drop of the curtain the audience is kept in a state of excitement and the movement of the play never flags or lacks in interest.

"The Eleventh Hour."

Lincoln J. Carter's ever popular melodrama "The Eleventh Hour" will be seen at the New Bradley Tuesday, Sept. 8, promises to be the event of the theatrical season. The stage settings are of the first order, better than have been seen at the New Bradley for some time, some of them being real works of art. In the first act, the scenery showing a garden with an old rustic mill in the background, is very realistic and in the last act the elaborate setting or the millionaire's drawing room could hardly be duplicated except in reality. The set is superb and never fails to elicit a burst of applause when the curtain rises. The company is an excellent one and is said to be far superior to most of those that visit here.

"Laugh and Grow Fat."

Life is such a serious business with the average mortal that an opportunity for a hearty laugh is more than welcome to most people. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine," and so do the humorous features of that great metropolitan daily, The Chicago Record-Herald. The first thing that greets you on the first page of every issue is the humorous cartoon by Ralph Wilder, the well-known artist, that frequently tells more at a glance than could be conveyed in a column of reading matter. Every issue contains also a humorous small story on the editorial page and the "Alternating Currents" column written by S. E. Kiser, one of the most popular humorous writers in the country. In addition to all these, the Sunday issue always includes a comic section, guaranteed to produce laughter.

LITERARY NOTES.

"King Cotton" is as real a force today as he ever has been. The whole world has followed the state of the cotton market during the past summer with the keenest interest. A recent newspaper interview with Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture, emphasized the importance of cotton-growing as an American industry, considered wholly apart from the speculative side of the matter. In the September Review of Reviews, Mr. Richard H. Edmonds of Baltimore, one of the foremost authorities on American cotton, gives important statistical data showing the relative rank attained by our Southern States in this industry, and throwing much light on the changed conditions that have been developed since the Civil War. The article is illustrated from photographs of actual scenes in the Cotton Belt, showing the crop at every stage of growth and manipulation, from the field to the warehouse and the hold of the ocean vessel.

THE OLD RELIABLE

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

From

NOTHING

To Owning The

Best Paper in Lenawee.

SUCH A MAN IS

Good Natured Grandon.

Not more than a dozen years ago the HERALD printed for D. W. Grandon in the HERALD office at Tecumseh, the Adrian Messenger. Grandon had started the Adrian Messenger, had no press on which to print it, and the other newspapers in Adrian thought to suppress it and would none of them print the paper, but Grandon would not be surpassed, brought the forms "by hand," as the old saying is, over to Tecumseh each week and S. C. Stacy printed the Adrian Messenger in Tecumseh.

What will not even a few years bring about in even a small business with hard work and persistance back of it. The old Adrian Messenger is the Adrian Telegram of today with a daily circulation of 3500 copies, printed on a Cox Duplex printing press that cost $4000, that prints both sides of an eight page paper at the rate of 6000 copies an hour, the type being set on two machines, a Linotype machine which cost $2000 and a "Thorne" which cost $1000.

The pay roll on the Telegram will run over $9000 a year. And think of it, only a few years ago the papers of Adrian would not print the Telegram for Grandon, thinking to force him out of the country. Today the Telegram is not only way beyond competition, but is really way beyond Adrian in growth and enterprise. Besides all this our friend Grandon has brought up a family of six children. Really who in old Lenawee county has done better?

A Boy's Wild Ride For Life.

With family around expecting him to die and a son riding for life 18 miles to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, W. H. Brown of Leesville, Ind. endured death's agonies from asthma; but this wonderful medicine gave instant relief and soon cured him. He writes: I now sleep soundly every night." Like marvelous cures of consumption, coughs colds and grip prove its matchless merit for all throat and lung troubles. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at C. A. Wright's drug store.

A HELPING HAND

Is gladly extended by a Tecumseh Citizen.

There are many enthusiastic citizens in Tecumseh prepared to tell their experience of the public good. Testimony from such a source is the best of evidence, and will prove a "helping hand" to scores of readers. Read the following statement:

Mrs. J. H. Welch, who resides in the south western section of Tecumseh, says: "I wish to express my gratitude for the benefit derived from the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back troubled me for a long time with a constant dull aching pain across my loins and when stooping or exerting myself it became very sharp. If I took cold it always settled in my kidneys and in the morning I was so lame and stiff that I could hardly attend to my work. I used several simple household remedies but they did not bring relief. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills recommended and spoken of so highly I concluded to test their merits and got a box at C. A. Wright's drug store. They took right hold of the cause and in a short time the pain in my back was a thing of the past. I can now straighten after bending or stooping without any inconvenience. Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly a wonderful remedy."

For sale by all dealers: Price 50 cents per box, Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

When a person wants to elevate anything he should keep off of it. It would be well for the stage if some actors would remember this.

"What kind of a carpet shall we get for the parson's study?" asked a church committee man of his colleague. "Axminster," was the comprehensive reply.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Overwork any organ and it gives out—the stomach is no exception. Ask it to digest anything, everything, at any time in half the time required, and like an over driven horse, it balks. Nature intended the stomach should have regular hours. A time to work, a time to rest—and when you break up this habit, you upset the whole arrangement. The stomach nerves become exhausted, the glands refuse to act, the food does not digest—lies heavy, ferments and repeats. There is pain, gas forms, bloating occurs, the heart becomes irregular and a nervous, irritable feeling sets in. This is nervous dyspepsia and Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills its cure.

Mrs. R. VanDuzer of Tecumseh, Mich., says: "My trouble was with my stomach, the food did not digest properly and as a result I suffered from severe headaches. I got a box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills at Wright's drug store and as a result of their use my stomach is again strong, the digestion is perfect and my headaches cured. I think the medicine for nervous troubles cannot be approached." 50c a box at dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. See that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase M. D. are on every package.

HE WAS CRAZY.

Prominent New York Man Kills Woman and Himself.

New York, Sept. 3.—Henry Townsend Edson, son of former mayor of New York, Franklin Edson, in his apartments at 292 West Ninety-second street, Wednesday shot and instantly killed Mrs. Fannie Pullen of 673 West End avenue, and then shot and killed himself. The murder and suicide appear to have been premeditated and followed a dramatic scene in which Edson called upon Mrs. Pullen, a close and honored friend of his wife and family, to desert her husband and children and fly with him to another state. Mrs. Pullen, a very handsome woman, is said to have been the daughter of a United States naval officer.

The double tragedy brought to the surface the fact that Edson, who was "comptroller" of St. Michael's Protestant Episcopal church, had been suspected of appropriating funds belonging to the parish and that expert accountants were at work on his accounts. It was also declared by those related with the family that Edson was financially distressed because of Wall street speculations. Whatever may have been the precise cause of the tragedy, members of the Edson family insist that the man was insane. There are many indications that Edson was madly in love with Mrs. Pullen.

Gen. Charles King President.

St. Paul, Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines Wednesday elected the following officers: President, Gen. Charles King, Wisconsin; first vice-president, Col. J. W. Pope, Colorado; second vice-president, Capt. C. E. Locke, Colorado; third vice-president, E. H. Schuette, St. Paul; fourth vice-president, Capt. H. A. Crowe, Pennsylvania; fifth vice-president, Col. W. S. Metsalfe, Kansas; sixth vice-president, Major D. S. Fairchild, Jr., Iowa; secretary, A. E. Fouts, Missouri; treasurer, J. E. White, Illinois; chaplain, Capt. James M. Bailey, Nebraska. Aside from the election of officers, the feature of the day was the parade, which was participated in not only by the Philippine veterans but by the local G. A. R. posts. The reunion came to a close last night with a campfire.

Pennsylvania Democratic Ticket.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 3.—The Democratic state convention Wednesday nominated the following ticket by acclamation: Auditor-general, Senator Arthur G. Dewalt of Lehigh county; state treasurer, Senator Joel G. Hill; judges of the superior court, ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn and John A. Ward of Philadelphia. The platform adopted is briefer than the usual Democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

Boiler Blew Up.

Aurora, Ill., Sept. 3.—A threshing engine working on a farm near Geneva, the county seat of Kane county, blew up Wednesday afternoon, killing John Stevens, a farm hand from West Virginia, and injuring a score of others, one of whom will die. Both ends of the boiler blew out with a crash that was heard a mile away.

Must Move the Wall.

Owosso, Mich., Sept. 2.—The common council has ordered proceedings begun to compel Rev. Fr. Slane to remove the wall of the school building he is erecting from the street, it being claimed it encroaches eleven inches. At a former meeting a motion not to interfere was carried, but the city attorney decided it illegal, and last night a tie vote of the aldermen gave the mayor an opportunity to decide the battle in his own favor by the casting vote.

Accused Demands Investigation.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 3.—Editor L. J. Lisemer of the Union-Record has made some sensational charges against V. L. Shankland, keeper of the county poorhouse, in which he alleges cruelty to the inmates and niggardly treatment among other things. Shankland denies everything and has asked the county superintendent to investigate.

Shot Daughter by Mistake.

Otsego, Mich., Sept. 2.—Mary, daughter of Duncan Swan, a well-to-do farmer living north of this place, is dead from a gunshot wound inflicted by her father. She was picking corn for dinner when Swan, seeing the tops waving and thinking crows were in the field, fired, the charge taking effect in the girl's breast.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over 30 years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by all druggists.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Mrs. C. L. Lowe passed away Monday evening at 10:30 o'clock after an illness of nearly two months. The funeral services were conducted from the M. E. church Thursday at 2 p. m., Rev. T. M. Mott officiating.

George J. Pocklington was born in Yorkshire, England, 1838 and died in Ridgeway Aug. 25, 1903, aged 65 years. He came to this country in November 1848 with his mother and grandmother and made his home for three years with his Uncle George and Aunt Sarah Pocklington. He then worked by the month until 1859 when he was married to Miss Lamar Larkin. To them were born three sons, Lafayette, of this place, Albert, of Onsted, and Edwin, who has always made his home with his parents on the farm on which they first settled. The deceased was a model farmer. His farm always presented a neat appearance and what wealth he acquired was gained honestly and by hard labor. He was a good neighbor and it can truthfully be said that he had no enemies. He met his death Tuesday evening while walking home from Ridgeway.

ESCAPED BEING GORED.

Owosso Butcher Had an Exciting Experience.

Owosso, Mich., Sept. 2.—"My insurance isn't due until tomorrow," said Drover William Donigan to the clerk of a local fraternal insurance society yesterday, "but I want to pay it right off. When a man shakes hands with death the way I just did he naturally thinks of his family."

Donigan went into a department of his slaughter house, south of the city, and attempted to throw a rope over the horns of a large bull which he had confined there. Divining that the process which reduced him to beefsteak was about to begin, the bull decided to put up a fight. He lowered his head and rushed at Donigan. The latter fled, but slipped. As he threw himself behind a post the bull struck it full tilt, and Donigan's right arm was caught between the bull's horn and the post.

With a wrench that removed several inches of skin, Donigan got free and once more retreated, while the animal, bellowing with rage, charged again. Donigan backed into a corner. Three times the bull tried to pierce his body, but the sharp horns were so wide that they struck the walls on each side. Donigan reached a pitchfork and after several minutes of desperate fighting reached a place of safety, exhausted. The bull was promptly killed.

The Law's Delays.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 2.—Under the court rules it will be about seven months before the evidence and pleadings in the suits brought by the railroad companies to upset the assessments made by the state board of assessors can be completed and the case submitted to Judge Wanty of the United States district court at Grand Rapids. The companies now have three months in which to submit their proofs, the state will then have an equal length of time in which to put in its evidence, and the companies will be allowed thirty days for rebuttal. Following this the state will have ten days in which to complete its case.

Train Fatally Hurt Woman.

Battle Creek, Mich., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Carrie Buchanan, a widow who works in a canning factory, was struck by a fast Michigan Central passenger train near the Hamblin avenue crossing at 12:55 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and is probably fatally injured.

Sudden Death at Bay City.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 2.—Gustave Lauter died suddenly Tuesday morning at the home of F. C. Hamme, 2114 North Madison avenue, from hemorrhage of the lungs. He was 65 years of age and has one brother living.

Try for Health

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

"Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Sayda Dunbar

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

LIFE PLANT

Renews Life.

NOT ONLY DOES IT PURIFY THE BLOOD, BUT IT RESTORES THE VITAL ELEMENT IN THE BLOOD.

There are hundreds and thousands whose systems are loaded with uric acid poison preparing the way for Rheumatism, Eczema, etc., and prompt action is necessary or serious pain and disease are sure to ensue. The first symptoms of any of these diseases are so slight as to pass unnoticed. A slight stiffness or soreness in the joints and slight twinges in the back, point to a serious condition against which prompt measures should be taken. Many remedies have been proposed for the cure of Rheumatism, Eczema, Catarrh, etc., but so far only one has proven of any real value and that one is LIFE PLANT.

It has been very successful in curing these diseases, so successful that we sell it with a positive guarantee. Take LIFE PLANT, take it now.

WILDCAT CONCERNS

Warning Isseud By Insurance Commissioner Berry.

CANNOT BE SUED IN MICHIGAN

Threatens Prosecution of Agents Giving Business to Unauthorized Companies—Declares He Will Stamp Out Fraud.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 7.—The commissioner of insurance has had his attention called, during the past ten days, to several instances where it is alleged fire insurance agents in as many sections of the state have placed business in unauthorized companies. Investigations are being made and arrests will follow in all cases where the facts warrant such action.

In each case referred to the property has been destroyed by fire, and each company has utterly ignored the appeals of both agents and property owners to settle. This explains why these worthless companies are ready to take any risk offered without making any inspection of the property, and write the business at far less than it will be written for by any authorized company. Whatever these wildcat companies collect in the way of premiums, whether it is little or much, is pure velvet, as they never materialize after a fire occurs. Not having complied with Michigan laws, they cannot be sued in this state, and innasmuch as they are without exception utterly irresponsible financially, it is useless for the defrauded property owner to seek to proceed against them at their domiciles. They are not licensed in any state in the Union.

The commissioner of insurance has repeatedly warned Michigan property owners against these frauds and published a list of them in the newspapers of the state. Their operations in Michigan have been materially curtailed during the past year, but it is evident that further heroic treatment is necessary before they are stamped out entirely. The commissioner says that every person found aiding the men procuring business in Michigan will be prosecuted under the criminal statute, and if he is the agent for reputable and authorized companies, his license for the latter will be revoked. Some arrests will be made at an early date.

Persons who have been surreptitiously obtained as agents for these wildcat companies are reminded that a circuit court jury recently rendered a judgment against an agent who placed business with one of these fraudulent concerns which failed to pay a loss, the judgment being for the full amount of the loss sustained.

Drugged and Robbed.

South Haven, Mich., Sept. 7.—A young man giving his name as Weston Upton, of 214 Dayton street, Chicago, was drugged on the steamer Eastland, between Chicago and South Haven, Sunday by unknown parties and robbed of $40. Dr. Spooner, who was called by the Michigan Steamship company, said the young man had been given a heavy dose of chloral hydrate. Upton was taken to Chicago last night. When the boat left here at 6 o'clock he was rigid and unconscious.

Brute Admits His Guilt.

Cadillac, Mich., Sept. 7.—Seth Shattuck, the child assaulter, was arraigned Saturday afternoon before Judge Haskins. He waived examination and was bound over to the circuit court under $1,000 bonds, which he was unable to furnish. The body of the child was exhumed and a postmortem held by two local physicians shows evidence of assault. Shattuck apparently considers the crime not serious, as he admits the whole truth.

Injured by Falling Beam.

St. Louis, Mich., Sept. 7.—While the workmen on the factory of the St. Louis Sugar company were placing a roof beam one of the guy ropes broke. The beam fell and several of the workmen were injured. One, Frank Fraley of New Baltimore sustained several injuries, having two ribs broken and crushed and was seriously injured internally. His recovery is doubtful.

Rowdies Got the Detective.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 7.—Precinct Detective Asa B. Bowden of the Scotten avenue station, Detroit, was attacked Saturday night by a band of rowdies whom he was trying to stop from using improper language on the street and so badly beaten that he will be confined to his home for several weeks. Three men are locked up charged with the assault.

Banner Day For Licenses.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 7.—Special fruit excursions from Indiana, Ohio and Illinois points brought in one of the largest crowds of the season Sunday, besides the enormous crowds on the steamers from Chicago. County Clerk Church reports yesterday the banner day for licenses, twenty-four of them having been issued.

Rural Carriers Meet.

Owosso, Mich., Sept. 7.—At a meeting of Shiawassee County Association of Rural Free Delivery Carriers, in this city Saturday, thirty members were present. John Sprague of Owosso was elected president and Philip Shepard, also of this city, secretary. A banquet was afterward served at the Exchange hotel.

Train Killed Him.

Jackson, Mich., Sept. 4.—Charles Wooley, farm laborer, was killed by a Michigan Central train at Butler's crossing, just west of this city. It is supposed that he was driving across the track, as the wreck of a wagon was found at the crossing. Wooley was about 40 years of age.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

Has world-wide fame for marvellous cures. It surpasses any other salve, lotion, ointment or balm for cuts, corns, burns, boils, sores, felons, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, chapped hands, skin eruptions; infallible for piles. Cure guaranteed. C. A. Wright, druggist.

RELIANCE WINS

Shamrock III Fails to Raise the Much-Prized Cup.

WAS AGAIN BADLY DAFEATED

Lipton's Boat Failed to Win a Heat—Small Fleet Saw the Finish—Shamrock Never Finished—Lipton Happy in His Defeat.

New York, Sept. 4.—The Reliance, the American cup defender, Thursday won the third and final race and the series for that famous sea trophy, the America's cup. In a dense fog, which prevented vision beyond 200 yards, she finished the race at 5:30:02 amid the acclamations of the assembled fleet. Shamrock III., after running for more than an hour in the fog, missed the finish line, passed by it and then returned to it from the opposite direction. As the Reliance was then being towed through the fleet, yacht ensigns fluttering from her truck and spreaders in celebration of her victory, the Shamrock III. did not cross the finish line. As often said of the historic race when the America won the cup, there was no second.

RELIANCE

And her principal owner, C. Oliver Iselin.

This successful result was achieved only after four futile attempts to sail off the race and after the outcome had been admitted by even Sir Thomas Lipton to be a foregone conclusion. Thursday's was the eighth attempt to sail a race. After one fluke the Reliance won the two following races, one by seven minutes and three seconds and the other by one minute and nineteen seconds. A week ago the first attempt to sail the third race failed, and attempts have been made every day this week. On two occasions the Reliance led the Shamrock to the finish by about two miles, but failed to reach it before the expiration of the time limit of five and a half hours. Yesterday's victory means that the cup is destined to remain in America until England is able to produce a genius equal to Herrshoff in yacht designing.

SHAMROCK III.

And her owner, Sir Thomas Lipton.

Rarely if ever has there been a more spectacular finish than the Reliance's Thursday. After racing for more than an hour at terrific speed through a blinding fog, the Reliance burst through the wall of mist upon the vision of the spectators on the fleet assembled at the finish line and, heeling under a great bellying balloon jib topsail until her lee rail was awash, fled across the finish line almost before the spectators could determine for a certainty that it was she. Once more the Yankee boat had added to the long string of victories in contests for the honored old silver trophy that carried with it the blue ribbon of the sea.

A fleet of less than thirty vessels went down to the familiar waters of the in course to witness this fifth effort of the Reliance to cover the course of thirty miles within the time limit. It had become a race of the American boat against time instead of a contest of two well-matched craft.

The official time is as follows:

	Start.	Finish.
Reliance	1:01:56	5:30:02
Shamrock III	1:02:00	did not finish.

Made For Queen Draga.

New York, Sept. 7.—A dress designed for Queen Draga, the unfortunate consort of the king of Servia, who was assassinated with him in their palace at Belgrade, and which reached Belgrade from Paris on the day of the assassination, has been secured by a New York firm and will be on exhibition in a few days. Both the original and model have been brought from Belgrade.

Crushed by Falling Tree.

Niles, Mich., Sept. 7.—Godfrey Boyle, a wealthy and prominent pioneer farmer, was attempting to dislodge a fallen tree from where it was leaning against another tree, when it fell upon him, crushing his right leg to a pulp and otherwise injuring him. Owing to his advanced age it is thought he cannot recover.

CHANGE OF POLICY

Will Be Made by President In Appointment of Consuls.

EXPERIENCE VERY IMPORTANT

Men Already in the Service Preferred—Will Better the Conditions of Foreign Trade—Several Appointments to Be Made Soon.

Oyster Bay, Sept. 4.—An important change of policy with respect to the making of appointments in the consular service has been decided upon by President Roosevelt. He discussed the change Friday with Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Loomis.

For many years it has been practically the uniform practice of presidents to appoint to positions in the consular service substantially with reference to whatever previous experience they may have had. Quite naturally the president endeavored always to select for appointment men of integrity and ability, but experience was not a determining factor in the equation.

President Roosevelt, after consultation with Secretary Hay, Assistant Secretary Loomis and members of his cabinet not immediately identified with the state department, has determined to appoint hereafter to important places in the consular service men who already are in the service and have had that experience and training in minor positions which will render them the more capable of filling places of higher grade and greater importance.

The change in policy does not extend the civil service to the consular service, and it does not extend, necessarily, a consul's tenure of office at any particular place, but, it is pointed out, it does give reasonable assurance to the manufacturing and commercial interests of the United States which particularly are interested in the extension of the country's foreign trade, that in a comparatively brief time all important consular situations will be filled not only by men of character and ability, but by men who, by training and experience are specially qualified to advance the trade interests of the United States.

Mr. Loomis discussed with the president several appointments in the service that are to be made very soon. It is understood that all of the appointees will be men who now are filling places of lesser importance in the service. They are to be promoted and in turn their places will be filled by men who have not had the experience they have had.

SOME MAGIC SPELL

Hangs About That Bloomin' Old Cup, Thinks Sir Thomas.

New York, Sept. 5.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the guest of honor of the Pilgrims of the United States at a dinner given in his honor last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. Nearly 150 men prominent in many walks of life were present.

Sir Thomas was given many hearty rounds of cheers when he arose to speak. He said in part:

"As regards the cup races, we have been beaten fairly and squarely, and I congratulate America on having the better boat.

"I am beginning to think that there is some magic spell about that bloomin' old cup. Two years ago I had it almost within my grasp, but it escaped me then as it has escaped me now, and it seems as far off as ever. It reminds me of the story of the Irishman who was asked if he could play a fiddle. 'I don't know,' said he, 'I've never tried it.' I have tried it and tried it again without success, but my motto has always been 'try, try again.'

"Although I have been without success each time I have tried, I do not despair that some day we shall succeed in capturing that famous trophy, although I must confess that we appear now to be more than a little bit astern.

"Heresshoff is the greatest designed of the age, but I am still very hopeful that I will see that cup on the other side yet."

Sir Thomas Lipton is still undecided whether to challenge again for the America's cup. He said Friday: "If I can find a man who can design a boat to beat the Yankee sloop I shall challenge again. To say that I will not challenge again is untrue. If I do challenge again it will be with a ninety-footer."

Escaping Prisoners Shot.

Birmingham, Ala., Sept. 5.—Four convicts were shot at Pratt mines prison early Friday morning, in an attempt to escape, the wounded men being Tom Fay, John Brewer, Richard Kinnebeck and Thomas Nelzen. Brewer and Kinnebeck will probably die. All are white and were serving terms ranging from two to twenty years. They had secured a quantity of dynamite and blew an opening in one end of the prison. They ran through this and hurled sticks of dynamite at the guards. The latter opened fire with Winchesters and succeeded in preventing what might have been a wholesale delivery. J. H. Emery, serving twenty years, was the only one to escape.

Big Wheat Yield.

Reading, Mich., Sept. 7.—Farmers are reporting the best wheat yield for years, an average of from 30 to 40 bushels to the acre. E. R. Galloway's wheat ran 40 bushels.

What is Life?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, pain results. Irregular living means derangement of the organs, resulting in constipation, headache or liver trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly re-adjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at C. A. Wright's drug store.

TO KEEP UP PRICES

Latest Organization Among Farmers Much Like a Trust.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF EQUITY

Organization Proposed to Maintain Prices of Farm Products by Withholding Them From Market—Outline of Its Work.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 4.—The American Society of Equity, the new farmers organization intended to maintain prices of agricultural products, is, as its name indicates, national in its scope. Headquarters, called the National Union, are established in Indianapolis and it is proposed to organize branches called local unions in every school district. As a medium of communication between headquarters and the members an official paper is published.

The affairs of the society are regulated by a board of directors made up of experts on various agricultural matters. Every member becomes a crop reporter to the National Union, which in turn reports crops and markets to the members and gives advice about prices, marketing, etc.

The first object as soon as the society is sufficiently developed will be to fix a minimum price on each crop as soon as harvested. This will be made equitable on the basis of production and consumption, and will prevail until another crop is raised. This minimum price will be augmented by a small increase each month to equal shrinkage, interest, etc., which will go to those farmers who hold their crops back so as to always keep the market in a seeking condition.

It is claimed by the organizers that American farmers who represent the surplus of any crop can make the market price in this country and on staple crops throughout the world. Considering the great number of farmers who will join this society, a large number, they say, can refuse to abide by the orders of the board of directors and still there will be enough left to control the surplus at all times. The part that makes the price on the whole—and the minimum price will be maintained.

The promoters of this "farmers' trust" see in it not only profitable results to agriculture, but a solution of the labor problem; the removal of the desire on the part of the boys to leave the farm, and the making of farming a preferred profession. It will, they say, restore value to land, encourage the improvement of farm homes and make, in short, rural America a paradise.

Jilted Lover Shot Himself.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 4.—Frank Carty, a young man scarcely 19 years of age, lies probably mortally wounded on one of the cots in Harper hospital, whispering the name of the young girl who is said to have jilted him a short time ago. Carty's rash deed was committed shortly after 9 o'clock last night, when he was refused admittance to the home of F. W. Burnett, the father of Lottie Burnett, the young girl with whom he was enamored. The young man upon being turned away stepped into the street, drew the revolver and fired, the bullet lodging in his stomach. Mr. Burnett is quite indifferent to the rash deed of the young man, but it is learned that the daughter is prostrated with grief.

Finding Oil at Monroe.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 4.—Some years ago a well was dug on the Potter farm, southeast of Erie, this county. For the past three years gas has been used in the Potter house from the well, and last month oil filled the pipes. The flow of gas ceased. Fifteen barrels of oil were pumped, when the apparatus broke. Pumping will be resumed soon. Another vein of oil was found in the well being dug on the Navarre farm, one mile southeast of Monroe. Everybody in the neighborhood is getting exicted.

Honors Requisition For Thomas.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 4.—Charles Thomas, a colored man, who has been in jail in Detroit for the past three weeks, will be taken back to Georgia to answer to a charge of murder, Governor Bliss Thursday afternoon having decided to honor the requisition for him. The requisition will not become effective, however, until Saturday night, as a slight defect in the papers is to be corrected, necessitating a few days' delay.

Shot While Asleep.

Gladstone, Mich., Sept. 4.—Sandy Murchie, manager of the Rapid River opera house, while in bed asleep at the Hamilton homestead camp, was shot and instantly killed by Clyde Cole, aged 15, son of Charles H. Cole, expostmaster. Cole was removing a cartridge from a gun when it was discharged, striking Murchie in the neck.

Has Two Husbands.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 5.—Mrs. Martin Coins, who pleads guilty to having had three husbands before reaching the age of 25, and who admits that she failed to get a divorce from Frank Youngs of Grand Rapids, her second venture, before marrying Balloonist Coins of this city, was sent to Mason for ten days for drunkenness. Her matrimonial experiences will be investigated while she remains at Mason.

Stomach Trouble.

"I have been troubled with my stomach for the past four years, says D. L. Beach of Clover Nook Farm, Greenfield Mass. "A few days ago I was induced to buy a box of Chamberlain,s Stomach and Liver Tablets. I have taken part of them and feel a great deal better." If you have any trouble with your stomach try a box of these tablets. You are certain to be pleased with the result Price 25c. For sale by all druggists.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

A Woman's Complexion.

It is rank foolishness to attempt to remove sallowness or greasiness of the skin by the use of cosmetics, or "local" treatment, as advocated by the "beauty doctors." The only safe and sure way that a woman can improve her complexion is by purifying and enriching the blood, which can only be accomplished by keeping the liver healthy and active. The liver is the seat of disease and blood pollution. Green's August Flower acts directly on the liver, cleanses and enriches the blood, purifies the complexion. It also cures constipation, biliousness, nervousness, and induces refreshing sleep. A single bottle of August Flower has been known to cure the most pronounced and distressing cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. New trial size bottle, 25 cents; regular size, 75 cents. CHAPTER VII.

"If I have taken the common clay
And wrought it cunningly
In the shape of a god that was digged of a clod,
The greater honor to me."

"If thou hast taken the common clay,
And thy hands be not free
From the taint of the soil, thou hast made thy spoil
The greater shame to thee."
—The Two Potters.

DICK looked at Maisie humbly and hopelessly.

"Never mind about the picture," he said. "Are you really going back to Kami's a month before your time?"

"I must go if I want to get the picture done."

"And that's all you want?"

"Of course. Don't be stupid, Dick."

"You haven't the power. You have only the ideas—the ideas and the little cheap impulses. How you could have kept at your work for ten years steadily is a mystery to me. So you are really going a month before you need?"

"I must do my work."

"Your work—bah! No, I didn't mean that. It's all right, dear. Of course you must do your work and—I think I'll say goodby for this week."

"Won't you even stay for tea?"

"No, thank you. Have I your leave to go, dear? There's nothing more you particularly want me to do, and the line work doesn't matter."

"I wish you could stay, and then we could talk over my picture. If only one single picture's a success it draws attention to all the others. I know some of my work is good, if only people could see. And you needn't have been so rude about it."

"I'm sorry. We'll talk the Melancolia over some one of the other Sundays. There are four more—yes, one, two, three, four—before you go. Goodby, Maisie."

Maisie stood by the studio window, thinking, a little white at the corners of her lips, till the red haired girl returned.

"Dick's gone off," said Maisie, "just when I wanted to talk about the picture. Isn't it selfish of him?"

Her companion opened her lips as if to speak, shut them again and went on reading "The City of Dreadful Night."

Dick was in the park, walking round and round a tree that he had chosen as his confidant for many Sundays past. He was swearing audibly, and when he found that the infirmities of the English tongue hemmed his rage he sought consolation in Arabic, which is expressly designed for the use of the afflicted. He was not pleased with the reward of his patient service, nor was he pleased with himself, and it was long before he arrived at the proposition that the queen could do no wrong.

"It's a losing game," he said. "I'm worth nothing when a whim of hers is in question. But in a losing game at Port Said we used to double the stakes and go on. She do a Melancolia! She hasn't the power or the insight or the training—only the desire. She's cursed with the curse of Reuben. She won't do line work because it means real work; and yet she's stronger than I am. I'll make her understand that I can beat her on her own Melancolia. Even then she wouldn't care. She says I can only do blood and bones. I don't believe she has blood in her veins. All the same I love her, and I must go on loving her, and if I can humble her inordinate vanity I will. I'll do a Melancolia that shall be something like a Melancolia—'the Melancolia that transcends all wit.' I'll do it at once, con—bless her!"

He discovered that the notion would not come to order, and that he could not free his mind for an hour from the thought of Maisie's departure. He took very small interest in her rough studies for the Melancolia when she showed them next week. The Sundays were racing past, and the time was at hand when all the church bells in London could not ring Maisie back to him. Once or twice he said something to Binkie about "hermaphroditic futilities," but the little dog received so many confidences both from Torpenhow and Dick that he did not trouble his tulip ears to listen.

Dick was permitted to see the girls off. They were going by the Dover night boat, and they hoped to return in August. It was then February, and Dick felt that he was being hardly used. Maisie was so busy stripping the small house across the park and packing her canvases that she had no time for thought. Dick went down to Dover and wasted a day there fretting over a wonderful possibility. Would Maisie at the very last allow him one small kiss? He reflected that he might capture her by the strong arm, as he had seen women captured in the southern Sudan, and lead her away; but Maisie would never be led. She would turn her gray eyes upon him and say, "Dick, how selfish you are!" Then his courage would fail him. It would be better after all to beg for that kiss.

Maisie looked more than usually kissable as she stepped from the night mail on to the windy pier in a gray waterproof and a little gray cloth traveling cap. The red haired girl was not so lovely. Her green eyes were hollow, and her lips were dry. Dick saw the trunks aboard and went to Maisie's side in the darkness under the bridge. The mail bags were thundering into the forehold, and the red haired girl was watching them.

"You'll have a rough passage tonight," said Dick. "It's blowing outside. I suppose I may come over and see you if I'm good."

"You mustn't. I shall be busy. At least if I want you I'll send for you. But I shall write from Vitry-sur-Marne. I shall have heaps of things to consult you about. Oh, Dick, you have been so good to me—so good to me!"

"Thank you for that, dear. It hasn't made any difference, has it?"

"I can't tell a fib. It hasn't—in that way. But don't think I'm not grateful."

"Hang the gratitude!" said Dick huskily to the paddle box.

"What's the use of worrying? You know I should ruin your life, and you'd ruin mine as things are now. You remember what you said when you were so angry that day in the park? One of us has to be broken. Can't you wait till that day comes?"

"No, love. I want you unbroken, all to myself."

Maisie shook her head. "My poor Dick, what can I say?"

"Don't say anything. Give me a kiss, only one kiss, Maisie. I'll swear I won't take any more. You might as well, and then I can be sure you're grateful."

Maisie put her cheek forward, and Dick took his reward in the darkness. It was only one kiss, but since there was no time limit specified it was a long one. Maisie wrenched herself free angrily, and Dick stood abashed and tingling from head to heel.

"Goodby, darling. I didn't mean to scare you. I'm sorry. Only—keep well and do good work, specially the Melancolia. I'm going to do one too. Remember me to Kami, and be careful what you drink. Country drinking water is bad everywhere, but it's worse in France. Write to me if you want anything, and goodby. Say goodby to the what-you-call-um girl, and—can't I have another kiss? No? You're quite right. Goodby!"

A shout told him that it was not seemly to charge up the mail bag incline. He reached the pier as the steamer began to move off, and he followed her with his heart.

"And there's nothing—nothing in the wide world—to keep us apart except her obstinacy. These Calais night boats are much too small. I'll get Torp to write to the papers about it. She's beginning to pitch already."

Maisie stood where Dick had left her till she heard a little cough at her elbow. The red haired girl's eyes were alight with cold flame.

"He kissed you!" she said. "How could you let him, when he wasn't anything to you? How dared you take a kiss from him? Oh, Maisie, let's go to the cabin. I'm sick—deathly sick!"

"We aren't into open water yet. Go down, dear, and I'll stay here. I don't like the smell of the engines. Poor Dick! He deserved one—only one. But I didn't think he'd frighten me so."

Dick returned to town next day just in time for lunch, for which he had telegraphed. To his disgust, there were only empty plates in the studio. He lifted up his voice like the bears in the fairy tale, and Torpenhow entered, looking very guilty.

"H'sh!" said he. "Don't make such a noise. I took it. Come into my rooms, and I'll show you why."

Dick paused amazed at the threshold, for on Torpenhow's sofa lay a girl asleep and breathing heavily. The little cheap sailor hat, the blue and white dress, fitter for June than for February, dabbled with mud at the skirts; the jacket trimmed with imitation astrakahn and ripped at the shoulder seams, and one-and-eleven penny umbrella, and, above all, the disgraceful condition of the kid topped boots, declared all things.

"Oh, I say, old man, this is too bad! You mustn't bring this sort up here. They steal things from the rooms."

"It looks bad, I admit, but I was coming in after lunch, and she staggered into the hall. I thought she was drunk at first, but it was collapse. I couldn't leave her as she was, so I brought her up here and gave her your lunch. She was fainting from want of food. She went fast asleep the minute she had finished."

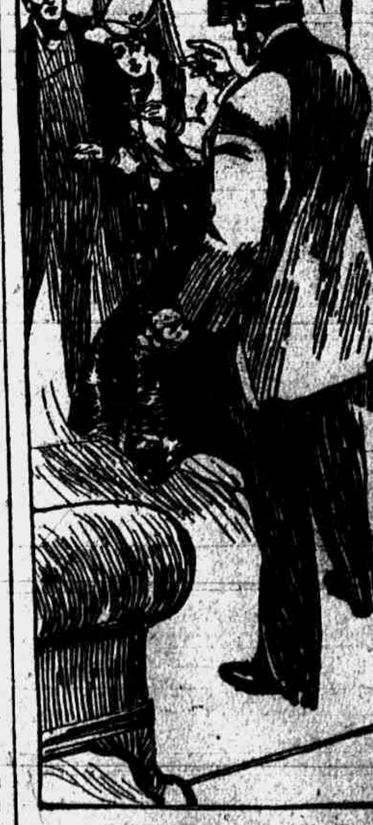
"I know something of that complaint. She's been living on sausages, I suppose. Torp, you should have handed her over to a policeman for presuming to faint in a respectable house. Poor little wretch! Look at that face! There isn't an ounce of immorality in it, only folly—slack, fatuous, feeble, futile folly. It's a typical head. D'you notice how the skull begins to show through the flesh padding on the face and cheek bone?"

"What a cold blooded barbarian it is! Don't hit a woman when she's down. Can't we do anything? She was simply dropping with starvation. She almost fell into my arms, and when she got to the food she ate like a wild beast. It was horrible."

"I can give her money, which she would probably spend in drinks. Is she going to sleep forever?"

The girl opened her eyes and glared at the men between terror and effrontery.

"Feeling better?" said Torpenhow.



"Don't let him hit me!"

"Yes, thank you. There aren't many gentlemen that are as kind as you."

"When did you leave service?" said Dick, who had been watching the scarred and chapped hands.

"How did you know I was in service? I was. General servant. I didn't like it."

"And how do you like being your own mistress?"

"Do I look as if I liked it?"

"I suppose not. One moment. Would you be good enough to turn your face to the window?"

The girl obeyed, and Dick watched her face keenly—so keenly that she made as if to hide behind Torpenhow.

"The eyes have it," said Dick, walking up and down. "They are superb eyes for my business. And, after all, every head depends on the eyes. This has been sent from heaven to make up for—what was taken away. Now the weekly strain's off my shoulders I can get to work in earnest. Evidently sent from heaven. Yes. Raise your chin a little, please."

"Gently, old man, gently. You're scaring somebody out of her wits," said Torpenhow, who could see the girl trembling.

"Don't let him hit me! Oh, please don't let him hit me! I've been hit cruel today because I spoke to a man. Don't let him look at me like that! He's reg'lar wicked, that one. Don't let him look at me like that, neither! Oh, I feel as if I hadn't nothing on when he looks at me like that!"

The overstrained nerves in the frail body gave way, and the girl wept like a child and began to scream. Dick threw open the window, and Torpenhow flung the door back.

"There you are," said Dick soothingly. "My friend here can call for a policeman, and you can run through that door. Nobody is going to hurt you."

The girl sobbed convulsively for a few minutes and then tried to laugh.

"Nothing in the world to hurt you. Now listen to me for a minute. I'm what they call an artist by profession. You know what artists do?"

"They draw the things in red and black ink on the popshop labels."

"I dare say. I haven't risen to popshop labels yet. Those are done by the academicians. I want to draw your head."

"What for?"

"Because it's pretty. That is why you will come to the room across the landing three times a week at 11 in the morning, and I'll give you three quid a week just for sitting still and being drawn. And there's a quid on account."

"For nothing? Oh, my!" The girl turned the sovereign in her hand, and with more foolish tears. "Ain't neither of you two gentlemen afraid of my bilking you?"

"No. Only ugly girls do that. Try and remember this place. And, by the way, what's your name?"

"I'm Bessie—Bessie— It's no use giving the rest. Bessie Broke—Stonebroke, if you like. What's your names? But, there; no one ever gives the real ones."

Dick consulted Torpenhow with his eyes.

"My name's Heldar, and my friend's called Torpenhow. And you must be sure to come here. Where do you live?"

"South—the—water—one room—five and sixpence a week. Aren't you making fun of me about that three quid?"

"You'll see later on. And, Bessie, next time you come, remember, you needn't wear that paint. It's bad for the skin. I have all the colors you'll be likely to need."

Bessie withdrew, scrubbing her cheek with a ragged pocket handkerchief. The two men looked at each other.

"You're a man," said Torpenhow.

"I'm afraid I've been a fool. It isn't our business to run about the earth reforming Bessie Brokes. And a woman of any kind has no right on this landing."

"Perhaps she won't come back."

"She will if she thinks she can get food and warmth here. I know she will, worse luck. But remember, old man, she isn't a woman. She's my model, and be careful."

"The idea! She's a dissolute little scarecrow, a gutter snippet, and nothing more."

"So you think. Wait till she has been fed a little and freed from fear. That fair type recovers itself very quickly. You won't know her in a week or two, when that abject fear has died out of her eyes. She'll be too happy and smiling for my purposes."

"But surely you're taking her out of charity—to please me?"

"I am not in the habit of playing with hot coals to please anybody. She has been sent from heaven, as I may have remarked before, to help me with my Melancolia."

"Never heard a word about the lady before."

"What's the use of having a friend if you must sling your notions at him in words? You ought to know what I'm thinking about. You've heard me grunt lately."

"Even so. But grunts mean anything in your language, from bad 'baccy to wicked dealers. And I don't think I've been much in your confidence for some time."

"It was a high and soulful grunt. You ought to have understood that it meant the Melancolia." Dick walked Torpenhow up and down the room, keeping silence. Then he smote him in the ribs. "Now don't you see it? Bessie's abject futility, and the terror in her eyes, welded on to one or two details in the way of sorrow that have come under my experience lately. Likewise some orange and black—two keys of each. But I can't explain on an empty stomach."

"It sounds mad enough. You'd better stick to your soldiers, Dick, instead of maundering about heads and eyes and experiences."

"Think so?" Dick began to dance on his heels, singing:

"They're as proud as a turkey when they hold the ready cash;
You ought to 'ear the way they laugh and joke.
They are tricky an' they're funny when they've got the ready money—
Ow! But see 'em when they're all stone broke!"

Then he sat down to pour out his heart to Maisie in a four sheet letter of counsel and encouragement, and registered an oath that he would get to work with an undivided heart as soon as Bessie should reappear.

The girl kept her appointment, unpainted and unadorned, afraid and overbold by turns. When she found that she was merely expected to sit still she grew calmer, and criticised the appointments of the studio with freedom and some point. She liked the warmth and the comfort and the release from fear of physical pain. Dick made two or three studies of her head in monochrome, but the actual notion of the Melancolia would not arrive.

"What a mess you keep things in!" said Bessie some days later when she felt herself thoroughly at home. "I s'pose your clothes are just as bad. Gentlemen never think what buttons and tape are made for.

"I buy things to wear, and wear 'em till they go to pieces. I don't know what Torpenhow does."

Bessie made diligent inquiry in the latter's room and unearthed a bale of disreputable socks. "Some of these I'll mend now," she said, "and some I'll take home. D'you know, I sit all day long at home doing nothing, just like a lady, and no more noticing them other girls in the house than if they was so many flies? I don't have any unnecessary words, but I put 'em down quick, I can tell you, when they talk to me. No; it's quite nice these days. I lock the door, and they can only call me names through the keyhole, and I sit inside, just like a lady, mending socks. Mr. Torpenhow wears his socks out both ends at once."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Sept. 7, 1903.

An announcement from Oyster Bay which will result in the revolutionizing of the methods and machinery of the Government Printing Office and some important changes in its personnel are now daily expected. President Roosevelt has before him the report made by the special investigators who, acting under the supervision of Secretary Cortelyou, made a thorough inquiry into the Printing Office methods, the decision of Public Printer Palmer on the charges preferred against William Miller by the bookbinders' union, from which he was expelled, and the recommendations of the investigators. Mr. Palmer has found in the charges against Miller sufficient to warrant, in his estimation, Miller's dismissal and it is generally believed that the President will confirm his decision. The investigators have pointed out various reforms which, in the interest of economy, should be adopted, the most important being the installment of type setting machines for certain portions of government work. It is believed that their recommendations will be adopted and that this will be the first and most important step towards reorganizing the great printing office on an up-to-date basis. It has further been pointed out to the President that the "task system," whereby the union limits the amount of work performed by each man daily, is an obstacle to individual development and public economy and it is believed that the President will confirm this decision. Members of the bookbinders' union say that they will enter no protest against any reform the President may see fit to inaugurate if he will only relieve them from the necessity of working with their old enemy, Miller, and that he will do so now seems probable, but not certain.

Advices from Turkey continue to be disquieting and the situation there is being watched with intense interest by the officials of the State Department. The Turkish government claims to have learned that it is a part of the program of the Bulgarians to attack the representatives of foreign nations in their legations, with a view to precipitating strained relations between Turkey and the countries represented in its capital. The Turkish authorities have added to the patrol which does guard duty outside of the foreign legations and has, moreover, suggested the advisability of establishing an armed guard within the legations themselves. Acting on this advice, the Russian and other ministers have summoned marines from their station ships lying off Constantinople and the United States Minister has employed several native policemen, but it is now regarded as probable that Admiral Cotton will send the Machias to Constantinople so that a detachment of American marines may take the place of the hired police.

In this connection it is worthy of note that Turkey has always resented the presence of an American vessel in the harbor of Constantinople, although European nations have always insisted on keeping one small vessel, each, at that point. Some years ago the Dolphin, then a three masted ship, was reduced to a two masted ship and sent up the Dardanelles, the object in removing one mast being to reduce her apparent size. The move met with instant protest from Turkey, however, and the vessel was soon withdrawn. The boats kept off Constantinople by the European nations are all small and are known as station ships, but they are effectual in that they furnish a place of refuge for the diplomatic representatives in times of excitement or disorder. The gravity of the situation in Turkey is proven by the virtual announcement of the government that the ambassadors and ministers must take unusual measures for self protection and further by the announcement of the Turkish Minister, Chekib Bey, that his government might feel called upon to seek the assistance of this country in the protection of American citizens in Turkey.

"Expedition" will hereafter be the watchword of the administration during the remainder of the postal investigations and in the prosecution of the legal end of the postal cases. At the personal request of the President, Holmes Conrad and Charles J. Bonaparte, the special counsel retained by the Department of Justice to assist in these cases, will come to Washington tomorrow or next day and will use every endeavor to expedite the cases still before the grand jury. Unless those officials familiar with the situation are sadly mistaken the next week will bring forth some important and sensational indictments and the first step will be taken toward meeting out justice to men whose dishonesty has taken the form of permitting dishonest investment companies to swindle the poor and ignorant out of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A further evidence of the entire lack of anything approaching a conscience among the "grafting" officials of the postoffice department has just been furnished by the discovery of a system of cigar smuggling carried on by Louis Kemper, superintendent of the registry system and by Kemper's own statement elicited by the publication of his dishonesty. Postal inspectors discovered that Kemper had for several years been importing Cuban cigars which he sold to various people in Washington and that by smuggling them in through the registered mails he had managed to evade the payment of duty. Between 50 and 60 of the smuggled boxes of cigars were traced and [illegible] press and were made public. Immediately Kemper gave out an interview in which he said that he was not aware that he was doing anything wrong in abusing his official position by using it to evade the customs duties. The cigars upwards of $400 worth, he claims were sent him as gifts and as to his having sold them; well that was nobody's business. In conclusion Mr. Kemper tries to drag down his associates by saying, Everybody does it.

ROUND ABOUT US.

There was a show in Hillsdale last week, two of the employes of which were arrested on suspicion of being the murderers of Wm. Bens, a farmer in Washtenaw county. An officer took them to Ann Arbor, where they were discharged. One of them formerly worked for Bens.—Hudson Post.

S. F. Marsteller has just completed an addition to his steam granite works, by installing a complete pneumatic plant for the working, carving and lettering of granite and marble with compressed air. With this valuable improvement to a plant that was already complete in its equipment it will take rank among the leading granite yards of Michigan.—Clinton Local.

Mr. Zinro, who has been to the insane asylum at Kalamazoo to see Mrs. Blaske, his daughter, returned Tuesday. She is the woman who went insane at Springville some months ago and attempted the double crime and murder. Her father says she is slowly and surely improving and if the recovery keeps up she may be at home before many months.

Of the two convicts, Dwight and Skahan, who escaped from Jackson some time ago, the former was captured but Skahan is still at large. He was in poor health when he fled and it is supposed he is dead in some swamp. Farmers in the vicinity where he was last seen are watching the movements of crows, which feast upon dead bodies hoping by this means to discover the location of the body.—Onsted News.

Hughie Cannon, the composer of Goo Goo Eyes and Bill Bailey Won't You Please Come Home, is out of jail. He was arraigned in police court Monday and his case seemed like that of the weak who cannot refuse a drink and when once he takes a drink there is no stopping short of the jail. The case was adjourned until September 8, which will give the officers the opportunity of putting him on good behavior.

Geo. Smith of Osseo, hung himself to the rafters of the kitchen last Sunday, while his wife had gone to church. He was at the Odd Fellows picnic where his pockets were picked. Smith was the principal witness against two of the pickpockets who were arrested and he imagined they were after him, and would do him injury. It is thought this preyed upon his mind till he became insane.—Ex.

Trenton Presbyterians are pastorless, and have been borrowing the Wyandotte preacher of that faith and now the members of the church in Wyandotte notify the Trentonites that it is about all that the minister can do to keep the church members of Wyandotte from going to the devil, and they cannot farm him out to Trenton. This brings the Trenton Presbyterians face to face with a serious problem, and they must get a new pastor or be in danger of losing their fire insurance policy against the hereafter.—Ex.

Fred Keefer, a young farmer of Medina township, was accidently shot by the premature discharge of his own gun Tuesday afternoon, and quite seriously injured. He took his gun and went to the fields to shoot some bothersome woodchucks, and after plugging one so that he killed it, he then placed the gun across the handles of a plow and started after his game. In some manner the second barrel of the gun was prematurely discharged and the charge made a bad wound in the right arm. Dr. Butler was called and dressed the wound. Although not dangerous, the wound is painful and will trouble him for some time to come.—Adrian Telegram.

A young man of Summit township had the unpleasant experience of feeling his hair stand on end Sunday evening. He had been visiting a neighbor and about 11 o'clock started across lots for his home. It was dark but knowing the way he had but little trouble until his course led him into a corner of a fence. He had been walking rapidly and becoming warm removed his coat and hat. In the density of the darkness in that corner of the fence overhung by trees with heavy foliage, he was suddenly approached. Without losing his nerve, he let go his horny hand toward the intruder, but being knocked down and badly stamped, he escaped as soon as possible and making for a fence tore off a fence board with the strength given only to men in excitement. Loudly he cried for help while he flourished the fence board threateningly. Neighbors heard the cries and hastened in that direction with lanterns. Coming up to the young man, the story of how an attempt to hold him up was related. "It happened once before not long ago, only it was over near the road," said the young man. The neighbors made a search with lanterns and found the coat and hat. They also found the highwaymen. They were two calves pastured in the lot, and which in the darkness had unintentionally bumped into the young man. One of the calves has a black eye the result of the first blow dealt by the victim of the "hold-up."—Jackson Patriot.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Mrs. Wilson McClure was given a very pleasant surprise Friday evening by about 45 of her neighbors and friends. The occasion was the celebration of her 54th birthday and was a very enjoyable affair. A very pleasant evening was spent in cards and other games, and refreshments were served. The hostess was presented with a beautiful rocker.

Geo. A. Lydamore, of Hudson, Mich., one of the men who was hurt about a year ago by being run into by the fire department team, is at the sanitarium. He has at times seemed to be a little better, but has been confined to his bed all of the time. Of late he has gradually grown worse and it is feared his spine will never be made right. The ambulance brought him down to Adrian, arriving at 3 o'clock, it having taken eight horses to get here. Twice on the road it was feared he would die. He is resting some easier. He has been under the care of several different doctors including two or three Adrian surgeons. Mrs. Lydamore says Dr. Treat advised his coming to Adrian if he ever got so he could stand the trip and undergo an examination with the X-ray. George has a great many friends in Adrian and we hope to be able to report that he is improving under Dr. Jones' care.—Adrian Telegram.
